In the quinella, Wind Song, also owned by Leverington, paid $9.80 and MacDuff's Lassie $5.10 for a $36.40 return.

Eighteen - year - old Gerald Johnson almost had a dream come true in the fifth race. Driving Tetigram he just missed winning the 5¼-furlong dash. It was the first race he had driven in, having received his licence only hours before postime.

Ann Landers

Child-Like Husband No Good in Critical Times

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Am I a neurotic with a persecution complex as my husband says, or do I have the right to expect more out of marriage than I'm getting?

Last spring I was in an automobile accident and I broke my leg. I subsequently was released from the emergency ward of the hospital. He was at my brother's house playing poker. When I told him what had happened he said, "I'm about $40 ahead right now and running a hot streak. I think I'd better stay in the game and make the hospital bill." So he sent my brother over and stayed in the game.

When his own mother died he took so many nerve pills before the funeral he went out like a light. He was unable to attend the services and never knew a thing until the next day.

Our own children do not get sick very often but when they do he remembers a fishing date and leaves town. May I hear from you on this? — MARRIED BUT ALONE.

DEAR MARRIED BUT — Your husband is not sufficiently grown up to face discomfort or unpleasantness, so when something challenging occurs he takes a duck. Such a man cannot be depended on in time of crisis. He folds like an accordion so, in a very real sense your signature describes your situation accurately.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am an 18-year-old girl, popular, and I live in a lovely home. My mother died a year ago and now I am the lady of the house.

My father is still young (43) successful in his profession and he's very good-looking. Already several women are chasing him and I don't blame them. I feel, however, that so long as I am at home he should not consider remarriage.

Father was inconsolable for months after mom died and now that he's coming out of it he seems to be paying a lot of attention to a certain woman in our church. She is nice but how could he possibly put his arms around another woman and bring her into mother's home as his wife? What position would that place me in?

This woman has two children of her own and they would have to be part of our family. Please don't tell me I'm wrong. Just tell me how to prevent my father from remarrying. — NO OTHER WOMAN NEEDED.

DEAR NO OTHER — Your statement: "And now I'm the lady of the house," is the key to your problem.

You cannot replace your mother in your father's life and you shouldn't try. If you really want to help your dad pick up the pieces, encourage him to make new friendships. Remember that life is for the living.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A friend of mine met a writer at a party and liked him instantly. She said he warmed up to her at once and that they got along famously. She decided to pop in on him about two weeks later and felt that a phone call or written note in advance would have spoiled the "surprise." So she just went over one afternoon. (He works at home.)

When my friend arrived she found a note tacked to his front door. It read: "If You Are Uninvited And Unexpected You Are Also Unwelcome." She said she felt as if she'd been slapped across the face with a wet towed.

What do you think of a person who would tack up such a message on his front door? — QUESTION MARK.

DEAR MARK — My off-hand guess is that a person who would tack up such a message on his front door does not wish to be dropped in on by anyone — not even people with whom he gets on famously at parties.

Good Finishes Feature Races At Picton Fair

While both heats of the 2.24 class were won by Sundown Direct, owned by William Prest of Springbrook, and driven by D. Heath, it was a see-saw affair among other entries.

Though the 2.20 class saw straight heat winners, there was sufficient competition to bring fans to their feet. D. Gallinger drove Albert Watts' Ben Carey to victory in both heats.

O. Fenwick of Enterprise, was presiding judge. Elberne Carson, Picton; George Rutledge, Belleville, judges; Roy Mitchell, Brighton, starter; Arthur Cahoon, Picton, R. J. Polk, Kingston, timers; Carson Scott, clerk.

If your 1956 Ford was just right for your garage you will find the 1964 Ford Fairlane most attractive. The 1964 Fairlanes combine proven performance with family-sized interiors. The new roof styling presents a wider, lower appearance as depicted in the Sports Coupe model pictured here. The highly-sculptured sides provide the Fairlane with a new look of grace and tautness. Engines include the economical six cylinder and the high performance V-8's. The 1964 Fairlane models will be seen in Ford dealerships later this month.

22,000 Pass Through Turnstiles at County Fair

PICTON — At midnight on Saturday, the curtain rang down on Prince Edward County Fair at Picton and in the three days around 22,000 persons passed through the turnstiles. This exceeded expectations as the annual event came at a time when the tomato and apple harvests were at their height and while this reduced daytime attendance, the night crowds were larger than usual. Only Saturday offered sunny, but cool weather, there being some rain the first day and overcast skies and cold on the second day. However, all events were run off in order as most of them could be held inside the many buildings on the grounds.

Proving a very popular climax to the fair was the Saturday night show in the county agricultural centre on the grounds. Here, 2,500 persons gathered to enjoy the top entertainment by the Doc Williams' group from Wheeling West Virginia, and this was followed by a dance. Admission to the grounds that night was free and an equal number patronized the midway and visited the other buildings filled with commercial exhibits.

A new feature of the fair was the parade of antique cars Saturday afternoon. Interspersed among the old models were many of the latest models. Drivers and occupants of the old cars were dressed in gay nineties attire, while four county beauty queens graced the new models. As well, there were 25 decorated bicycles, ten go-carts and other entries.

In conjunction with this feature was the selection of a Miss Antique Car Queen and this honor was won by Miss Janet Cronk, R. 2, Picton. The runners-up were Joan Frederick, Christine Cronk and Lynda Morrison.

Kingston horses predominated in the jumping and hunter classes on Saturday and the grandstand crowd had a full afternoon with horse races and another outstanding horse show. So great was the number of horses shown by 133 exhibitors that it was a canse and go affair as some moved out to make room for others in the barns. This year, Charles Culmer has shown his Palomino 14 times and he carried off the red ribbon for the 14th consecutive time this season.

Though it is one of the larger fairs in Ontario, that at Picton has an unusual attraction in its school parade of 3,300 children and the tremendous exhibit of their work which covers the complete program of work during the school year.

Especially attractive this year was the Junior Farmer building where 4-H and Homemaking clubs displayed their projects.

Prince Edward County Horticultural Society helped enhance the garden-like appearance of the Agricultural Centre with its colorful display of artistically arranged flowers set among a model church, a model doll house, miniature gardens and woodland scene.

The use of driftwood was emphasized in many ways with Mrs. James Lovelace of Bloomfield, and Mrs. J. W. Graham of Wellington having some outstanding entries.

Although directors were tired after weeks of preparation, they were smiling at the close. "We may not have made a good deal of money but that is not our purpose. We plan a fair to promote agriculture in all its phases and provide good entertainment for all ages, and we feel that we did that in large measure," said Agricultural Society president, Leland Dexsee.

"We needed it now, the bank said yes, so..."

Many a household purchase like this starts with a bank loan. People find that the simple, natural thing to do is to borrow where they save—at the local bank. In fact the chartered banks are the largest single source of consumer credit loans, both in number and value.

Through the years the chartered banks have made it increasingly easy for people to borrow, at reasonable rates, for almost any worthwhile purpose: the purchase of a car...a new home heating system...a son's or daughter's education...a family vacation...

Three out of four bank loans are to individuals for their personal credit needs. And the total amount of such loans has almost doubled in the past five years...further evidence of the way bank customers are relying more and more on their local branches for borrowing as well as for all other financial services.

7 White Men, One Toronto Youth, Indicted

Claim They Interfered In School Integration

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Eight white men including a Toronto youth have been indicted by a special federal grand jury investigating interference with school desegregation court orders in Birmingham.

The indictments result from incidents which occurred when three Birmingham schools were desegregated Sept. 4 as pickets appeared at each school.

There was no widespread violence although several time police used force to restrain protesting entry of five young Negroes into the three schools.

Named in the indictments were:

Edward R. Fields, 30, information director and leader of the pro - segregation National States Rights Party; Gerald Q. Dutton, 22; James K. Warner, 24; Barney M. Carmack Jr., 29; Jack Cash, 56, all of Birmingham, and Jesse B. Stoner, 47, Atlanta lawyer; Ralph Le Wandowski, 18, Chicago; and David A. Stanley, 19, Toronto.

ARE RETRAINING

Wallace, Alabama Public Safety Director Al Lingo and five aides were placed under a temporary restraining order Sept. 9 after state troopers barred Negro pupils from integrated schools at Birmingham, Mobile and Tuskegee.

Wallace said he would be represented at the hearing by a lawyer. The hearing is to determine whether the restraining order should be made permanent.

In Washington, President Kennedy expressed belief that Birmingham leaders, working with his special emissaries, can settle that city's racial problems at the local level.

The president met with the Trade Minister Urges Farmers To Cut Acreage

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada can sell every bushel of wheat that can be moved into export position by July 31, Trade Minister Sharp said Monday.

But he and Agriculture Minister Hays, making a quick Prairie visit hard on the heels of last week's $500,000,000 wheat sale to Russia, cautioned Prairie growers to cut back on future wheat acreage.

Mr. Hays said a 10-per-cent reduction in wheat looks like a safe target to ensure manageable surpluses from year to year.

Mr. Sharp and Mr. Hays spoke to a press conference here during Canadian wheat board offices.

Later, in a speech to a farm meeting in Moose Jaw, Mr. Sharp said Russia's record wheat purchase means about $2,000 more in cash for the prairie wheat grower.

"As nearly as we can calculate, this sale means additional sales income to the average wheat grower during the present crop year of approximately $2,000.

"No single statistic on this mammoth transaction better describes the impact of this sale — $2,000 additional dollars to the average producer."

He invited Prairie support for the Liberal party—now a political barren land for the government with only three Liberals among 68 Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta MPs.

He struck out — indirectly — at former agriculture minister Alvin Hamilton as having usurped wheat sales credit properly due the Canadian wheat board.

Titov Is Father

LONDON (Reuters) — Russian astronaut Herman Titov's wife Tamara has given birth to a daughter—the first child born into a Soviet "space family" after a cosmic flight, Tass news agency said today. The baby weighed nine pounds four ounces.

Titov, 28, the second Soviet cosmonaut after the pioneering flight of Yuri Gagarin, circled the earth 17 times during his 25 hours in space in Vostock II in August, 1961.

Russians Told to Eat Less Bread But Serious Shortage Is Unlikely

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet citizens, who probably eat more bread than any other single food, are being told at private meetings and in the press to get along with less.

Local leaders are being warned that bread must be saved and that prices may be raised because of an acute wheat shortage.

Despite these warnings there appears to be little probability that any Soviet citizen will go hungry for a short of bread.

Emergency wheat purchases abroad, running about 7,000,000 tons, will offset crop losses during the last year due to drought and persistent mismanagement of planting and harvesting. The loss apparently is about 10 per cent of the crop, which last year was 65,000,000 tons.

The shortage and the bad harvesting have sent Premier Khrushchev scurrying about the country denouncing careless farming methods.

Again and again he has put projects, the virgin lands in Siberia and Kazakhstan, Asia, last high on him as it did in other recent years.

While Russians may not go short of bread, the shortage of wheat and corn as well seems certain to make them short of meat again this year.

In some areas only 20 per

Says Commuter Rail Service Up to Province

TORONTO (CP) — A commuter railway service, including its costs, is a provincial government responsibility since it would provide transportation for persons not living in Metropolitan Toronto, Metro Chairman William Allen said Monday.

He told Metro transportation committee the city could ask the provincial study of commuter service in the Metro area is being met by the province.

Mayor Donald Summerville suggested that a plan to integrate a commuter service with the Metro rapid transit system, which would reduce, if not eliminate, any loss of passengers predicted for the Toronto Transit Commission in future years.

ROCKEFELLER ARRIVES

ROME (CP) — Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York and his wife arrived Monday night on what he called a strictly private visit to Europe.

NDP's Ask To Be Moved

OTTAWA (CP)—Speaker Alan MacNaughton has been formally requested to shift the figures on the Parliamentary totem pole, moving the splinters of the Social Credit groups downwards and pushing the New Democrats upwards.

In this case, the totem pole is the seating arrangement of the House of Commons. The request for the change came from Stanley Knowles, whip of the New Democratic Party.

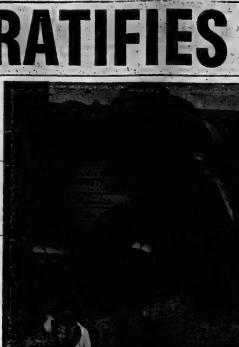
Although there were rumblings of a split among the Social Credit MPs, the pre-holiday picture had 25 of them sitting in a group next to the Conservatives. Dr. Gerd Macrae, MP for Quebec-Montmorency, has used the Social Credit whip, sat in lonely splendor on the Liberal side of the chamber but separated from the government supporters by a vacant desk.



NOW UNCROWDED

The 17 New Democrats were bunched together on the left side of the speaker's throne but as far from it and as close to the chamber door as possible.

But the holiday period produced a radical change in the face of Social Credit. National leader Robert Thompson emerged with a total of 11 MPs—seven from Quebec and two each from Alberta and British Columbia.

His erstwhile deputy leader, Real Caouette, pulled most of his following out of Mr. Thompson's camp, giving his Ralliement des Creditistes a total of 13 MPs. He also severed relations with Mr. Thompson's na-

Party Leaders Head Home To Ridings on Eve of Vote

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario's three party leaders, after making a big bid for Metropolitan Toronto's 29 seats, headed for their home ridings today to do some last-minute pitching to retain their seats in Wednesday's provincial election.

New Democratic Party Chief Donald MacDonald got a bit of a head start, appearing in a three-way debate at his Metro riding of York South Monday night.

Premier John Robarts headed for London, Ont., where he will stand for re-election as Progressive Conservative candidate in one of the two city ridings, and Liberal leader John Wintermeyer headed home to Kitchener.

The premier told a luncheon for 1,600 party workers in Toronto—his largest audience of the campaign—that the electorate should return his "no-nonsense" administration and predicted "economic disruption" if the Liberals gained power. He did not mention the NDP.

Mr. Wintermeyer drew some 1,900 to a rally closing his Toronto campaign Monday night and told them Mr. Robarts, an Anglican, had tried to "exploit a religious prejudice" in the late days of the campaign. Mr. Wintermeyer is a Roman Catholic.

His statement was directed at a comment by Mr. Robarts earlier in the day that the Liberal leader had tried to "set religion against religion on the separate school issue.

He described the premier's statement as "the act of a desperate man" and said he would not answer the charge.

Mr. MacDonald and his op-

Jet Airliner Hit by Bullet, Perhaps Meant for Visitors

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (Reuters)—A Pan American 707 jet airliner was hit by a Communist guerrilla bullet early today in firing that some sources said could have been directed against United States Defence Secretary Robert McNamara and his special mission.

The plane, on a flight from Singapore to Manila, was hit in the engine nacelles as from the Saigon airport but managed to land safely here on three engines.

Some sources said the guerrillas might have thought the airliner was bringing in McNamara and Gen. Maxwell Taylor, chairman of the U.S. joint chiefs of staff.

They were due in Saigon tonight to make a special examination of the four-year war against the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

It was understood this was

Martin Winds Up UN Stay

He is to return to the UN later this week following cabinet-level talks with a Japanese trade delegation.

Martin was scheduled to meet this morning — for the second time in two days — with Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, India's chief delegate and a sister of Prime Minister Nehru.

The Canadian minister also met for more than an hour late Monday with Russia's Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko at the Soviet UN mission.

He said afterward that the talk had gone well but gave no details. He declined to say whether Prime Minister Pearson's proposal to enlarge and reform the Security Council had come up for discussion.

MET MRS. PANDIT

Earlier in the day Martin had lunched with Mrs. Pandit and conferred later with Tunisian Foreign Minister Mongi Slim.

Martin refused to say whether his visits with Mrs. Pandit had any connection with India's long - standing dispute with Pakistan over Kashmir. But he said he planned to meet for a second time on Oct. 1 with Pakistan's Foreign Minister M. A. Bhutto, whom he saw here last week.

Martin's round of discussions was a part of many talking piece on the periphery of the UN General Assembly as it entered the second week of its fall session.

Express Co. To Have Charge Of Ballot Boxes

TORONTO (CP) — An express company will be in charge of advance poll ballot boxes for Toronto St. Andrew riding to prevent any tampering following a threat of goon squad tactics, the riding's returning officer, Murray Caplan, said Monday.

Mr. Caplan said his clerk received a telephone call stating that goon squad tactics would be used in voting during Wednesday's voting in the provincial election. He said evidence that breaks in attempts was found at one polling subdivision in the riding Saturday night and at the returning office Sunday night.

Nothing was taken and there was no sign that the ballot boxes were disturbed, he added.

After consultation with Roderick Lewis, the chief election officer, Mr. Caplan decided to call in the British Express Company and turn the advance poll boxes over to them. An armored car picked them up Monday and will deliver them to the returning officer at the close of voting Wednesday.

Advance polling was a bit heavier than expected in Metropolitan Toronto. More than 400 ballots were cast in Beaches riding and more than 300 in St. David. In the big advance poll at beaches voters cast 177 ballots and St. David voters 29.

Martin Warns Of Common-sense Approach

Will Fly Armored Division to Ge'many

'Big Lift' May Make 'Drawback' Possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — The airlift of an armored division to West Germany next month may foreshadow eventual withdrawal of sizable U.S. combat forces from Europe and perhaps the East.

There are no plans for any immediate retrenchment of that sort, but U.S. military strategists are tending in that direction in their thinking some years ahead.

Among other things, any such military reduction would ease the balance-of-payments problem by reducing U.S. spending overseas.

The sizes of the 18,000-man army-air force exercise called Big Lift are a mixture of the military and the political.

From the military standpoint, Big Lift is designed to test out the capability of the rapidly growing United States military air transport fleet to fly large numbers of troops to overseas troublespots and get them into action within a few days.

The demonstration of this capability also would yield important political dividends in showing allied nations that the United States need not keep large ground fighting formations stationed in Europe to carry out the U.S. commitment to defend the NATO area.

U.S. authorities believe Big Lift is worth the $20,000,000 it is expected to cost.

The United States now is in the process of gradually scaling down a 40,000-man buildup of support troops sent overseas to round out the U.S. 7th Army during the Berlin crisis two years ago.

More than 22,000 of these men have been brought back, reducing the U.S. Army in Europe to a total of 210,000 men.

But any sizable withdrawal of combat elements — the United States has the equivalent of six army divisions deployed in Germany—would be a thing for the future.

Nuclear Test Ban Pact Endorsed By Wide Margin

Approval Came After Two Weeks of Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate ratified the history-making limited nuclear test-ban treaty today.

Approval of the pact banning nuclear weapons testing in the atmosphere, in outer space and underwater, came after more than two weeks of committee hearings and an equal time of Senate debate.

With a two-thirds vote of the 100-member Senate required for approval, the resolution went through on a 80 to 19 roll call.

The treaty, signed at Moscow Aug. 5 by the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain, was sent to the Senate by President Kennedy Aug. 8 with these words:

"While it will not end the threat of nuclear war or outlaw the use of nuclear weapons, it can reduce world tensions, open a way to further agreements and help to ease the threat of war."

WORRY ABOUT SECURITY

But opponents, who fought vainly to the last, contended it jeopardizes national security, because it would permit the Russians to gain advantage in high-yield weapons and permits the Russians to continue development underground in the small weapons field where this country now leads. Senator Richard B. Russell (Dem. Ga.), chairman of the Senate armed services committee, expressed fears it might be the first step toward complete disarmament without the safeguard of inspection.

He and the others said they were concerned that Soviet moratorium — breaking atmospheric tests in 1961 and 1962 put them at an advantage in high-yield weapons, in anti-ballistic weapons system knowledge and in way to harden missile emplacements.

Papers Cynical About Chances Of Decimal Coinage for Britain

LONDON (CP) — An air of weary cynicism marks newspaper reaction to the latest episode in Britain's long flirtation with a decimal coinage system.

"Once again a common-sense reform looks like being defeated by the weight of tradition that is over British life," comments The Guardian of Manchester.

The Daily Mail, wry to the point of bitterness, says that Sir Christopher Wren suggested the decimal system as far back as 1695, and "it's a pity he wasn't listened to."

The Times says editorially it's about time the government made up its mind one way or the other, earlier the decision the better.

But The Daily Express wants none of this "rational nonsense. To make the change would take five years and cost £100,000,000," it says. "Britain has far worthier objects on which to spend her time and her money."

The comments followed publication Monday of an official committee report recommending that Britain adopt a decimal system based on the pound hange over divided into 100 cents, or pennies.

A minority report favored 10 shillings as a major unit, instead of the pound.

The report of the six-man committee, under Lord Halsbury, said the changeover from pounds, shillings and pence to decimals could not come before February, 1967.

But editorial comment suggests nobody expects the government to act that quickly.

The implication is that the report will be quietly sidetracked until after the next election and perhaps some time after that. The election deadline is October, 1964.

British Clear Embassy Vault Of Documents

CP from AP-Reuters

JAKARTA, Indonesia — British officials cleared out vital documents from the vault of their ruined embassy today, wiping out a possible source of new friction between Britain and Indonesia.

The embassy was sacked and set on fire and British homes were pillaged by mobs Wednesday in the backlash of the Indonesian hostility to the British-sponsored federation of Malaysia.

Red dispatch cases, canvas pouches and wooden crates, some containing top-secret papers, were carried by two trucks to the U.S. Embassy. Canadian, American, Australian and other Western embassy officers helped to load the trucks.

The British government ordered evacuation today of the five women still attached to the British embassy as word was received that the Indonesian government would prohibit international airlines from picking up passengers and cargo in Jakarta for Singapore after Wednesday.

British firms were advised to evacuate all remaining dependents and non - essential staff members.

Indonesian President Sukarno called on his people today to abide by his decision severing trade relations with Malaysia. He announced the nation's newsagency said today.

Approval Given Agreement Covering Plans for Joint Public Works Yard Project

Plans and specifications for a new public works yard project in Foster Ward, for possible joint use by the works department and the city transit commission, will go ahead despite some council objections.

Council passed a recommendation to approve the by-law agreement with the consulting firm of George L. Totten and Associates, but not before some strenuous objection by Deputy Mayor Ben Corke.

Alderman Frank Murray said a mountain was being made out of a molehill, but Deputy Mayor Corke claimed that council instructions had been only to get plans drawn for a public works barn.

He said it was serious when council directed plans for a building coming up to $175,000 and then it finds out a much larger building costing thousands of dollars more is being planned.

During the summer recess council, at a special meeting, directed the city engineer to have plans drawn up for the proposed public works barn at the time a combined building for public works and transit commission was being considered.

QUESTION OF FEE

The engineer retained the firm of George L. Totten and Associates, Ltd., to do the plans, the fee to be three per cent of the cost of the building.

Two weeks ago council wondered what the city's responsibility regarding payment of fees would be if the proposed building was not constructed.

The matter of fee payment was referred back for further consideration.

Yesterday a routine recommendation authorizing the execution of the agreement between the city and George L. Totten and Associates was before council but was objected to strenuously by Deputy Mayor Corke.

He said the agreement might put the city in the awkward position of having to pay a fee of up to $7,000 even if no building were constructed.

BACK ENGINEER

The majority of council, however, felt the city engineer had acted in good faith in directing the plans be drawn for a joint building.

"I don't think there was any great misdemeanor," said Ald. George Wishart. "The engineer's brothers are in economy in use and if the building is not erected the fee will be on a flat basis."

Council was assured that plans would go before city council and the Transit Commission for approval.

Alderman Ross Bailey asked if prefabricated barns, such as supplied by steel companies, had been considered. Such buildings were suitable for centres the size of Belleville, he said.

Alderman Wishart said this type of structure had been considered but the city engineer felt he did not have the time to supervise completion of the new project. He said he would rather the entire project be completed under one contract.

YOUNG WIDOWS ARE SELDOM MERRY

Three young widows, each with small children, live on one very lively short street. They have another thing in common, unfortunately: they have all gone back to work to try and earn enough to keep their homes—and feed and clothe their school age youngsters.

Their lives are a far cry from that of opera's "Merry Widow".

Yet just 2 years ago the future looked bright for all three. Then a car accident killed one father, a heart attack the second, hidden cancer the third. All three men were in their early thirties!

Separate School Bd. Holds Dinner for Staffs, Meeting

The second annual dinner of the Belleville Separate School Board and the teaching and maintenance staffs of the local separate school system was held in St. Michael's Academy on Monday evening, with approximately 100 in attendance.

Separate School Board chairman, Mr. Edward Buckley, called upon the principals of the various schools to introduce their staffs, and board members were introduced by Mr. Leo Ryan.

Prior to the dinner, Mr. Buckley addressed the gathering, and during the course of his remarks, outlined the accomplishments of the past year, and gave a resume of long-range plans for future projects of the board, as well as touching upon problems yet to be solved. He also spoke on his recent attendance at the Ontario Catholic School Trustees' Assn. which was held in Toronto during the past few weeks.

Mr. Buckley said he was left the conference to be very beneficial, both informative, and had been productive of a very good idea in the field of Catholic education. The concept had ranged from the preventative to the "far-out", including such subjects as Bible classes schools, round schools, and other forms of architecture that would be radical when compared with the "box" form of school design to which we have been accustomed over the years. Teachers were invited to submit their comments upon the ideas in the Belleville Separate School system.

Together with any suggestions for changes and improvements which might be of benefit.

A delicious turkey dinner followed Mr. Buckley's address, which was prepared and served by members of the Catholic Women's League.

HOLD MEETING

After the conclusion of the dinner, members of the board convened for the regular board meeting in the board room.

Correspondence and a number of resignations were dealt with, and the resignation of Dr. Jacques Juillet from the board of education, Ed. Dr. Juillet has been posted to St. Jean's, Quebec, and was consequently unable to fill the remainder of his term.

A six-month leave of absence was granted to Miss Ida Reilly, the maintenance staff and an advertisement will be placed in the local press to fill the vacancy.

Various committee reports were received and the maintenance staff were commended for the excellent job they had done during the summer in the completion of various projects in the maintenance of the board schools. A review of the salary schedule of this department will be undertaken in the very near future.

A good deal of discussion took place with regard to the collection of fees from families with children attending school, and it was decided that any fees collecting taxes to the separate school system. The inspector, Mr. E.J. Hall, was to report to the board in the immediate future a schedule of recommended fees in this connection. Still faced with continuing increases in the number of children in the system, board members were of the opinion that a new public school site in regard will have to be formulated and adhered to, in order to accommodate ever-increasing demands upon the facilities of the system.

A discussion of the necessity or otherwise of committee meetings resulted in the decision that the setting of committee meetings before the regular meeting would be left to the discretion of the various chairmen concerned.

Social Rallies End Follwell's Campaign

West Hastings Liberal candidate Frank Follwell made his final appearance of the series at a double-header last night.

The candidate, following on the heels of a whirlwind, house-to-door blitz, commuted between Belleville and Trenton where separate public school rallies were staged by party supporters to mark the end of the campaign.

Speeches were kept to a minimum at both events and direct campaigning yielded to dancing and delicacies.

In Belleville, where slightly more than 200 turned up during the evening at the Club Canara, the Liberals dished out pizza pie. In Trenton where an estimated 650 swarmed to the Legion Hall auditorium, turkey, ham and cheese were on the menu. However, admitted party organizers, not all of the crowd was from Trenton. A bus load headed a phalanx of cars from out-of-town areas north of the town.

Mr. Follwell spoke briefly in both events, concentrating the emphasis of his remarks on the need for active representation for the riding.

"In West Hastings particularly it is necessary that we revive the leadership that has been lost during the past few years," he said. "For those 20 years we have been forgotten. Worse than that we have been ignored. Let's show them that the people of West Hastings cannot be taken for granted any more."

"As I travel about the riding," Mr. Follwell told the crowd earlier in the Club Canara, "I find that the demand is for a new impetus to change a change that will give impetus to industry and economic overhead."

In both places, the Liberal candidate was introduced by Robert Temple, M.P. Hastings South.

NDP Candidate Backs County Health Unit

Ian Reilly, New Democratic Party candidate for Hastings West, and Charles Clemens, New Democratic Party candidate for Hastings East, met with some of their campaign committee in their Belleville committee rooms to arrange the wind-up of their respective campaigns.

Mr. Clemens, in addressing those present, stated that he was keenly interested in Hastings County setting up a county health unit. He felt that the need for a public health service could not be stressed too strongly. If he were elected he would do everything in his power to have the existing provincial grant for health units considerably increased.

Mr. Clemens also said that he saw the need of an entrance to the 401 Highway from the west end of Belleville to cater to users in the east end of the city and those outside of the city who now have to go into the heart of the city to get to the 401. The government, he said, has been talking of this for many years but has failed to do anything about it.

FIGHTING POOR

Mr. Reilly also felt that the present government had been somewhat shortsighted when planning the 401. He referred to the Wallbridge Road cloverleaf which is a liability rather than an improvement as it only dumps more traffic into the centre of the city. For the future he stressed the need of as it only dumps more traffic into the centre of the city. For the future he stressed the need of an existing side road could be improved in order to provide an access from the 401 to the Old Highway and thus divert all the Prince Edward traffic that now has to go through the centre of the city.

Another topic discussed by Mr. Reilly was the need for an adequate minimum wage law to cover the whole of the Province of Ontario. He is in favor of a Federal portable pension plan but thought that the federal government should take over the wraps off their package before asking wholesale endorsement of their scheme. To do otherwise was like asking someone to sign a blank cheque.

Optometrists Hear Expert On Reading

"As the technical age we live in grows increasingly complex, the demand for efficient reading increases," stated Dr. E. F. Richardson of Hollywood, Calif., yesterday, during a post-graduate-level study conference held at the Hotel Quinte for optometrists of this area. Dr. Richardson is director of the graduate Study for the Optometric Extension Program, an international nonprofit foundation dedicated to education and research in vision.

"The high school graduate of today," continued Dr. Richardson, "is required to read more than the college graduate of 50 years ago. Reading is the ability to take abstract formalized written or printed symbols and transform them into concrete visual precepts—in order to derive their meaning. This is the kind of 'seeing' that belongs to humans alone.

"Reading is a learned act, and when it is desirable and trainable. We are born with the apparatus for seeing but taught the use of reading, but a newly-born infant is no more capable of reading than he is of pole vaulting or walking a high wire.

"The typical adult reading rate of 250 words per minute, with comprehension of about 60 to 75 per cent. Yet it is quite possible to read at rates of 700-800 words per minute with a comprehension of from 70 to 90 per cent. However, the catch to this is that if the functioning of the visual apparatus is deficient, this learned high-er speed is not permanent. In a short time, the former plodding rate is reverted to, or even worse.

"Fortunately, modern optometry is equal to the task. The optometrist supplies the basic visual skills needed to read with ease, speed and comprehension reading by proper glasses, visual training, or both. Where the basic visual skills intact, there seems to be no upper limit yet found in reading rate. Reports are frequent, in fact, of people possessing reading speeds of up to 1,000 words per minute, with a correspondingly high level of comprehension. These instances have actually been verified time and time again."

Following Dr. Richardson's lecture, some time was spent in discussion of pertinent office and home lighting.

The meeting was presided over by Dr. S. C. Ross, optometrist, of Napanee. Among those in attendance were optometrists J. M. Locke, G. S. Westcott and J. A. McFee of Belleville, and Keith Hadley of Trenton.

New Overhead Bridge to Open On October 10

An official opening for the new North Front Street overhead bridge will be held on October 10th, it has been decided by city council.

Yesterday council approved holding of the official opening and changed the public works committee with the responsibility of arranging details.

Residents of the area and motorists using the North Front Street route will welcome the opening of the new bridge since early this spring traffic has been detoured around the construction site.

Alderman Walter T. Elliot said the contractor was taking much longer than necessary in completion of the bridge.

"It is absolutely ridiculous," stated the alderman. "The bridge could have been completed in a third less time."

But Alderman Elliott was told that the completion date set down in the contract was October 14th, and the date of the official opening would be four days in advance of the time limit.

Alderman Jack Allin noted that the bridge would be 100 per cent completed when it was turned over to the city, including even the sodding of the bridge approach slopes.

Children Will Get Sidewalk On Rollins Dr.

Public School children attending the Harry J. Clarke are to get their sidewalk along Rollins Drive north to Harris Ave.

City council yesterday approved of the walk on the east side of the street at a cost of an estimated $2,000, half of which will be paid by the public school board.

Alderman Ross Bailey made the request for the walk two weeks ago, and that it lead to 800 pupils have to walk along a 20 - foot wide roadway to get to the school.

A contractor is now constructing a large section of sidewalk in the same area and he has agreed to build the Rollins walk at the same unit price.

Alderman Bailey said that for reasons of safety and economy, the walk should be built now.

Miss Beverley Davies Tells of Trip to England

Two-Storey Frame Home In Tweed, Burns

TWEED — Fire Monday morning razed a two-storey frame home in the village of Tweed, occupied by Mrs. Jennie Rogers of Jamieson Street, in the centre of the village.

Cause of the fire is unknown, but it is believed Mrs. Rogers was attempting to light a fire in the stove. Before she knew it, the house was a mass of flames.

Mrs. Rogers had with her a young, unidentified niece.

The Tweed fire department arrived promptly on the scene, but because of the fire having such a head start on them, it were unable to save the building.

Estimate of damage was not readily known, however, the home and contents were considered a complete loss.

Mrs. Rogers is staying for the time being with her son, Wesley, in Tweed.

The fire broke out around 10.00 a.m. Monday morning.

the first time a civil airliner has been hit by a guerrilla fire Passengers on the flight were unaware of the incident.

The guerrilla bullet, estimate at .303 calibre, severed the oil lines in the Boeing 707's No. 3 engine as the plane flew at 1,000 feet. The American spokesman said the damage could be repaired locally.

President Johnson announced Saturday he was sending McNamara and Taylor, to South Viet Nam for a review of the guerrilla war.

McNamara and Taylor also will get out into the field, where U.S. military advisers report the Viet Cong guerrillas are growing bolder and increasing their influence, particularly in the Mekong River delta south of Saigon.

Before leaving Washington, McNamara told reporters the war had been going well until recently. Various he and Taylor were going to Saigon primarily to see whether the military operation is "being affected by the unrest of the last several weeks."

This was a reference to the Diem regime's crackdown on Buddhist and student demonstrators who accused the government of religious persecution. The government denies persecuting the Buddhists and charged the religious movement had been infiltrated by Communists.

Observers believe recent stepped-up guerilla pressure was aimed at demoralizing the American government at a time when the military aid to South Viet Nam is being carefully scrutinized in Washington.

Young, attractive, Miss Beverley Davies, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon J. Davies, of 228 William Street, and a grade 13 student from B.C.I. and V.S., took the limelight at the regular dinner meeting of the Rotary Club of Belleville on Monday.

For the past four or five years, the Rotary Club has sponsored the local Science Fair and this year, Miss Davies was the winner. She then went to Toronto where she competed in the grand finals, and came home as the Grand Winner.

For her achievement, Miss Davies was given an opportunity to go to England for the summer months. At Monday's meeting, Miss Davies showed to the members, pictures she had taken during her stay in England, and explained different points of interest.

Miss Davies gave the impression that she would rather ride on Belleville Transit Commission buses than double-decker buses in England. She referred to the Piccadilly Circus as being "the Bloor and Yonge Street Corner"; the tower bridge spanning the Thames River; Buckingham Palace, and also of the opening night of the Science Fair she took personally with Prince Philip, who opened it at the opening ceremony.

Following Miss Davies' talk, a letter of resignation being read to council, Deputy Mayor Ben Corke directed that a letter of appreciation be forwarded to Mr. Lunn thanking him for his service on the parking authority.

DESCRIBES SLIDES

Amongst the slides shown by Miss Davies were pictures of St. Paul's Cathedral, Piccadilly Circus, referred to by Canadians as the "Bloor and Yonge Street Corner"; the tower bridge spanning the Thames River; Buckingham Palace, also of the opening night of the Science Fair she took personally with Prince Philip, who opened it at the opening ceremony.

Following Miss Davies' talk, a letter of resignation being read to council, Deputy Mayor Ben Corke directed that a letter of appreciation be forwarded to Mr. Lunn thanking him for his service on the parking authority.

Carousel Will Be Kinsmen Play This Year

Kinsmen gathered at the Shrine Club on Monday evening for their regular meeting, at which time the United Appeal, "Miss Gail Walker" was present.

Miss Walker thanked the club for inviting her and said she hoped to have the support of everyone during the campaign. Miss Walker was introduced by Kin Frank Walker. She was introduced on behalf of the members by President Jim Wild.

Kin Ted Hall, campaign chairman, gave a report on the campaign. He said a few homes on the East Hill had not been canvassed as yet, but that he hoped by Wednesday night, the East Hill will be completed and he will be able to move the campaign onto the West Hill.

Vice-President Ken Walker reported on Carousel, a Broadway musical which will be playing here one night in November at B.C.I. and V.S. Kin Walker said he hoped the members would give himself, the publicity and advertisement chairman a free ticket each man, their fullest co-operation. "If they phone you and want you to buy tickets or advertising, either say you will or you won't. If you say you will and you don't, that's even worse," he said.

Council Decides To Move on Different Tack

Belleville city council has decided to move in a slightly different direction in its request for the removal of the railway tracks from Pinnacle Street.

For the past many months Mayor A. M. Haig has been dealing with the two railways concerned but negotiations between the two carriers have been delayed.

So council has decided to make representation directly to the Board of Transport Commissioners.

In presenting the recommendation Alderman Ross Bailey said it was hoped this move might assist in speeding up removal of the tracks.

Irvine Shulman New Member Of Authority

Mr. Irvine Shulman, chairman of the Belleville Downtown Retail Merchants' Associa tion, yesterday was named as member of the Belleville Parking Authority.

Mr. Shulman's appointment was made by city council yesterday following the resignation of David Lunn who has been transferred to Toronto.

Following Mr. Lunn's letter of resignation being read to council, Deputy Mayor Ben Corke directed that a letter of appreciation be forwarded to Mr. Lunn thanking him for his service on the parking authority.

Madoc Road Could Become King's Highway

The Minister of Highways of Ontario has promised that the Madoc County Road will become a provincial highway—if traffic volume demands it.

In a letter to Progressive Conservative candidate Clarke Rollins, Highways Minister J. C. McNaughton, yesterday said:

"Pleased to repeat my assurance that if following completion of the Belleville-Madoc Road traffic develops to the point where King's Highway standards are warranted I recommend its assumption as extension of King's Highway No. 62."

Highway 62 runs from Belleville to Madoc. At that point the route to Belleville is joined to a Hastings County road, which, in turn ends at Foxboro. At Foxboro, the link is taken up by Highway 14. That highway runs north from Picton to Marmora.

Through the years, the Hastings County Road to Madoc has been a repeated source of controversy in county affairs. At present, it is now undergoing the second state of a three-stage re-development.

Text of Mr. McNaughton's telegram was released by Mr. Rollins yesterday.

Driver Demerit System Seems Unlikely to Spread Beyond Six Provinces

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

For the present, the demerit system of driver discipline seems unlikely to spread beyond the six provinces already practising it.

The plan — which assesses points for convictions, leading to licence suspension — has been considered in the four remaining provinces, but none has any expressed intention of changing its existing system.

In the six provinces that use the scheme — Ontario, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Manitoba, and Saskatchewan—a Canadian Press cross - Canada survey shows opinion ranging from lukewarm to enthusiastic, but generally favorable.

Quebec and Newfoundland still rely on a system of suspensions for certain offences while British Columbia and Alberta prefer a system of driver education, leading to suspension for failure to reform.

In Ontario where the system was revised to widen margins between the levels at which points are given three years' operation, T. H. Trimble, deputy commissioner of the provincial police says:

"HAS DETERRENT VALUE"

"The system is very effective and we endorse it. . . . We think it has the greatest deterrent value.

"Any driver who has points against him and is in danger of losing his licence is bound to be cautious, if he has any brains," says Lawrence Delbridge, manager of the Canadian Highway Safety Council.

But in New Brunswick, where the system has been in operation since 1956, officials are a little more reserved.

"We feel it is working satisfactorily and is of some advantage in that way," says Ivan Wallace, deputy director of the Saint John police department.

His counterparts are shared in British Columbia and Alberta where officials feel their systems of driver rehabilitation are fairer and more likely to prevent road recklessness.

HAS A FAIRNESS

One weakness of the demerit system, they emphasize, is that in some provinces a driver starts with a clean record once he has finished his suspension and is no longer required to be made to previous convictions.

The demerit system, however, also has its advocates, particularly in Paul Lawrence, director of the Alberta Safety Council.

But for the time being, Mr. Lawrence says the province is prepared to give Alberta's system of referring habitual offenders to a three-man review board a trial. The board recommends the suspension of driveways Minister Gordon Taylor. It has at its disposal a file on every driver.

In British Columbia, convictions are filed at the province's motor vehicle branch. After each conviction, a driver is called in for an interview and his record is reviewed accordingly, he is either warned, ordered to undergo a re-examination or has his licence suspended.

COST A FACTORY

One reason Quebec has hesitated to introduce a full merit system is the estimated cost—$1,000,000. Others are the difficulty in administering it, particularly when the provincial police is understaffed by more than 200 men, and the lack of uniform traffic laws.

Newfoundland legislation permits introduction of the scheme, but although it has been under consideration for some time there has been no official indication that it is favored.

Ontario drivers are initially suspended for 30 days — the shortest demerit suspension in Canada—after they compile 15 demerit points. At the end of the suspension, the driver has to undergo another interview and has his record reduced to seven points. If his record again reaches 15 points in two years, his licence is suspended for six months. Points are removed from the record two years after they are assessed.

In Nova Scotia, a driver is sent a warning letter after four points, is interviewed and warned again at six points and has his licence suspended for six months at 10 points. When the suspension is up he is given a probationary licence for 12 months. After a year, his regular licence is restored and he is given a clean sheet.

USES SIMILAR SYSTEM

The 10-point system also operates in New Brunswick, but the compulsory suspension is three months, followed by the same probationary clauses. The driver is warned after three points and interviewed after seven.

Prince Edward Island drivers are allowed 12 points before being handed a three-month suspension, with warnings coming between six and nine points.

Manitoba has a system whereby a driver is placed on probation for not less than 12 months after he compiles six points. Additional points bring a warning which, if ignored, leads to suspension, although there is no specific limit. Term of suspension is decided by the registrar of motor vehicles.

Saskatchewan operates a three-licence system. A driver starts with a white licence, is handed a blue one when he compiles five demerit points and a red one when he reaches seven points. The next step is suspension. Every 12 months, a driver who has amassed less than seven points gets two removed, after he has to descend the licence scale.

It Shouldn't Happen to A Dog

Sometimes you just can't win.

Two Belleville dog owners were summonsed in magistrate's court this morning for having their pets running at large. No one was present to support either charge. However, one man paid his $6 fine on the summons before court started.

The second appeared — and pleaded not guilty.

With no one around to support A. Magistrate T. Y. Wills dismissed the charge.

"It's a pity the first owner didn't think of that," comment ed the magistrate.

Child Admitted To Hospital, Struck by Car

An 11-year-old Belleville school girl was admitted to hospital with undetermined injuries when struck by a car shortly after noon today.

Police say Shirley Mary Ashman, of Victoria Ave., dashed into the path of a car driven by Robert Reid, R. R. 4, Belleville, as Reid's car was near St. Michael's Academy. She was taken to Belleville General Hospital.

Constable William Armstrong investigated the accident.

Plowing Match Will Be Held On Wednesday

The second annual Hastings county plowing match will be held Wednesday (election day) on the Ridge Road west of West Huntingdon.

Last year the event was held along the No. 7 highway east of Madoc and large entries in most classes.

President of the county plowing association is Harleigh Hamilton, ex-county warden.

Girl Gets Term For Passing Bad Cheque

A 17 year-old Belleville girl who pleaded guilty to passing a worthless $30 cheque in a dress store, was sent to woman's reformatory today.

Dolores McHardy was sent to the Mercer Reformatory in an indeterminate period not exceeding two years by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

"It will be suggested that you be given psychiatric care," the magistrate said, adding if she took advantage of such treatment it would hasten her rehabilitation.

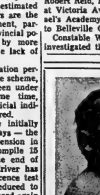
4-H Auto Safety Club Holds Meet

Hastings 4-H Auto Safety Club met at a service station in Belleville, last Thursday, to discuss plans for achievement day. Plans are for each member to make a two to three minute speech on some aspect of work and report on the year's project.

Next meeting of the group will be Oct. 3, in Stirling.

Night School Enrollment Disappointing

Registrations for night school classes at Sir James Whitney School have been disappointing to date and some classes will not be started unless there is considerably more enrollment.



This was the picture reported today by school officials with evening classes scheduled to commence on Monday.

Assistant school principal Linton Read said today, however, that he considered those who attend night school classes can still register. Total registration so far is considerably down from last year, it was stated.

Night school classes which will not be carried on unless there is more enrollment include those following: auto mechanics, bookkeeping, carpentry, crafts, drafting, electronics, mechanical drawing, speaking and sheet metal work.

SHIP IS OK

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Coast Guard vessel Edler, grounded on the western shore of Hudson Bay Saturday night, will need repairs before it can be floated off safely but is in no immediate danger, a transport department official said Monday. Work has been started to patch up damage so the ship can be refloated.

Beautify Belleville Campaign For Centennial Year Is Planned

A special citizens' committee will be appointed by Mayor A. M. Haig to promote a "Beautify Belleville Campaign" to be completed in time for Canada's centennial year in 1967.

The motion to form the committee, introduced by Alderman Frank Murray, was passed yesterday by city council. The committee calls for the committee to work on a voluntary basis with no cost to the city.

Mr. Murray said he felt city council should give local citizens some leadership in a program to beautify Belleville as a centennial year project.

He said that everyone could get in on the act; it would cost the city nothing and would benefit all.

Alderman George Wishart agreed that such a movement would be contagious and suggested that private citizens, as well as service clubs and other organizations would be glad to co-operate.

Alderman David wondered whether another "Beautify Belleville" committee should be formed when organizations such as the horticultural society had a program already in mind.

And Alderman Jack Ireland recommended the Belleville Jaycees for their community work in helping to keep the city tidy.

Alderman Jack Deacon suggested that if a committee such as Alderman Murray proposed was formed, the city could brace itself for a demand for funds He said the committee should be a committee of coun cil.

All Parties Have Old-Time Supporters

TRENTON — Hedley S. Galpin, 78, a Belleville resident for 33 years and a Trenton resident for the past two years, is a Liberal from away back — away back to Sir Wilfred Laurier.

This year, Mr. Galpin will cast his 55th vote for the Liberal candidate in Hastings West. He voted first for Dr. Bert Faulkner in that riding.

Coming to Canada from Maidenstone, Kent, England, Mr. and Mrs. Galpin settled in the Quinte area and have never seen any reason to move away from the district. Both have been Sunday School workers for many years.

Another Quinte area old-timer with strong political convictions is Mrs. Cecil Rowley of Frankford. Mrs. Rowley, "in her seventies," was one of the first CCFers under Woodsworth, and has now an undaunted support of the New Democratic Party. This week, Mrs. Rowley and other members of her family are back north at a hunting camp. But Mrs. Rowley can't rest vote . . . for NDP Hastings West candidate Ian Reilly . . . in the advance poll.

Trenton Tories turn to "Johnny" Johnson when it comes to political consistency. Johnny, 90 this year, has been a conservative ever since he was old enough to vote. He and Mrs. Johnson, who live on Baptiste Street in east Trenton, can always be counted on to show up at every Conservative meeting in the area. Almost as old as Amanda herself, Johnny thinks that the Conservative party has done a good job for the country ever since the days of Sir John A. and doesn't see any reason for changing his mind in the 1st age.

Trenton Wins Golf Trophy; Plan Curling

TRENTON — On Saturday, a 12-man team from Trenton defeated teams from Napanee and Consecon to capture the last golfing events of the season, the 18-hole tournament for the Individual Cup trophy. The trophy has been won four times by Napanee, twice by Trenton and once by Consecon and now put up for inter-city play by its donor. The Trenton team challenged 108 golfers; Napanee came second with 715 points and Gananoque trailed with 779.

Quinte area golfing gems were Trenton's Carl Charlton with a 70; Glen Wagoe of Napanee with 72 and Charles Crawford, also of Napanee, with 72.

With the season's golfing almost over thoughts at the Trenton Country Club are turning to curling. The ice will start to go in on Oct. 15 and the first event, an Industrial League schedule game, will take place on Nov. 1. On Oct. 4, the Industrial League will be formed at a meeting in the club lounge.

Meanwhile, the dates for the annual meeting of Quinte bonspiel have been set as Jan. 30 and 31 and Feb. 1 and 2. The RCAF Curling Club will be host for the four - day event this year. A meeting to make up rinks and arrange the details will be held at the country club on Oct. 13, in the evening.:

Who Will Be New Mr. Ontario?

Wednesday evening of this week the real Mr. Ontario will step forward.

There are three aspirants for the title held by Hon. Leslie Frost during his full reign as head of the Progressive Conservative party in the province.

The question to be settled Wednesday, when voters go to the polls, is whether the title was Mr. Frost's to bequeath, along with the position of Premier, when he retired in favor of Hon. John Robarts.

As Premier, Mr. Robarts has followed in Mr. Frost's footsteps, but with a gait of his own. He has made no sudden, startling changes, in either the policies or the personnel of the government, yet has given positive proof that he is his own man, leading the party on a path of his own choosing, at a pace of his own liking.

This is as it should be.

The question which will be answered on election day is whether the majority of the voters approve this path and this pace, or whether John Winterman has made a greater impression upon them than any of the changing parade of Ontario Liberal leaders since the hey-day of Mitch Hepburn.

Donald MacDonald, the leader of the New Democratic Party, cannot be considered a serious contender for the title of Mr. Ontario.

Most Ontario residents, we think, will agree that they have enjoyed good government from the Progressive Conservatives. There is the fact, though, that the party has been in power over two decades. There is a danger that the party in power, may get fat and lazy, and there is also the equally serious threat that the opposite parties may become flabby and soft, starved of new recruits of ability because they cannot offer opportunities to the ambitious.

What, though, is the picture which the parties in Ontario present? The Conservatives have just acquired a young and vigorous new leader, who has brought new blood into his cabinet, has initiated new policies and has vigorously pushed ahead with the implementation of some old projects which had been long in the blueprint stage. Perhaps, Mr. Robarts' most notable achievement is linked to his earlier role, not of Premier but of Minister of Education. He has presented the province with a new design for secondary school education which, though it has yet to face the tests which only time can provide, appears promising. He has pushed ahead with legislation covering pension plans, a project initiated by his predecessor, Premier Leslie Frost. He has promised action on making medical care insurance available to all.

Under the leadership of his vigorous lieutenant, Hon. Robert Macaulay, he has launched the provincial government into a comparatively new sphere of activity, aimed at dealing with the specific trading problems of Canada's most heavily industrialized province. This is not a record which suggests that the government is old and tired.

If there is reason to believe that the Liberals, as the only practical alternative government, may be suffering somewhat from the anemia which can arise from too long a period in the wilderness, the electorate might be pardoned for wondering whether this is an ailment which it can safely be healed by entrusting the party with power at this stage.

Here in the ridings of Hastings East and Hastings West we have six citizens seeking two seats, with the real contenders being two Conservatives, seeking re-election, and two Liberals who have served their fellow citizens well in other capacities.

Both county ridings have greatly benefited through the efforts of Mr. Clarke Rollins, Hastings East, and Mr. W. E. Sandercok, Hastings West, in promoting and securing the fine system of highways which we now enjoy. Over $12,000,000 has been spent in Hastings East in the past four years. These, and other achievements emphasize the wide experience these two men have in dealings at Queen's Park.

Mr. Roy Sills, the Liberal candidate in Hastings East, is best known to the farming community. It is in connection with developing and expanding the services of a wide variety of farm organizations that he has played his biggest role in community service. He has, also, taken an active interest in educational matters. Mr. Frank Foltwell, the Liberal candidate for Hastings West, is well known in two fields of service, municipal and Federal politics. He is an ex-mayor of the city and a former member of parliament.

We are fortunate in being able to go to the polls with the assurance that, no matter what the outcome, the two ridings will be well represented in the next Legislature.

New Pension Plan Could Short Change Tax-Shy Farmer

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Between them, the Russian grain traders and National Health and Welfare Minister Judy LaMarsh may solve one of the mysteries that seems always to have completely baffled the Federal Government . . . what happens to what is known as "Farm Income?" — how and where does it appear, so intriguingly, to vanish?

The Russians could figure in the solution of the mystery because with the $300,000,000 wheat sale to Canada, they are accounting for one half of the $1,000,000,000 export business the Prairie grain men are racking up.

And $1,000,000,000 . . . that is a billion - - is a little more than sweep under the rug, bury in the garden or write off through some remarkably wizard-kind of accounting.

But Judy LaMarsh could play a hand in answering the "Farm Income" conundrum because she wants the National Revenue Department to tax that $1,000,000,000 for contributions to her Canada Pension Plan.

ONLY 14 PER CENT:

Miss LaMarsh's actuarial experts, after consulting the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the Federal Agricultural Department, National Revenue and other recognized government authorities, have established that there are 940,000 working farmers in the country.

But, oddly, only 720,000 bother to file an income tax return.

And of these, only 86,916, or about 10 per cent, admit to earning enough to be liable to tax.

Amazing arithmetic that, when you think of a cool billion dollars in wheat exports alone.

Perhaps, the great majority of farmers are self - employed, and so, in computing their own tax deductions (if any) from income.

This is much different deal than the majority of urban workers get from the revenue department which pokes its cut, like it or not, before they ever get their hands on their chosen use of the MONEY, or not, comes back at the end of the tax year, for another slice.

Some other years ago, the revenue department, like city people, suspected that, perhaps, some of the farm population were not coming everything when it came to filing out income.

So it sent its tax men out across the western wheat plains to ask questions and even peek into books, accounts and records.

MURDER, THEY SHOUT

You should have heard the agonized screams of outrage.

Perhaps, the Prairie wheatmen have the most powerful, hardest-working, most deeply-dedicated lobby in the business of twisting Ottawa arms, and they gave the government in general, and revenue department in particular, a classic tongue-lashing on Parliament Hill.

In the Commons, "Gestapo agents," was one of the gentler terms used in lacing the revenue sleuths.

And so, since the Prairies do - - left to their own any government would and did - - control a lot of often crucial votes, the investigation seemed quietly to die.

But now Judy is asking questions.

It is not that she is mean, she just wants to tax the farmers for their contributions to pay up, so that they can get it back when it comes time to go out to retirement pasture.

Contributions under the pension plan will be collected monthly in the case of employers and employees. (That is you and I, in the large majority.)

Self-employed persons (and that is the farmer, largely) will be expected to pay into the plan on a "voluntary" basis at double the rate - - with the deadline set for April 30, when the year's last call for income tax is recorded.

But if you don't pay income tax - - as 90 per cent of farmers don't - - then how do you pay into the pension fund? It could be that the tax-shy farm income has, perhaps, done itself out of getting in on the Canada Pension Plan.... good or bad as that scheme finally may turn out to be.

Modern Life, Nervous Upset Go Together

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The words "nervous tension" and "modern living" have become almost synonymous these days, but I wonder if it isn't something more than the relentless pace of industrial society that is responsible for those nagging, sour faces on the homebound train.

This may astound those who are unacquainted with the facts of history, but the serf of the despised Middle Ages worked less hard and less intensely than the modern American, with his high standard of living and his eight-hour day.

A good case could be made out, in fact, for the contention that we work harder than any other free people that there has ever known. During the last 300 years, the number of holidays in this Western world has shrunk to almost nothing.

In the ancient Greek calendar there were many holidays for every working days. The early Egyptians and the Jews had an abundance of feasts and festivals throughout the year — some of them extending for a full week.

The Roman days festi were of three kinds, and were quite meticulous. The first kind was observed regularly, like our Sunday; the second kind was observed annually, on days fixed by the authorities, like our Thanksgiving; and the third kind was publicly proclaimed as occasions called for them. The latter were extremely frequent. Even in the Middle Ages, one third of the days in the year were given over to feasts and festivals, while in the Roman age man may have labored 12 or 14 hours a day, he rested on one day out of seven.

The average life, then, was not unlike that of a modern train conductor, who has a long run from Chicago to New York, and then lay off for a couple of days.

As we learn more about the complex operations of the body and its relationship to the mind and the emotions, we may discover that the secret of today's sounder view of the human organism than we do — and that it is the unrelieved pressure of day-after-day toil that creates weakness and breakdown, rather than outright effort over a long number of hours.

Most of the effective men I have known, in the arts and sciences or the arts, work hard and long — but fairly frequent and extended vacations throughout the year. Routine can be a deadlier enemy of social development than relaxation.

Just Send Jet For Charcoal

Financial Post

Here, without comment, is a report from Penhalter, in Canada's Arctic, as published in Time and Tide of London, Eng.: The scene in a canteen one afternoon with the temperature soaring into the low 90's. A lady there is, I, Generals, their presence occasioned by the fact that there is an American base here, in the process of being closed under the big economy campaign.

Says one: "Do you use any charcoal please? We want to barbecue some chicken tonight this evening," Answer: "Afraid not, sir."

The three go into a huddle in a corner and their conversation, very audible, is: "Well, what the hell — let's send a jet down to Goose Bay (over 500 miles) for 40 lbs. of charcoal and five cases of beer and it'll be here in time for supper."

And turning to the manager: "May I use your telephone, please?"

Eggs have advanced in price from 20 cents to 23 cents per dozen.

There has been no decided increase in relief figures the city list this month, according to the information given out by the Central Relief Bureau here. Seasonable work is said to be the cause for the fairly static number of applications on the lists. At present approximately nine hundred individuals are accepting relief in varying amounts.

There is an interesting item with regard to the Aviation Army here, taken from our file copy of the issue in 1883: "The Salvation Army will commence work in this city on Sunday next. The working corps will be under the command of Lieut. Nellie Ryerson who will be assisted by six sergeants from Kingston and Capt. Wass of Toronto.

Arnold Brown, Jr., returned to the city yesterday after spending six months in England and he was welcomed home by many friends.

Many ages ago it was permissible to offer for sale wild game of all kinds. In this connection the following item from our file copy at this date in 1873 is of interest: "A large display of game for sale is on view here at the store of W. H. Schoin, including black ducks, wood ducks, teal, partridge, snipe and plover."

Work will be commenced on the new intake pipe at the waterworks pump house tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Hull Austin of Fort Arthur, Ont., formerly of Belleville, are visiting friends here. Mr. Austin is a former Belleville newspaper man.

There are 1,100 pupils in attendance at the high school here and two extra rooms will have to be provided for the assembly room. Two extra teachers are necessary, and an extra teacher is required at Queen Alexandra School.

There is a large attendance at the public school here this fall; Queen, Victoria School has 447 pupils and 11 teachers; Queen Mary School has 628 pupils and 10 teachers; Queen Alexandra School has 415 pupils and 9 teachers; George School has 353 pupils and 8 teachers. Mr. H. J. Clarke, public school Inspector, states that the registration of 1643 pupils is the largest on record at this season. There is no serious overcrowding in any of the schools.

To Your Good Health

Will Power Can Not Be Provided By Medicine

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I keep thinking of the obese writer of a letter to your column to whom you offered the genuine help.

If she has "will power" adequate to her needs, she wouldn't have written you for help, would she?

In view of the fact that obesity is one of our major health problems, what do you recommend for people who are diabetic and who crave food and alcohol, and nicotine?

Where is this craving rooted. In insecurity? Is it chemical? How can one achieve balance. Is psychiatry the only solution?

I hope you will outline tangible directions for the overweight diabetic who is also a chain smoker and problem drinker. — N. P.

Come, come. And slow down. I am all in favor of science, and in favor of every medical aid that can be provided, but I don't thing it is up to science, or to medicine, to provide a pill to do with will power. This attribute is something that people must develop within themselves. I think that obesity is probably the greatest single health problem we have in this country. There is no serious overcrowding in any of the schools.

No. Where sagging has been the complaint, this seems to be due to flabness of muscle tissue rather than breast feeding.

Note to MRS. E. S.: If your husband "craves" lemon juice, let him drink it. It contains a lot of Vitamin C, and is found completely the nonsense from your letter that it will "dry up the blood."

Fat! My ladies. "The Lost Secret of Reducing" tells how to get rid of it the easy way. For your copy, send to care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dunmore, Pa., enclosing a self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover cost of handling. Dr. Molner welcomes all readers mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to reply to individual letters. Dr. Molner answers readers' questions in his column whenever possible.

Try to Reduce Plane Fires

Waterloo Times

Official government records show that nine out of ten fatalities in "survival" airplane accidents — crashes which occur during take-offs or landings at low enough speeds to give occupants a good chance of survival — result from the effects of fire. Such accidents, statistics indicate, occur far more frequently than "non - survival" crashes — those in which planes drop from higher altitudes.

With this thought in mind, experiments aimed at reducing such fatalities in landing or take-off accidents by 90 percent will be conducted by the Federal Aviation Agency, which has awarded contracts worth $740,000 for the projects.

One firm will design and test a high-strength bladder cell fuel system that will resist puncture on impact. Another plans tests to determine how air filters under remote control will be crashed deliberately for the purpose of studying fuel combustion in the beds and cabin survivability.

A third company will study fuel containment under crash conditions on planes using integral wing fuel tanks, which are the type used by most large transport planes; a study of alternate wing tank designs, and a study of the crash-worthiness concepts of present - day aircraft. A fourth will analyze operating instruments which will be used to measure heat and toxic fumes in cockpits.

Airplane crashes cannot be eliminated completely, no more than automobile accidents can be made an impossibility. This is because automatic equipment has failings that can not be cured by human beings have their failures. But these experiments may serve to help reduce the number of fatal airline accidents.

How often we read, after a tragic airplane accident, that the investigators were unable to determine the exact cause because of the ravages of fire. Fire on impact is by far the leading cause of fatalities in aircraft accidents.

With these facts at hand, air safety experts have good reason to believe that if a way or ways can be found to keep a plane from burning in a crash, deaths could be cut by as much as 90 percent.

New Benefit Of Marriage

New York Times

President Kennedy's executive order halting the draft of married men so long as there are enough bachelors around between 19 and 25 for the peacetime armed services will be a great spur to the institution of marriage. But it may create a problem for the hesitant young man who likes a girl but likes his freedom more. Will the eligible bachelor soon have a bride's aisle or do his marching on a drillfield?

Faced with such major decisions, a student might turn to the writings of that unsentimental American cynic, Ambrose Bierce, who saw battle at Shiloh and wrote the wordings on the soldier's and civilian's life. On the military condition, he once declared war was a "soldierly compound of vanity, duty and the gambler's hope." On the single married state, he regarded it as "the state or condition of a community consisting of a master, a mistress and two slaves, making in all, two."

Where this leaves a prospective draftee or volunteer is not clear. Department of Defence giving the edge to engaged young women, and no doubt encouraging many a half-committed June bride-to-take the leap much sooner.

Six boxes of gold bullion worth $215,000 were stolen 12 years ago Tuesday — 1962 —from an unguarded building at Malton Airport near Toronto. The gold, awaiting air shipment to Montreal, was never found but investigators believe it had been flown in a private aircraft to Mexico. It was then believed to have been smuggled to Hong Kong and eventually to Communist China.

Common Market Offers Small Tariff Cut

BRUSSELS (AP) — The European Common Market offered the United States a small cut in its tariff on U.S. poultry but demanded that Americans abandon the idea of further negotiations on the issue.

The demand made certain that the United States would reject the offer to trim 1.3 cents from the 13.43 cents-a-pound duty, a 10 per cent cut in a tariff the Common Market raised 180 per cent last year.

The United States was expected to press instead for negotiation of the dispute by the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, the 45-nation international trade organization.

It took the foreign ministers of the six market nations—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg—only 20 minutes to reach a unanimous decision.

Christian Fouchet, President Kennedy's chief negotiator here, had said earlier the 1.3-cent reduction was not enough.

The United States is expected to announce retaliatory tariff increases setting the stage for a new policy that will hit other farm products, especially tobacco, even harder.

Will Not Alter Color Except For St. Pat

And to complicate matters further, the Spanish consul general is reminding everyone that Spain paid for the discovery of America and is saying the line should be Spanish red and yellow.

"This has gone far enough," said Barnes. "Our men have more important things to do than paint polka dot stripes up Fifth Avenue every time there is a parade."

He d'dn't dare try to overturn the St. Patrick's Day tradition, but he ruled that March 17 is the only occasion for which the avenue line will change color.

John A Corte, president of the Italian society, replied darkly:

"We will not get away with this."

FUNERALS COST $529

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Figures issued Monday at the Ontario Funeral Service Association congress here say the average cost of a funeral in Ontario in 1962 was $529. The average profit to the funeral home was said to be $74. The figures contained in a report compiled by Gruneau Research Companies Limited, include the cost of coffins but do not cover cemetery costs, flowers, extra transportation or an honorarium to the clergyman.

Want to Make Sir Winston House Member

LONDON (Reuters) — A new proposal to honor Sir Winston Churchill — now 88 — has raised a knotty problem for Britain's constitutional experts.

Briefly, the proposition is that the veteran statesman and British Second World War leader who will not run again for Parliament at the next general election, should be made an honorary member of the House of Commons.

The idea has been brought to the notice of Prime Minister Macmillan. It is primarily a matter for the legislature—and politicians say it involves big snags.

These were pointed out in a newspaper article by former Labor prime minister Earl Attlee who said he had never heard "a more preposterous proposal."

Attlee said: "I would yield to no one in supporting any reasonable proposition for doing honor to a great man, but as an old House of Commons man I should bitterly resent any proposal for diluting its membership by adding to it a person not elected by the electors for a real constituency."

No one as yet knows what the reaction of Churchill will be to the proposal. As a dedicated House of Commons stalwart, he might well be as much against it as Attlee, despite his tremendous attachment to the lower house and its institutions.

The men, Arthur Goldreich, 33, and Harold Wolpe, 36, escaped from jail in Johannesburg after being held under the law which empowers police to detain people for up to 90 days without bringing charges.

Move to Increase Gasoline Service Outlets Turned Back

A move to increase the permissible number of gasoline service station outlets in the city from the present 55 to 60, was turned back in city council yesterday for more considera tion.

The recommendation called for the present limiting by-law to be amended to allow operation of up to 60 stations.

Council was told that the present by-law was passed in 1959 as a "freezing" measure to limit the number of gasoline stations until pending annexation was completed and a new zoning by-law was in force.

At the time the promise was that the by-law would be amended or altered.

Alderman Jack Ellis wanted to know why 60 had been chosen as the suggested number of stations to be permitted.

Alderman Ross Bailey said there were two reasons for the amendment.

PATTERN CHANGED

One was that the traffic pattern in the city had changed since the by-law was passed and the other was that the limitation on the number of services stations was resulting in traffic flocking at outlet permits.

He said when a firm or company wanted to start a new service station an existing outlet permit had to be purchased. Owners were asking as much as three times what permits were worth, he said.

"Either a man pays what is asked or he doesn't get a service station."

Alderman Frank Murray asked if the opinion of gasoline service station operators had been sought on the matter.

WOULD REPEAL BY-LAW

Alderman Les Digby suggested the proper course might be to repeal the present by-law and then sit down with station operators to try and determine what is needed.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds felt it would be wise to repeal the present by-law and leave the matter wide open.

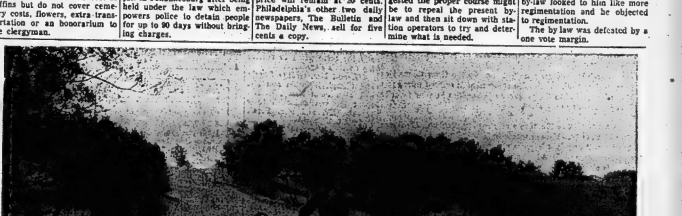
"There should be some control, but at the same time there has been growth in the city and possibly more outlets are required."

Accordingly the matter was referred back for further consideration.

Council Defeats Bylaw to Control Burning Leaves

City council yesterday turned down a by-law which would regulate the burning of rubbish and the setting of bonfires in the city.

Among other things the by-law would have prohibited the burning of leaves on city pavements and also would have called for a permit for a bonfire to be started if such a fire was considered to be hazardous.



"How would it be determined whether or not a bonfire would be hazardous before it was started", objected Deputy Mayor Ben Corke.

And Alderman Jack Allin objected to the clause which would forbid burning leaves on the street.

"The by-law forbids burning leaves only on city pavement," returned another councillor. "There is nothing to stop them being burned on private property."

Deputy Mayor Corke said the by-law looked to him like more regimentation and he objected to regimentation.

The by-law was defeated by a one vote margin.

Why buying a London Life policy is as good as buying a piece of property (perhaps better)

The value of London Life permanent insurance is not in the lap of the gods. It is guaranteed. You don't need a large down payment. You can borrow money on it. And all the while it protects your family more completely than any other investment.

YOU MAY LIST YOUR REASONS when we compare a London Life Jubilee policy with a piece of property. But consider these facts:

(1) Investment in a piece of property usually involves some risk. A London Life Jubilee policy avoids the hazards of investment risk. The cash values of your policy are guaranteed in writing.

(2) Start modestly. $13.09 a month isn't very big league in the investment world. But invested in a London Life Jubilee whole life policy it provides protection and builds substantial savings. If you start at age 25, by the time you reach age 65 you will have had $25,000 in insurance protection for your family for 40 years—and you will have built up savings of about $12,580, twice as much as you have paid in premiums. This is made up of $5,580 in guaranteed cash value, and about $7,000 in accumulated dividends. (Based on the 1963 dividend scale and assuming you leave dividends to accumulate.)

(3) When you're ready to retire, what other form of property offers you all these choices: at age 65 you can keep right on with your London Life insurance protection; you may stop paying premiums and take a paid-up policy for an adjusted amount; you may take the cash value, plus dividends that have built up—take it in a lump sum, as an income guaranteed for life or as an income for so many years. No other property is so versatile.

(4) London Life has had an outstanding dividend record over the past 50 years. Since 1951, the dividend rate has been increased six times.

(5) With your first premium you create an immediate estate. If you die, the value of your London Life policy is greatly increased—worth much more than you have paid in premiums. Many other properties must be sacrificed when the owner dies.

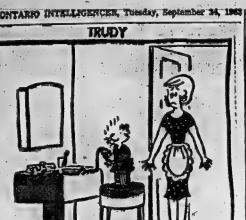
(6) You can borrow from London Life on the cash value of your policy, quickly and quietly. Just call the local London Life office or your representative. No credit check. And all the while your policy continues to protect your family.



(7) When you borrow from London Life, the interest rate is 6% —comparable with banks' regular lending rates and much lower than personal loan companies'.

(8) A London Life Jubilee policy is a good investment in other ways. It is not affected by market fluctuations. It is just as safe as high-grade bonds and much safer than most common stocks. It is particularly attractive because while it earns you money it protects your family.

(9) Property values may rise or fall. But a London Life Jubilee policy grows with dividends and guaranteed values. Dividends are declared each year. The dividends payable to London Life participating policyowners in 1963 will be more than $23 million.

(10) One reason London Life premiums are low is because Canadians, on the average, are long lived. Dividends to policyowners are high because, among other things, the Company invests wisely and profitably. (In 1962, the Company earned 5.47% on its investments—after investment expenses.)

(11) No two men have the same insurance needs. That's why your London Life representative has been selected to tailor insurance to fit your needs. He is trained to give you efficient service for many years to come.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I am a widow, fifty, family grown and married. I am interested in taking a course in cosmetics, either as simply a hobby, or perhaps with a view to a business venture. I have always been interested in this field, but until now circumstances have prevented me from doing anything about it.

Do you know if there is a course that I could take that would train me for cosmetic demonstration? That is, if you don't consider this a completely wacky venture for a woman in my age bracket. — A VENTURESOME WIDOW.

DEAR VENTURESOME — Wacky? Not in the least. One manager of a cosmetic firm said the ideal saleslady was an older widowed or divorced woman with two or three children to raise. Qualities supposedly possessed by such women included steadiness, experience with people, a necessity to earn a living.

Training courses are put on by the firms themselves from time to time. Inquire about what is offered where you are by talking to the manager of cosmetics in your favorite department or drug store.

DEAR DORIS — We have a very serious problem. My fiance is 18 and I am 16. We are madly in love and plan to wed. Our parents won't permit it because we are still in school.

We are sure it's love because we have been together for three years. Is eloping our answer? We were working after school and on Saturdays and now through the summer.

Please help us! — LOVERS.

DEAR LOVERS — Believe me, I help you most when I say wait! in capital letters. If it's the Real Thing it will keep. It's adult to finish school first. Don't risk being another statistic in the report of broken teen-age marriages.

DEAR DORIS — My daughter is to be godmother to a friend's baby daughter. Is it her right to give a present to the baby or the baby's parents? — AUNTIE MAY.

DEAR AUNTIE — Her gift is to her godchild: something permanent, which can, perhaps, be handed down later to her own children. This might be a silver mug or spoon, a gold locket or baby bracelet.

Party Leaders on the Hustings

Will Not Inject Religious Issue In Campaign

- - Wintermeyer

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer denounced the Conservatives Monday night for what he said was a last-minute attempt to exploit religious prejudice.

Mr. Wintermeyer, a Roman Catholic, drew a standing ovation when he told a campaign-closing rally of about 1,800 here that he would not reply to efforts by Premier John Robarts to inject Protestant - Catholic issue into Wednesday's election.

Towards the end of a speech summarizing the Liberal program and the issues in the election, Mr. Wintermeyer said that Mr. Robarts is showing signs of desperation.

"Now with the help of the Tory press, he has in these last few days attempted to exploit religious prejudice," the Liberal leader said.

Speaking quietly, he added: "Well, I think it is the act of a desperate man, and I am not going to answer him." The audience in Massey Hall stood up and applauded for almost a minute.

AIMED AT ROBARTS

The statement was directed at a comment by Mr. Robarts earlier in the day that the Liberal leader had attempted to "set religion against religion" on separate school policy. Mr. Robarts criticized the Liberals last Friday for an advertisement in the Catholic Register saying the party would give separate schools equality with public schools.

Mr. Wintermeyer said that when he decided to contest the Liberal leadership five years ago, he determined that "conditions which in our province today as to justify my belief that my faith would not be held against me."

He added, to more applause: "I have never allowed, and I never will allow, sectarian considerations to influence my judgments on public policy."

A man in the audience chose this moment to shout: "Hang the bum Roberts."

ANSWERS TIM CABINEY

Mr. Wintermeyer also answered charges that the Liberals would lack a strong team for a cabinet.

He gestured towards the 29 youthful - looking Toronto-area candidates on the platform and said they are typical of Liberal candidates across the province.

"They provide a reservoir of ability out of which strong and progressive government can be drawn" he declared.

Earlier in the day, about 800 to fill Massey Hall's 2,765 seats, made up for the missing numbers in noise, placards, banners, balloons, confetti and firecrackers.

The crowd fell short of the 2,500 drawn to Varsity Arena last Friday by New Democratic Leader Donald MacDonald but was better than the top conservative crowd of the campaign—1,600 at a noon rally Monday.

Ten federal members of Parliament from the Toronto area joined candidates and Mr. and Mrs. Wintermeyer on the platform. Five Wintermeyer children sat in the front row of the audience.

BACK HOME TODAY

They return home today to campaign in Mr. Wintermeyer's Waterloo North riding on the eve of the election.

Liberal supporter Harry Litt, Lan beat the drum for Mr. Wintermeyer when the Liberal chief visited St. Patrick's, a riding that takes Toronto's Chinatown. The big drum, three feet high and five feet across, normally is used in the ritual dance of the happy lion, the smiling Harry explained.

"How's the campaign going? Herb asked. "Is anyone out for your neck.

"Oh, Mr. Wintermeyer replied. "There's a lot of that but it wouldn't be an election without it."

Robarts Belts Liberal in Final Rally

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Roberts, in a final fling at Metropolitan Toronto's 29 legislature seats, called on the electorate Monday to reject the Liberals' "flip-flop thinking" and return his "no-nonsense" administration in Ontario's general election Wednesday.

The premier predicted "economic disruption" if the Liberals were elected, putting Ontario back to the "bleak days" when they were last in power—1943. He made no mention of the New Democratic Party.

In his final day of general campaigning—he will spend today working for his own re-election in London South—the premier canvassed in a wide range of constituencies. He lent a hand to Labor Minister Rowntree in York West, invaded NDP Leader Donald C. MacDonald's York South and called on Liberal-held Downsview and three of the area's 10 new constituencies whose creation boosted House seats to 108.

The premier's main appeal was made to 1,800 party workers—his largest audience of the campaign—at a luncheon meeting with the 29 Metro candidates at the head table. Toronto Mayor Donald Summerville, a Conservative, sat with the rank-and-file.

HITS AT LIBERAL

In his luncheon speech, Mr. Robarts belted Liberal Leader Wintermeyer for what he described as trying to "set religion against religion" on separate school policy; reversing himself on major matters and whipping up an emotional issue over old-age pensions.

In an evident reference to the combined assault of Mr. Wintermeyer and Federal Health Minister Judy LaMarsh on Ontario's cautious approach to the Canada Pension Plan, Mr. Robarts said:

"One thing it proved to the people and that is that John Wintermeyer is not the master in his own house. He took his marching orders from Ottawa and disregards the people of Ontario in a political alliance which has fallen flat on its face."

"We have made our position clear," he said in a reference to previous assurances that he would have Ontario's new pension plan integrated with the federal one after certain points were settled. "We seek the best possible plan that the mind of man can devise, and we'll cooperate with anybody to reach that objective."

On education, the Liberals have tried to "set religion against religion, city against country, in a desperate effort to woo the voters. But they have not succeeded."

DEPARTS FROM TEXT

The premier's prepared text, issued to reporters before he spoke, said Mr. Wintermeyer had inserted "thoroughly mischievous and completely false" advertising in the Canadian Register, a Roman Catholic newspaper, for the purpose of stirring up religious prejudice.

In his delivery, in which he skipped several parts of the text and paraphrased others, the premier omitted this paragraph and the following one saying the Register advertisement was "a dagger aimed at the heart of this united community" and would be repugnant to all Catholics.

In a speech last Friday, Mr. Robarts accused Mr. Wintermeyer of lying a the advertisement, which said the Liberal plan for financing education was "the only one which would give Catholic separate schools equality with public schools.

Must Afford Free Education In University

- - MacDonald

By DAVID DAVIDSON

TORONTO (CP) — The three candidates contesting York South riding in Wednesday's provincial election met Monday night for an exchange of views and to answer questions, but expected excitement failed to materialize.

Donald MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party, Progressive Conservative W. G. Thomson and Liberal Herbert Robinson each addressed the more than 50 persons and fielded questions.

Mr. Robinson said he was in favor of Canada-wide medical care, full coverage for drugs without further delay, and the establishment in the province of a drugs directorate.

FAVORS MEDICARE

Mr. Thomson said he was in favor of a medical care program in the province.

"I believe we should have a medicare plan but it should be one we can afford and one that will not involve compulsion."

The NDP chief said the Progressive Conservative government had achieved its "coverage in medicare in the last 12 months and are offering you what is now available."

"If a party talks about something (medical care) for 20 years and does nothing about it, obviously it doesn't believe it."

A third-year university student asked Mr. Thomson what his views were on making university education free for everybody.

"We shouldn't open the universities to a bunch of numbskulls who aren't going anywhere anyway," Mr. Thomson replied.

MUST HAVE NOW

Mr. MacDonald said that free university education was "something we've got to afford immediately." Canada would not be able to survive in the modern world unless something were done now.

An acceptable entrance standard should be established, the NDP leader said, but ability to do university work should be the only criterion for admission.

Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Thomson were asked if they favored an increase to pay for members of the provincial legislature, who now received $7,500 a year.

Mr. Thomson said he would vote against a pay raise if elected.

"He'll damn well do what the caucus says," Mr. MacDonald replied.

"Politics has ceased to be an old man's hobby or a rich man's game and remuneration should be comparable to full-time jobs outside public life."

No major changes appear in Studebaker's Gran Turismo Hawk for 1964 but subtle accents, such as vinyl roof, new dash lid and grill treatment give classic Studebaker a more continental look than before.

Mrs. Ann Masterson, 89, Excellent Quilt Maker, Still Pursuing Craft

At 89 young years of age, Mrs. Ann Masterson still pursues the crafts she virtually learned at her mother's knee.

Her forte is quilt-making. As a matter of fact, it is not so much making as creating. For like all quilters she lays the emphasis on colorful design, conceived in her own mind's eye.

Now a widow, she lives with her daughter and son-in-law — Mr. and Mrs. Edward Purcell at 107 Homewood Drive. Most of her time she spends in not only the designing, but the achieving of quilts — patchwork and otherwise.

As a farmer's daughter and a farmer's wife in the days before cheap dispensable clothing, she practised her fingers in utilitarian fashion. Now her fingers create artistic homecraft.

"When we were little we used to knit and sew — and so this comes just as second nature," she says displaying her latest quilt.

Born in Huntingdon Township, she was the daughter of a family that immigrated from Quebec and began farming in the district near Stoco. Among other endeavors, her father engaged in the locally-remunerative production of potash — the cutting and burning of certain timber to produce ash for soap manufacturers.

LIVED NEAR STOCO

She married Joseph Masterson and they moved to a 200-acre farm nearby Stoco. Among the staples of farming in those days was milk production for the Quinte area's booming cheese factories. Today most of it is diverted to dairies where "they whip it up and put it in bottle."

The Mastersons later moved to Thomasburg and back again to the Stoco area. In both places she had her first glimpse of a changing age — one which eventually converted those cheese factories into dairies as the main factor in local dairy farming.

At Stoco she saw her first car. fi was while accompanying a herd of cattle along a roadway seated in a cart behind a frisky pony, once a race horse.

"He was a cheese inspector coming from Belleville," recalls Mrs. Masterson. "And the car scared the horse."

However, she added, at the gallop, the horse could outpace the car "which wasn't going very fast."

Her introduction to the air age came at Thomasburg — in a fashion that fits the aplomb of the early aviation pioneers.

"The first plane I saw was about 43 or 44 years ago," says Mrs. Masterson. "It was in Hungerford and we saw it falling. We put the horses on the democrat and we went to where it fell in the field."

SOARING ON TWO DESIGNS

However, the aviator not only scrambled out unhurt but something of a hero. Mrs. Masterson recounted about 100 people gathered from the countryside screamed and "everybody was asking him to come to their place for the night."

The next day, after several mechanics had been summoned, the intrepid gent—as was the custom in those days—revved up and took off from where he'd been so rudely interrupted.

However, back to quilts, two of which Mrs. Masterson is currently devoting her time to. One is in Jacob's-coat style—put together with odd pieces of silk, matching only in an overall effect of racy color.

"I didn't buy any of it," she says. "These are just scrap pieces of silk."

The second is a fruit design on a plain white background, which, she explains, is made from bleached sugar bags.

The work, she admits, is tedious, but reared in the old pioneer tradition of self-application, she finds it enjoyable.

As for artistic design: "I just pick them up. There's nothing to that," says Mrs. Masterson.

Paralyzed Girl Acts as Bridesmaid

But in St. Mary's Anglican Church, scores of women cried openly and men dabbed their eyes furtively as a 20-year-old bridesmaid took the most agonizing walk of her life.

But as the congregation silently urged her on, the young girl dragged her feet over the floor and, smiling bravely, finally took her place beside her brother John.

Not quite two years ago, Audralyn had been pinned beneath an overturned sports car she had been driving. In hospital later, doctors five times thought that she had died.

WAS PARALYZED

Although she pulled through, she was paralyzed from the waist down. Doctors and nurses believed she likely would spend the rest of her life as a bedridden invalid.

But Audralyn made up her mind she would walk again.

While confined to hospital she did everything possible by herself and soon was able to manoeuvre about in a wheel chair.

She exercised and underwent therapy. Now she receives treatment and takes commercial courses so she can work again.

Earlier this year, when attending her brother Gary's wedding in her wheelchair, she vowed next time she would be a bridesmaid and "walk down the aisle if it kills me."

Last Saturday, she fulfilled her vow—slowly and painfully.

Mr. and Mrs. George Leslie Peasey are shown signing the register following their recent marriage in Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, with the officiating minister, father of the bride, looking on. The bride is the former Margaret Alice McFarlane, daughter of the Rev. M. G. and Mrs. McFarlane, Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Peasey, Georgetown, Ontario.

PEASEY — McFARLANE

The wedding of Margaret Alice McFarlane, daughter of the Rev. M. G. and Mrs. McFarlane, Belleville, to George Leslie Peasey, Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Peasey, Georgetown was solemnized in Tabernacle United Church on Saturday, September 14 at 3 o'clock. Rev. McFarlane officiated at his daughter's wedding before a background of yellow gladioli and bronze 'mums.

Traditional wedding music was rendered by the church organist, Mr. Clifford Templer who also accompanied the soloist Miss Gay McFarlane, sister of the bride, in her renditions of "The Lord's Prayer" and "As Dawns the Day".

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle Mr. C. D. Murdock, of Toronto, wore a floor-length gown of white real silk organza featuring a fitted bodice accented with re-embroidered Alencon lace, and long lily-point sleeves. The full skirt trimmed with a deep band of lace flowed in a chapel train and was caught at the sides with matching bows. Her finger-tip veil fell from a tiny coronet of matching flowers and seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses, white stephanotis and ivy.

Miss Marilyn McFarlane, sister of the bride of Belleville, as maid of honor, was attired in a short-length gown of gold peau de soie in semi bouffant style accentuated with an overlap skirt. She wore matching headdress and shoes and carried a crescent bouquet of bronze 'mums accented with yellow Shasta 'mums. The bridesmaids, Miss Patricia Cassidy of St. Thomas, Mrs. Donald Burt, of Georgetown, and the bride's sister Miss Jane McFarlane, of Belleville, were identically styled dresses but in cocoa colored peau de soie with matching headdresses and shoes. Each carried a crescent bouquet of yellow Shasta 'mums accented with bronze 'mums.

Little Miss Leanne McFarlane of Toronto, cousin of the bride was the demure flower girl in a short white frilly nylon dress with gold peau de soie sash and matching bow in her hair. She carried a basket of yellow and bronze 'mums. The natty little ring-bearer dressed in brown suit and gold velvet vest was Master Gregory McFarlane, brother of the bride.

Mr. Murray McFarlane of Cookstville, brother of the bride, was groomsman, while Mr. Murdock McFarlane, Belleville, also brother of the bride, Mr. Donald Burt, Georgetown and Mr. Bud Jeffries of St. Thomas ushered the guests.

The reception was held in the church hall where the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a beige sheath with matching shoes and gloves, a hat of gold colored maribou and a corsage of orange colored and bronze 'mums. The bridegroom's mother assisted dressed in a beige nylon dress with matching coat, brown accessories and a orsage of orange colored roses.

Guests were present from Montreal, Toronto, Kitchener, Preston, St. Thomas, Elmvale, Thornbury, Hespeler, Georgetown, Peterborough, Parry Sound and Belleville.

Previous to the marriage a linen shower was given by classmates at the nurses' residence, a miscellaneous shower was held in Georgetown at the home of Mrs. Donald Burt; another miscellaneous shower by Mrs. Art McLeod of Acton, and at a kitchen shower given by Mrs. Harry Greig of Georgetown.

Mr. and Mrs. Peasey are residing in Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Canadian Club Hears Topic Latest Dope From Ottawa

A large crowd attended the opening meeting of the Canadian Club held last evening in Queen Elizabeth School when Mr. Charles Lynch, famous radio and TV personality spoke on the topic "The Latest Dope From Ottawa."

The speaker, who was introduced by the club president, Mrs. J. H. Forrester, was a noted war correspondent; headed the team of Reuters correspondents covering the Nuremburg war crime trials; United Nations correspondent for CBC —since 1957 chief of the Ottawa Bureau of Southam News Service and has toured Canadian Clubs from coast to coast.

Previous to the speaker's remarks, Mrs. Forrester welcomed the large gathering, now a joint club, and briefly dealt with its origin. She announced that students may attend any of the meetings accompanied by a member. The president also named and thanked members of the executive who had done all the background work in arranging this and the forthcoming meetings and noted that tickets were now available for the annual dinner.

In opening, Mr. Lynch expressed his pleasure at seeing so many out, especially with all the speechmaking two days previous to a Provincial election. In what he described as a capsule picture of parliament he hoped to project himself as an unbiased observer and felt that his observations might have more criticism than praise. He primarily dealt with the situation involving with a minority government and that the Canadian government is more occupied with internal affairs than external. The present parliament now consists of five main political parties containing varying groups among 15 political incongruents. This cocktail can be said was having a crippling effect on the federal government when other issues are being questioned. Any government cannot stand this uncertainty for long and there now has been a weak government for three years.

CONSTRUCTIVE CRITICISM

Mr. Lynch gave constructive criticism of four main parties first stating that Prime Minister Pearson, is not a one man show but passes out with a free hand cabinet responsibility. The Prime Minister had hoped that many of the old pros would be back with the return of the Liberals to power but this was not so.

Others in the government that Mr. Lynch referred to were Miss Judy LaMarsh, Maurice Lamontagne, Paul Hellyer, Mr. Pickersgill, and Mr. Mitchell Sharpe ministers of trade whom the speaker described as having considered he had made a brilliant deal in regards to the wheat sale with Russia but said "it was only made possible through a crop failure in that country."

In dealing with the main opposition stated that Mr. John Diefenbaker is operating under the conviction that he will still be back in power and spoke of him as an effective opposition debater. The only former cabinet minister who seems to have remained loyal to the former prime minister is Mr. Gordon Churchill; all the rest stay silent. The entire Conservative opposition 8 seems takes no part in debates over Quebec.

The NDP party led by Mr. Tommy Douglas seems to be getting nowhere and in the speaker's criticism of Mr. Douglas, said that he had not improved disappointing as he cannot seem to agree on any policy. The NDP party as of now seems to have less effective national force than the old C.C.F. party.

Mr. Lynch, in dealing with the Social Credit party said that it may hold the hand the fate of the Liberal party and he went on to explain the split leadership of R. R. Thompson who was once a missionary in Ethiopia and the fiery personality of Real Caouette whom he described as a self-appointed spokesman for separatism in Quebec.

QUEBEC SITUATION

In regards to the touchy situation in Quebec, the speaker said the Prime Minister in recent speeches sounded like a man who needs help. He has spoken with Lesage and has called for unity and diversity among the provinces. The speaker described the Provincial premiers as men with ability and men with a craving of power. The problems faced by the provinces are mainly education and municipal development. All provinces are seeking an increased share of revenue from the Federal treasury, with the Province of Quebec demanding all its revenue with an increasing desire to run their own economy and they are wanting more and more demands on the federal system.

There has been an upsurge of nationalistic feeling in this province and Mr. Lynch stated that the current emotional problems in Quebec represents the pent up feelings of the people at the passing of Duplessis.

Mr. Pearson is almost powerless to fight the situation as he is indebted to Mr. G. Lesage, the premier of Quebec, but is doing his best as a man with his hands tied behind his back in this delicate situation in Quebec. He has appealed to the provinces for a spirit of federalism and has stated that Canada can use the help of French Canada but at the present time presents a door face to the rest of Canada. The speaker stated that there is now a more current rise of the French language in Ottawa with a bilingual civil service — an alienation and extension of the Act of Federation.

QUESTION PERIOD

A most enlightening question and answer period followed with much leaning towards the separatist movement in Quebec and the tremendous problems involved.

Mr. J. G. Demeza expressed appreciation to Mr. Lynch on behalf of the large number present and added thanks was also expressed by Mrs. Forrester.

Mrs. K. M. Hall presided at the piano for the opening and closing numbers.

Refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LOWE

SERVING GIFT CANDY

When a guest feels he should bring his dinner hostess a gift, what is the first thing he thinks of? Candy, of course.

But often a hostess is honored isn't sure whether she should open it on the spot and share it with others, or stash it away for family nibbling later on.

In medieval times, hostesses had no such sweet social problem. Candy, or what passed for it in those days, was simply used by doctors as a coverup for unpleasant medicine and was only found in the sick room, never in the living room.

But as candy was refined to suit every conceivable form of sweet tooth, etiquette concerning its service and savoring was evolved to suit its use on social occasions.

When a guest brings a box of candy, the hostess should open it and pass it around in the box instead of saving it away for a rainy day.

If a guest, on the other hand, sees a dish of candy on a table in the home of his hostess, he may properly help himself to a piece without waiting to be asked. However, if the candy happens to be on the dinner table, he should check the impulse to nibble until the meal is over. Candy is usually eaten after the dessert is served, not before.

If unexpected guests drop in, chocolates may correctly be served along with coffee. If only candy bars are handy, they may be sliced, placed in a candy dish and passed as a relish with the brew.

When taking a piece of chocolate from a box, it should be picked up by the fluted frill. Never take a chocolate, look it over and then put it back. It's also impolite to squeeze a chocolate then replace it.

REMEMBER MARKINGS

If you can remember a few simple markings, you won't even get the urge to pick or squeeze and you can even become an expert candy picker the next time you reach into a box of chocolates. A knee look at the swirly script atop each chocolate will solve the mystery of that's inside.

Here's a listing of the most popular: "V" stands for vanilla cream. A flat-topped candy with an open "C" means cordial cherry. A square-shaped chocolate with "N" means it's a vanilla caramel. "O" stands for an orange cream filling and "P" stands for pineapple.

The shape also tells a flavor story. Squares usually conceal caramels are square or oblong. Nougats are oblong, too, but longer and flatter than caramels.

Church Groups

L. C. W.

The first meeting of the Lutheran Church Women was held on September 18 in the Sunday School room of the new church with the president, Mrs. R. Kraft in charge. After welcoming the members and visitors she turned the meeting over to Mrs. Lindeman who was in charge of the devotion period. Mrs. Lindeman gave the topic Disciples Towards God. Pastor Lindeman invited the ladies into the church sanctuary where he gave an interesting talk on "Altar Care" which included cleaning of the altar, arrangements of altar ornaments, description of sacramental linens and vessels and the duties of the altar guild.

Business was in charge of the president and reports were reports of the various committee chair, men were given.

A social time was spent when a quiz was conducted by Mrs. Wellman and the unwrapping of gifts for a kitchen shower which formed part of the social hour.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Pasjanen and Mrs. Wodzak.

Many of Furs Shown Were From Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — There was a lot of Canadian content when Parisian designer Carven showed her autumn collection to about 500 Ottawa women here Monday night.

Many of the furs were from Canada although they were designed in Paris by Mme. Carven, they were made up by Montreal furrier Arnold Schenkel.

The Canadian influence was evident too in the names of the costumes—and the names were not just given for a three-city Canadian tour. That's the way they were shown earlier in Paris and the names will stick when the fashions next go to Japan.

First down the ramp was a model in a vivid red and black costume. The Black River otter coat was worn over a high-necked suit and the costume was called RCMP.

Chicoutimi turned out to be a coat with a long cowl collar which wound around the neck and ended in a toque for the head. Another coat in black and belted natural mink coat and hood had the name for the bright fuschia coat lavishly trimmed with black fur at the collars and cuffs.

Women's Institutes

BONARLAW — Mrs. James Spry opened her home for the September meeting of the Women's Institute, on Wednesday afternoon with 17 members and five visitors present.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. M. Cassidy. Mrs. W. J. Barlow dealt with the correspondence including a request from the Mental Health and an invitation to attend the opening on October 19th. Mrs. A. Reid was welcomed back after an absence of several months through illness. A training school will be held in Stirling on October 29 and 30.

The area will hold its 37th convention at Belleville on October 31 and November 1st, two delegates appointed were Mrs. Arthur Burkitt, alternate Mrs. Clayton Spencer.

Preparations were made for the centennial celebration at Harold hall. Lunch will be served by Wellmans Corners and Springbrook Women's Institute. An invitation was received from Marsh Hill W.I. to visit them on September 26th.

Mrs. Cassidy, president, Mrs. E. Holmes of Queensboro was present and gave a splendid address on "Canada the Beautiful".

Mrs. George Williams was pianist and community singing was enjoyed.

The grandmothers were present and had prepared the program for the grandmothers' meeting. Readings were given by Mrs. George Thompson, Mrs. Everett Heath, Mrs. Percy Bateman, Mrs. Kraft and Mrs. Cassidy. Mrs. M. Cassidy was in charge of a grandmother contest.

The president showed two quilt tops ready to quilt and 13 blocks for a new quilt were handed in.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. M. Cassidy on October 30th. It will be the agricultural meeting and Mrs. Cassidy and Mrs. James Spry and Mrs. E. Bateman. The hostess and assistants served a delicious lunch.

Two Fall Fruit Pies

Elderberry — Apple

by Mary Moore

If you were within shouting or totting distance of the Moore household this past weekend you heard of or tasted or took home some elderberry pie.

These elderberries, belatz wild, were hard to come by, for I searched both of our local outdoor markets for them and found only one stand with only two 4-quart baskets. But they were still on their stems. Who would do the tedious work of picking each little berry off? I knew who — my favorite young helper, David — Eleanor's oldest boy.

Besides elderberry pie I made an apple pie — Grovenstein — and that splurge will end the pie baking for a few weeks.

In the communities where you do not have the elderberry on the grin in our audience will have to be satisfied with apple pie for today.

If you do choose to make the two of these pies why not make all of the pastry at one time?

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

French Onion Soup; Mixed Grill: Broiled Sliced Veal Steak, Broiled Chicken Livers, Broiled Mushrooms, Broiled Crumbed Tomato Halves, Steamed Green Beans; Parsleyed Carrots; Three-Egg-White Layer Cake (see Monday); Tea.

RICH PLAIN PASTRY (for two double-crust 9" pies):

4½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1½ cups shortening, 1 (or 4) tablespoons butter, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ cup (scant) ice cold water.

Cut shortening and butter into flour and salt with pastry blender until size of peas. Drizzle in the water, one tablespoon at a time, tossing with a fork until all flour is slightly dampened. If you do not need all of the water do not use it. Press one-quarter of the dough into a ball between your palms and roll out on floured board, turning the pastry over when half rolled out, to flour other side, it will not stick to the board. Line 9" pie plate. Repeat, lining second pie plate the same way if you are going to make two fruit pies. Roll out two top crusts and gash centres. Fold over, carefully lift onto some heavy wax paper, lay each top crust on lined pie plate, and chill in refrigerator while you make the fillings.

Elderberry Pie Filling: Mix gently together 4 cups stemmed, washed and dried elderberries, 2-3 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons minute tapioca, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, shake of salt, grated rind of one large lemon, one tablespoon lemon juice.

Apple Pie Filling: Mix together 4 cups (well-packed) pared and sliced Gravensteins or Melbasor Astrakhans or other early apples, 2-3 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon minute tapioca, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, shake of salt.

When fillings are ready, turn them into the two prepared unbaked pie shells, smoothing top of filling. Seal as gashed top crusts, unfolding them carefully to avoid cracking at centre. Seal edges well. Glaze tops by brushing on mixture of 2 tablespoons each sugar and milk. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for another 35 or 40 minutes or until fruits are tender and juice begins to bubble through gashes.

NOTE: If covered tops of both pies with foil when I reduced heat to 350 deg. to prevent them browning too much on top, I served the elderberry pie with Saumert cheese and the apple pie with old Cheddar. The elderberry pie was a rare treat. The apple pie suited everybody perfectly.

Ann Landers

Girl Popular With Boys, Longs for One Girl Friend

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a girl almost 17 who has an unusual problem. I have boy friends galore. I could have two dates every single night in the week if I wanted them. And I'm not what you would call beautiful either, I just seem to attract fellows. It's been this way since I was 13.

ANN LANDERS

My problem is I don't have one girl friend to my name. Girls just don't like me, Ann. I feel badly about this although I try not to show it. But I would gladly give 20 boy friends if I could have just one girl friend who actually liked me.

Can you help me? I don't recall ever having seen this problem in your column before. Thank you. — HALF LONELY.

DEAR LONELY — The best way to get friendship is to give it. You have probably shied away from girls and behaved indifferently toward them because you assumed they did not like you. And quite naturally, these girls reacted to your coolness.

When you are next in a group of boys and girls make a special effort to pay attention to the girls instead of the boys. Warmth begets warmth — as you will see.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I wrote you in May about an unfaithful husband. I took your advice and things seem to be a great deal better. Now I have another problem.

I recently learned that the two paintings hanging in our living room were done by this other woman and not a gift from a business associate as my husband told me when he brought them home. I have always liked the paintings and they have hung in our home for almost four years. Now that I know who did the paintings I get sick to my stomach whenever I look at them.

Last night I told my husband how I felt and he said I was being childish — that he likes the pictures and that I should let them hang. He argues the affair is over between him and this woman (and I have every reason to believe him) and that therefore removing the pictures would be silly.

May we hear from you on this? — BUTTERFLIES IN MY BRAIN.

DEAR BRAIN — People often move art when they redecorate. Doesn't your living room need new wallpaper or paint? Aren't you tired of the furniture in the same place for four years?

Perhaps it's time to move things around a little. Those paintings might look better in the hall for a few weeks—and then in the attic.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I need an older person to tell me what to do and it can't be anyone who knows me, so you are elected.

I am a 14-year-old girl who is far from beautiful but I have lots of friends. Three weeks ago my mother's step-brother, Joe, moved to this city to go to work for my dad. This step-uncle is about 33 years old. He was married seven years ago but is divorced now.

Uncle Joe is staying in our house and I wish he would get out and find a place of his own. He is always pawing me and pulling me on his lap. Whenever he sits next to me he tries to hold my hand. Last night he tried to talk to me about some very personal things which are none of his business.

I told my mom this morning that Uncle Joe is fresh and she said the trouble with teenage girls today is they all think they are Elizabeth Taylor and that every man is after them.

I am not imagining things. Please help me. — DOLLY.

DEAR DOLL — In time your Uncle Joe will do or say something which is unmistakably out of line. When he does, go to your father — not your mother — and give him chapter and verse. In the meantime stay plenty alert and do not remain in the house with him unless another adult is present.

Planning a wedding? Leave nothing to chance. Ann Landers' newest booklet, "The Bride's Guide," has all the answers (from announcing the engagement to "who pays for what"). Mayor Albert Boutwell announced that a reward fund for the capture of persons responsible for recent racially - connected bombings in Birmingham had risen to nearly $80,000.

SUSPENDED NEGRO

At Oxford, Miss., Negro student Cleve McDowell was suspended by the University of Mississippi after he was arrested on a charge of carrying a pistol.

Sheriff Joe Ford said the gun was in McDowell's inside coat pocket. He said McDowell served the gun was his but refused any other statement.

McDowell, 21, was jailed on a charge of carrying a concealed deadly weapon. University authorities said the suspension would remain in effect pending a school hearing.

In Toronto, accountant R. A. Stanley, father of David Stanley, declined to comment until he conferred with his son's lawyer.

He said David was in Toronto but unavailable for comment.

A Metropolitan Toronto police spokesman said the department had received no warrant for Stanley's arrest.

He said the charges against him were sufficient to warrant extradition but may not be proceeded with in view of the Birmingham magistrate's decision in ordering Stanley back to Toronto last week.

Vietnamese Crisis Crosses Over Many Lines Both Religious and Political

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—The Vietnamese crisis crosses over many lines, both religious and political.

President Ngo Dinh Diem's government, in moving against the Buddhists, contends this 2,500-year-old faith has become tainted in Viet Nam by the hammer and sickle. Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu, the president's sister-in-law, says the Buddhist efforts are a plot to end the Diem regime—"to topple the government by using all means, by intoxication of the world."

The government's argument runs like this:

There are many Communist sympathizers in South Viet Nam. Some three-quarters of the population is at least nominally Buddhist. Inevitably, some overlap between these groups is likely.

SEIZE DOCUMENTS

Documents vouched for by U.S. intelligence agencies have been seized from the Communist Viet Cong, specifically instructing all cadres to incite and exploit religious tension. These documents began turning up more than a year ago.

In February, 1962, the South Vietnam National Liberation Front (Viet Cong) named two Buddhist monks to its central committee. It also named one Roman Catholic priest.

The government delegate to the central Vietnamese area, a Roman Catholic, says he believes all religions in South Viet Nam are infiltrated by Communists.

The Ngo family has charged that Buddhist opposition leaders are Communist sympathizers and that some are Communist agents. The charge is especially aimed at the leader of the Buddhist opposition movement, Thich Tri Quang, who took sanctuary at the U.S. Embassy.

Much of the evidence against Buddhist opposition leaders is pegged to associations with the Viet Minh during the war against the French.

DISPLAY WEAPONS

Added to this, the government has displayed Viet Cong weapons and ammunition which it says came from raids on Saigon's Xa Loi and An Quang pagodas.

U.S. intelligence men say they are certain that some evidence was planted.

Nevertheless, there is no reason why a Communist agent cannot become a Buddhist monk, and there seems little doubt some did. So did government police agents. One is in asylum at the U.S. Embassy with Tri Quang. For nine years up to 1963 Le Mai Chi was on the Saigon secret police force and American officials feel he may still be, despite his plea for refuge at the embassy.

Buddhist opposition leaders in Saigon have insisted their faith is incompatible with communism and that they are not playing politics. They often quote from a book by Francis Story, an English Buddhist, entitled Buddhism Answers Marxist Challenge. It says:

"Every religion maintains that there is another life beyond the present one, and that this future life is in some way governed by moral effects of what has been done, said and thought in this present life. This claim is nowhere made so strongly or logically as in Buddhism (whose) principles are categorically denied by Marxism."

The great majority of South Viet Nam's thousands of rural Buddhist monks are not acquainted with complicated theological arguments. They preach from village to village, begging for rice. They may live with the Viet Cong at rice-roots level. Things are on a live-and-let-live basis.

In Saigon, although monks say they are not involved in politics, they have given many speeches denouncing the Diem government and advocating civil disobedience. Speeches here and in coastal towns fall on ready ears but so many non-Communists feel the Diem government has been harsh.

For these listeners the Buddhist movement has seemed an alternative between Diem and the Viet Cong. Many clearly were ready to fight Diem directly if called to do it.

The presidential palace saw the danger and moved to crush it last month. Blood was shed and thousands arrested. Arrests have continued, especially among students who picked up the campaign.

cent of the machinery was used. In the Irkutsk area of eastern Siberia, one newspaper said, "peas started to fall out of the pods while drivers were still testing their machines."

Trucks are so leaky that in several harvest areas the Soviet press has reported the roads are yellow with wheat.

Flour cannot be bought at many stores, apparently because it can be hoarded while bread cannot.

Many farmers buy bread to feed to cows and pigs they are allowed to raise privately for market. It is forbidden but continues.

Butter is becoming scarce and likely will become scarcer in the winter.

With Social Credit now two distinct groups, Mr. Knowles entered the lists with a letter pointing out to Speaker Macnaughton that the New Democrats now were the second largest opposition group, numerically superior to both Social Credit and Creditistes.

And, he argued, on the basis of the precedent of 1962, the New Democrats now were entitled to move closer to the speaker's throne next to the Conservatives. Thus the two Social Credit groups—the Thompson one now including Dr. Macount—are being relegated to the old New Democratic area near the chamber door.

TOOK LOW SPOT

Mr. Knowles recalled that after the 1962 election the New Democrats were forced to be low men on the totem pole because Social Credit MPs outnumbered them 30 to 19.

At this time, the New Democrats fought this edict bitterly, they argued that their MPs had far more parliamentary experience, individually and collectively, than the Social Credit members.

They also put up the argument that the New Democrats, with MPs from four provinces, were more of a national movement than the Social Credit MPs from only three provinces.

The arguments were unavailing and Speaker Marcel Lambert decided that in the last Parliament the New Democrats would be relegated to the position just inside the chamber door on the basis that Social Credit outnumbered them.

This furnished Mr. Knowles with the precedent he is using in his efforts to have Speaker MacNaughton shift the New Democrats up and Social Credit groups down.

MORE INVOLVED

But there's more involved in this jockeying for position than avoiding the draft from the chamber door. The focus of Commons attention is somewhere near the centre of the chamber — where Prime Minister Pearson faces opposition leader Diefenbaker across the green-carpeted aisle.

The theory is that the closer the MP is to the focus of events, the greater his impact on them.

Party Leaders

ponents in York South set forth their views and fielded questions from the audience. He listened to PC candidate W. C. Thomson state his support for a medical care program as long as it was "one we can afford and one that will not involve compulsion."

The Progressive Conservative government had been converted to a medical care program "in the last 12 months," Mr. MacDonald countered. "If a party talks about zoning for 20 years and does nothing about it, obviously it doesn't believe in it."

A question asked Mr. Thomson and Mr. Macdonald—Liberal candidate Herbert Robinson had left to attend another rally—whether they favored an increase from the $7,000 a year paid legislature members.

Mr. Thomson said he would vote against a pay raise.

"He'll damn well do what the caucus says", Mr. MacDonald stated.

"Politics has ceased to be an old man's hobby for rich men's game and remuneration should be comparable to full-time jobs outside public life."

Jodoin Tells U.S. Unions Not to Intervene With MPs In Lakes Shipping Dispute

OTTAWA (CP) — Firing another salvo at the Seafarers' International Union, Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress has advised international unions in the United States not to intervene with Canadian MPs in connection with the Great Lakes shipping dispute.

"Intervening by you in a Canadian legislature field would be most ill-advised and would cause widespread resentment among Canadian people," CLC President Jodoin said in a telegram Monday to the U.S. unions.

The CLC asked the American unions to ignore a request for direct intervention made by Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers' International Union.

Describing Hall's telegram to the unions as "completely misleading," Mr. Jodoin said it was an effort to "divert attention from the real issue of violence and harassment of a bona fide affiliate of our congress, the Canadian Maritime Union."

Battling between the CMU and the Canadian wing of the SIU, headed by Hal Banks, has led to government plans to impose trusteeship on the Great Lakes maritime unions, unless the trades union movement can settle the affair privately.

CHANCES SLIM

Mr. Jodoin's telegram Monday indicated that chances of a private settlement are slim before Parliament meets next Monday.

He said serious efforts were made "long ago" for AFL-CIO intervention to settle the matter internally but the issue may have been resolved "had it not been for refusal by (the) SIU and the maritime trades department to co-operate."

Mr. Jodoin's telegram went on:

"Suggestion of legislation and possible trusteeship is direct result of SIU's unprecedented and irresponsible and unlawful actions in Canadian and U.S. ports.

"Government trusteeship not usual means of settling problems but in present circumstances no alternative has been accepted. Legislation will be subject to study to verify provision of guarantees and safeguards for future of which we have been assured.

"Absence of great importance of situation in Canada, present non-intervention your part. Such intervention could be most harmful entire movement in Canada. Most anxious to retain friendly cooperation free trade unions in North America under one banner. Course proposed by Hall seriously jeopardize this position."

New Union Will Be Born In Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — A new union—the Canadian Union of Public Employees—will be born today.

It will be a fast birth.

The parents—the National Union of Public Employees and the National Union of Public Service Employees—have been engaged off and on for almost 10 years.

But they only agreed to merge officially and formally Monday.

NUPE split over the merger, with 222 delegates backing the move to form a new union against 71 opponents, mainly in British Columbia and Toronto. NUPSE endorsed the merger without dissent.

The new union will have a bankroll of some $130,000 to start, plus more than 80,000 members across Canada.

It will be the biggest exclusively Canadian union and the second largest of all unions in the country.

The two parent unions met separately Monday to ratify the merger agreement and the new constitution.

WILL STAND ALONE

At Sims, president of Toronto NUPE local, he led his delegate group out of the NUPE convention that the 3,700-member local would break away from the new union and stand alone.

"Our job now is to tie together what we've got and then go after what we haven't got," said Stanley A. Little, who was president of NUPSE and becomes CUPE president under the merger agreement. NUPE National Director Robert P. Rintoul becomes the secretary-treasurer of the new union.

Eastview Lawyer Claims Evidence of Mayor Given In Inquiry Is Missing

OTTAWA (CP) — Lawyer John J. Nelligan said Monday he has sent a letter to Ontario Municipal Affairs Minister Spooner protesting the removal from provincial files of documents relating to the 1960 investigation of Eastview's finances.

Mr. Nelligan, who represented the town of Eastview during the 1960 investigation by provincial auditors, said he has asked that Mr. Spooner make sure the records are preserved.

The letter to Mr. Spooner said:

"As you are aware, I have been attempting for some time to locate various documents relevant to the Eastview inquiry. It now appears that the transcript of the evidence given by Mr. (Gordon) Lavergne is missing from both the files of your department and of the department of the attorney-general."

Mr. Lavergne was mayor of Eastview at the time and Progressive Conservative member for Russell in the last Ontario legislature.

SAYS IS PAPERS TAKEN

"It has now been brought to my attention that since the recently completed Eastview review report issued by officers of your department have been removed from the Eastview files and removing documents from them," Mr. Nelligan's letter continued.

"In particular, I am informed that a memorandum from the deputy minister to Mr. Lavergne in connection with the financial affairs of Eastview and its solicitor is no longer in its proper place . . . and that copies of the original report prior to its publication have also been stripped from the files."

The letter protests "the destruction of any documents relating to the Eastview files" and asks Mr. Spooner to see that the files remain in their original condition.

The Eastview issue was revived during the provincial election campaign by Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer who charged that "Conservative politicians" doctored the auditors' report before it was released.

He said more than 50 references in the report to Mr. Lavergne were deleted.

Mr. Wintermeyer also claimed that the transcript of Mr. Lavergne's evidence had disappeared from all files.

TORONTO (CP) — Lorne F. Cumming, Ontario's deputy municipal affairs minister, said Monday there was "no deliberate attempt" to remove files on the 1960 investigation of finances in the Ottawa suburb of Eastview.

But he did admit one volume of testimony—one asked for specifically by Ottawa lawyer John F. Nelligan in a letter—is missing.

The deputy minister's statement followed publication of Mr. Nelligan's letter to Municipal Affairs Minister Spooner Monday.

The lawyer's letter asked that all records of the investigation by provincial auditors be preserved and said evidence given by Gordon Lavergne, mayor of Eastview at the time of the investigation and a Progressive Conservative member of the last Ontario legislature, was apparently missing.

Mr. Cumming said the evidence could have been misplaced as it passed through various hands. All but one of the 11 volumes of testimony was returned to the municipal affairs department after being in the hands of the attorney - general's department, he said.

"There is one missing—volume 15—and that's the one Mr. Nelligan wants," he said. "But there has been no deliberate attempt to extract or misplace any of this evidence."

W. C. Bowman, director of public prosecutions, said he did not know where it might be. Mr. Attorney-General W. B. Common said he did not know either but it might be held by provincial police who conducted an accessory investigation.

But a spokesman in the provincial police commissioner's office said there was no possibility the evidence remained in police hands.

Liberal Party Leader John Wintermeyer has stated in his campaign for Wednesday's Ontario election that references to Mr. Lavergne were deleted from the auditors' report before it was made public.

Kuban Had Big Wheat Crop But Even Its Rich Soil Hard Hit by Later Drought

The Soviet Union is having crop trouble. Its population is growing faster than its harvests, and this year drought has afflicted the country. As a result, the Kremlin has been buying huge quantities of wheat and flour abroad to feed the Soviet people and meet its commitments to supply Cuba and Communist allies. AP correspondent Preston Grover reports on a trip into the Russian farm belt and how its people have been affected.

By PRESTON GROVER

KRASNODAR, U.S.S.R. (AP) In the countryside around this small city the roadsides are bright green. Crops of wheat and corn have been cut and much of the land plowed up again for reseeding to winter wheat.

For this is the Kuban, north of the Caucasus. The soil is as black as mud and runs two yards deep. It is Russia's richest land. This year, despite poor crops almost everywhere in the Soviet Union, the Kuban should be a bumper crop of wheat and delivered more to the government for distribution in the cities than it ever had before.

But after wheat, the story changes. People in the towns stand in queues to buy certain types of vegetables. For even in the rich Kuban, the drought of last summer hit hard.

CHASED AWAY

Reporters who tried to photograph the queues of people buying vegetables were chased away by Irate Russians.

"It isn't necessary," they told one correspondent.

Constantin Stalnov, first deputy chairman of the executive committee of the Kuban, reeled off figures on tractors, mechanical harvesters, acreages and yields of wheat, corn and cattle and in a talk with correspondents was happy to report a bumber crop of wheat.

On more than 5,000,000 acres of wheat in his area the yield was better than 41 bushels an acre, some as high as 63 bushels, he said. Ten years ago the yield was about 30 bushels an acre, showing that there has been a great improvement in Soviet farming methods, Stanlarov said.

But correspondents used to Soviet statistics simply asked him what the yield was in 1958, another bumper year. It was just about the same as this year in wheat, and much better in all other crops.

This fall, for the first time, wheat is being sown with a heavy dose of fertilizer.

RIPENS EARLY

Wheat in the Kuban ripens early, which was fortunate this year. Most of the harvesting was finished in June, before two months of drought set in. In those two months almost no rain fell.

The result was that the corn yields fell sharply as did crops of vegetables, fruits and oil-producing sunflowers, a vital crop.

"This was a very bad year for corn," said Stalnov. Some acreage simply was abandoned.

In this area live 4,000,000 peasants.

The pinch of supplies caused by the bad harvest is being felt in the Kuban despite its big crop. The government is conducting a campaign to cut down bread wastage. There are long bread queues at a number of points, a rare sight anywhere in Russia before this year.

The Kuban won't feel the shortage as much as other areas, however, because Russia is hard to buy in Moscow Flour can be hoarded. Bread can't.

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—Reliable sources said Monday that the ruling Ba'ath Arab socialist party in Syria and Iraq are planning merger of the two countries into a federal state "within the next few months."

Wants to Sell U.S. Wheat to All Satellites

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — A member of the U.S. national Farmers Union Executive Council Monday night recommended that the United States sell its surplus grain to the Soviet Union or any Soviet Satellite.

Carl Strand, vice - president of the Farmers Union Co-operative Marketing Association and a Jewell County, Kan., wheat farmer, said the association has been selling to Yugoslavia in recent months.

"I will do my utmost that we, as an organization and as a government, sell grain to Russia, Poland, Bulgaria or any other Russian satellite," Strand said in a statement.

"This brings up the subject of, 'Why don't we stop beating around the bush.' I would send a team of agricultural export specialists to the United States to see if we can thus help dispose of our surplus of agricultural products.

"I hold no brief whatsoever for the Chinese leadership but I am convinced that we can do myself have everything in common."

Strange Vision Haunting British Over NATO Force

LONDON (CP) — A strange illusion haunts British government circles just when they're being most logical about the proposed mixed - manned NATO force.

They see a bus—a missed bus —pulling away. It's the same bus they saw when Britain tried belatedly to join the European Common Market, only to be rolled by President de Gaulle.

British service chiefs see the United States plan for a multilateral NATO force, armed with Polaris missiles, as virtual nonsense from the military standpoint. Political considerations are another matter.

The Earl of Home, the foreign minister, was careful to have emphasized once again before Prime Minister Macmillan and the cabinet Monday the dangers of missing the bus in this area of European unity under U.S. guidance.

Leaving for New York Wednesday to attend the 18th United Nations General Assembly, Home wanted to be able to assure Dean Rusk, U.S. Secretary of State, that Britain would take part in talks on the force scheduled to open Oct. 7.

Britain's planning to participate are the U.S., West Germany, Italy, Greece and Turkey. Home and his officials see no reason why Britain could not at least join the talks without committing itself.

The whole unpopular question has been thrust on Britain anew after being almost dormant here since Macmillan entertained President Kennedy in Birch Grove in June.

Macmillan, it was thought, had scotched any decision and—even more important—it was believed Kennedy himself had lost some of his ardor for the project.

This was a welcome relief for Macmillan and for Defence Minister Peter Thorneycroft, staggering by the cost of the proposed 20-ship surface fleet. Britain's share was estimated at $130,000,000 for 10 years.

Defence Secretary McNamara Has Tough Job in Viet Nam

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President Kennedy has dispatched Defence Secretary Robert McNamara on a mission which not only involves reappraisal of the military effort against the Communist Viet Cong but an attempt to end intrigue and dissension within American ranks in Saigon.

Reports indicate the U.S. diplomatic and military leaders in South Viet Nam do not see eye to eye on how to handle the unpopular and dictatorial Ngo Dinh Diem regime. And there is some indication the Central Intelligence Agency is playing the role of informer to tip Diem and his brother Nhu on Western attempts to oust the unpopular family operation.

On top of this plotting and counter-plotting, certain right-wing commentators are already tempting to becloud and cast suspicion on the Saigon news reports, hinting that the same "progressive" thinking that led to Fidel Castro's overthrow of the Batista regime in Cuba is going on in the Saigon newsgathering forces.

HORNETS' NEST

McNamara and General Maxwell Taylor, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, therefore appear to be jetting into a hornet's nest in their week-long fact-finding and general reappraisal effort and one or both may be stung.

Ever since Diem's brutal treatment of the Buddhist priests and nuns became a matter of public knowledge, the anti - Communist war in South Viet Nam has been going badly. The Communist-led Viet Cong has stepped up operations, principally in the key Mekong Delta, the rice bowl of the south of Saigon, and reports indicate the Vietnamese army, supported by American troops, arms and money, is taking a beating.

Attempts by U.S. Ambassador John Cabot Lodge to reform the Diem regime appear to have failed and General Paul Harkins, the ramrod commander of American military assistance, is reported to be wrought with anger at U.S. civilian interference with his decision-making.

It is evident that Harkins' strategy, which in 1962 led to his prediction that the war would be won in three years, is causing unhappiness in Washington and it may be one of the McNamara-Taylor plans to replace him.

But even this is unlikely to result in his recall. The Viet Cong push appears to be as strong as ever.

AMERICAN AID

American aid is rolling into South Viet Nam at the rate of about $1,500,000 a day. McNamara may have to step this up if the anti-Communist defences are to be strengthened but he cannot be sure that pouring in more men and arms will finally crush the Viet Cong without a full-scale American invasion.

The aspect barring full invasion is the knowledge that China would not stand by but would pour in thousands of its own forces, presenting the U.S. with the prospect of a full war that Americans don't want.

McNamara therefore appears to be left with a piecemeal approach—to attempt to eliminate the plotters and intrigue-makers in American ranks; perhaps to replace the military leadership and enhance the real power of the ambassador.

This may lead to more effective pressure to reform the Diem government. And it may be that when Diem sees the U.S. is united, that he cannot play one group against another, that he will be forced into more generous understanding of the needs of his people.

Hydro to Push Heating Service

TORONTO (CP)—C. M. McHenry, manager of residential sales for Ontario Hydro, said Monday Ontario Hydro will concentrate its drive to enlarge electricity's share of the heating market next year on attempts to convince large-scale builders to accept it as a standard option for their customers.

Mr. McHenry told the annual meeting of the Electric Heating Association of Ontario there has been more success in convincing the public of electric heating's merits than in interesting builders.

TO BREAK TIES

CAIRO (Reuters) — Economy Minister Ahmed Zendo said Monday night Egypt had decided to break off economic relations with South Africa, the Egyptian Middle East news agency reported. Egypt broke diplomatic and consular relations with South Africa last year on the grounds of the latter's racial separation policy.

Slightly-Diluted Military Dictatorship in Guatemala

GUATEMALA (AP) — Guatemalans are living under a slightly diluted military dictatorship. The enigma is: For how long?

There are signs of restlessness with "operation honesty," the label given to the March 30 coup that terminated the administration of President Manlio Ydigoras. One evidence of unrest has been the army's failure to indicate how long it intends to stay in power.

A fragmentary measure of the unpopularity of the military regime became evident to a newsreel reporter when a bomb explosion a block away sent movie patrons into frenzied applause and cheers for "Vivan las bombas!" (Long live the bombs!).

In a four-week period of late August and September about a dozen terrorist bombs, placed mostly in autos or near government offices, exploded in the capital. A barrage of leaflets guerillas struck daringly, at one of the city's outlying police stations, wounding one officer and leaving one of their own bearded, olive-clad mates dead.

On the surface Guatemala City gives the impression of a peaceful, busily prosperous and well - mannered community of 500,000 people. Many will tell you, with a shrug, which is: "At least we have security and order and an honest government."

There is much support of the champions of the military government headed by a 55-year-old lecturer, diplomat and disciplinarian, Col Enrique Peralta Azurdia. The government has shown signs of progress —and sometimes clumsiness—in undertaking measures designed to put Guatemala back on a financial even keel.

The regime has increased some taxes, ordered new ones to get social projects going and liquidated a $5,000,000 "National Defense" (officially on par with the U.S. dollar) budget deficit left behind by the deposed Ydigoras.

Reacting to a wave of violence, President Ydigoras suspended constitutional guarantees. Most of these still are ousted. The succeeding military government imposed an indefinite state of siege.

The government has warned newspapers and radio stations that it will punish violations of its measures. A radio station, Radio Centro Guatemala, was closed for "alarming the public," when it reported the police had opened fire. Commercial cable companies submit doctored material to government officials for "consultation."

The government unwittingly revealed it was checking the mail when it fired a guerrilla artillary cadet, Roberto Trabanino, on a charge of subversion. He had written a letter, intercepted at the post office, giving a friend in the guerrilla forces an account of discontent with the government. He faces five years in prison.

Roth's Hubbie Charges She Is Intemperate

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—The fifth husband of singer-actress Lillian Roth testified Monday she once went berserk and came at him with a kitchen knife.

McGuire, scion of the wealthy Pure Oil and Vegetable soap publishing family, said he first Miss Roth met at a meeting of Alcoholics Anonymous in New York City in 1944. They were married in 1947.

MME. NHU MAKES A POINT — Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu makes a point as she holds a press conference at the Viet Nam embassy in Rome, Italy. The sister-in-law of President Ngo Dinh Diem said she has confidence in U.S. good will despite what she called "exposure of a Central Intelligence Agency plot to overthrow the Saigon government." Italian demonstrators picketed nearby. (AP Wirephoto)

Rain and Cool Weather With Assist From Planes Put Damper on Forest Fires

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rain and cool weather, with an occasional assist from water-bombing planes, put a decided damper on the forest fire hazard in all parts of Canada this summer.

As a result, 1963 forest fire losses may be even lower than in 1962 when the value of timber destroyed was $1,446,000 — the lowest figure since statistics were first compiled in 1918.

In some measure, it helps make up for 1961, the worst year ever, when the loss hit $66,360,00...

Barring the unlikely prospect of a prolonged heat wave, the forests appear to be free of serious dangers until next summer. There are fires reported from day to day in most parts of the country but they're mostly small, last only a short time and don't get a chance to spread.

A Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows the situation in every province to be about the same — sufficient moisture right through the summer, except cool weather to keep the hazard from building up and quick work by fire-fighters to snuff out any blazes that have broken out.

SAFETY CAMPAIGNS

On the propaganda front, the tried - and - tested safety campaigns were simply continued, with posters, films, televised, radio, newspaper and magazine advertising aimed at making Canadians aware of the need for care in the woods.

Generally typical of the national picture is British Columbia, where forests are in low-hazard condition with the exception of parts of the interior where the timber is still dry despite damp August weather.

There has been no single area suffering from exceptional losses and the destruction — mainly fir, hemlock and cedar along the coast and fir, spruce and balsam in the interior — is running about the same as last year's 2062,000.

As in several other provinces, water-bombing planes working under contract to the provincial government have been sent in to strike at any fires that managed to break out in the face of the generally wet weather.

Alberta, where the hazard is moderate, hasn't had any serious fires since early June when six burned out of control for a time in the Lac la Biche forest division near Fort McMurray, 225 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Last year 4,500 acres were burned—a record low after the all-time high of 90,000 acres in 1961—and 1963 may be even lower.

FEWER FIRES

In Saskatchewan, 219 fires had been reported up to Aug. 25 compared with 272 in the same period of 1962 and 438 in 1961. Of the 33,000 acres in which fires have burned, only 3,000 acres are merchantable timber. And much of the 4,000,000 board feet of spruce in the fire areas will be salvaged, says W. R. Parks, director of forests.

In Manitoba, where A. W. Braine, chief fire protection officer, reports better-than-average conditions, the one exception has been in the northeast corner of the province where the bulk of fires occur because of a normally hot, dry climate.

But by early September there had been only 250 fires in the whole province compared with the 10-year average of 334. And, more important, there had been a significant decrease in the size of fires. The average was running about 90 acres compared with the 10-year average of 1,500 acres.

Mr. Braine says that aside from the rain, the addition of two rented water-dropping helicopters and a Canso water-bomber has helped by nipping fires before they could spread.

PERSONAL APPROACH

In Ontario, the safety program has emphasized personal contacts between forest rangers and people working or vacationing in the woods. Most elementary schools in forested areas were visited and students were shown films and given lectures on fire prevention. All rangers taking part in the campaign have vehicles equipped with two-way radios so that they can be called back to headquarters in the event of fire.

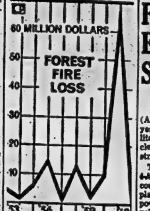
There had been 1,469 fires and 48,500 acres burned by early September, nearly half of that reported in the five-week period from June 23 to July 31. Since then the above-normal rainfall has reduced the danger significantly.

To the beginning of September there were 969 fires in Quebec and 67,000 acres were burned. But the woodland total had already been cut. It rained just about every second day during August and by the end of the month the hazard was practically nil. Still, the number of fires for the whole year may be slightly higher than last year when it was almost 1,000.

Forestry officials are heartened by the fact that with more and more campers and loggers in the woods, there has been no appreciable increase in the number of fires in the last two years.

NO MAJOR FIRES

New Brunswick reports the year has been the baker year in age with only 230 outbreaks burning over a total of 2,000 acres up to early September. There were about the same number of fires a year ago but the acreage burned was much higher—47,000. This year's outbreaks have been confined to cut-over areas and grassland.



The only fire of note in Nova Scotia was at Wilkin's Lake on the Shelburne-Queen's County border which burned 530 acres late in May. There were about 200 fires over 1,800 acres by early September compared with 435 and 5,001 acres in 1962.

The province, which uses Smokey the Bear as its educational symbol, has only one area with any real danger, the Annapolis Valley.

Of 78 fires reported to Sept. 6 in Newfoundland, only one had got away from overnight and that was in northern Labrador near Schefferville, Que., above the commercial tree line in scrub spruce. The province relied on water-bombers and spotter planes during hot spells but got most of its help from the generally damp weather. It appeared unlikely to approach last year's figures of 150 fires burning over 16,000 acres and that was a good year compared with 1961 when a record 770 square miles of timber were destroyed.

IMPROVE RUNWAYS

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)—A $3,500,000 development of runways at the RCAF station here is due for completion Oct. 15. Jet trainers are scheduled to start operating here next spring.

LOSS MAY BE LOWER—

Canadian forest fire losses may be even lower in 1963 than in 1962 when the value of timber destroyed was $1,446,000 — the lowest figures since statistics first compiled in 1919. In 1961 the loss hit $66,360,000, the worst year ever.

Graph traces forest fire loss from 1953 to 1962.

First Satellite to Draw Energy From Nuclear Power Still Beeping Strong Signals

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — After more than two years in space, the first satellite to draw energy from a nuclear generator still is beeping strong signals to earth.

The success of the Transit 4-A navigation satellite has encouraged civilian and military planners to consider atomic power sources for other space vehicles, with several to be launched in the next few years.

Nuclear generators offer advantages of long life, light weight and uninterrupted performance. They are immune to radiation damage like that which silenced several U.S. satellites by destroying power-producing solar cells.

When Transit 4A was launched June 29, 1961, it marked a technological development in the U.S. space program, one which the Soviets have not claimed.

The nuclear generator is enclosed in a metal container the size of a grapefruit and weighs only 4.5 pounds. At the core is a small amount of plutonium 238, a radioisotope which generates heat up to 1,050 degrees fahrenheit as it decays. Thermoelectric cells convert heat to electrical energy providing power output of 2.7 watts.

STILL PRODUCING

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission reports that after more than 10,000 orbits and 300,000,000 miles of travel, the generator continues to produce electrical current to two radio transmitters and some instruments in Transit 4-A. Officials said the tiny unit could provide power for many years, but the satellite probably will cease to transmit in about three years, by sufficient of its electronic components.

A second atomic generator was rocketed into orbit aboard the Transit 4-B satellite in November, 1961. But an electrical short-circuit halted transmissions after 28 weeks. The AEC is confident the generator still is working.

First use of an atomic generator by the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration will be in 1965 in the interplanetary monitoring probe project Voyager. I.M.P. satellite probably will be powered by two 20-watt isotopic 238 generators being developed by Martin.

I.M.P. spacecraft will gather information about radiation and magnetic fields between the earth and moon in support of a 3-mile manned-lunar-landing project.

OTHERS WILL USE IT

Another program definitely planned for use of a nuclear generator is the Surveyor unmanned moon exploration project. Other NASA projects likely to use radioisotope power are the Nimbus weather satellite, an orbiting astronomical observatory, an unmanned Mars craft and an orbiting geophysical observatory.

Major disadvantage of nuclear units is the great cost of the fuels. The price of generating one watt of energy from plutonium 238, for example, is $22,500. But the AEC feels it will be able to cut the cost considerably by salvaging nuclear elements which normally are lost as waste in the operation of its nuclear plants and reactors.

Because of the high cost of nuclear power plants and because many spacecraft do not require long life, engineers are developing better radiation-resistant solar cells. And chemical fuel cells, employing hydrogen and oxygen, are being devised for two-man spacecraft to eliminate the heavy batteries used in the mercury manned capsules.

But for the longer voyages, the dependable atomic generator appears to be the answer.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves burning and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and greatly relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement continued over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form as Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination painless. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Two Bengal Tigers at Granby Proud Parents of Three Cubs

GRANBY, Que. (CP)—Rajah and Rennie, two Bengal tigers at the Granby zoo, are proud parents of three new tiger cubs.

And they have more reason to be proud than most zoo parents. Gilles Charbonneau, managing director of the zoo, says he has never heard of another successful birth of tiger cubs in captivity in North America.

Much of the credit for the survival of the cubs, born July 18, goes to Mr. Charbonneau and zoo-keeper Emile Laflamme.

Tiger fathers show no particular affection for the newborn and so Rajah was placed in another cage a month before the birth.

Shots were given to Rennie during the 102 - day gestation period so that she and her offspring would be healthy.

A plywood wall was built along her cage to separate her from an adjacent lion's cage. And Rennie had her own two-floor private compartment, completely sealed off except for an entrance. A month before the birth Rennie chose the upper floor and began sleeping there each night.

Three days before the birth no one was admitted to the animal house except Mr. Laflamme, whom Rennie trusted. At 6 p.m. July 18, Rennie began giving birth. Mr. Laflamme was on duty "a little nervous." An hour later three healthy cubs were mewing about their mother.

Mr. Charbonneau said cubs are often born dead and that even if born alive, the mother is sometimes nervous and may injure or kill them. But Rennie was a model mother. Even during a summer heat wave when her compartment was more than 120 degrees she behaved beautifully.

Fall Fine Bass Fishing Time

Bass fishing, in the minds of many fishermen, is associated with the hot summer months. But when the cooler days of September and October arrive most of us are apt to do what might be called our outdoor thinking in terms of dove, woodcock, grouse, quail and ring neck. Bass fishing is quite apt to be forgotten when the leaves begin to change and take on the lovely coloration of fall. Believe me, when you put away the fishing tackle and start oiling the old fowling piece, you are missing some of the finest bass fishing of the year.

During the summer months, always you must contend with adverse temperatures. Bass, while they are classed as warm-water fish, actually prefer cooler water than is generally available during the hot weather. The favorite temperature of the smallmouth is 67 degrees. In a pond or a lake he will find that temperature if he can. Always there are spring holes and cool feeder streams to be found in a lake and it is in these cold spots that the smallmouth tend to concentrate. Although largemouth can be happy in 90-degree water, they prefer their temperatures in the mid 70's.

But when fall rolls around, the complicated problem of temperatures usually solves itself. Then the lakes lose their typical temperature layers and the fish can move about freely in water that is to their liking. Thus, you will find bass in fall in water that they did not occupy during the summer.

NATURE WARNS FISH

Nature, who has a way of doing things advantageous to the creatures of the wild, warns the bass that winter is coming. Winter, particularly in the more northern latitudes, is a time of starvation for a bass. The shallows — the home of the vast majority of his natural food — are frozen solid. In the deep water there is little or nothing for him to eat. Contrary to popular opinion, all bass do not hibernate during the winter months. But all of them, in hibernation or not, assume a state of suspended animation. Metabolism and heart beat are reduced to a fraction of their summer rate.

All living things must eat in order to survive. Because of his comparative inactivity during the winter, a bass needs but little food to keep him healthy. There being no food available in his winter quarters, he subsists on the layers of fat that he has accumulated before winter arrives. As soon as the cool days and frosty nights cool the bass waters, the bass go on an intensive feeding spree, stuffing themselves with anything resembling food so as to lay on those vital layers of fat which they will stay alive. Stone catfish have tough lips and when hooked through both lips they will stay alive indefinitely. Minnows, chubs, etc., which have soft mouths, are best hooked just under the dorsal fin, using care not to damage the spine or the body cavity. Crayfish stay alive longer if you hook them through the tail. Helgramites should be hooked under the hard collar, just behind the head, again using care not to enter the body cavity. Grasshoppers should be hooked through the abdomen. Frogs are best fastened to the hook with a small rubber band or a frog harness. Angle worms die quickly if hooked through the collar or head. These are best hooked by two loops just below the collar.

Unless you have located a definite concentration spot, it is a good plan not to anchor your boat. After all, bait fishing is a form of salesmanship. Thus, the more customers to whom you show your wares, the more sales you are apt to make. Let your boat drift with the current of the wind.

The use of a float or bobber is optional. Actually, a bobber does hamper free movement of a swimming bait bet in shallow water, where complications with sustain them during the winter months. Surface lures or deep-running lures, it makes no difference, they strike avidly at just about anything that moves.

While almost any sort of live bait will catch bass in the fall, the fish obviously prefer those baits which will produce fat. There is little fat-producing material in such baits as crayfish or the little stone catfish. A helgramite assays at about 12 or 15 percent fat content. But the shiners, the dace, the riffle chub and the riffle pike are oily little fellows, high in fat content. These baits, while only fair during the summer months, are obviously favorite items of food in the fall. And the lowly angle worm — night walker, night crawler, dew worm, call him what you will — is an excellent bass bait in the fall.

KEEP BAIT ALIVE

If you like bait fishing, and a great many of us do, some tips on bait fishing might well be in order. First off, make it a point to hook your live baits so that the bottom are apt to be all too frequent, a bobber is quite helpful.

Remember that hungry bass are most apt to be in the areas where they can find food most easily. This, of course, means the shallows and the more lines. Little or no natural food makes it home in deep water. And that casting a bass bug with a fly rod along the shorelines is very productive during the fall.

Pay particular attention to the coves and the points. A cove often offers a bass comfortable resting quarters while a point makes a fine spot for a bass to

He is well be say natural feed that may be moving along the shore line, either in a river or a lake.

As I say, don't be in too much of a hurry to put away your fishing tackle in the fall. Not that Ol' Betsy, your favorite shotgun, should be ignored. But if you will make it a point to put in several days on good bass waters, your efforts should be well rewarded.

Caribou Trails Abandoned In Northwest Territories As Herds Flee Cruel Cold

By IRA DEYSDALE

WINNIPEG (CP) — Every year about this time, lonely stretches of the Canadian North spring to life with the clatter of antlers and rumbling of hooves.

Thousands of barrenland caribou are moving south, away from the bleak plains of the Northwest Territories and into sparsely wooded regions of northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan where the long winter is a little less cruel.

The trails they follow are the North's finest, pounded as hard as pavement by generations of migrating caribou. Many spent their winters year after year in the same haunts along the tree line.

But in recent years many of the trails have been abandoned. The wintering grounds are deserted. The caribou don't come any more.

When this happens it can spell trouble for people who depend on the caribou, an easy-to-kill animal that is bigger than a deer and smaller than a moose.

Traditionally the native of the north used the caribou for meat. Its antlers made axe and female have them served as knives, tools and dogsled brakes. From the hide came clothing, footwear and tents. Caribou sinews were used as thread, fresh caribou blood provided a nourishing drink and from the caribou's stomach came food filled with all the vitamins of a fresh green salad.

ESSENTIAL TO LIFE

In many areas of the north Indians and Eskimos have become less dependent upon the caribou in recent years. But in some areas, particularly in the far north, the caribou is still important.

As recently as 1957 disaster did come when the caribou deserted. A caribou shortage in the Keewatin district north of Manitoba led to at least 25 deaths from starvation and prompted the removal of many caribou - hunting Eskimos to Hudson Bay's west shore.

Firm figures aren't easy to get in the vast Canadian north. No one knows, for example, how many caribou there used to be. Estimates have put the figures as high as 20,000,000 but wildlife officials discount this.

In 1938, however, the Canadian Wildlife Service estimated there were 2,500,000. A 1948-49 study put the number at 670,000, and in 1955 it was 277,000.

At this rate of decline, game officials figured, the caribou would be gone before long. No one knew all the reasons for the decline, but some were obvious.

G. W. Malaher, Manitoba's director of game and fish, says he thinks the biggest single factor was the introduction of the repeating rifle.

WOLVES PLAYED PART

Wolves, which have always taken a toll in caribou, probably played a part as well, but Malaher says their presence alone is not always bad. They have a weeding effect on the herd, taking the weak and slow.

Disease may have played a part; no one is sure. But they knew that to halt the slide to extinction, something had to be done.

At the 1947 federal-provincial wildlife conference, Manitoba expressed concern over the barren-ranged caribou and asked for a study. At the same time the province moved to close the hunting season for caribou. It has never been restored.

Since then a lot of studying has been done, and the hunting season on the barrenland caribou has been halted everywhere in Canada. Natives of the north are still allowed to shoot as many as they wish, but an educational program is afoot in a bid to have the Indians and Eskimos shoot only what they need.

Some day the hunting season may be opened again but Malaher isn't thinking about it yet. First the caribou herds must replenish themselves, and to help them along the federal and provincial officials need to know more about them.

SEEK ANSWERS

Why do caribou stop travelling trails they have travelled for years? Why do some migrate while others don't? Do the same animals migrate each year? How far do they migrate? Why the decline in numbers? How can it be reversed?

To provide answers to some of these questions, wildlife people have been tagging migrating caribou in northern Manitoba for five years. They catch them from canoes on Duck Lake, just south of the border between Manitoba and the Northwest Territories. They hold them with a hook much like the ones shepherds use and pin a tag with a painted plastic pin a tag with a painted plastic streamer to an ear.

Malaher says about 1,500 animals have been tagged at Duck Lake since game biologist Joe Robertson of Winnipeg figured out this method of tagging. The Canadian Wildlife Service has adopted the idea.

Working on the Manitoba operation this year are a northern affairs department official, a wildlife service official, two men from Manitoba's game branch and an Eskimo and Indian.

Clipped caribou ears returned to the game branch give bits of information: No disease of epidemic proportions is evident; many animals do travel the same route year after year; at least some travel as far as 500 miles in their annual migration.

GOOD CALF CROP

But what happened to the caribou's numbers? This was the biggest question from the start and remains unanswered.

Wolf - killing programs have probably helped the situation in recent years. Indications of a good caribou calf crop this year help to brighten picture. And the Indians and Eskimos are apparently becoming more conscious of the importance of conserving the herds.

But it's a long trail back to the days of plenty for the inquisitive, foot-loose barrenland caribou.

Malaher figures the people of the north—about 23,000 in the territories alone—owe the beast a chance in recoup.

The caribou more than anything else fed and clothed the natives of the north; after a lie man came "much of the northland would never have been opened were it not for the caribou:" and the Canadian 25-cent piece also owes him something—it's carried his image for years.

TAG MIGRATING CARIBOU — Manitoba game officials tag a caribou from a canoe on Duck Lake near the Northwest Territories border. The tagging operation, started five years ago, was devised to find out why the caribou population has been declining. G. W. Malaher, Manitoba's director of game and fish, says he thinks introduction of the repeating rifle among northern residents was perhaps the biggest single factor.

REGINA (CP)—Around the Canadian Football League it's usually the offensive squad that draws most of the homestretch cheers. But in Regina it's the defensive unit of Saskatchewan Roughriders that gets the applause.

Roughriders, who have had an on-again - off-again offence this season, are in contention for a Western Conference playoff spot largely through the prodigious efforts of the best defence in the league, one that has allowed an average of 19.8 points a game.

When the club played British Columbia Lions here Sept. 8, a rooky standing-room crowd of more than 15,000 cheered the Saskatchewan defensive players from the first play.

Lions, the highest-scoring club in the country, managed only an 8-3 win in that game and scored all their points on kicks because they couldn't get close enough for a touchdown.

Other teams found the going just as tough. From the last quarter of their fifth game to the end of their ninth—a 44-14 rout in the rain at Calgary—the Roughriders defence didn't allow a single touchdown. The one TD, by Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the sixth game, was on an intercepted pass.

BEST SINCE '53

The last time a defensive club held off touchdown drives with such consistency was in 1953 when Edmonton Eskimos gave up six points in three games.

In 1954 Calgary Stampeders shut out their opposition three times in a row and in 1951 Roughriders blanked their opponents in one game, allowed a single point in the next and scored a shutout in the third.

In their first nine games this season Saskatchewan allowed only 96 points, tops in the league. B.C., with 104 points in eight games, was next. The Roughies led the league in pass interceptions, picking off 21 and running one back for a touchdown.

Personnel on the defensive squad are largely hard-nosed returnees from last year and coach Bob Shaw doesn't care to tamper with the powerful group of defenders welded by his predecessor, Steve Owen, whose genius for putting together tough defences was recognized in his years with New York Giants.

Canadian middle guard Ron Atchison, an 11-year veteran who weighs 235, is noted for his ability to batter through the offensive line and get at opposition quarterbacks.

SOME ADDITIONS

American Garner Ekstran and Canadian Ron Meadmore, both recent additions, play out of the defensive end slots.

Neil Habig, an import in his sixth year, and Bob Ptacek, an all-star linebacker in 1961 who played quarterback last year and returned to the defence this year, pick off a good share of the interceptions.

In the backfield, Jack Gotta, offensively an end, Dale West, a Saskatoon product who plays halfback on offence, and Gene Wlasiuk, a runback specialist, bottle up opposing pass receivers.

Coach Shaw has toyed with the idea of putting Ptacek back at quarterback at various times this season but apparently figured he couldn't be spared from his defensive role.

So while the defence is solid, the Roughriders aren't particularly impressive on offence where their 95 points average out to 10.5 a game, a figure that makes the third - place standing and 4-4-1 record all the more impressive.

In this way you can let yourself go without the publicity that goes with it. You won't have to worry about the neighbours thinking you're acting wild. The TS looks tame. On the outside.

We won't say the TS stops you from growing older. But 65 horsepower and twin carburators certainly make you feel younger. And, we might add, gives you the extra power to pass safely on the highway.

All this doesn't affect famous Volkswagen gas economy. TS has it. 35 miles per gallon.

TS stands for Touring Sport. So you can be sporty and behave yourself at the same time. With plenty of room for the wife and kids you'll look just like an average family man out for a spin. Nobody will suspect there's an adventurer at the wheel.

And the TS has youthful touches like a padded dash and whitewalls.

If you want to be in a sportscar but not in a spotlight, get a 1500 TS. You'll have a respectable front.

Riders' Tricks And Kicks Whip Lions

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders dipped into their bag of tricks Monday night and came up with a 23-17 victory over British Columbia Lions in a Canadian Football League interlocking game at Lansdowne Park.

The victory, watched by 30,141 fans moved Riders back into a first-place tie in the Eastern Conference with Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Each team has four wins.

Lions retained first place in the Western Conference. They have 14 points, one better than Calgary Stampeders.

Tucker, a University of Western Ontario graduate, lined up onside with Black on a third down kick in the second quarter and then raced 26 yards to the B.C. 19-yard line to catch the ball. Two plays later Riders went over for a touchdown.

CAUGHT NAPPING

Black, a graduate of Mount Allison University, caught Lions napping in the fourth quarter when he raced downfield to recover his own third-down kick on the B.C. 47. Seven plays later Riders scored the winning touchdown.

Fullback Dave Thelen, playing his best game of the season, scored all three Ottawa touchdowns. Showing the form that made him second leading rusher in 1961, the 210-pound import swaled off touchdown runs of 14 yards, 12 yards and one yard.

Moe Racine scored the other five Ottawa points on a 34-yard field goal, a 40-yard single and a convert.

Passing plays accounted for both R.C. touchdowns. Quarterback Joe Kapp threw a 23-yard end zone pass to Jerry Janes and later combined with Willie Fleming for a 38-yard pass-and-run touchdown.

Peter Kempf kicked a 17-yard field goal and two converts to complete the B.C. scoring.

CAUGHT NAPPING

Lions had 21 first downs, eight by rushing, eight by passing and five by penalties. Riders made 20 first downs, 13 on the ground, six on passing and one on a penalty.

Wirkowski Tab $1,00 Per Point

Argos Offense Fined $50 Each

TORONTO (CP) — Nobby Wirkowski, head coach of Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Canadian Football Conference, said Monday he has fined his entire offensive team following Sunday's 50-0 drubbing by Calgary Stampeders.

The figure was reported to be 50 a man—11 a point.

Wirkowski, who said at one point that his players should have paid their way into Sunday's game, declined to identify the players who were fined.

"I said I had fined the entire offensive team," he stated. "Isn't that clear enough? There were no other fines."

He declined to elaborate when asked whether he had fined only the starting offensive lineup or all players who played offence during the game.

"All that I'm saying is that the offensive team has been fined $50 per player. That's all."

Wirkowski's move indicated he feels the offence was the big Argo fault even though the Toronto defence yielded 50 points to the rampaging Stampeders.

Several times during the game, the Argo defence held tight and forced the Stamps to give up the ball. The usual result of this, however, was that the offence was unable to produce a first down and had to kick on third down.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

For the first time in the district's sports history the North American weightlifting championships will be held here on October 19th. The titular meet slated for Station Trenton RCAF will include the "Mr. North American Physique Contest."

Ken Carr-Braint, coach of the sponsoring Apollo Barbell Club of this city, says that topnotch weightlifters from the United States, Porto Rico and Canada will be here for the afternoon and evening events.

From the United States comes the York Barbell Club of York, Penn. Another York A.A. comes from Buffalo. Detroit is sending its Astro Weightlifting Club and New York City the McBurney YMCA lifting team.

From Quebec comes the Quebec Gymnes Herculeens; the Quebec Gym Olympique squad and the Montreal Palais Nationale team. Some fifty lifters in-cluding three of the best Belleville Apollo Barbell Club are expected to compete.

The "strong men" will compete in seven classes, bantams, feathers, lightweights, middleweights, light heavyweights, middle heavies and heavyweights.

The Apollo Club and Canada pins its middleweight hopes on this city's John Lewis who won a bronze medal at the Pan-American games at Sao Paulo, Brazil, and was selected for the team to represent Canada at the world weightlifting championships at Stockholm, Sweden.

Unfortunately the Lewis hopes for a crack at a world title went agglmmering. He was advised that he would have for Sweden on a certain date, made all arrangements and at the last minute was informed by the powers-that-be that no money was forthcoming to finance the trip.

Lewis stands a good chance to win a North American title. He has upped his total poundage from 915 to 945, his present record over the past two years. He is young and improving each time out.

Four of the world's outstanding weightlifters included the famous Canadian, Louis Cyr, 300 pounder from Quebec. The others were Arthur Saxon, Eugene Sandow and wrestler George Hackenschmidt of Russia.

Cyr was a man of great strength. He was approximately five feet ten inches tall and his arms measured inches upper arms of more than 20 inches and thighs that were 33 inches around. Massive overall he had a 47-inch waist.

Once to demonstrate his strength, Cyr placed his back against the underside of a platform loaded to 4,300 pounds, and raised it by exerting the force of his leg and back muscles.

He is said to have raised 535 pounds from the floor with one finger using a ring attached to the weight by a chain. Although his forte was lifting gargantuan weights by the strength of his back and legs, Cyr was able to push a 300-pound barbell by the strength of his arms and shoulders.

Saxon was incredibly strong and rugged, although not a huge man at 5.10 and 210 pounds.

To make the lift he shouldered a 336-pound barbell which he "hand pressed" overhead with his right arm by leaning away from the weight and pushing until his arm was locked.

While crouched under the weight, he grasped a 113-pound weight with his free hand, straightened and pushed this smaller weight overhead for a total poundage of 449. This feat earned him world-wide fame.

Weightlifting is gaining popularity as a sport in Canada and is used by many hockey and football coaches as a training medium for their athletes.

5-Pin Bowling

J. Canning Turns in 2885 Score

Jack Canning, of Belleville, turned in a terrific ten-game score of 2885 to earn his way into the O'Connor Bowl 5-pin grand championships this past weekend.

Bowling in the first zone qualifying round, at Kingston, Canning averaged close to 289 per game to lead all competitors. The finals, for total prizes of $8,000, will be held in Toronto next spring.

There will be 119 others in the competition besides Canning.

It is expected that five bowlers from this zone will go on to compete next weekend at the O'Connor Bowl for the right to appear on the TV bowling show. This zone, the Bay of Quinte, takes in Belleville, Brighton, Campbellford, Deseronto, Elgin, Havelock, Kingston, Madoc, Napanee, Picton, Trenton and Tweed.

The second zone qualifying round will be held at the Belleville Bowl-O-Drome on Saturday, October 12, at 1.30 p.m. This competition will be held in conjunction with the "King of the Hill" contest.

Braves To Stay in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Braves announced Monday that the National League baseball club "will be in Milwaukee today, tomorrow, next year and as long as we are welcome."

John McHale, president and general manager of the club, issued a statement saying:

"The many statements, rumors, and speculations concerning the future location of the Milwaukee Braves have created a confused situation. In order to dispel this confusion, my associates join me in making this statement.

"It is quite natural for cities seeking major league franchises to solicit the interest of clubs whose attendance has declined, just as Milwaukee did in 1953.

"Attractive offers have been made to us by several cities, but our decision is to remain in Milwaukee."

For weeks, Atlanta and San Diego fan groups, in particular, have been reported attempting to induce the Braves to move.

Mr. Palmer Still King Of the Loot

The Professional Golfers Association standings show Palmer has entered 18 tournaments and won six for a total of $101,- 825. He was among the first five finishers nine times.

Jack Nicklaus competed in 22 tournaments and was four to earn $94,290. Julius Boros, competing in 25, earned $73,936 and Tony Lema was fourth, playing in 23 tournaments and winning $64,645. Nicklaus, Boros and Lema finished among the first five 11 times.

Dodgers Win Shy Of Champagne, Flag

Play Mets Tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For the Los Angeles Dodgers the long, hot season comes down to The champagne is cold. The magic number is one.

One win by the Dodgers, which would happen tonight at the New York Mets' expense, or one loss by the St. Louis Cardinals, which could be today to the Chicago Cubs, and that's the Dodgers needed for the National League pennant.

The champagne is one less in the Stadium Club at Dodger Stadium, and it's mighty cold. Some say it has been there since last year about this time, when an end-of-season plunge brought disaster to Dodger pennant hopes in a playoff loss to San Francisco.

On July 2 it was Dodgers pitcher Don Drysdale who defeated Curt Simmons and the Cardinals, 1-0, in the same stadium, to put the Dodgers in first place. They've been there ever since.

He opposes Tracy Stallard tonight. Drysdale is 18-17, Stallard 6-16. In 15 games against the Mets this season the Dodgers have only lost two-and Stallard pitched one of them, a four - hitter July 30.

Dodger players now feel cocky enough to talk about the fans who deserted them Sept. 15 when their 7-game lead shrunk to a one-game margin, and the town was full of rumors about Dodger Manager Walter Alston's impending downfall.

Then the Dodgers crushed the Cards in a series sweep. Said the Dodgers' Lee Walls, savoring the sweet smell of success:

"We won it in St. Louis, they can't take anything away from us, either. We earned it by beating the team we had to beat."

There was only one game scheduled in the majors Monday night. Cincinnati whipped Washington Senators 4-1.

Norm Cash got the Tigers started with a first inning homer and Rocky Colavito contributed a 2-run with a man on. Phil Regan, touched for Don Blasingame's first inning homer, won his 19th with one-out relief help from Willie Smith. Regan struck out 10 in 5 2/3 innings.

All teams will be in action tonight, and while the spotlight is on the Dodgers and Cardinals, some attention will be focused at Yankee Stadium, where the American League champion New York Yankees will present their World Series line-up.

Roger Maris, out for two weeks with a back ailment, will return to the line-up and take his place in the outfield with Mickey Mantle and Tom Tresh. Whitey Ford, 23-7 and the likely Series opener for the Yankees, will be the starting pitcher against the Los Angeles Angels.

Because of injuries to Mantle, Maris, Tresh and other regulars, the Yankees have been shuffled into their entire regular team only eight previous times this season.

Bill Gadsby Signs

Doug Harvey Still Absent

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tough old Bill Gadsby scratched his signature on another National Hockey League contract Monday — signifying he is ready for his 18th season.

Gadsby, 36-year-old Detroit rearguard, played in all 70 games last year plus two sets of playoffs for the Red Wings.

The Rangers, however, expect he may show up at their Winnipeg camp Wednesday. Harvey says business commitments have caused his delay.

Also signed by the Wings were defencemen Marcel Pronovost, 28, and left winger Parker MacDonald, 30, a veteran of going into his 14th season, has spent his entire career with Detroit MacDonald last season scored 33 goals and 28 assists.

Boston Bruins also sent six players out of their big camp, all of whom have been optioned to Minneapolis Bruins of the Central League. Terry Crisp, Jeannot Gilbert, Wayne Maxner, Gary Dornhoefer, Ken Stephanson and Wayne Schultz were to join the Minneapolis team at its Bowmanville, Ont., camp.

Fleming Paces Bomber Win Over Eskimos

Public Works Hand Firemen 10-1 Setback

Public Works thumped the Fire Department 10-1 in the opening game of the Belleville Interdepartmental softball League finals last night.

Second and third games in the four-of-seven series are scheduled for Wednesday and Friday nights, at the CNRA Park. The new starting time is 6:45 sharp.

The Works had a bit too much on the ball last night, out-hitting the Firemen 8-5 and committing only one miscue. The losers booted the ball six times.

G. Reid and G. Green formed the winning battery, Reid striking out three and walking but one.

R. Reid and G. Woodhouse, in the fourth, pitched for the losers. They fanned none and walked four. Ryan was their receiver.

G. Smith rapped three hits and G. Green a pair to pace the Public Works. Reid, Curtis and Wilkinson also hit safely.

The Fire Department hits were split among Parks, Reid Wannamaker, Stephenson and Danford.

Als Meet Stampeders In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Quarterback Francis (Bubba) Marriott is counting on a short-passing game for the Montreal Alouettes' East - West football clash here tonight with the Calgary Stampeders.

Calgary's ability to "blitz" linebackers means "that we'll probably have to go for short passes," Marriott said after the Als' light workout Monday night. "Calgary are going to be up' for this game after that Toronto win," he said. "They're going to be tough. No doubt about that."

Marriott, a New York Giant bench-warmer for two years until he joined the Als this season, was referring to Calgary's 20-3 blitz of Toronto Sunday. The Stamps roared into town Monday, fresh and frisky, and cooling conditions.

"We'll use the same lineup that played in Toronto," Calgary coach Bobby Dobbs said, except for reserving judgment on whether he'll dress Earl (Earthquake) Lunsford.

Alouette coach Jim Trimble's strategy will be to force Calgary quarterback Eagle Day "to make his move."

Trimble plans to alternate his first - string quarterback Marriott with back-up man Warren Rabb. "I have to set plans to play them," he said, "I'll use them to complement each other."

WINNIPEG (CP) — Toronto Argonauts must blush every time they meet the Western Football Conference scoring press.

A Winnipeg Blue Bomber halfback named George Fleming is the leader with 70 points. Fleming, a talented place kicker made Argos look bad again Monday night.

His 18-point effort paced the Bombers to a 24-15 win over Edmonton Eskimos and closer to third place in the WFC standing.

Argos, doormats in the Eastern Conference, cut the same guy early this season.

But you won't hear any groans from Winnipeg — nor from Fleming. He has six touchdowns, 12 converts, seven field goals and six singles in eight games. The entire Toronto team has scored only 59 points in the same number of outings.

The Bombers, defending Grey Cup champions, moved to within one point of the third-place Saskatchewan Roughriders. Winnipeg, however, is only three points behind the leading Edmonton Eskimos who have 13. Calgary Stampeders are second with 12, while Edmonton are last with four.

RUNS, SCORES, KICKS

The most spectacular and effective player in the game was Fleming, who scored two first-quarter touchdowns, two converts, a field goal and a single.

Winnipeg also got a touchdown when defensive halfback Dick Thornton intercepted a second-quarter pass from Edmonton quarterback Lynn Amedee at the Winnipeg 29-yard line and ran 65 yards to score.

Thornton did most of its scoring in the third quarter, after a second-quarter field goal attempt—from the 45-yard line by Bill Mitchell went wide for a single.

They came out to start the second half under rookie quarterback Ron Miller and immediately drove for a touchdown. It ended with an eight - yard pass to end Bruce Claridge and Mitchell kicked the convert.

To start the play Thornton, hitting into a wind that gusted to 35 miles an hour, gained only five yards and had them taken away when Winnipeg was given a five-yard no-yards penalty.

SETS IT UP

Edmonton's second touchdown also was set up by Miller with a series of passes, but completed by Amedee as he tossed the ball 16 yards into end zone to halfback Joe Hernandez. Mitchell converted again.

Of Edmonton's total rushing of 49 yards, Hernandez picked up 34. Edmonton also gained 180 yards in the air as Amedee and Miller completed 15 of 35 passes. Winnipeg's Ken Ploen completed seven of 19 for 125 yards.

Bombers picked up 183 yards rushing.

Intercollegiate Conference

Wants More Fan Support

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—College football, as played by the Ontario Intercollegiate Conference, will be demanding more and more attention from fans in the next few seasons.

The conference begins its seventh year Saturday when all eight entries swing into action. Waterloo Lutheran is at Carleton University, Ottawa University at Ontario Agriculture College, Loyola at Royal Military College and McMaster at Wilfrid Laurier University.

Convener Keith Harris, who also is director of athletics and football coach at Carleton, said in an interview Monday that the conference looks forward to attracting game crowds of 8,000 in the next eight years. Average attendance now is about 1,000.

"Our direct appeal now is to alumni, students and to parents," Harris said.

"An improved brand of football, brought about by rapidly growing enrolment at the 8 OIC schools, and a few colorful gimmicks — such as providing limousines from barbeque pits—will bring about the larger turnouts, Harris said.

LEAGUE DOMINATES

College football in Eastern Canada now is dominated by the Senior Intercollegiate League made up of McGill, University of Western Ontario, University of Toronto and Queen's.

The mushrooming campus population and football tradition assure these four schools of large turnouts for the football teams.

"As a result, they have good playing sitting on the bench all year while coaches in our conference take what they can get and develop ball players," said Harris.

With increased enrolments, the conference entries should be able to challenge the senior intercollegiate winner each season. Some type of "bowl game" arrangements may be worked out.

Packers Will Be Honored At Sat. Party

Jack Feasby's Packers who won the city squirt softball championship, will be honored at Moira Secondary School next Saturday.

The Packers will be guests at a party sponsored by Feasby. Some thirty youngsters will enjoy hamburgers, hot dogs, soft drinks, etc.

The party will get under way at three o'clock.

Happy Person Rare Sight In TV Dramatic Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Two or three years ago, television's most articulate critics were busily knocking the medium for its dedication to dramas about "happy people with happy problems."

Apparently television listened. This season the rarest sight in a dramatic show is a happy person, much less a happy marriage.

The dramas are about the sad, the sick and the sorry.

They reach us through the lawyer shows, the doctor shows, the nurse shows, the psychiatrist shows, sometimes even the westerns.

Monday night CBS opened up a new showcase—a social workers' series called East Side, West Side.

The first show was the case of an unwed, deserted mother turned call girl to support her infant.

The sympathy of the author, and presumably of the social worker, was with the lady of easy virtue.

TAKE THE BABY

In the end, the authorities took away the baby as the mother screamed hysterically for another chance.

This may be social drama, but the story proved nothing and got nowhere.

There has been so much television lately about shady ladies and other fringe characters they no longer have their old shock value. Maybe it's time for a change—back to happy people with happy problems.

Probably Played Chess In Spare Time

As treasurer of Baltimore Orioles, he attended the first game of a doubleheader with Washington Senators.

Then he went home to listen to the second game on radio, while watching the Baltimore Colts - San Francisco 49ers football game on television. Krieger is a director of the Colts.

After dinner, he attended the exhibition hockey game between Baltimore Clippers and Montreal Canadiens. Krieger is chairman of the board of the Clippers.

Krieger broke even, as the Orioles split, the Colts won and the Clippers lost.

Can't Kill Folk Music Claims Kingston Trio

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Is folk music dies for a decline?

The Kingston Trio, the fellows who started the craze, have this to say:

"Nothing can kill folk music; it's too much in the American consciousness. It won't be like calypso, who went out of style because of overplaying. But the profusion of folk acts is bound to cut in on the business."

The Kingstons' spokesman most often is stubby Nick Reynolds. John Stewart, the handsome chap who replaced founder Dave Guard, also lends a comment or two. The silent member is Bob Shane.

The Kingstons, who actually started out as a calypso combo (hence the name), switched to folk and found the mother lode with Tom Dooley. Many more followed.

"Too many," remarked Nick. "The business can take just so many attractions. Supposing Peter, Paul and Mary are booked into a theater for a concert. Then comes a 'hootenany!' three times. Then we come along soon after. Somebody is bound to suffer."

The trio hasn't. They were here for a sell-out smash at the Greek Theatre, and that has been much the usual thing wherever they go. Their records continue selling at a rapid clip.

JUST ENTERTAINERS

Their success may be partly the reason for so-called purists to look down their noses at the trio. The boys just aren't ethnic enough to be carried like a flag by the dedicationed preservers of the folk art.

"Every time I go to a coffee house to catch some folk singers, the same things happen," Nick complained. "I get me in the audience and make some crack about how commercials we are.

"We're entertainers," stressed Reynolds. "We just played the Dunes in Las Vegas and it was a real pleasure to be accepted for what we are. The audiences weren't interested in our ethnic qualities. They wanted to be entertained.

"The same was true in England, where we went earlier this year. Except for Tom Dooley and Where Have All the Flowers Gone?, they weren't familiar with our work. They accepted us as entertainers and the response was great."

Manager Taunts Phils

Throws Food At Players

HOUSTON (AP) — Gene Mauch, manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, threw food around the Philadelphia club room Sunday night after his team lost a 3-2 decision to the Houston Colts, the Houston Chronicle says.

Mauch told the Philadelphia players they were "little leaguers."

Before leaving Houston for the west coast, the Philadelphia manager told the two players he would buy them new suits. They were forced to call their luggage from the truck carrying equipment to the airport to have something to wear.

Mauch threw slices of watermelon and cantaloupe around the club room as well as the container of ribs and one of the fried chickens.

"I have been expecting someone would do it," said Norm Gerdenich, who sets the spread in the visitors' dressing room at Colt Stadium. He made the comment as sat-urais washed the walls and tried to put the place back to order.

31 Trotters Fetch Total Of $44,150

The three top - price animals all from the consignment of Armstrong Brothers' Company of Brampton — were purchased by veteran horseman Lorne Tolhurst of Durham, Ont.

He paid $5,000 for Armbro Tracey, a bay colt by Newport Dream-Heather Mist; $4,500 for Armbro Flip, a bay colt by Capetown-Lady Buckeye; and $4,000 for Armbro Frolic, a chestnut filly by Direct Rhythm - Josie Hal.

The second-largest buyer was William Sokoloff of Downsview, a suburb of Toronto, who spent $6,000 on a filly and a colt.

The filly, by Gene Abbee out of Futurstine, consigned by Maple Leaf Farm of Haspeler, was sold for $2,600 and the colt, a chestnut by Adiocot-Miss Elaneious, for $2,400.

'Liston Jaw Will Be Disaster Area'

NEW YORK (AP) — Cassius Clay's long - playing record album I Am the Greatest appears to be a hit.

If you've got $3.98 and a full half-hour to spare, you can sit and listen to the backbashing bard of Louisville tell you what a great fighter he is and how quickly he plans to disintegrate world heavyweight champion Sonny Liston when and if they're put inside the same ring.

"I am the greatest!" Cassius repeats in many times that you constantly are checking to see if the needle is right on it.

He recites some of his favorite poetry—by his favorite rhymemaker, Cassius Clay:

"This kid is great—he's got endurance.

"If you aim to fight him, increase your insurance."

Other Cassius gems:

"Mister Liston don't need boxing Mitions or talking lessons—he needs a falling lessons."

"When I'm finished, the president will send out a proclamation declaring Liston's jaw a disaster area."

Magazine Asks for New Trial

ATLANTA (AP) — Lawyers for The Saturday Evening Post will argue Oct. 16 for a new trial of Wally Butts' libel suit or for a reduction of a $3,060,000 judgment awarded the former University of Georgia athletic director by a federal court jury.

District Judge Lewis R. Morgan set the hearing Monday. Post lawyers will press for a retrial on grounds that the jury was prejudiced and the award was excessive. As an alternative, they will ask for a cut in the judgment, one of the largest in legal history.

The former coach and athletic director won his verdict Aug. 20 from a jury which decided the Post libeled him in a March 23 article charging that he conspired with coach Paul Bryant to rig the 1962 Georgia vs. Alabama football game. Post witnesses testified the two men exchanged information by telephone before the game.

In his new trial motion, the Post also maintains that a witness for Butts testified falsely on a material point and the presiding judge erred in not admitting testimony about non-university activities of Butts.

T. Davis Looms as Bat Champ

NEW YORK (AP) — Tommy Davis of Los Angeles Dodgers moves into the final week of the 1963 baseball season with an excellent chance of becoming the first National Leaguer in more than a decade to win two consecutive batting championships.

Davis has taken over the lead, climbing ahead of slumping Dick Groat of the Cubs and Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh. Davis picked up two points to .323 in last week's games with nine hits in 24 times at bat. Meanwhile, Groat lost seven points to .320 and dropped into a second-place tie with Frank Robinson of Orioles and Cepeda. Groat managed only three hits in 22 tries, a .136 pace. Cepeda rushed up from seventh place by increasing his average four points on a 9-for-25 performance.

Carl Yastrzemski of Boston has virtually wrapped up the American League title. He leads Al Kaline of Detroit, the runner-up, by 10 points.

Yastremski moved up one point to .323 on seven safeties in 19 tries. Kaline also gained a point to .310.

The Trots

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Reed's Dream, a five-year-old mare owned by Glen and Doreen Hoskin of Oshawa, set a straight path in the stretch and won the third 2,000 pace at Mohawk Raceway Monday night.

Reed's Dream paced the mile in 2:07.8 and returned $3.60, $2.60 and $2.40. She finished with second-place Pat Forbes, paying $6.40, for a $40.40 quinella.

Ruth M. Direct won the first at $2.10 and Lesty McKinney was the second at $15.30 for a $34.70 daily double.

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP) — Four Canadian - owned horses came home winners in the time-race card at Batavia Downs Monday night with the Galbraith Stables of Tara, Ont., taking a double victory.

Harvest Lad, driven by Clint Galbraith, won the third and paid $2.80 timed at 2:12.4. Galbraith also drove Dollie V. to a win in the eighth at 2:09.3. The win paid $6.60 as the last leg of the $9,248 twin double.

Jerry Direct C. of the Mechlenbacher Stables of Nelles Corners, Ont., was second and Dollie V., and Rhythm Miller of the BL Stable of Windsor, Ont., placed third.

Pauline Volo, owned by Jack and Norm Hardy of Lucan, Ont. was the seventh pick and was timed - at 2:10.6. Kwik Kat, owned by J. and Arthur of Otterville, Ont., won the seventh and was timed in 2:08.2 for a $7.80 payoff.

Garden Notes

Plant Daffodils in September

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

The bulb of the daffodil makes new roots in August and September. Those that are prepared for market are dug early and are out for sale in August. The less time out of the ground, the better. If you want big blooms plant early.

Tulip bulbs can wait around until late November and still make top size blooms but not the members of the narcissus family, which includes the daffodils. These must have a long root making season to produce their best.

The roots of the daffodil do not die off completely as do those of the tulip and interrupted growth in the daffodil if extended any length of time results in inferior blooms.

Growers issue catalogues and from these you can obtain bulbs earlier than from local dealers. They request the buyer to plant daffodils and narcissus immediately on delivery.

Bulbs planted in October will bloom but those planted in September will be larger. The length of stem and substance of petal and keeping qualities are affected by late planting also.

This applies also to the leaner bulbs of the same family. The poeticus narcissus keeps the same roots, or some of them, the whole year, making the greatest root growth in July.

Growers should perhaps ship these in bags of moist moss to prevent drying out.

Miniature narcissus such as triandrus, cyclamineus and the "loop-petticoat" (bulbocodiums), flower early and ripen early. They can be dug and shipped earlier than the larger bulbs.

WILD FLOWERS

The tulip species and early flowering dwarf iris can usually be had much earlier than the main supply of big trumpet types and large cup narcissus bulbs. They too will benefit from early planting.

There are many forms in this delightful family and a few introduced each year from several varieties will soon build up a good collection. They multiply readily. Narcissus, peeping Tom, sun, charlot, jonquil, cheerfulness, narcissus watieri, and many others are novelties to add to your present collection to extend the interest and the length of the spring bulb picture.

Buy extra ones to plant for indoor pot culture and bring spring indoors while it is still winter outdoors. Nothing looks more like spring than a pot of yellow daffodils.

BY HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP)—For a brief moment, five tiny babies have pushed the world's troubles into the background and made people glad.

Five human beings so frail they couldn't be weighed or measured suddenly became the food concern of millions who had never heard of Andrew or Mary Ann Fischer.

For Mary Ann Fischer had given birth to quintuplets. The first baby, a girl, was delivered at 1:38 the morning of Sept. 14. Two more girls, a boy and another girl arrived in the next 63 minutes.

Aberdeen, an obscure community on the glass-flat farm land of South Dakota, suddenly became known to the world. It will never be the same.

WASNEY ENTHUSIASTIC

Nor will Andrew Fischer, the painfully shy father, who has been a billing clerk for a wholesale grocery firm for 18 of his 39 years. His $80-a-week income already was stretched taut to support their five children. Mary Ann, at 30, hadn't been enthusiastic about having another.

"I don't make the most money in the world and it does present some problems," he said in the first shock of realization. He needn't have worried.

Money and gifts promised the Fischers have topped an estimated $250,000. They'll have a new home that may cost up to $100,000, and likely will be one of the finest in town.

The odds against quintuplet births—so high that no authorities agree—took a beating this month. Seven days before the birth of the new little Fischers, the wife of Efren Prieto was delivered of five sons in Maracaibo, Venezuela.

To the Fischers and quite a few others in Aberdeen, the imminent birth of quintuplets was no surprise. Dr. James Berbos, the 40-year-old general practitioner who delivered the other Fischer children had x - rays made three days before and told Fischer. The news spread in Aberdeen but—incredibly—not to the outside.

DON'T ENJOY GLARE

Despite their good fortune the Fischers have been exiled into the glare of an unwavering public curiosity that they plainly don't enjoy. They aren't the type.

"I would rather go into the delivery room then come down here," said Mary Ann when she faced more than 30 reporters at her first press conference.

Like his wife, Fischer weighs answers to questions carefully, keep them short and serious.

When it became apparent that he would need to decide on offer to pay for the story of his "new brood," he engaged a couple of personable — but shrewd—young lawyers.

They negotiated for him in selling radio, television and publishing rights to stories and pictures about the famous quints. Details of what is believed a short-term agreement with the Curtis Publishing Company were not disclosed, but the price was reported to be more than $50,000. A Curtis official promised the story would be handled "with dignity and decorum."

WON'T EXPLOIT THEM

But how Aberdeen will handle its new-found prominence still is a question. The Chamber of Commerce, prime mover in most civic affairs, is undecided on how to capitalize on the quints without exploiting them.

Meanwhile the quints lay in their temperature - humidity controlled isolettes beneath a statue of the Infant Jesus. They were gaining daily in strength.

A PERSONAL MESSAGE TO THE VOTERS OF HASTINGS WEST FROM
W. E. 'Sandy' Sandercock

Your Progressive Conservative Candidate

W. E. SANDERCOCK

Tomorrow, the people of Ontario will go to the polls to cast their ballots in a provincial election. During this campaign, some of the opposition candidates for want of a real solid platform, have used the slogan "it's time for a change." Ladies and gentlemen, I ask you "time for a change" to what? Our province of Ontario has long-since established itself as the most progressive and prosperous province in the country. Over the period of the last twenty years of Conservative government at Queen's Park, this province of ours has been an example of social and economic progress to the rest of the country. What then, is it time to change to?

Since I was first elected as your representative in Toronto, fourteen years ago, I have earnestly and diligently worked to represent the entire riding of Hastings West. In that time, I missed but one vote in the house. At the time, I was over in the east wing of the parliament buildings with a delegation from Trenton regarding the construction of the Trenton Memorial Hospital. I felt then and I still feel, that working with the people of my riding was the more important duty.

As to my stewardship in those fourteen years, all you have to do is look around. Our Hastings County highways rate with the best — development roads have been or are now being completed in every township. Hydro has been made available to the entire riding — yes, even on some islands in the northern part of the riding.

In Trenton, the Conservative government has long recognized the need for another bridge. Since the Trent River is actually a navigable waterway, this should really be the responsibility of the federal government. In view of the need however, our Conservative government has already gone on record of offering to pay 75 percent towards the construction of such a bridge and is patiently waiting for the government in Ottawa to put up the other 25 percent. This would mean a much-needed bridge at no expense to the Town of Trenton. Even though we are represented by a Liberal member in Ottawa, it hasn't helped. Either he hasn't tried or he hasn't been able to influence the federal government to put up the other 25 percent. Now, one of my opponents states that if elected he has the influence in Ottawa to obtain this grant. Now I ask you, does this add up?

As far as the province is concerned, it should be pointed out just how much the government is contributing to municipalities. Did you know, for example, that 80 percent of all welfare costs are being paid to municipalities by your Conservative government? That educational grants are the highest in history? That subsidies to municipalities have reached a record level? In connection with this, it is interesting to point out that the provincial subsidy to the City of Belleville has increased from $236,553.00 in 1954 to $483,881.00 last year. In Trenton, from $100.420 in 1954 to $202,276 last year. The subsidies to other towns, villages, and townships have increased in the same proportion. In Frankford for example, the subsidies amounted to $4,951.00 in 1954. Last year, they were $11,913.00.

To every dollar of tax levied by the municipalities in Hastings West last year, the province contributed 63 cents. With regards to our schools, to every dollar levied by the municipalities in our riding, the province contributed $1.35.

Again I ask, time for a change to what?

When I was first elected to represent the people in Hastings West fourteen years ago, I pledged to work in the best interests of all residents of the riding. This I have done. Prior to the nomination meeting in Stirling a few weeks ago, I made a complete tour of the riding to find out if you people wanted me to stand for the nomination again. Your whole-hearted support encouraged me to do so. You know, there are several kinds of politicians. I'd like to briefly mention two types in particular. First, there's the "talker". This fellow talks a pretty fair job. He talks about what should be done and what he'll do if elected. Unfortunately, he gets into the habit of so much talk that when he is elected he can't break the talking habit. He still talks but never gets anything done.

Then of course there's the one who does his level best to work in the best interests of the people he represents. He hasn't much time for talk but things do get done.

As I have already said, during the fourteen years that it has been my privilege to represent the people of Hastings West at Queen's Park. I have done my level best to work for you. You and I know that there has been a great deal of progress in this riding.

As election day approaches, this is the only promise I can make you. If you see fit to return me to Queen's Park as your representative, there won't be a change. I will continue to work diligently in the interests of the entire riding.

I ask for your support and vote when you go to the polls tomorrow.

Very Sincerely,
W. E. Sandercock

Big 3 May Try To Keep Space A-Bomb Free

Foreign Ministers Plan Follow-up of Test Ban

UNITED NATIONS (CP)

The first Big Three foreign minister talks on a possible next step to the partial nuclear test-ban treaty will be held in New York Saturday.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk will be host to Britain's Lord Home and Russia's Andrei Gromyko at a working luncheon in the American's hotel suite.

Further Big Three talks are expected—great, great, Rusk and Gromyko also had been expected to meet separately before the Big Three talks, but a U.S. spokesman said their schedules did not permit such a meeting.

What the "next step" will be was not known, but there was speculation that it might be an attempt to agree on banning nuclear weapons from space.

Both Gromyko and President Kennedy called for such an agreement in speeches before the United Nations General Assembly last week.

Canada's General Affairs Minister Paul Martin was believed to be playing a part in preparatory work for a new disarmament step.

TALKS WITH GROMYKO

Martin held a long meeting with Gromyko at the Soviet mission Monday. Details of the discussion were not disclosed, but it was believed to have dealt with the issue of nuclear weapons in space.

The Canadian minister was sidetracked to have got wet a letter or what the Soviet reaction would be to an initiative the Canadian delegation was considering.

Nobody Injured In New Bombing At Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Another bomb blast shook Birmingham today a few hours after a two - man presidential team arrived to help restore racial unity to the big steel city.

There were no reports of casualties and no disorder.

Two explosions were reported to police, but officers could find evidence of only one bomb.

The latest bombing—Birmingham has had more than 40 since the Second World War—was in a middle-income Negro neighborhood on Birmingham's west side, across town from the 16th Street Baptist Church where four girls were killed in a blast Sept. 15. None of the bombings has been solved.

Officers said that apparently someone threw a moving car tossed an undetermined amount of explosive at a street intersection. The house nearest the intersection was damaged extensively. Windows were broken and shutter was jarred from the walls.

CUT OFF TRAFFIC

Helmeted police officers and state troopers cut off traffic into the area. Small knots of Negroes gathered outside their homes, but no incidents were reported.

Meanwhile, the city faced a new challenge to the ban of an announced resumption of selective buying campaign by Negroes.

In Montgomery, five federal judges ordered Governor George Wallace to stop interfering with court-ordered desegregation of public schools in three Alabama cities — Birmingham, Mobile and Tuskegee.

Youth Given 10 Years for Stabbing Man

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court judge Tuesday sentenced Peter Niedzieki, 18, to 10 years in penitentiary for stabbing a man to death in a street fight.

Mr. Justice D. P. Kelly told Niedzieki the stabbing was "the most cowardly act that had ever come before him.

An all-male jury found the Port Arthur youth guilty last Wednesday on a reduced charge of manslaughter in the April 5 stabbing of Robert Stanley Burns, 37.

The man was originally charged with non-capital murder.

Quick Check of Science Class Showed No One Was Missing

KINGSTON (CP) — Initiation of Freshmen students will be more closely supervised in the future, Queen's University Principal Dr. F. A. Corry said today following a police search for a student thought to have been drowned Tuesday night during hazing activities.

Police dragged Lake Ontario for about two hours until a quick preliminary check of the university's engineering science class showed that no one was missing.

Dr. Corry said a thorough check of the 236-member class has not yet been completed because many freshmen registered Tuesday and class lists have not been compiled.

Tuesday night's initiation activities were being supervised by a sophomore initiation committee. Four sophomores known to have been in the lake waters to rescue Freshmen were being checked in morning classes.

Socreds Split In Election

TORONTO (CP)—The federal Social Credit leadership hassle between Robert Thompson and Real Caouette has resulted in a party split in today's provincial election.

There are nine candidates seeking election under the Social Credit banner—six in the Metropolitan Toronto ridings who call themselves the Action Group and three in other parts of the province who represent the Social Credit League.

However, the action group is also split down the middle with a Windsor man and a Toronto business man each claiming leadership.

James Auty of Toronto says he is the president of Social Credit Action. But Archie Gillis of Windsor makes the same claim.

Mr. Auty said that Neil Carmichael had been appointed temporary leader of SCA for this election. Mr. Carmichael is running in Toronto St. George.

SCA, said Mr. Auty, is the Social Credit party, but without Robert Thompson. He said the nucleus group has 3,000 members.

WOULD AFFILIATE

He said his group would affiliate with Mr. Caouette who has started his own party, Rallement des Creditistes du Canada National.

Mr. Gillis said the SCA is direct opposition to the Social and has only 800 members.

Mr. Gillis' version is that Social Credit Action's membership is about 600 and that Mr. Auty is not a member.

"We don't have anyone running under the SCA ticket in the forthcoming provincial election," said Mr. Gillis. "Our group (the Action section) has been registered with the federal authorities and no one, unless they get sidetracked, can use our name."

They chose the name 'Action' because that is what this association has lacked for many years.

LACKS HOPE

George Mallory, president of the Ontario Social Credit League, said his party is fielding candidates in Haldimand-Norfolk, Lincoln and Grey South ridings. He did not expect and would be elected.

"We're doing this purely solidly backs Mr. Thompson. He said the other group (SCA) was not made up of members" and he did not believe it would last long.

"They are fighting among themselves already," he said.

Mr. Mallory said the candidates sponsored by the League were only running in this election to keep the Socred name before the voters.

Mrs. Burton Hopes to Get Hubby Back

NEW YORK (AP)—Sybil Burton scoffs at reports that her actor husband, Richard Burton, will marry Elizabeth Taylor, a columnist said she speaks of the day "when I get him back."

"My children and I have him tied hand and foot like so much luggage," columnist Frank Farrell of The World-Telegram and Sun quoted Mrs. Burton as saying Tuesday.

"I'm not going to cut the leash. And when I get him back he will be a changed man."

Burton and Miss Taylor, who starred in the motion picture Cleopatra, flew from Rome to Toronto to Mexico, where he will star in another picture.

A Canadian newspaper man had quoted the couple as saying that they "have no obstacles cleared in time to be married within perhaps three months."

In Mexico, however, Burton denied making such a statement. Miss Taylor was unavailable for comment.

Supreme Soviet Ratifies Treaty

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Supreme Soviet (parliament) today unanimously ratified the partial nuclear test-ban treaty, Tass news agency reported.

THE LONGEST WALK — Audreytyn Speight, a 20-year-old Dundas, Ont., girl takes the longest walk of her life in a Hamilton church. She was crippled in an automobile accident two years ago. After four operations and predictions that she would be bedridden for life she amazed doctors by graduating to a wheel chair, vowing that she would walk again. Tempest Over Teacups Closes Election Campaign

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A tempest over teacups arose at the tail end of the campaign for today's Ontario general election. It didn't appear likely to have much effect on the 3,425,- 391 voters eligible to cast ballots for 108 members of the provincial legislature.

The weather forecast generally sunny and warm weather for most southern areas of the province, with some cloud and a chance of showers in northern parts.

In recent provincial elections —and a rather lethargic attitude in this one on the part of most voters—fire and brimstone, the voting could be light.

Voting hours were from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. EDT.

The campaign scene was generally quiet Tuesday, with the three party leaders in their home ridings drumming up a little last-minute support. It was this type of activity that brewed the teacup tizzy for Progressive Conservative Premier John Robarts in London.

Mr. Robarts, member for London North, and John White, his running mate in London South riding, gave a tea party at a London hotel to reporters and others. The tea was still being poured when the tempest arose.

Mayor Quigley, Liberal party candidate in London South, called on the premier to withdraw his name from the election for violating the Election Act.

The complaint was brought

Students Plan to Continue Strike Against Meal Increase

MONTREAL (CP) — University of Montreal students plan to continue their strike against refusal to pay 10 cents more for meals at the university until the administration offers them a "fair" proposal.

Hundreds of students Tuesday paid only the old price for meals—75 cents—as their association issued detailed instructions and offered the students correct change at the cafeteria cash register.

Magr. Irenee Lussier, rector of the university, planned no immediate disciplinary action against the student leaders although he had warned them earlier they would face expulsion if they continued to defy the administration.

The students association rejected by going ahead with what it called "operation boycottage" and said the entire student body would stage a general strike if anyone were expelled.

Pierre Marois, students association president, said Tuesday he had met with Paul-Emile Cardinal—Leger, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montreal and chancellor of the university.

"He said he will try to ask for a truce," the student leader said, adding this would prevent a general student strike.

Magr. Lussier told another press conference Tuesday that he had tried but failed to get provincial grants to cover the cafeterias' $43,000 deficit from increasing food prices.

Looking upset by the dispute, he said no action would be taken "without a careful study of the matter" and would not say whether any of the students would be penalized.

The action over the 10-cent meal increase is considered by student leaders as the focal point of their demand for more say in university policy.

Mr. Marois said the students were not consulted about the food price increase through normal channels such as the student-university committee.

Magr. Lussier complained the students association had "categorically refused" to participate in the committee, to which student leaders replied they had boycotted it because the university wanted to name their representatives.

Robarts Asked To Quit

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Harry Quigley, Liberal candidate in London South in today's Ontario election, called Tuesday night on Premier Robarts to withdraw his candidacy in London South.

Mr. Quigley's call followed a complaint lodged by London South Liberals under the Election Act against a Progressive Conservative reception held earlier Tuesday in a London hotel for Mr. Robarts and John White, his running mate in London South.

The reception, which included serving of tea, was "illegal" as it was designed as a meet-the-candidate affair on behalf of the premier and Mrs. Robarts.

The Liberals charged the serving of tea contravened two sections of the Election Act and as a result Mr. Quigley in a statement said:

"Mr. Robarts, if he possesses one shred of the character he purports to be, will at once strike his name from the electoral list. There is no other course.

Mr. Robarts declined comment on the statement.

WAS CALLED OFF

Peter Betts, official campaign agent for the premier, said following the meeting on the party end of it was called off immediately the complaint was received.

The complaint was lodged under Sections 154 and 155 of the Election Act.

Section 154 prohibits a candidate, or any other person, from furnishing "meat, drink, refreshment or provision at the expense of the candidate or other person at a meeting of voters assembled for the purpose of promoting the election, before or during the election," although this is permissible "at the usual place of residence, where the residence is a private house." Everyone offending against the section "is guilty of a corrupt practice and is liable to a penalty of $100."

Section 155 says a candidate "who corruptly, himself or by or with any person, or by any other way or means whatsoever, shall" contravenes the act in the above respects also is liable to a penalty of $200.

QUOTES SECTION

In his statement, Mr. Quigley referred to Section 152 of the act, which states that if an election court determines that a corrupt practice has been committed "by or with the actual knowledge and consent of a candidate" his election will be declared void and he will be incapable of being elected to the legislature or any municipal council, or being registered as a voter, for seven years if he has been found guilty of the offence.

A part two of the section, however, states that the candidate will not be subject to the penalties called for if it is found that the corrupt practice was committed without his knowledge, intent and in ignorance that was involuntary and excusable" and if the candidate promptly took steps to conduct the election according to law.

Construction Firms Blamed For Man's Death

TORONTO (CP) — Two construction firms were found negligent Tuesday in an inquest into the death of a laborer killed by a falling bucket on the Toronto subway project Sept. 9.

The coroner's jury, investigating the death of Albert Low, 39, of Toronto, was told a rented excavation bucket was in poor condition and was operated by an unlicensed engineer and that the proper load limit was not reported to the proper authorities.

The firms were Johnson-Kiewit Construction Company and Sam Cosentino Limited. They were excavating a sewer to prepare for subway construction work.

Earlier in the day representatives of the city, the provincial labor department, unions and contractors working on Toronto's east-west subway agreed to form a special safety committee.

Indonesia Backs Sarawak, Sabah Guerrilla War

Cut Phone, Telegraph Links With Malaysia

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Indonesia cut all telegraphic and telephone links with the new Malaysia federation today as special Indonesian forces were reported on the borders of Sarawak and Sabah (North Borneo), two members of the newly-formed Southeast Asian nation.

Reuters news agency reported in a dispatch from Kuching, Sarawak, that four mortar shells were fired into a Sarawak village from the Indonesian Borneo border area according to a British Army spokesman. No casualties were reported, but a dog was killed by shrapnel.

The spokesman said the bombs fell in Kampong Sarawak, about five miles from the Sarawak village of Gumbang which has been attacked several times in recent months.

Malaysia was promised military aid by Australia if it is invaded. Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies made the pledge in Canberra the text of a defence commitment with the new federation. He said Australian armed forces also are committed to help resist subversive activity in Malaysia.

ARMY READY

In Jakarta, the Indonesian capital, the Indonesian Army chief asserted that selected Indonesian Army units are "combat-ready" along the borders of Sarawak and Sabah. Antara news agency said the officer, Col. Sudirgo, reported these troops were "ready for instant action if necessary."

In Kuala Lumpur, the Malaysian capital, the defence ministry said two battalions of troops will be moved to Sarawak and Sabah, which share the big island of Borneo with Indonesia. Indonesian infiltrators have been attacking across the border.

Indonesian Defence Minister Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution told a meeting of students that Indonesia will not prevent its youths from joining anti-Malaysia rebels engaged in guerrilla war in Sarawak and Sabah. He said Indonesia also was prepared "to assist and train the youths of North Kalimantan (Sarawak and Sabah)."

Nasution denied London charges that Indonesia claims the two former colonies as colonies. But he asserted that "Indonesia is determined to wipe out colonialism of any kind."

Indonesia claims that Malaysia, made of Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and Sabah, is a British-backed conspiracy to retain "neo-colonialism" in Southeast Asia.

Many trade links have already been cut and diplomatic relations were severed with Indonesia shortly after the federation was born.

Quebec Quintet Charged

QUEBEC (CP)—Five supporters of the former Union Nationale government are to appear in court Friday on fraud charges resulting from a Royal commission on purchasing practices of the former government.

The Royal commission report, handed down last July 4, recommended judicial action but did'nt specify against whom. However, the report was a scathing criticism of the purchasing practices of the Union Nationale government from 1955 to 1960.

Proceedings began Tuesday against two former cabinet ministers—one of them still a legislative assembly member, one a legislative councillor, a former top civil servant and a Quebec City business man.

OUTLINE CHARGES

A total of 76 charges involving $350,000 were outlined in the record by Chief Judge Thomas Tremblay of the Court of Sessions. Accused of fraud or conspiracy to defraud the province were:

Joseph D. Begin, 63, former colonization minister and Union Nationale chief organizer, member for Dorchester from 1935 to 1952;

Antonio Talbot, 62, former highways lacing leader of the Union Nationale for eight months in 1961, member of the legislature for Chicoutimi since 1938 and still sitting member;

FORMER DIRECTOR

Alfred Hardy, former director of government purchasing services;

Begin faces 11 counts of fraud involving $35,800; Talbot 13 counts involving $47,000; Martineau 27 counts involving $82,000; and Hardy 24 counts involving $29,000.

Bouchard, a Quebec City businessman, is charged on one count of conspiracy involving $82,000. His Baribeau-Etchemin Corporation acted as intermediary in sales of heavy equipment to the government by Charles Cuson Limited, according to the Salvas report.

U.S. Traders Awaiting Green Light to Dicker With Soviet Russia

OTTAWA (CP)—A group of United States businessmen camped here today, apparently awaiting Washington's green light to start dickering with Soviet Russia.

"This is going to be a decision made outside of us," said Burton Joseph, president of I. S. Joseph Incorporated of Minneapolis, the group spokesman. "We'll just have to stand by and wait till somebody makes up their mind in Washington."

A spokesman at the Soviet embassy here confirmed that S. Sherbakov, first deputy foreign minister of foreign trade, still is in Ottawa with the delegation that signed on Aug. 30 for only a record $500,000,000 worth of Canadian wheat and flour. But the spokesman said that no approach has been made by the American traders. A commercial counsellor here refused to see Mr. Borisov.

"It is premature to talk about any negotiations," Mr. Joseph said. He spoke after publication of a Minneapolis report that he and some other U.S. grain traders were hoping to sell to the U.S.S.R. despite longstanding government opposition to trade with the Soviet Union.

There was no other explanation in Ottawa for Borisov remaining here unless he was personally directing the massive wheat shipping to Soviet ships to haul from Canadian ports.

The task of laying down the 239,000,000 bushels of wheat and flour—some destined for other Communist countries including Cuba—will tax Canada's transportation facilities and will do so up to the July 31 delivery deadline.

Russia would have bought from Canadian grain if delivery could have been assured, it has been stated. She also has bought from Australia.

Senior Canadian officials have said privately that they believe that the U.S.S.R. would buy from the U.S.—but only if it is fully satisfied that any request would be accepted.

Seek Crown Water Lot For Disposal of Garbage By Sanitary Fill Method

The city of Belleville will apply to the Crown for a grant of the 35 acres of water lot south and east of the area now being used for sanitary land fill.

Council this week agreed that the application should be made and City Engineer W. C. Purcell said today the request would be made shortly.

The proposal has the blessing of the local harbor commission, it was stated.

Mr. Purcell said that the 35-acre water lot being sought would last the city works department "a good many years" for its garbage disposal operations.

The area extends 250 feet east and south into a shallow bullrush area extending at a point near the Bay of Quinte fisheries.

Subject to government granting of the property and with the approval of the Ontario Water Resources Commission, it would be the intention of the works department to divide the water lot into separate areas for construction of dykes.

The first of these dykes areas would then be used for garbage disposal while additional dykes were being built.

Woman Injured At New Bridge Over Railway

The new bridge across the CNR College Street right-of-way claimed its first injury victim last night — weeks before its official opening.

Mrs. Doris Saunders, 43-year old resident of 15 Ridley Street, was on her way home from a local coin-wash, when she slipped over an unrailed section of the bridge.

She slid down the 40-foot embankment and managed to bring down the coffin as a freight train rumbled by. She was rescued after a passerby heard her screams and called police.

Later taken to Belleville General Hospital, she was treated for possible spine injuries.

Constable Glen Jeques investigated.

Call Tenders For Post Office In Near Future

TRENTON — Robert Temple, MP for Hastings West, announced in Trenton this week that tenders for construction of the proposed new post office for the town would be called shortly and that actual construction work would start in early December.

The $200,000 building will be erected on a Front Street site, and will house customs offices, the unemployment insurance office and other government agencies.

Herm Chambers Resigns Post As President

TRENTON — The directors of the Trenton Country Club "reluctantly accepted" this week the resignation of club president, Herman Chambers.

Mr. Chambers, who had headed up the local club since last December, is retiring for health reasons. Before becoming president he was club director for five years.

Club treasurer, Douglas Adams, will take on the duties of interim-president until the Dec. 9 annual meeting when elections will be held.

Union Protests To Labor Dept. Over 'Layoffs'

TRENTON — Claiming that two union members were unfairly discharged Monday, Local 183 of the Building Services Employees' International Union has lodged protest with the Trenton Memorial Hospital before the Ontario Department of Labor.

The International representative of the union, James Hughes, was in Trenton on Tuesday to investigate the circumstances of what he says the hospital claims is the "laying off" of two employees, Mrs. Audrey Passmore and Mrs. H. Deraffe. Mrs. Passmore, a nurses' aide, has been at at the Trenton hospital for two years. Mrs. Deraffe, a certified nursing assistant has worked in, the local institution for eight years. Both say that until Monday their work had been made of their work. On Monday, they say, they were told by Hospital Administrator Miss Hazel Naudett that "their services would no longer be required."

Mr. Hughes also spent some time on Monday night and Tuesday morning with the hospital board of directors.

Mr. Hughes said on Tuesday that only intervention by the Department of Labor could delay the strike now — and no sign of willingness on the part of the hospital board to negotiate with the union. The union has now certified last year, is seeking a contract with the board providing better salaries working conditions and what Mr. Hughes calls a minor point the checking off of union dues. Union officials claim that the hospital board has asked them to sign a five-year contract "right now" — and that the board is making an issue of the check-off request, as if it were the only point in the dispute.

Mr. Hughes said on Tuesday that a meeting between union officials and representatives from the hospital board had been called for Monday in the offices of the Ontario Minister of Labor, Hon. Leslie Frost, QC, here.

The union representative showed up at the meeting, said Mr. Hughes, but a delegate has sent by a board representative saying in effect that the board refused to meet with the union.

"This goes to prove out point that the talks have been, and still is, willing to co-operate with the board and that we've met with a negative response from the board all along", said Mr. Hughes.

A NEW CLUB formed last night in Belleville is the Industrial Management Club, successor to Quinte Foremen's organization. Speaker at inaugural banquet in Quinte Hotel was Rev. W. J. Naturalists Enjoy Slides, Wildlife Talk

The fall and winter season got under way for the local naturalists on Monday evening when the Quinte Field Naturalists Club held their first indoor meeting. President Roy Nicholls welcomed the large number of club members back again after the summer recess and she had a special welcome for the large number of visitors present which included sixteen boys and four leaders from the Christian Service Brigade of Belleville.

The business part of the meeting included reports of club activity since early summer, following which Miss Nicholls introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Jack Austin of Wooler, a well-known international nature photographer.

Mr. Austin illustrated his talk with some of his colored nature slides for which he has become famous and a scrap-book of award ribbons and acceptance certificates from international photo salons was additional testimony to the skill, patience, and perseverance with his cameras.

Mr. Austin addressed many of his remarks to the girls and boys in the audience, reminding them how important it is that Nature was not just something to look at, but also something to study and to try to understand.

"You are living in one of the finest areas of Ontario or even Canada" said Mr. Austin, "you are fortunate to have so much here in Nature for everyone to enjoy. Do not just look but emphasize this point, be shown slides of forest fires, illustrate carelessness and stupidity and then slides of Nature's wonderous fruits—blueberries, strawberries, apples and fish.

HAD WIDE KNOWLEDGE

As was expected, the speaker's photographic work not only technically excellent or even perfect in some cases, but it was also evident that he has a very wide knowledge of natural history as well. This was made evident by both the subject matter of the pictures and also the fact that he must understand many of the habits of the wild creatures to be able to successfully photograph them.

An excellent example of this type of slide was his set showing newly hatched Silver Fleece Fawns. Knowing that the young are able to run very soon after hatching, he was able to get all his photographs in the space of a few minutes, because it would be impossible to assemble the young again after they left the nest. A set of slides of a pair of Northern Flying Squirrel gliding through the air, the supporting membrane distending its legs being clearly visible.

Occasionally Mr. Austin showed slides, which were quite amusing laughter from the audience; particularly the children. A particularly good shot of a raccoon in a tree cavity and a fine close-up of a bull frog were both much appreciated by young and old alike.

BIRD BECAME TAME

In common with other naturalist history students, Mr. Austin apparently received all the abandoned and wounded wild life from his home area. A very young bird, which had been brought to him for attention turned out to be a Baltimore Oriole, and the bird became very tame as it grew to adulthood. A photo of this bird peering instead into Mr. Austin's mouth justified the caption: "Look Ma, no cavities!"

It would be very difficult to select any of Mr. Austin's slides as being very superior to the others which he showed, either from the photographer's viewpoint or that of the naturalist, and the applause at the conclusion of the showing seemed ample evidence that he had satisfied both groups very well.

Mr. Austin was ably thanked by Miss F. Fitzgerald.

Trent University Rejects Traditional Lecture System

If university lecturers ever said anything important, during their lectures, according to Trent University Dean of Men R. H. Sadlier, then the material should have been published or mimeographed, and mailed to the students. This, he added, would ensure at least that the students' notes were legible. And if the lecturer's comments are not important, Mr. Sadleir added, then the lecturer and the students might better spend their time sleeping.

Speaking at the annual fall dinner of the Belleville branch of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation at Club Canara, Mr. Sadlier told about 200 teachers, their husbands and wives, that the traditional system of lectures will be left out when Trent University accepts its first group of about 100 students next year.

Instead, he said, the students will be given a list of books and a tutor to guide them and they will be expected to cover the course more or less on their own. Lectures will be offered on some arts subjects, but the lectures will deal more with sidelights to the course and attendance will be voluntary.

The method is in use at Oxford and Cambridge in England, and at Harvard and Yale in the U.S. It is also being adopted, Mr. Sadlier said, at most of the new universities opening in England.

Mr. Sadlier was introduced to the group by Robert Laughlen, district representative of the Federation and thanked after his speech by Mrs. K. A. Morrison. L. Jones, president of the group presented the speaker with a contribution to the university.

Labor Council Will Support United Appeal

Belleville and District Labor Council agreed, last night to ask organized labor to support the United Appeal, A. L. Gnadinger, manager of the Appeal had written the council, pointing out that previous appeals had been given permission to place posters in union halls in Belleville. A letter from the president of the labor council last year had been posted above the posters, urging union men to contribute to the appeal.

Mr. Gnaedinger came to last night's general meeting of the council himself, to plead the United Appeal's cause. Lee Luccioia, vice president of the council, appointed the poster and promised to provide a letter to be posted with it in union halls. The posters and copies of the letters, will be posted.

Ald. David Denies City Opposed to Trenton School

Belleville alderman Enos David has denied that a committee from city council has expressed opposition to the erection at Trenton of a technological school proposed for this city.

Alderman David was member of a special committee appointed to meet with Mr. Howard Weese, Prince Edward county, who two weeks ago appeared before city council asking that Belleville pay a share toward the cost of a site for a technological school or college.

He said his committee had met with Mr. Weese and also attended a meeting at Trenton at which Quinte [illegible] municipalities were [illegible]. But no statement o[illegible] Trenton as a possible site had been made as was reported in a Trenton paper, Mr. David said.

"The committee has nothing concrete to report but will continue to be interested and protect the interests of the city", he said.

COMMENTS AT MEETING

Alderman David made the comment at Monday's meeting of council at which time a letter from W. Elmer Sandercock regarding possible establishment of a technical institution in this area was read.

Mr. Sandercock in his letter said he could go no further than to say such a school was being considered by the Ontario Department of Education.

He went on to note, however, that if the decision was made to build an institution of this type, it would be along the same lines as other areas. The government would acquire all the necessary property and construct and finish the school.

"It is certainly desirable to have the co-operation of those in the area for a project such as this," he wrote, but the government would assume full responsibility for purchasing any property required and assume all other costs of construction."

Mr. Sandercock's letter was referred to the special committee.

On Last Leg Of Paving Work On City Streets

The H. J. McFarland Company is on the last leg of repaving operations which for the past week or so have interrupted traffic flow in several sections of the city.

First street to be re-paved was East Dundas in the Burnham Siret and MacDonald Ave. area.

This has now been completed as has Front Street between the Upper Bridge and Pinnacle.

Paving operations are now underway on North Front Street from Moira Street to the approach of the new CNR overhead bridge now under construction.

City works department personnel have completed preparing the base and laying of asphalt was expected to get under way today.

City Engineer W. C. Purcell stated that the re-paving operations had gone a bit more slowly than was expected, due to weather conditions.

The aggregate used for the asphalt mix required more drying than usual and this slowed prodction of the asphalt plant

REJECT OFFER

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — The United States Tuesday night rejected a Common Market offer of a 10-per-cent reduction of the community's import charges on U.S. frozen chickens. The rejection was contained in a statement issued by the United States mission to the Common Market. The reduction, amounting to about 1.3 U.S. cents a pound, was conditional on the U.S. renouncing all negotiation rights on this question and withdrawing her proposed reprisal measures.

Stirling Man Escapes With Minor Injuries

A 67-year-old Stirling man escaped with minor injuries after his car collided broadside with another automobile on Highway 14, three miles west of Foxboro last night.

Police say he collided with a car driven by Harry Conley, 65, of Stirling, as Mr. Tanner turned off the highway. At the time he was about to pick up his wife working at a nearby farm home.

Damage to both vehicles was extensive.

Want Wheat Acreage Cut

This advice comes at a time when, according to Mr. Sharp, Canada can sell every bushel of wheat it can move into an export position by the end of next July. It may sound strange, to some, that prairie farmers should be advised to grow less wheat just when they are being told increased sales will mean an average of $2,000 extra for each and every one of them. But Mr. Hayes and Mr. Sharp seem to be taking the wise, and courageous, course in advancing such a plea. The huge wheat sale to Russia, it is now evident, is the result of a severe drought in that vast country's grain growing lands. Unless the drought is repeated next year, the Russian order for our wheat may well prove a one-time thing. It would be deplorable if, as the result of this sale, farmers increased their wheat acreage and thereby produced such a surplus of wheat that it lessened, rather than increased, their incomes next year.

Canada is now consuming all the beef it produces. In the light of this fact, western farmers might well consider increasing the production of coarse grains and continuing the trend towards diversification of agriculture which alone can assure the maximum possible stability for the farming community. A one-crop economy is a boom and bust economy. This year we have a booming business in wheat. Let us enjoy the economic advantages of this boom in demand—but let us not permit it to generate a false optimism which lures us into unwarranted expansion.

Protective Custody

There are occasions when protective custody may be essential. Yet, regardless of circumstances, it is sometimes a reflection on the regime which imposes it. It is not just a lawless device to imprison a person who has done nothing to warrant arrest, then it is a confession on the part of the regime of its powerlessness to provide the arrested person with the protection which he is entitled to enjoy in freedom.

In Indonesia, President Sukarno has ordered government departments to take over British firms. He has declared that the takeover is not a move to nationalise the companies but rather, it is in the firms' own best interests, authorities having been ordered to prevent labor unions seeking control of British-owned concerns.

That is, in effect, protective custody: it is either an unwarranted seizure of the firms, without provision for the payment of the compensation which would be expected in the event of nationalization, or it is an abject confession that President Sukarno's government cannot control the mob without curtailing the normal rights of these firms.

Hardy Har Har

The Canadian Press, it seems, is about to displace the BBC as the last refuge of late massive understatement. Consider, as exhibit A, one report from Vernon, B.C.

Joe Mendenes of Port Arthur is described, in this report, as "a hardy construction worker." The report deals with his meeting with Ogopogo, the monster of Okanagan Lake. He was in a small boat on the lake at night, when it happened.

"Suddenly there was a big splash, and the water seemed to be boiling," he reported. Then there was an object in front of him, about 30 feet long. It moved slowly through the water, and he could see a gaping mouth at one end.

Menendes, according to the report, tried to get closer to the monster, but it disappeared. "Hardy" seems a mild word to apply to a man who would willingly approach a gaping mouth with 30 feet of potential belly attached.

East German cartographers have made a globe of the moon, according to a recent C.P. news story. Information for the job was gained from photographs, taken by 'the Soviet spaceship Lunik III. Why the Russians would send their films to East Germany to have a globe made is not explained by the news story. Perhaps is just because the East Germans want a head start on planning a new wall.

Melancholy and remorse form the deep-leaden keel which enables us to sail into the wind of reality; we run aground sooner than the flat-bottomed pleasure-lovers, but we venture out in weather that would sink them.—Cyril Connolly.

Where Union Jack Flies

By Sir John Maud, former British High Commissioner to the protectorates of Basutoland, Bechuanaland and Swaziland, in the London Sunday Times.

You breathe a different atmosphere when you cross from the Republic of South Africa into Basutoland, Bechuanaland or Swaziland.

In the republic — even in the Transkei, the show pieces of (Prime Minister) Dr. Verwoerd's plans for Bantu States which are "eventually" to be self-governed — the "Apartheid" — if you are taken by an official to see an African peasant, doctor or businessman at his home, you alone will shake his hand.

You cannot offer him a sherry at your own home, and there are no mixed parties.

But in Basutoland, or either of the other two territories, you and those you meet behave like normal human beings.

Nor need you wonder whether there is a microphone under the table, or how soon your host will be "detained" for a police interrogation over successive periods each of ninety days.

The people of these territories are, of course, still British subjects and Commonwealth citizens; their status was not affected when neighboring South Africa withdrew from the Commonwealth two years ago.

British governments have consistently maintained that the political transfer of the territories to South Africa (which it had been agreed in 1909 would eventually be made) could take place only after consultation with the people of the territories — meaning, though not explicitly, that their wishes must be respected.

So British kept the territories in a category quite separate from and took only spasmodic steps to develop either their political institutions or economies.

But since the Nationalists started basing South African law on racial discrimination, it has become increasingly clear that the territories would not wish to come under South African jurisdiction, and that no British government could contemplate a transfer.

There have been three consequences. Britain has started to take more seriously her positive obligations as a trustee.

Secondly, the territories have asked, and been encouraged, to work out their own constitutions for themselves — and these point unmistakably towards eventual self-government.

Thirdly, Dr. Verwoerd has changed his tune. The old demand for the "incorporation" of the territories is now replaced by a "challenge" to the British people to let the territories how much to their advantage it would be if they were cut out and let him lead them towards "democratic" self-government on traditional lines with their white citizens voting in the republic and playing no part in the political and economic development of the territories.

It would be splendid for Dr. Verwoerd if things worked out that way. He would then claim that the rest of South Africa (republic and territories combined, including Rhodesia if Desert) was geographically divided fifty-fifty between "blacks" and "whites" — whereas in fact 70 per cent of the republic is at present available for future Bantustans.

He would then claim that the political change in the territories would be in his power, as in the Transkei, to "white" areas; and he could deal in his own way with those who seek refuge in a territory from the republican police.

But I doubt whether he can seriously expect the territories to accept his offer of such "guardianship."

Many of their people have first-hand experience of life, as migrant laborers, in the republic: they know about South African police methods and the Nationalist attitude to politically articulate Africans.

Through the South African Broadcasting Corporation they have already heard quite a lot about Dr. Verwoerd's plans for future Bantustans.

Not among the million and a quarter Africans among them would welcome further organised propaganda on that subject.

Nor, I think, would many of their European citizens (2,000 in Basutoland, 3,300 in Bechuanaland, some 9,000 in Swaziland) choose to contract out of present involvement in the territories' economic and political life.

Nor, each territory has its own distinctive character and must be allowed to continue developing along its present lines. The British help so long as that is wanted and can be given on terms tolerable to both sides.

Before long Britain may find herself so placed that she can take an honorable discharge. She cannot yet do that.

Strictly Personal

Knowledge Gives Right to Hold Opinions

By SIDNEY J. HARRIS

A friend of mine who happened to be a trustee of his college invited me to attend the "homecoming" football game with him. I replied that I don't understand football and that a high school game looks as good (or bad) to me as a Rose Bowl championship.

His snorted decisively. "That's a silly attitude to take," he said, "A little experience and close observation would give you the fine points of the game. Let me tell you, football is quite an art — and nobody who really knows the game could mistake a great team for a poor one."

He is right, of course. But what surprised me about my friend is his their-expert willingness to apply the same objective standards to other fields, in which they have little or no knowledge.

He would defend his liking bad music instead of good as merely a matter of taste. He would defend his attendance at ill-made plays as "one man's opinion," and call me a cultural dictator for insisting that only knowledge gives us a right to hold an opinion.

When the situation is reversed, however, he has no doubt that his evaluation of football teams is better than mine — as indeed, it is. He has studied the game, knows its fine points, and appreciates things I do not even see on the field.

Then why do so many people have a terrible defeatedness about the arts? Painting, music, drama, literature — these are all crafts, like football and baseball and sailing. They have their rules, their standards, their form.

If it is a matter of fact that Notre Dame's football is better than that of Siwash Gulch High School, it is equally a fact that Beethoven's music is better than Grieg's, and Picasso's paintings better than Grandma Moses'. To become an expert in music or painting is merely to learn the standards.

In some things, of course, there is no objective test. If I like chocolate ice cream and red-headed women, and you like vanilla ice cream and dark-haired women, there is no "better" or "worse."

But all the arts and crafts, from football to music, have their own levels of value. We can make these judgments, in a broad sense. We cannot say Beethoven is "better" than Mozart, but we can say that either of them is better than Rumpelstiltskin — just as Notre Dame and Northwestern could be roughly equal, but either is better than Siwash.

Most people, of course, defend "personal taste" in the arts because it permits them to be lazy and ignorant without losing face. But they are the same people who look upon the arts with open contempt because I can't see the plain fact that one team is infinitely superior to another.

New Weapon For Police

Edmonton Journal

A British inventor has interested the Home Office and Scotland Yard in a 'no' like nightstick' which, he claims, can stun and tear-gas a suspect. Their interest is attributed mainly to the hope that the weapon might prove a substitute for the policeman's pistol, at least under certain circumstances.

British authorities, in keeping with a practice of long standing, sharply restrict the use of pistols by policemen. On this continent, in the United States, and not for restriction, is demonstrated by the fact that when an innocent bystander or someone in flight is wounded or killed by police fire.

Policemen certainly should be equipped to defend themselves or other citizens. But a policeman too quick on the trigger may accidentally kill an innocent citizen he was moving to defend, or summarily execute a defendant whose guilt remained to be established in a court of the land.

Scotland Latham Blacker, inventor of the "flying nightstick" received $96,000 from the British government for inventing an anti-tank gun used in the Second World War. He claims his new police gun will stun but not kill and that, if the flying stick misses, the tear gas will hinder a suspect's getaway.

Maybe he has something worth serious study, though his gun-with-nightstick looks cumbersome beside an ordinary pistol.

Another possibility in police weapons is the sort of hypo-gun used to knock out animals at a distance without killing them. This is in fairly common use on game farms and wildlife preserves.

Perhaps policemen soon-where in the world are already firing hypodermic needles or drug pellets, rather than bullets. But, on the whole, in spite of modern technology, police methods seem not to appear to have progressed far in the twentieth century.

No Cause for Alarm If Child Pigeon-Toed

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My five-year-old granddaughter is quite pigeon-toed. Her left foot is much worse than the right.

Will this condition correct itself, or should she have special shoes? Should a heavy specialist be consulted? — C. A. T.

A child of this age quite normally can have some degree of pigeon toe, or pigeon toes. If extreme, this may be due to flat feet or some other foot defect.

If she has serious trouble, she could be expected to complain of pains when walking, or tend to avoid being on her feet (sometimes such a child "seems to be lazy") or have leg cramps at night.

Since one foot is worse than the other, I'd see an orthopedist (and simple enough) to have the child checked by an orthopedist. If she has flat feet, let's get about it. If a defect exists, the doctor can advise you whether special shoes, or some other measure, ought to be used. Most likely, I'd not worry much for special shoes until you know whether they will help.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is hiatal hernia the same as an ulcer? I had a bad time with a bleeding ulcer, but now it is diagnosed as a hernia. I enclose the required 25 cents for it. — Mrs. H. H. S.

No, they are not the same at all. A peptic ulcer is a sore or sore place in the stomach or the duodenum, which is directly below the stomach. A hiatal hernia (or hiatus hernia, or 'upside down stomach," the terms are interchangeable) means that the opening through which the food tube (esophagus) passes through the diaphram is somewhat enlarged. The stomach tends to slide up through it a bit. The pain is so similar that one is often mistaken for the other; the treatments are also similar. Either may in stubborn cases, require surgery. The procedure is different, so precise diagnosis is important. But when or if you need surgery we'll have that in quite detailed study.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is erysipelas. I'm just getting over it and am still nervous because it. This is the second time I have had it. Can I get it again. It's so painful. I take pills I take sure stop it from spreading. My father had it — Mrs. E. S.

It is a streptococcus infection of the skin, and not related to the germs that cause scarlet or common now as formerly, because the germ is always present, and other antibiotics control it. There is no insurance against it, however. Observance of hygiene does strike again, get treatment immediately and you will have much less trouble.

Dear Dr. Molner: It seems that the last three or four years I cannot urinate as fast as I used to. It takes longer. This irritates my nerves. There is no pain. I am 58. — E. F. N.

The probability is that you have some enlargement of the prostate gland, which is not unusual at your age. Consult a urologist. The sooner this sort of condition is corrected, the less trouble for you.

Fine Doctor For Absence

Guelph Mercury

An English doctor who decided to operate on a dying man but neglected his mind because it would hasten death — and then went off on a holiday has been fined 50 guineas ($152), and censured.

The London Executive Council of the Health Services reported the case and said the same doctor was fined 75 guineas in June, 1962, for failing to visit another patient.

The doctor told the committee the man was dangerously ill, and he informed the wife an operation would be needed.

But he agreed he should have called, not-withstanding.

In the case under investigation the doctor had promised to call on April 10, and again on April 11. In both cases he did not turn up — and the patient died two days later.

The Committee found that the doctor had failed to visit the patient to drain fluid from a painful disorder — and he was in severe pain before he died.

Doctors are servants of the people, and generally wise counsellors and friends. A doctor goes out in all weather, and sometimes, at stated to his patients. This makes the English doctor's case a case remarkable as it is strange and difficult to understand.

Just Giving Horse Laugh

Victoria Times

Henry Hudson is a horse owned by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Marvelle, of Newport, Rhode Island. The other day he was pastured from the pasture and he, whinnying until members of the family came to see why.

They found Henry hunched up at an automobile which had caught fire on the nearby road, and they now praise their four-legged friend for his ability as an alarm giver.

What nonsense.

Auto Graveyards

Ottawa Journal

If we can have laws forbidding the dumping of cars by roadsides...by littering them with candy wrappers and banana peels, we should also be able to have laws forbidding the spoiling of the countryside with the corroded hulks of cars. There must be automobile graveyards they should be restricted to areas some distance from the roadside and screened from view by a fence or hedge. Occupants of "graveyards" should be decently buried from sight.

Speaking Personally

A TO Z

What is it about crossword puzzles that is so fascinating? Is it all those empty spaces waiting to be filled? Or is it the challenge to match wits with the authors? Maybe it is just a chance to learn new words, or find the right ones.

A woman I know told me she could hardly wait for the paper carrier boy to bring The Ontario Intelligencer so she could get at the crossword puzzle. She said she would start looking out the window an hour before he was due. Jigsaw puzzles have something of the same attraction. It seems a sort of compulsion to get order out of disorder, and get all those pieces in their right places. Some people I know can hardly leave a puzzle once they have started it.

The crosswords in this paper are always a challenge. If you don't believe it try one some time. There are newspaper puzzles that are too easy or use contrived words (sometimes I think they make them up to fit) but these are usually factory. To anyone who likes a challenge I recommend the one in this paper.

The Ontario Business College encourages its students to do crossword puzzles to increase their vocabulary and as an exercise in looking words up in the dictionary.

Words are fascinating things. Every time I look up a word in the dictionary I get absorbed in some new and interesting one. For instance, I happened on the word palindromic. This was a new word for me. For those who haven't had occasion to use it recently, palindromic refers to a word or sentence that is spelled the same backwards as forwards, for example, "Madam, I'm Adam."

According to a press release that came to this desk, nearly one third of all pharmacy students in Ontario are women, and the proportion increases each year. This is a quite amazing statistic, as it has always seemed a man's field, in Belleville at any rate. It seems that it is of particular attraction to women because of the opportunity for married women to work part time, and to earn a higher-than-average salary. Starting salaries for graduate pharmacists with university degrees are now among the highest of any profession. The demand from industry and from hospitals continually exceeds the number of students taking the four year University of Toronto course.

The drug store, which for years has been thought as the extent of the profession, now lags behind other areas such as government laboratories, drug manufacturing firms, hospital pharmacies, and in related fields such as drug inspection, crime investigation and the armed forces.

Considerable opportunity exists also in the fields of graduate study leading to teaching, industrial research, and the development of new drugs and medicines.

As far as we have been able to ascertain there are no women pharmacists in Belleville, but Miss Margarita Demczyna, Plainfield, has been awarded a bursary for $500, and will enter the U. of T. this fall.

Mexican Cooking Said Tastiest, Most Varied

MEXICO CITY (Reuters)—Mexican cooking, one of the tastiest and most varied in the world, has been brought to the limelight by a recent 16-day exhibition of Mexican cookery at the national auditorium here.

The fair, organized by the Mexican food than chili peppers, tamales and tacos—that, in fact, Mexico boasts a cuisine as varied and sophisticated as any in the world.

As thousands of foreign visitors have discovered, modern Mexican cooking is a blend of Indian and European influences, combined with native ideas.

USE IMAGINATION

Mexicans use considerable imagination in concocting their dishes and a wide range of ingredients which include beef, pork, goat, deer, rabbit, iguana, game birds, turkey, chicken, many different kinds of seafood, roots and leaves, tropical fruits and vegetables.

Vegetables alone offer a variety of about 100 peppers, rice, corn, tomatoes and cactus flowers.

Mexico claims to be second only to China in the wide variety of its cuisine. Experts estimate, for example, that Mexicans have 300 different ways of preparing chicken.

Sauces come in an endless variety and add additional flavor to food. Some are made simply, like Mexican sauce, by gridding tomato with chili, or like guacamole, by mashing avocados with onion and chili plus a dash of coriander.

But many others are almost works of art—like mole, for instance, which is made with chocolate, a wide variety of chilis, squash and other seeds, lard, almonds, cloves, peanuts, cinnamon, garlic, vinegar and sugar, all blended by long hours of cooking to obtain exactly the right flavor.

ART FROM CANADA

Betty Ingram Sets Course Record

Playing with husband Alex. Ingram, the club's ace lady golfer set a course record with a fine 78.

This is the first time in the history of the club that a woman golfer has "broken 80" on the Quinte course.

And hubby Alex needn't be ashamed of his score. He trailed the club women's champion by a single stroke.

This is not the first time Mrs. Ingram has carded a below 80 score. Winning the Watertown Ladies' Invitation this summer she carded a 78.

"Yesterday," she said, "I did everything I wanted to do. Except on the 13th hole."

By that Mrs. Ingram meant she par'd every hole on the back nine but ran into trouble on the 13th. Here she faltered for the moment and bogied the hole with a seven.

She has had an outstanding season on the fairways and greens this year. The best, so far, in her golf career.

She has won six or seven district and international field day t ournaments.

She has won practically every trophy up for competition with the exception of the Ladies' Trophy.

"That cup has always eluded me," she said. "Three times I have tried to win it— and three times I have finished in the runner-up position."

Church Groups

CHRIST CHURCH E.S.W.A.

Members of the Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church met on Monday evening in the parish hall for their first meeting of the Autumn season.

The president, Mrs. P. Burton, assisted by Mrs. L. Mason conducted the devotional service with Mrs. S. Beggs at the piano.

Mention was made of the rummage sale next week following which a special meeting will be held to discuss plans for the bazaar in November.

The Deanery meeting will be held in St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill Church, on Wednesday, October 23rd.

A letter was read from Mrs. Monaghan, secretary of the Extra-cent-a-Day fund reminding members the money should be sent in by November.

Tea hostesses were Mrs. J. Ling and Mrs. R. Reid.

WEDDING

DICKEY—GURNICK

St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church was the scene of a pretty wedding recently when Anne Bernice Gurnick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gurnick, R.R. 4, Belleville, was united in marriage to Vernon Dickey, son of Mrs. George Dickey, Halloway, and the late Mr. G. Dickey.

The Rev. Father Buckley officiated before a background of pink and white gladioli and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

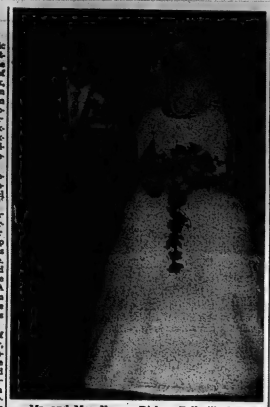
Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor-length gown of norgama featuring a fitted bodice with scoop neckline outlined with "Grapes of Good Fortune" Guipure lace. The bouffant skirt was shirred between rows of matching lace ending in a chapel train. A silk illusion veil flowed from a coronet style headdress. She carried a bouquet of red roses mingled with stephanotis.



Mrs. Olga Deveau, sister of the bride as matron of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Anna Mae Dickey, sister of the bridegroom, of Halloway, and Miss Suzanne Lazariuk of Belleville, were dressed silks in soft tropic water shade of norganza having bell-shape skirts and fitted bodices completely covered with embroidery. They wore matching headpieces with circular veils and carried bouquets of white and blue tinted 'mums. The little flower girl was Miss Suzanne Ray, niece of the bride who wore a white norganza frock with matching headband centred with solitaire norgana rose. She carried a basket of white and red 'mums.

Mr. Fred Deveau, Belleville R.R. 4, attended the bridegroom while Mr. Iner Prindle, Marmora and Mr. John Anderson, Belleville, ushered the guests.

A reception was held at the Legion Hall, Pinnacle Street, where the bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with two white bells and doves holding tiny wedding rings. The bride's mother received the guests, wearing a dress of cranberry colored Alencon lace with satin binding, matching cranberry colored velvet and satin hat, black accessories and a corsage of white 'mums. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a greyish blue figured silk dress with matching jacket, black accessories and a corsage of yellow 'mums.

Guests were present from Toronto, Detroit, Windsor, Welland, Hamilton, Delore, Marmora, Belleville and Point Anne.

Previous to the marriage a cup and saucer and linen show-

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Girls Are at Fault Too

By DORIS CLARE

DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS — I am a middle-aged male high school teacher. Each day I read your column, and I note that there are frequent questions from teen-age girls about the problem of a boy getting fresh on dates. Your replies are in two parts: a deprecation of the boy's attitude and behavior, and advice as to how to prevent it or deal with it.

I cannot recall, however, that you ever mention the part that a girl herself may play in inciting the "getting fresh" because of her provocative attitude and appearance. There is a big difference between acting and looking attractively feminine and vulgarly female. If she chooses the latter, as I see so many do, wearing clothes that reveal all but the most intimate anatomical details, what can she expect?

Surely, as a Canadian social worker you know your psychology well. Yet you seem to assume that the boy only is at fault. Come now, in the first place is that fair and, secondly, why not advise the girls on this matter as well as others? — MERE MIDDLE-AGED MALE.

THANK YOU, MR. MALE — I couldn't agree more. Perhaps we needed you to put it into words for us

(Don't let life get you down. Write to Doris about what's troubling you, enclosing a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope with your letter.)

13 Women Are Contesting B.C. Election on Sept. 30

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VICTORIA (CP)—A mail carrier, an editor and a Chinese-Canadian dress designer are among 13 women contesting the Sept. 30 British Columbia election.

There are six New Democratic Party women candidates, two Social Creditors, four Progressive Conservatives and one Liberal.

In the 1960 election there 10 women candidates, three of whom were successful and are standing for re-election as NDP candidates again. The breakdown in the last election was four NDP, three Conservatives and one each from the Liberal, Communist and Social Credit parties.

The mail carrier is Izabel Dawson of Powell River, 50 miles north of Vancouver. Mrs. Dawson's route covers 60 miles in the MacKenzie constituency which she is contesting for Social Credit. A lieutenant in the Canadian Women's Army Corps during the Second World War, she opposes Anthony Gargrave who has held the riding for the CCF and now NDP since 1952.

STARTED AS STENO

The newspaper woman is Elizabeth (Bessie) Forbes, women's editor of the Victoria Times for the past 14 years. A Liberal, she is running in Victoria City, a multiple-member seat that has been represented by three Social Creditors. Miss Forbes, who rose from stenographer in her 40 years with The Times, is a former officer of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs and edited the federation's national magazine for six years.

Designer Gladys Chong is seeking to capture one of the two seats in Vancouver East for the Conservatives. In the April federal election she became the first Chinese-Canadian woman to be sent to Parliament, running on the slogan "Follow Chong"—a play on the Conservatives' "Follow John" slogan.

Camille Mather, wife of Vancouver Sun columnist and MP Barry Mather, is seeking re-election as NDP member for Delta in the Fraser Valley, a seat she first won in 1960.

Two other NDP members, Lois Haggen and Margaret Hobbs, widows of former members of the legislature, are trying for re-election respectively in Grand Forks-Greenwood and Revelstoke. Mrs. Haggen was first elected in 1956 after her husband Rupert died while representing the constituency. Mrs. Hobbs was chosen in a by-election last year to fill the seat left by the death of husband George.

OPPOSES PREMIER

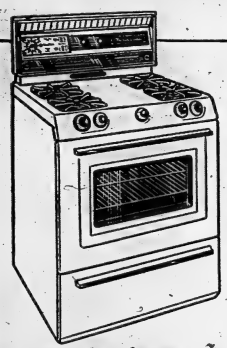
Of the 13 women candidates, Barbara Bedell of the NDP has taken on the heaviest job. She is trying to unseat W. A. C. Bennett, who has represented South Okanagan almost continuously since 1945—for the last 11 years as Social Credit premier.

Other candidates:

Isobel Pothecary, NDP, mother of three, running for the second time in North Okanagan. She lost in 1960 to Hugh Shantz, Speaker for many years who is not running again this year.

Amy Dalgleish, NDP, widow with two adult children, running in Vancouver Point Grey against such opponents as Attorney-General Robert Bonner and Liberal Mayor William Rathie.

Mandy Corrigan, Social Credit, sister of Fred Hume who was mayor of Vancouver and New Westminster. She is running in New Westminster where she was alderman for some years.



Lynn Morrow, Progressive Conservative, public relations consultant. She is attempting to win Dewdney from James Barrett, the NDP's welfare critic.

Cornelia Wildman, Progressive Conservative, a Nanaimo realtor and businesswoman which has been represented by Agriculture Minister F. X. Richter.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

IF YOU'RE A SPECTATOR, BE A SPORT.

Talked to an "old pro" today. Seems he was running a tournament for his local golf club. And was he angry!

If his job didn't depend on it, he wouldn't run another competition. He knows he'll have to do it again but, he sighed wistfully, wouldn't it be great if he could do away with spectators.

They're necessary, he admits. But he wonders what has happened to their manners.

If you're new to the game and want to be sure to do the right thing when watching a golf tournament, then heed an old pro's advice:

Leave your spiked heels at home. Flats, or low broad-heeled shoes that won't dig into or tear up the turf, are not only more correct, but much more comfortable.

Obey the marshals. They have the thankless job of keeping spectators away from the players.

Don't think you're encouraging players by shouting your support. Applaud after a good shot, but keep quiet as a mouse before.

Even though you pay your way into the tournament, your ticket of admission does not include entry to the clubhouse, which is open only to members.

Dress admittedly is informal on a golf course. Slacks, culottes or skirts, as well as sports dresses, may be worn by female spectators. Shorts are also permissible, as long as they are not cut overly short and brief. The Bermuda length is most suitable and most often worn to such events.

Don't walk across the fairway because it means the shortest distance between two points. Follow the route marked off by the marshals.

Keep away from sand traps. The sand must be kept very smooth and free of prowess and footprints that might interfere with play.

Remember you're just a spectator. Leave your own golf clubs home and don't try to speak in a few swings and putts while the competition is going on.

Bring a picnic lunch or a few candy bars, if you wish. But also be sure to bring along a portable refuse container. Even a paper bag will do. Use it to deposit any litter, and then hang on to it until you find a disposal basket.

Birth Control Spreading in Indian Cities

NEW DELHI (AP)—In its 12th year as government policy, birth control is spreading in Indian cities and beginning to touch the countryside where 80 per cent of the people live.

In Bombay, India's most modern-minded city, the birth rate is reported to be down to 27 per 1,000, not far from the national goal of 25. The national birth rate is about 40.

In the countryside around New Delhi, a survey found half the village women had heard of birth control and three per cent practised it.

At a government family-planning clinic in the capital one day recently, the waiting room was full of the sprucely dressed wives of white collar workers, come to get advice and supplies.

Miles away in the laborers' mud-hut colony of Harkesh Nagar, hundreds turned out for a weekly visit of the family planning institute's mobile clinic.

ENROL FAMILIES

A woman doctor sent young mothers to talk with a woman social worker at the front of the truck and fathers to see a male social worker at a desk across the street. The score for the day: Three women and four men—in other words, seven families—enrolled in the family planning program.

But the truck, a gift from Swedish women, is the only one of its kind in New Delhi. It will take enormous efforts to duplicate its effects ten-thousand-fold throughout India, which is what a nationwide birth-control program will require.

The goal of Prime Minister Nehru's government is to reduce the average number of children from five or six a family to three a family.

Planners say the nation must limit births or eat up all the gains in her costly economic development programs.

Planning Minister G. L. Nanda warned recently that the population is probably rising by 2.4 per cent a year—considerably faster than the five-year plans anticipated. The population grew from 361,000,000 in 1951 to about 461,000,000 in 1963, or 100,000,000 in 13 years.

KEEPS GROWING

Canada has 43 cities with population greater than 40,000.

WAS TOO GOOD

Pilat With Meat

by Mary Moore

When we were very young one of the dishes we learned to make in domestic science class was Pilaf. My sister and I were fascinated watching the raw rice in a frying pan with some butter, soak it up, and become opaque and golden, before the onion and tomato were added.

WEDNESDAY: (Cassie)

Dinner Menu

Breaded Veal Chops or Cutlets; Chili Sauce; Baby Limas; Fresh Kernel Corn in Cream; Individual Salads in Wooden Bowls: Head Lettuce Chunks, Tomato Wedges, Radish Slices, French Dressing; Apple Pie (see Tuesday); Cheddar Cheese; Tea.

The dish I am giving you today is a sort of Pilaf with meat added — leftover beef in this case — but other meats may be used. Good — especially for those who like mixtures.

PILAF WITH MEAT (serves 4):

2 tablespoons butter or margarine, ½ cup long-grain raw rice, 1 medium cooking onion, chopped, 1 cup (2 large stalks) chopped celery, 1½ cups cooked beef (or other cooked meat) cut into 2" x ½" x ½" strips, ½ lb. fresh mushrooms, quartered, 1 medium tomato, peeled and chopped, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon barbecue seasoning, ½ teaspoon chicken soup base (or 1 chicken bouillon cube), 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, generous sprinkle of pepper, 1 cup water.

In a large heavy frying pan melt the butter or margarine and add the rice and stir over medium heat until rice has absorbed most of the butter and is opaque and slightly tinged with gold. Add the onion and celery and cook until both are limp but not at all brown. Add all remaining ingredients except the mushrooms and cook gently until rice is tender — about 30 to 35 minutes. Do not stir very much during the cooking period. Add mushrooms and cook gently for 4 or 5 minutes longer. Serve with a generous tossed green salad and bread sticks or crusty hard rolls.

Variations: 1) You may want to add 1 coarsely chopped green pepper. 2) Cooked chicken or veal or pork may be substituted for the beef. 3) Canned mushrooms may be substituted for the raw mushrooms. If you do this, measure the liquid from the canned mushrooms and make it up to 1 cup and substitute this for the 1 cup water in this recipe. 4) If you like robust flavor, substitute ½ cup chili sauce for the tomato.

HAD SURPLUS

New Zealand's overseas trade transactions in the fiscal year to June, 1963, showed a surplus of $63,000,000.

Church Groups

SYDNEY—Rally Day was held in Scott's United Church Sunday School on Sunday morning with the superintendent, Mr. Frank Moore, presiding. Mrs. Alton Sine presided at the piano assisting in the service were Miss Betty Sine and the assistant superintendent, Mr. Edison Sine, who each read a passage of scripture; Mr. Johnny Dudgeon read the story with a reading in India and Mrs. Morley Sine told what some of the offerings on rally day are used for, namely helping with schools and teachers in India and other lands. Messrs. Grenville Sine and Earl Dafoe acted as ushers and Mr. J. Cooper, the minister, brought the message of the day. His theme was "we as Christians helping—both ourselves and others."

Ann Landers

Irate Mother Condemns School System as Archaic

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I've been trying to write this letter for several days but I became so furious every time I think about it I am unable to gather my thoughts.

Our son was not accepted into kindergarten this fall because he will not be five years old until November 18th. James is an unusually precocious child. He has been reading for almost a year. He began reciting poetry from memory when he was two and a half, and I don't mean little nursery rhymes. James prefers the classics.

Three children in this block were accepted into kindergarten simply because they were born from seven to twelve weeks earlier than our James. None of these children is particularly bright. I refuse to believe that they are better prepared for school than our son. When are the schools going to remodel the archaic entrance requirements and take into consideration the total child instead of just his birthday? — INDIGNANT.

DEAR IN — It's awfully hard for a teacher or a superintendent to tell an adoring mother that her genius son (who may well be brilliant) is not emotionally ready for school. The child who is reciting Keats may not be ready for kindergarten, regardless of what his mother thinks.

It is true that some older children are not ready either, but the most workable overall rule of thumb is to establish an age for entrance and then stick to it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm sure you do some good, but I want you to know that you do some harm once in a while, too.

A cousin of mine is getting married around Christmas. He asked me to be his best man at his wedding and I said I would. He then asked me if I owned a tux and I said, "No." He told me I would have to rent one because the wedding is going to be a fancy affair. When I asked who was going to pay for the tux rental he said, "Ann Landers says you are."

I think this is all wrong and I don't care who says otherwise. I didn't ask my cousin if I could be his best man. He asked me. Why should I have to pay money out of my own pocket to do him a favor?

Please print this right away and tell me if you actually made up this crazy law. It doesn't sound like you. But then, you hear from so many nuts it's possible that you have turned a little nutty yourself. Thank you. — BROKE.

DEAR BROKE — Yes, I do hear from some nuts, but then I get some lovely letters from charming people like you, so it evens out.

I did not make up the "law." It is a written tradition that the members of the wedding party pay for their own outfits. It is considered an honor and a privilege to have been selected — and honors and privileges often entail responsibilities.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am 35, married for the second time and have two teenage children by my first marriage. These children live with my wife and me.

Three months ago I met a girl, 30, who came to work at the plant. She is married for the second time, also. This woman has three children by her first marriage.

We eat lunch together every day and she has told me that her second marriage is not working out. I'm in love for the first time in my life. Bells ring, I get an uneasy feeling in my stomach, I get to work early, leave late, hate to see the weekend come, etc. I think of her constantly.

Should I tell her how I feel and see if a third marriage for both us can be arranged? — THE VIRGINIAN.

DEAR VIRGINIAN — Number three would be no better than (and no different from) Number One or Number Two after a few months. Stick with what you have and make it work.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?" enclosing with your request 30 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1963

KILLED when struck by this automobile on Cannifton Road last night was Nicola Lepore, 66-year-old retired railroader. It was third traffic death in 12 days in Belleville . . . worst record in city's history.

RCAF Engineering Officers Visit Concrete Plant in City

Wilson Concrete Products Ltd. was host, yesterday, to Air Transport Command engineering officers from across Canada. The officers in Trenton every second year for a one week conference, tour one local plant each time they come. Two years ago, Pyrotenax in Trenton was the host.

The plant they saw yesterday employs more than 200 men and produces about 1,000 concrete blocks every hour from one of its departments. More important are the pre-stressed and reinforced concrete pedducts — beams and panels weighing up to 40 tons and more — made in Belleville and sold from Niagara Falls to the Quebec border. One of fewer than ten plants in the province making precast concrete products as a serious business, the Wilson plant is a completely local operation.

STARTED IN 1949

It all began in 1949, with seven men and a block-making machine in a rented barn in Thurlow township. Ownership was split among three men — all local residents — by 1956, when the firm moved into its present plant, and it has remained that way. A young firm, it had no employees over 40 years old until within the past few years.

The precast products which now provide more than three-quarters of the firm's revenue, are of two types — reinforced and prestressed. The difference is that reinforced concrete is just that — concrete in which steel reinforcing rods have been planted. It's strong, but resembles if it's bent. Its main use is for vertical pillars.

REINFORCED BY CABLES

Prestressed concrete is reinforced, but not the reinforcement is by steel cables, under tension. The cables tend to pull the beam up in the centre, and the result is that prestressed concrete will flex, like steel. "We could make a diving board of concrete", comments Charles Wilson, president of the firm.

A discarded "double T section" beam was loaded yesterday, in a demonstration for the Air Force officers, to nearly twice its design load. The beam sagged by nearly a foot, and sprang back when the load was lifted. Original plans had called for more severe torture testing, but then it was discovered that the beam, rejected after manufacture because of defects, had already been torture tested in a previous demonstration. Ian Wild, an engineer with the firm and in charge of the demonstration, decided to restrict yesterday's tests.

The tour by the Air Force officers was arranged by S/L K. E. Rideout, of Air Transport Command headquarters, and conducted by Jack Ellis, manager of the concrete block division of Wilson Concrete Products, and several of the firm's engineers.

Two Retired Army Generals To Be Honored

OTTAWA (CP)—Two retired army generals will be awarded honorary doctorates in military science by the Royal Military College at Kingston Saturday when 324 cadets—biggest number in the college's 87-year history—farch to the fall convocation.

Being honored are Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, 76, and Lt.-Gen. J. C. Murchie, both of Ottawa. Gen. McNaughton commanded the 1st Canadian Army overseas during the Second World War and later became chief of the general staff.

Lt.-Gen. Murchie is also a former chief of the general staff.

Nicola Lepore Dies at Scene After Being Struck by Car

A retired railroader died near the Cannifton Road CNR level crossing last night — and became a grim statistic in city records.

Nicola Lepore, 68-year-old one-time CNR brakeman, fatally trod into the path of an oncoming car to become the third Bellevillian killed by an automobile within 12 days.

Mr. Lepore, resident at 6 Bettes Street and father of Tony Lepore, well-known representative of Hastings Typewriter Company, was instantly killed by a car driven by James Brennan, 6 Grove Street.

Mr. Brennan was southbound when the accident occurred, immediately south of the railroad crossing.

Police believe Mr. Lepore may have suddenly stepped into the path of the vehicle. A splintered windshield they say, may indicate that Mr. Lepore was thrown over the radiator and through the windshield.

However, true circumstances of the accident they had yet to learn.

BRIGADE CALLED

The impact may have fractured a gasline. Firefighters were called out to water down the roadway as gas seeped from the damaged automobile. Police detoured traffic from the scene until the accident scene was reported safe.

Police Inspector J. Claire Hayes directed investigations at the scene. However as yet, it is not known if an inquest will be called.

Inquests are pending on two other fatal accidents in Belleville in less than two weeks.

On September 12th, Larry Carrol Clapper, 17, was killed when his bicycle was hit by a car on Dundas Street West.

Saturday night, a 48-year-old deaf-mute, William James Scott, died in a similar accident on the Cannifton Road south of High, way 401. That mishap was a half-mile from the scene of last night's fatality.

Mr. Lepore was born in Italy, and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lepore. He had resided in this city for the past 44 years, where for 40 years he was employed by the Canadian National Railways, in the ash-pit department. He had since retired.

He was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Surviving are three sons and three daughters, Charles of Scarborough, Anthony of Belleville, Bruno of Shawinigan, Quebec; Mrs. William (Adeline) Gregory of London, Mrs. James (Jo-Ann) Campbell of Scarborough and Mrs. Jack (Nina) Ethier of Trenton.

Nuclear Ban Hopes Dimmed By '64 Presidential Election

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The long shadow of the American presidential election, still more than a year away, is dimming somewhat the hopes awakened by the partial nuclear test-ban agreement.

The Senate's approval of the pact Tuesday should have been an unmitigated triumph for President Kennedy. But nevertheless the treaty — and the spirit it has generated—may give him headaches next fall.

By that time, if the oddsmakers are correct, Kennedy may be opposing Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona for a new four-year term in the White House.

CALLED "PEACE ISSUE"

In the pre-campaign jockeying between now and then a matter that has been dubbed the "peace issue" may bounce up frequently.

It could put Kennedy in the strange position of defending at home a move that has been hailed almost unanimously abroad.

The issue is much broader than mere approval or disapproval of the test ban. The Senate's clear backing in giving its "advice and consent" has given the president a weapon against those, including Goldwater, who have reservations about it.

But in a broader sense the question involves the whole issue of whether the present path of the cold war is to continue or whether U.S.-Soviet relations will move off in another direction.

Kennedy has made clear repeatedly that he feels the time has come to take the first cautious steps out of the cold war morass.

STRENGTH ERODED

Goldwater, if he is named Republican candidate, is sure to wage a persistent campaign to the effect that U.S. strength is being eroded, that it is not maintaining adequate defence against communism.

Abroad, that campaign will probably win little sympathy. In the U.S. itself the impact will be much greater.

Already the lines for the fight are being drawn.

A taste of the Kennedy administration's approach came out in a speech by State Secretary Rusk Sunday.

He said government officials currently are hearing too much from those who "nourish hatred because they are frightened those who want to withdraw from the world because they dislike it, those who are superficial because they trust nothing but physical power. . . ."

Levesque Says No One Can Stop Self-Determination If That Is What People Want

MONTREAL (CP)—Rene Levesque, regarded by many as the number two man in the Quebec Liberal government, says no one can stop self-determination when that is what the people want.

Jean-Jacques Bertrand, his counterpart in the opposition Union Nationale party, said Tuesday night the Quebec government's demands could lead to an independent constitution for the province, modified by treaties with Ottawa covering such fields as defence.

Both men criticized terrorism.

In other addresses dealing with French-Canadian relations in Canada, Professor Marcus Long of the University of Toronto said the aspirations of the population that is New Canadian must be recognized in any re-writing of the constitution.

Professor Maxwell Cohen of McGill University in Montreal urged English and French-speaking Canadians to put Canada first over the hostilities of their differences.

In Vancouver, Guy Favreau, immigration minister, predicted separatism in Quebec would ebb as the province's economy grows.

Mr. Levesque, Quebec natural resources minister, addressed a French-speaking Montreal businessmen's association.

He said French Canada was exposed to extremists and marginal groups because it was moving rapidly but "it was unspectable to dream of self-determination but not to make mailboxes explode."

He was referring to the placing of dynamite last May in mailboxes of largely English-speaking suburban Westmount.

Sgt.-Maj. Walter Leja was seriously injured while dismantling them.

"Whether a person is English, Italian or Jew, he is a Quebecer and has the same rights as we have," Mr. Levesque said.

The demands of the provincial government will result in the federal government giving Quebec greater autonomy.

"Quebec's understanding of autonomy could create an immense thinking necessary a new constitution for the province, independent of Canada."

He said in a Montreal interview the French-speaking Canadian idea of "two nations" making up Canada is absurd because a third of the population—is of New Canadian stock—"if French - speaking Canadians achieve the two-nation idea, a minority complaining about injustice will be imposing injustice on other minorities.

"We can't have 30 per cent of the population asking for 50 per cent of the power."

Professor Cohen told the Canadian school trustees' convention in Montreal that everyone had to reassert the primacy of Canada.

In Vancouver, Mr. Favreau told a Liberal conference the star of Real Caouette, leader of Le Ralliement des Creditistes, is waning in Quebec and that separatism in his province will not exceed its present boundaries and will recede as Quebec's economy grows.

Mr. Caouette, former deputy leader of the Social Credit party who has led most of his Quebec MPs away from the party, is "politically dead."

Students, Teachers Register Opposition to Beefed-up Timetable in R.C. Schools

MONTREAL (CP) — Both teachers and students are registering strong opposition to a beefed-up timetable introduced this year by the Montreal Catholic School Commission.

Some 400 pupils from six high schools skipped classes Tuesday afternoon to demonstrate in front of their schools and later at the commission offices, complaining they have too many classes and not enough time to get home for lunch.

Relations between the commission and its 2,000 teachers also have been strained almost to the breaking point since the teachers were asked to teach 26 periods of 45 minutes each a week, instead of 23.

The students protest began during lunch hour at Ghomeedey de Maisonneuve High School.

Students formed a procession and moved along the streets to other east - end high schools where they were joined by more students.

Joining the procession were pupils from St. Nom de Jesus, St. Emile, Marie-Victorian and St. Jean Baptiste high schools and Eulalie Durocher girls' high school.

The demonstration was orderly and no incidents were reported.

The revised timetable of 30 classrooms hours a week means pupils spend 10 more minutes a day in class than last year. The 10 minutes was taken off the lunch hour, now 11:40 to 1 o'clock.

Marc Jarry, commission chairman, says the new arrangement is here to stay and will become standard throughout the province next year.

"The change is in the interest of the pupils," he said. "I hope they will realize this and that things will settle down quickly."

The 800 high school teachers have announced they will meet Thursday night to discuss the matter further.

Viger Board in Montreal Result of New Public Interest In Old Settlement of City

By GEORGE PEARSON

MONTREAL (CP) — The houses are run - down. The streets are at best dingy and at worst splattered with rotting vegetables. But the best people in Montreal want to live there.

"You would be astounded," says Paul Gouin, chairman of Montreal's Jacques Viger Commission, "how many applications we have from people who want to live in the Old City.

"If we restored some of those buildings like Rasco's Hotel into apartment houses, we could make a lot of money. It is becoming a real prestige district to live in."

The sudden interest in the market and waterfront area of Montreal is just part of a revival of public interest in the history of the Montreal district.

A revival as bafflingly unexplainable as its previous almost total absence.

The appointment of the Viger commission itself is a result of the new public interest and public outcries against the indiscriminate bulldozing of historical stone buildings into black asphalt parking spaces.

The commission has pushed through a bylaw putting a stop to that, and is slowly beginning to work on the resurrection of the old French city.

REVIVE MARINES

At Chambly, 20 miles south of Montreal, a small group of dedicated amateurs has collected some 300-year-old farmhouses, barns and equipment and is restoring the old French countryside.

In between, on St. Helen's Island in the middle of the St. Lawrence River, the city and another group of history buffs have brought back to life the colonial French marines.

A group of army cadets, using accurate reproductions of the equipment of La Compagnie Franche de la Marine, garrisons Fort Ste. Helene and makes it Canada's third fort with a historical guard. Fort Henry in Kingston, Ont., and Fort York in Toronto have dressed guards as units of the British garrisons, but Fort Ste. Helen now brings back to life an even older period of Canadian military history.

In fact, units of the French marines originally garrisoned Fort Rouille, which became Toronto, and Fort Frontenac, which became Kingston.

At the Caughnawaga Indian reserve southwest of Montreal, 100 history lovers, of whom 83 are full-blooded Indians, have banded together to campaign for $100,000 to revive an even older period of Canadian history, before either French or English occupation.

HISTORY NEGLECTED

None of these developments is more than two years old. The marine guard and the Caughnawaga Historical Society were founded only this summer. Appointment of the Viger commission was the only direct government initiative — all the others sprang up themselves.

Mr. Gouin is delighted by the interest, even if he can't find a reason for it.

"We have been preaching and preaching for years," he says. "And maybe at last someone has started to listen. Maybe they have been influenced by the restoration of Upper Canada Village and said, 'Why, right here we have more than that.' Who knows?"

By simple seniority, Montreal has more history than any other Canadian city apart from Quebec, but few cities have so badly neglected it.

"All these things have been here for years Mr. Gouin. "At Williamsburg, Va., and at the Upper Canada Village they have had to reconstruct. Here we don't have to reconstruct, we only have to preserve, if we have the time."

Montreal historians look with envy at such places as Toronto, where the city itself organizes a historical board with a full-time staff, a solid budget and extensive powers.

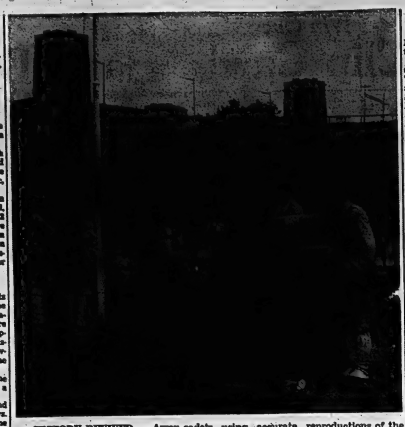
CAN ONLY ADVISE

The Viger commission's 16 members are unpaid, and their powers are only advisory. They look forward to the day when a permanent board will be set up and some old-building converted to a full - time Montreal Museum.

At the moment, although its job is to determine which buildings anywhere in Montreal are worth keeping and to suggest how they can be kept, the commission is concentrating on the rejuvenation of the Bonsecours market and the waterfront area, site of the original settlement of Ville - Marie which grew into Montreal.

It has to rely entirely on the goodwill, co - operation and financial support of individuals and businessmen. So far, that has worked. Cases of businessmen destroying historical buildings deliberately because they are uneconomic have been few. Some have gone beyond what is asked.

A large Montreal department store saved one old building near the market from demolition by buying it and restoring it to its correct historical period. It will be run as a prestige branch of its main store.



REBEL'S HOME

Eric McLean, music critic for the Montreal Star, bought the house once lived in by French, Canadian rebel Louis - Joseph Papineau, restored it and lives in it.

David Stewart, a tobacco company executive who is a member of the Viger commission, started the marine guard on St. Helen's Island and furnished its equipment. A brewery has offered to pay any deficit incurred by the guard up to $16,000 a year.

If enough money can be found, the same group that runs the small military museum at the fort hopes to restore the rotting interior of the entire structure and turn it into a full-scale barrack, along the lines of Fort York.

The fort's last practical use was as an internment camp in the Second World War for prisoners of war, mainly Italian, and for maverick anti-conscriptionists such as Montreal's late mayor Camillien Houde.

HALLOWAY — Miss Joan McMullan of Pickering, spent the weekend at her home.

Mrs. I. Snell, Mrs. H. Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Townsend attended 50th anniversary service at Marsh Hill on Sunday. Later they visited with Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Dulmage and Mr. and Mrs. H. Rose at Hay Bay.

Mrs. J Thomson, of Belleville was a recent visitor at the home of her grandson, Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Bowers.

Mr. Percy Emerson of Windsor was home for the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Wellman visited on Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Ayredale Wellman.

Mrs. F. Easton, 3rd Thurlow is spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. E. Hansey.

Mrs. Carl Holden entertained several of her neighbors to a social time on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Embury Hough spent a day in Toronto, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. George Reade, Belleville and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Roth were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Snider.

VIEW SLIDES

The U.C.W. met in the Church on Wednesday evening for their regular meeting when the minister, Rev. Robert Reid showed interesting pictures taken while at his Cold Lake Alberta charge.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. E. Hough attended Marsh Hill anniversary on Sunday last.

If there is complete lack of co-operation from building owners the Viger commission can, as a last resort, appeal to the Quebec Historic Monuments Commission to have the site declared a historic monument and therefore untouchable.

Conveniently, Mr. Gouin is also chairman of the Quebec Historic Monuments Commission.

MAKES GRANTS

The Quebec government has indicated its interest in the history revival by steadily increasing the budget of the monuments commission and by making large grants to such organizations as the Chambly historical society which started the Jacques de Chambly historical village.

It has also showed increased willingness to listen to the commission's advice when planning highways and new buildings that might run over historic areas, and a year ago it gave the commission the power it long sought — to prohibit the demolition of historic structures.

Under the new power, the commission can sometimes no longer needs the consent of a building's owner to make it a historic monument.

In return for the restrictions it imposes, the commission undertakes to restore and refurbish the building at its own expense, but leaves the owner his title to it and lets him use the building as he sees fit. He cannot, however, sell it or change it without the commission's approval. It is a power little used.

"Actually, we have people begging that we declare their buildings historic monuments," Mr. Gouin says.

"We have more people asking than we can handle. It is a question, as usual, of money."

MORTGAGE LOANS — NOTICE

To those contemplating building or refinancing we suggest getting applications in as early as possible. We do our own inspections and valuations and can, therefore, give immediate action. Advisory service free. Money advanced as building progresses.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

All is not lost. The hopes of the Dodgers' of winning the world series against the highly-touted Yankees have been shattered. There are at least five Dodger fans in this city that I know of. Walt Alston and the gang will be glad to hear the news.

Tuesday's column had the effect of bringing some of the Dodger buffs out into the open and by the same token some more Yankee addicts took to the telephone and post office to remind me of certain things.

"Lookit," shrilled one feminine voice over the Bell system. "I've been a Yankee fan since my great-great grandpappy fought with the Union army and no damned upstart newspaperman is going to make me change my mind."

"Madam," I replied sweetly, "I am not trying to make you change your mind. After all I know its impossible." I haven't been married this long without learning something about the opposite sex."

"You yelp about the Dodger pitchers. Lemme tell you something. When Whitey Ford and the regulars get through with them the second-rate Dodger hurlers they'll be nothing left. If they don't do it, those youngsters will finish the job."

The receiver slammed when she was told that the Yankees had so many youngsters in the bullpen they've changed its name to "playpen."

Another voice that sounded like gravel going through a food-chopper said "Welcome to the team, pal. When those Yankees go to bat the Dodger Childern will be standing around so long they'll make ground rules out of 'em."

Another voice which sounded suspiciously like that of Bert Herrington, the Front Street Mel Allen, intimated that when the Dodger batters face the Yankee hurlers they'll be like a ball player he once knew. "He hit three ways," said the voice, "right-hand, left-hand and seldom."

A sensible misguy stated, "You can vote any way you like—and rest for any team you like. That's your business. But the question in my mind is can the awesome batting power of the Yankees overcome the fearsome pitching of the Dodgers. True the Yankees are well-backed in the batting department and the Dodgers not so good in the short stops."

The Dodger top trio of hurlers is slated for rotation this week. Yesterday Drysdale went against the Mets. Today and tomorrow Koufax and Podres take their turn.

Pete Richert will open the Philadelphia series on Friday and if the pennant has not been clinched Drysdale and Koufax will be available for the final two games.

Sitting in the Dodger bullpen will be Ron Perranoski, possibly the best relief pitcher in baseball today; Bob Miller who has been clouted as an early innings reliever; Dick Calmus, Larry Sherry, Ken Rowe and some new arrivals from the minors.

This pitching staff has compiled a 2.23 earned-run average and to find a comparable staff one must go back to the Cleveland Indians of 1954. They had Bob Lemon, Early Wynn, Mike Garcia and Bob Feller as starters with the bullpen boys of Don Mossi and Ray Narleskie.

With pitching like the Dodgers have, as one New York expert puts it, nothing much else matters—not even a team that has a .250 batting average that produces less than four runs a game.

"Since the Dodger pitchers," he says, "will prove tough enough for the Yankee hitters and since the good Yankee pitching will be facing unimpressive Dodger hitters, every game in the world series may go twelve innings before somebody scores."

No Connection With Gambler

Charlie Conerly Cleared

CLARKSDALE, Miss. (AP)—Old quarterback Charley Conerly has been cleared by the National Football League of any wrongdoing in financial dealings with accused gambler Maurice Lewis, and repeated today he knew Lewis only as a successful businessman and still considered him his friend.

At the same time, he struck out at first published accounts of the transactions, claiming they were one-sided and based upon incomplete information.

"The whole thing probably wouldn't have happened if they'd have asked my side of the story," the 42-year-old former New York Giants star said in reference to disclosures last Friday that he had accepted five cheques from Lewis in 1961 and 1962 totalling $9,575.

"But they went ahead and printed it. Actually, it was more a misunderstanding than anything else—but it was real embarrassing to me and my wife. THEY WERE AHEAD!

"Anyone could have come to me and we probably could have straightened it out without anything ever getting into print. But they went ahead without that, saying I was involved with a known gambler. Well, I didn't know Maurice was a gambler and he's only been accused of that.

"Nothing's been proven but already they're calling him a known gambler. Nobody around here knew anything about any gambling. He was a successful businessman. That's what he was known for. And he's still my friend."

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle announced Tuesday at New York that the league's investigation of Conerly's transactions with Lewis determined the dealings involved the repayment of loans and had no connection with gambling.

Rozelle said his chief investigator, Jim Hamilton, had returned with copies of cheques and records that supported Conerly's contention that he had loaned money to Lewis as a friend in need.

Cubs Clip Cards, Hand Dodgers Flag

By MIKE RATHBY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Los Angeles Dodgers' manager Walt Alston was feeling no pain today.

It happened this way: Walt's dandies took care of his tenth, the Chicago Cubs took care of the St. Louis Cardinals and the champagne took care of everything else.

The champagne put the finishing touches on the 1963 National League pennant chase—some nine hours after Alston's Los Angeles Dodgers had clinched their first flag since 1959 without even so much as lifting a bat or throwing a pitch.

Alston had just left his dugout chair Tuesday when the news was broadcast in Los Angeles that the Chicago Cubs had defeated second-place St. Louis 6-3 in a day game, eliminating the Cardinals and wrapping up the race for the Dodgers.

"Anybody who says I was backed into the pennant missed our first game," he said, "and Dodger pitcher Don Drysdale before taking the mound in a night game and holding his pennant celebration by posting his 19th victory in a 4-1 victory over the New York Mets.

'WONDERFUL'

As for Alston, he said he thought the pennant-clinching was "wonderful," but he didn't figure it would end the way it did. "I thought the Cardinals would win today and we'd win tonight."

Notified before they even reported to the ballpark that they were the National League champions, the Dodger players reacted as expected.

Veteran Wally Moon said, "I'm happy." Tommy Davis said, "It's a great feeling." Moose Skowron called it "real wonderful."

The Dodgers had little opportunity to sup during the season until they moved into St. Louis last week with a one-game lead, swept a three-game series from the Cardinals and returned to Los Angeles with the pennant all but officially clinched.

Meanwhile, the American League champion New York Yankees put the final preparations for the opening game of the World Series, Wednesday, Oct. 2 by trotting out the entire first-string—for the first time since June 5—and trouncing the Los Angeles Angels 9-3.

GOME SEVEN INGINGS

Whitey Ford brought his record to 24-7, going seven scoreless innings before giving way to Ralph Terry. Elston Howard hit a three-run triple in a four-run first inning against Joe Koppe linsky and the Yankees rolled the rest of the way. Mantle, Maris, in and out of the lineup all year, each stroked one hit.

Drysdale, (19-17) had Ron Perranoski's relief help in beating the Mets after allowing four hits in seven innings. Wally Moon broke a 1-1 tie in the seventh with a single that drove home Merv Rreeding. Moon had only one hit in 38 previous trips to the plate.

The actual end of the National League chase came in the fifth inning at Chicago. With the score tied 3-3, Ron Santo cracked a two-run single for the Cubs, snapping the deadlock and handling the Cardinals their fourth straight loss. Lindy McDaniel got the victory, Bob Gibson took the defeat.

In other National League games:

Jim Maloney won his 23rd game striking out 16 in his seven-inning stint, while Vada Pinson and Frank Robinson provided homers in Cincinnati Reds' 4-3 victory over Milwaukee Braves. Chris Zachery and Hal Woodeshick combined on a four-hitter as Houston Colts edged Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1 and Philadelphia Phillies defeated San Francisco Giants 5-4 on John Herrnstein's first major league homer, a pinch hit job with two out in the 9th inning.

In other American League action:

Ray Herbert posted a seventh shutout with a two-hitter while the Chicago White Sox crushed Baltimore Orioles 15-0, Joe Azcue hit two homers in Cleveland Indians' 5-1 decision over Minnesota Twins, Detroit Tigers scored a victory over Washington Senators and Boston Red Sox rode homers by Felix Mantilla and Ed Bressoud to a 5-3 triumph over Kansas City Athletics.

TRADE GUGLIELMI

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Giants, shaken by their first shutout defeat in 19 years, traded Ralph Guglielmi, their No. 3 quarterback, to San Francisco Sunday. The Giants added a draft choice and got defensive back Eddie Dove in exchange.

Minor Hockey Body Holds Annual Meet

The Belleville Minor Hockey Association held its annual general meeting this week and named a slate of officers for the 1963-64 season.

Russ Soule is president, Tom Neill vice-president and Ed Adamson secretary. Convenors for the different groupings will be named at a later date.

Among plans discussed for the upcoming season was one to divide the Squirt group, forming a new "Tyke" league for players seven and eight years of age while leaving the nine and ten year old players in the Squirt division. Both groups would play their games on the full length of the ice while the younger "Tykes" would play from one side of the ice to the other.

Junior Hockey Organized

Seven clubs are expected to take part in the OHA Eastern Junior hockey league this winter — but don't be surprised when the loop's schedule comes out looking like a first-try crazy quilt.

Last night's combined Junior and Intermediate meeting here saw the formation of a new Intermediate grouping but the end result was something much less for the juniors.

Peterborough, Kingston and Belleville are the league's Junior-"B" teams. Trenton, Picton, Gananoque and Napanee are the "C" clubs, while a very slight possibility of another entry from Port Hope, Cobourg Juniors no longer exist.

The gist of the confusion is that Kingston and Peterborough want to play home and home games with the 11-team Toronto Metro League and Belleville does not, or actually cannot afford to do so. Kingston and Peterborough also want to avoid playing the group's "C" clubs and the feeling among the "C" clubs is mutual.

After two hours of proposals, counter-proposals and arguments, this is the way it looks now, with not a few ifs, and buts thrown in for good measure: Belleville will play two games at home and two away with the other two "B" clubs and with the four "C" teams, giving them a 24-game schedule. They will play four of the Metro teams as well, but this is doubtful.

The Petes and Kingston will play home and home with each of the Metro teams, plus double home and home against Belleville and each other. That gives them 30 games.

The four "C" clubs will meet each other three times at home and three times away, plus Belleville home and home twice, adding up to 22 games each for them.

It was never cleared up just which league standing Belleville will be listed in but it looks like the team which gathers the most points from the Belleville - Kingston - Peterborough games will draw a bye into the group finals while the other two meet in the semi-finals.

Points will count for the other two clubs when Belleville play the "C" teams but whether the points will count for Belleville is still doubtful.

The Peterborough club urged that Belleville play only against the "C" clubs and not Kingston or Peterborough. Belleville refused to face the costly 11 trips to the Toronto area. This idea did not carry, however.

Harold Webster, of Napanee, was again named group convenor and the schedule is expected to open around the second week of November. Jack Devine was chairman of last night's meeting.

Club president Gordie Bell has called a meeting of anyone interested in helping out with the Belleville team, at Maher's Shoe Store, next Thursday night at 7.30.

The Intermediate "B" grouping, under convener Lorne Cook, of Kingston, has Bowmanville, Trenton RCAF, Picton, Cobourg and Napanee as definite entries, with Gananoque and Whitby listed as possibilities.

The four top teams will be in the playoffs, first-place finisher getting a choice of opponents and the league will meet again in Trenton on Tuesday, October 8.

Canadiens Like Mr Ferguson

MONTREAL (CP) — Frank Selke, managing director of the Montreal Canadiens and the National Hockey League, says the Canadiens badly need a fellow with guts like John Bowie Ferguson.

Ferguson may never win a prize for fancy skating. He has awkwardness on the blades is even surpassed for a big-time hockey prospect.

The 23-year-old hard - rock from Vancouver could be the Canadiens replace mean-t for Dickie Moore and Lou Fontinato, making up in guts what he lacks in skating finesse. Moore has retired and Fontinato has been forced out of hockey because of a broken neck he received last season.

"He's a little awkward but he digs hard and can really shoot," said coach Toe Blake. "He could be just the man we need."

Ferguson came up through Melville, Sask., juniors and Fort Wayne, Ind., Comets to Cleveland of the AHL four years ago. He scored 36 goals and had 40 assists last season.

The Trots

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) Jane R. Byrd, a four-year-old mare, won the featured $600 pace at Mohawk Raceway Tuesday night, posing a 2:09 time for the mile, best of her career.

She paid $6.90, $3.60 and $3.80 in the race for three-year-olds and up. Albert Hal and Adios Direct finished in a dead heat for second. Albert Hal paid $3.80 and $3.20 and Adios Direct returned $2.90 and $3.50.

Als Defeat Stamps, Pay Heavy Cost

Four Injured

By JEFFREY GARLICK

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Alouettes beat Calgary Stampeders 25-17 Tuesday night in a Canadian Football League interlocking game, but they may have lost the battle.

The win jumped Alouettes into a three-way tie with Ottawa and Hamilton for first place in the Eastern Football Conference while Calgary remained one point behind the first - place B.C. Lions in the Western Conference.

The Als suffered several injuries, any one of which could hurt them badly.

The extent of the injury to all-star halfback Don Clark's right knee will not be known until x-rays are taken. Bobby Lee Thompson, standout defensive halfback, was limping with a sprained foot, fullback Dave Hoppmann damaged cartilage in his nose and tackle Ed Nickla had back trouble.

"When we play Hamilton next Sunday, it may be the first time in history we'll see the same 11 men going both ways," Montreal coach Jim Trimble said after the game.

"We're in pretty bad shape."

DOBBS DEJECTED

Stamps' lead coach Bobby Dobbs refused to see reporters after the game, but his dejected attitude as he left the field made comment unnecessary.

Montreal may have found the answer to its quarterback problems in Warren Rabb, an early season cut from the Buffalo Bills of the American Football League. Rabb made his first appearance of the season midway through the opening quarter and unleashed the passing attack which led to the Calgary downfall.

"Rabb will start at quarterback against Hamilton next Sunday on the basis of his performance tonight, Trimble said.

Trimble made it clear however, that Rabb had not nailed down the first string quarterback job and that Francis (Bubba) Harriott will see action should Rabb falter.

Alouettes' Gino Berretta stepped into the place-kicking spot left open by injured bobby Jack Oliver and racked up six points on a 20-yard field goal and three converts. Berretta also punted a single in the fourth quarter.

START WELL

In the opening quarter, it looked as if Calgary were set to duplicate the 50-0 thrashing they handed Toronto-Argonauts last Sunday. Fullback Lowell Coleman and halves Jim Dillard and Ed Buchanan were having no trouble slashing through the Montreal line for heavy gains.

Montreal turned the tide when middle guard Jim Andreotti broke through to block Jim Furlong's third - down kick. Defensive end Jim Reynolds scooped up the ball on the Calgary 35-yard line and crossed the goal line untouched.

Berretta converted to give the Als a 7-0 lead near the end of the first quarter.

Stampeders came right back along the ground, with Eagle Day picking holes in the Montreal defence. Buchanan scampered four yards around right end for the touchdown and Larry Robinson converted to tie the game 7-7.

Toward the end of the half, Robinson put the westerners out in front 10-7 with a field goal from the Montreal 13-yard stripe.

Berretta booted his three-pointer at the five-minute mark of the third quarter from the Calgary 20-yard stripe, knotting the score at 10-10.

BREAKS TACKLES

Eagle Day tossed a screen pass to fullback Lovell Coleman who dashed 47 yards, leaving a stream of Alouettes defenders in his wake and giving Calgary a 17-10 lead.

Montreal tied the game again four minutes later. Rabb's passes of 22 and 40 yards to ends Ross Buckle and Merv Lester put Alouettes of the Calgary three-yard mark. George Dixon went over left tackle for the touchdown and Berretta converted.

Early in the fourth quarter, Rabb passed the Alouettes downfield to the Calgary 25-yard line, capping the drive with a touchdown toss to Lester. Berretta kicked the extra point to put Montreal out in front to stay at 24-17.

Berretta's punt from the Stamps' 36-yard line was conceded by Harvey Wylie to round out the scoring at 25-17.

Batting—Ron Santo, Chicago Cubs, snapped 3-3 tie with two-run single in 6-3 victory over St. Louis that eliminated Cardinals from National League pennant race and clinched flag for Los Angeles Dodgers.

Pitching—Ray Herbert, Chicago White Sox, took over the American League lead in shutouts with his seventh, a two-hitter in a 15-0 walloping of Baltimore Orioles.

Not Satisfied With Officials

Vancouver May Quit Cup Series

CORNWALL (CP) — Vancouver Carlings are threatening to go home without finishing the Mann Cup lacrosse final.

Coach Alex MacKay and president Bill Ellison said Vancouver will not play again with the same two officials who handled Tuesday night's game, won by St. Catharines Athletics 9-8.

He felt his club had played exceptionally well. "How come we didn't hear Vancouver crying when they were winning the games?"

Wally Cattell and Jerry John-by Ontario rules, "not as they're laid down in the Canadian Lacrosse Association book."

AGREES WITH CALLS

St. Catharines playing coach Jim McNulty felt the game was well-handled. "I've never yet seen a game won by the referees," he said.

He felt his club had played exceptionally well. "How come we didn't hear Vancouver crying when they were winning the games?"

Wally Cattell and Jerry Johnston of Dundas, Ont., co-conveners of the series, declined to say whether they were contemplating a change of officials.

"At the moment we're well satisfied with the way the games have been called," said Cattell. "However, we won't decide anything until everyone cools out Wednesday."

The Athletics stalled the Western champions for the second consecutive game Tuesday, after losing the first three. They lost 19-3, 11-5 and 13-7 before winning Sunday 19-12 to stay alive.

SAM'S GONE AGAIN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The San Francisco 49ers said Tuesday they have released halfback Bob Gaiters and quarterback Sam Etcheverry on waivers. The veteran Etcheverry played much of his 10-year pro career in Canada with Montreal Alouettes.

Blades Carve Leafs 6-4

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs, champions of the National Hockey League and Stanley Cup winners last year, couldn't have won the Western Hockey League title Tuesday night.

The Leafs played Los Angeles Blades of the WHL in Saskatoon, and a strong effort by the Blades, including a three-goal burst in one minute and 46 seconds, gave Los Angles a 6-4 victory.

The score was tied 1-1 after the first period, the Blades took a 5-4 lead after the second and added an insurance goal in the final period.

Two former players with the NHL's Boston Bruins, Leo Labine and Norm Johnson, each scored two goals to lead the winners. Bruce Carmichael and rookie Maurice Ottebro added the others.

For Toronto, Red Kelly, Eddie Litzenberger, John McMillan and junior grad Mike Corbett each scored one goal. Frank Mahovlich assisted on three.

BELACH EXPLODES

Leaf coach Punch Imlach exploded earlier in the day at defenceman Bobby Baun, who missed a practice session because of an early morning duck hunting expedition.

"I don't want to see him," Imlach said when Baun, 26, tried to reach him later.

When someone suggested Imlach probably would have approved of the affair had he been aware of it; he snapped: "I would not."

In the only other exhibition game, Gordie Howe scored two goals to lead Detroit Red Wings to a 4-1 win over a combined Pittsburgh - Indianapolis farm team in Detroit.

Earlier, Wing coach Sid Abel announced the signing of three returning forwards, Norm Ullman, Bruce MacGregor and Floyd Smith.

MAKE CUTS TODAY

At New York Rangers' training camp in Winnipeg, the Rangers plan to make their first cuts after a pair of workouts today. Coach Red Sullivan said there are four or five positions which have not been decided.

Doug Harvey, 38, veteran defenceman who was supposed to report one week ago after having special permission to report late, still hadn't arrived Tuesday.

And in their St. Catharines, Ont., training camp, Chicago Black Hawks announced they still haven't heard from veteran Bob Turner.

Turner, in camp for a week left Sept. 18 to contemplate his future after team officials told him they could not promise a contract for the coming season.

Four NHL clubs see action tonight: Toronto meets San Francisco Seals of the WHL at Edmonton; Chicago plays Buffalo Bisons of the American League at St. Catharines; Detroit and Pittsburgh clash at Johnston, Pa., and Boston meets Providence Reds of the AHL at Providence, R.I.

Ford Has Advice for Can. Open

MONTREAL (CP) — Doug Ford, '53 Canadian Open champion and an outspoken critic of professional golf, said Tuesday he has some ideas on how to give the Open the international recognition and prestige it has been seeking for the last few years.

Ford made these suggestions:

1. Selectivity; 2. A closer liaison with the United States PGA; 3. A good course and continuity of the professional tour.

He said these should be objectives Canadian Open sponsors should strive for in their bid to attract the top U.S. pros.

The veteran touring pro, second leading all-time money winner and 10th top earner on the PGA tour this year, was in Montreal to attend the premiere of the 1963 open film and to confer with officials of the suburban Pinegrove Country Club which will be the site of the 1964 Open.

Will Become Vice-President

Stan Musial Bids Game Farewell Sunday

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Next season Stan Musial becomes vice-president in charge of good will for St. Louis Cardinals. That should be a breeze for Stan who has had more than 20 years experience at it.

Fans will bid farewell Sunday to the National League's greatest player but they won't forget his numerous records, his peculiar, hip - wiggling batting stance, his iron-man performances, his faultless behavior.

All of his managers — Billy Southworth, Eddie Dyer, Marty Marion, Eddie Stanky, Harry Walker, Fred Hutchinson, Solly Hemus and Johnny Keane—have paid tribute to him. So have hundreds of others including President Kennedy.

"Musial is the greatest player of our time," said Stanky, "but what I remember best about Stan is . . . the way he used to make it easy for me as a manager by always being on time, not taking extra swings in batting practice, not flying ahead of the club. In other words, he never sought the extra privileges often demanded by top stars to the detriment of team morale."

Among those who will miss the 42-year-old Musial the most will be his long time friend and roommate, Red Schoendienst.

"He's spoiled me," said club trainer Bob Bauman. "I expect everybody to be like him but nobody can. He never complains. He has the greatest tolerance of pain of any man I ever knew. He's played at times when lesser men would have folded."

In many ways, this season, his 22nd with the Cardinals, has been one of Stan's best despite his comparatively low batting average and almost complete loss of speed.

"He astounded me during the last 30 days of the season by the way he responded despite aches and pains and obvious weariness," marvelled manager Keane.

"During the surge in which we won 19 of 20, he kept getting key hits that either tied the score or put us ahead. Every day I'd say to myself, 'he can't do it again,' but he did through some super - human effort. I wanted to rest him but I didn't dare because I knew if I did I'd be hurting the club."

"NEW AND USED CAR SHOPPING CENTRE"

Here NOW...5 new kinds of Chevrolet!

'64 Chevrolet Impala Sport Sedan — one of 15 Jet-smooth luxury Chevrolets.

Big luxury, big style, big room in the most luxurious CHEVROLET ever!

If you thought Chevrolet was luxurious before, you should see it now! There's even a whole new luxury series this year, the Impala Super Sport. The new Impalas and Bel Airs are more luxurious too; even the lowest-priced Biscaynes come fully carpeted, with new foam-cushioned seats front and rear.

Of course, you'd expect more than luxury from Chevrolet. And you get it. There's a choice of 14 power teams — a 6 and six V8s ranging up to 425-hp (optional at extra cost) with new quieter transmissions to match. Plus, of course, the great roadability of Jet-smooth ride.

Not just a new model, but a wholly new and different line of cars. It's a good foot shorter than the big cars; yet its interior dimensions are surprisingly generous. (Chevelle's trunk is big and roomy, too). The ride is surprisingly smooth with a rugged coil spring at all four wheels. And not so surprisingly for Chevrolet, you can get anything from an economical 120-hp 6 to a 4-barrel-carbureted, dual-exhaust 220-hp V8 (optional at extra cost) — 10 engine-transmission choices in all. Even though you've never seen Chevelle before, you'll be seeing a lot of them in the months to come. As a starter, look at the three Chevelle series — the Malibu Super Sport, the Malibu and the 300.

A General Motors Value

'64 CHEVY II with a lively new V8!

One of the things you'll like most about the '64 Chevy II as far as economy goes is that it goes just far enough: Those three lively, economical Chevy II engines you can choose from this year will show you exactly what we mean. The 90-hp Super-Thrift 4 feels more like a 6. The 120-hp Hi-Thrift 6 feels more like an 8. And the new extra-cost 195-hp Turbo-Fire V8 — well, that's something you'll have to feel yourself. Lots of things make for lower upkeep — flush-and-dry rocker panels, Delcotron generator, larger self-adjusting brakes. They also make Chevy II one of the best built cars you can get for the price.

'64 Chevy II Nova 4-Door Sedan.

New pep and new comfort '64 CORVAIR!

Big new engines, same old fun. Actually, even the fun can't help being more so with the big new air-cooled 6 that goes into every '64 Corvair. It's still at the rear for better traction and easy handling, but gives Corvair more hill-climbing and cruising power than ever.

'64 CORVETTE!

Major refinements in the independent 4-wheel suspension make Corvette ride more smoothly. New and improved transmissions go with Corvette's four big V8s.

'64 Corvair Monza Club Coupe. '64 Corvette Sting Ray Sport Coupe.

THERE'S 5 IN 64 CHEVROLET

Be sure to see Bonanza on the CBC-TV network each Sunday. Check your local listing for channel and time.

Novak Pedagogue's Answer To Medical Man's Kildare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — There's a good chance that NBC, the television network, and MGM, the film studio, may glamorize the school teacher the way they have brightened the doctor's image with Dr. Kildare.

The vehicle, which had its premiere Tuesday night, is Mr. Novak. The hero is James Franciscus, who plays an idealistic teacher in a large urban high school.

Where Kildare has his Gillespie, Novak has his Mr. Vast. Mature, wise school principal, played by Dean Jagger with understanding and wit.

The series started with Mr. Novak's first day as a teacher. It concentrated on his difficulties with a sensitive, brilliant student, determined to quit school and go to work. Mr. Novak, of course, dissuaded him.

The production was a glossy job and the sentiments expressed about education were valid if sometimes a big high - flown. Nicest of all, the students seemed to be fine, high-spirited youngsters and—miracle of miracles—there was not one juvenile delinquent visible.

The Richard Boone Show, an anthology series from which NBC has such high hopes, made a lively debut with an off-beat story.

Boone, in a role light years away from Paladin of Have Gun, Will Travel, played a harsh, nasty and unscrupulous prosecutor determined to wrest a confession from a woman suspected of slaying her husband with a hatchet.

When the woman finally admitted the killing, it became evident that her husband had a character identical to that of the prosecutor—and that the woman was the same as the prosecutor's wife. During the confession Boone changed from a bullying, arrogant man to a quivering shell, pleading for the woman to help him.

It was all, naturally, a fascinating exercise in acting. Boone is a strong performer. Bethel Leslie played the hatchet lady and competently, too.

It was a big night for MGM's K. Jack Newman. He wrote the Boone show and he also wrote and produced Mr. Novak.

Danny Kaye starts his career in weekly television tonight. The Danny Kaye Show with guest star Jackie Cooper, stars at 10 EDT.

Seeks Quality of Reality For 'The Young Lovers'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Scene 51, take 20," said the sound man as the cameras rolled.

In most studios 20 takes for one scene would cause wholesale panic. But the director of The Young Lovers calmly went on to take No. 21. There was no muttering from the producer. He and the director hear the same famous name: Samuel Goldwyn Jr.

"I'm aiming for a quality of reality," said Goldwyn. "Sometimes it takes a while to get it."

Goldwyn was directing a scene with Peter Fonda, Nick Adams, Sharon Hugueny and Deborah Walley. The movie is a story about today's collegiates, and Sam Jr., feels strongly about it.

"That's why I'm directing for the first time," he said. "I've had this story for five years and I've devoted a lot of time and thought to it. I want it to be a real story about what young people are up against nowadays. The only way I could be assured of getting what I had in mind was to direct it myself."

WILL STUCK WITH IT

"This scene I've been doing could be done a dozen different ways," he said. "Directors like Billy Wilder, Stevens, Pellisi or Chaplin would each give it a different interpretation. I've got to figure out the way I like it and stick with it until I have it on film."

The way he wants it is the way the new generation thinks and feels, and he believes that isn't often shown on the screen.

Hollywood's view of the young generation is a bunch of kids on surf boards," he said. "The people in my picture are not Gidgets or high school kinds walking around with transistor radios in their faces.

"These people on the threshold of going into the world. They're confused. They don't know what they want. The boy played by Peter Fonda is an English major in college. He doesn't know engineering or business or the other things that are in demand today. Where does he go with an English degree?"

Young Sam uses his father's facilities and advice but maintains the same independent spirit for which Goldwyn Sr. is famed.

Novel of Gandhi Inspires "Nine Hours To Rama" Film

The belief that Indian spiritual leader Mahatma Gandhi would prove to be a most inspiring screen subject prompted Producer-Director Mark Robson to film Stanley Wolpert's novel, "Nine Hours To Rama", showing Tonight for the last time at the Belle Theatre, with a cast that includes Horst Buchholz, Joan Fetter, Valerie Gearon, Diane Baker, Robert Morley, Harry Andrews and J. S. Casshyap as Gandhi. 20th Century-Fox is releasing this Cinemascope-De Luxe Color drama, filmed on location where every event occured as described in the novel.

The story of "Nine Hours To Rama" as adapted to the screen by Nelson Gidding (Lisa), tells of the last nine hours in the life of Mahatma Gandhi and involves those people most immediately concerned with his assassination.

"Police Nurse", Suspenseful

A startling expose of the shocking private world of society gynaecist doctors is uncovered in 20th Century Fox's mystery and suspense Cinemascope thriller, "Police Nurse", the 2nd new feature offering on the same program, with a cast headed by Ken Scott, Merry Anders and Oscar Beregi. One complete show will be presented tonight starting at 7.30. "Nine Hours To Rama", begins 8.40, at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

AT THE PARK — There's a slight difference of opinion between G.I.'s William Bendix and Rory Calhoun in this scene from "The Young and the Brave", suspenseful and exciting action-drama with a Korean War setting. Richard Jaeckel, Richard Arlen, John Agar and seven-year-old Manuel Padilla also star in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer offering, directed by Francis D. Lyon opening Thursday at the Park Theatre. On the same program in Technicolor and Wondrascope "Captain Sinbad" starring Guy Williams, Heidi Bruhl, Pedro Armendariz and Abraham Sofaer. Both attractions are first Belleville showings. Complete shows at 7.00 and 8.45 p.m.

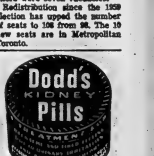
under a section prohibiting a candidate from furnishing "meat, drink, refreshment or provision" at a meeting to procure an election unless it is at his private residence.

Mr. Quigley said the premier had "no other course" but to resign. He referred to a section of the act stating that if a corrupt practice is committed "by or with the actual knowledge and consent of a candidate" his election would be declared void.

However, another part of the act states the candidate will not be subject to the stated penalties if the corrupt practice was committed without corrupt intent or in ignorance.



Mr. Robarts had no comment on the matter.

George Mitchell, returning officer for London South riding, said today in a statement:

"In my estimation there was no evidence of contravention of the Election Act. In any event the proper procedure is to lay a complaint before the local judge under the Controverted Election Act. As returning officer I have no authority to deal with the matter."

It seemed unlikely the last-minute Liberal recount would change the chances of Mr. Robarts. His party held 59 seats in the legislature at dissolution to 36 for the Liberals and five for the New Democratic Party. There were seven vacancies.

Redistribution since the 1959 election has upped the number of seats to 108 from 98. The 10 new seats are in Metropolitan Toronto.

ROBARTS' GOVT. SWEPT BACK IN OFFICE

Quinte Region Remains Solidly Tory

E. Sandercock, Clarke Rollins Hold Hastings

Norris Whitney Wins Prince Edward-Lennox

Conservative solidarity in this East-Central Ontario bloc again withstood the Liberal onslaught in yesterday's Ontario elections.

The Wintermeyer forces failed to find a chink in the sectional Tory armor, although they weakened it in three ridings with reduced majorities.

From Kingston on the east to Northumberland on the west, the six-riding team that forms the sectional core of Toryism was swept back into office. Two new faces join the one-or-more terms' veterans.

W. Elmer Sandercock was elected to his fifth term in Hastings West. Clarke Rollins swept back into office for a second term in Hastings East. The veteran Norris Whitney easily qualified for a fourth term in Prince Edward - Lennox.

The picture did not change in Frontenac - Lennox where J. R. Simonett was re-elected, while in Kingston former Maple Leaf hockey star Syl Apps won his first political battle. In Northumberland newcomer Russell Rowe rounded out the Conservative core victory.

RAPID-FIRE ELECTION

It was a rapid-fire election. The polls officially closed at eight o'clock and no less than two hours later Liberal candidates in the Hastings' ridings had conceded the election to their opponents.

The returns came crashing in to returning officers in a staccato-like manner. Within fifty-five minutes of the closing of the polls approximately two-thirds of the results were recorded.

Frank Follwell, Liberal candidate for Hastings West, conceded the election to Conservative Elmer Sandercock at 9.55. Five minutes later Ray Sills, Hastings East Liberal candidate, officially bowed out of the picture to winner Clarke Rollins.

In both ridings Ian Reilly, Hastings West, and Arthur Clements, Hastings East, the NDP candidates, were never in the running.

In Hastings West, Mr. Sandercock polled 10,822 votes as against 8,618 for Liberal Frank Follwell, for a plurality of 2,964. Mr. Reilly received 698 votes.

Clarke Rollins piled up a vote of 7,767 with Liberal Roy Sills claiming 3,968 votes to give the winner a plurality of 3,808. Mr. Clements received 411 votes.

In Prince Edward - Lennox Conservative Norris Whitney rolled up a 3,668 plurality polling 7,617 as against 3,749 for

DEBRIS NOT PLANE

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. Coast Guard says debris sighted in the North Atlantic 440 miles east of Cape May, N.J., was not from the air force T-33 cargo plane that vanished Sunday with 10 men aboard. A sea and air search for the plane continued Thursday.

Pearson Anxious to Co-operate With Robarts on Pensions, Grants

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said today his government is anxious to co-operate with Ontario Premier Robarts in federal-provincial pension and municipal grant matters.

Going to a morning cabinet meeting, Mr. Pearson said he had no comment on the outcome of Wednesday's Ontario election except to express regret at the personal defeat of provincial Leader Wintermeyer.

"I have a high regard for him," Mr. Pearson said.

"I was interested to listen to Mr. Robarts say last night he was anxious to co-operate with the federal government and I can assure you we are anxious to reciprocate."

The prime minister said the cabinet session, expected to last all day, will be primarily concerned with the preparation of the parliamentary session next week. One of the first items before parliament will be a bill imposing a federal trusteeship on five Great Lakes unless fruitless ther disputes are settled among themselves.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh, entering the cabinet chamber a few minutes before Mr. Pearson, was asked whether she was disappointed in the Ontario election result, a Synopsis: Sunny, unseasonably warm weather is reported across southern and central Ontario today. However, somewhat cooler air accompanied by considerable cloudiness is spreading eastward across the north country. Little change is indicated for the next 24 hours.

Federal Members Happy

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal Conservatives happily counted their blessings in the wake of the party's Ontario election victory Wednesday.

Federal Liberals stoutly maintained there were hopeful signs which lightened their disappointment.

One Conservative view appion of Premier Robarts and his governing Progressive Conservatives took the steam out of talk of an early federal election, once and for all.

Liberals countered with the argument that a federal election had never been a serious possibility, so far as the Liberal government was concerned, for many months.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker viewed the Ontario voting as partly reflecting disillusionment with the federal Liberal government.

The Progressive Conservative chieftain, noting that federal Liberals allied themselves closely with the provincial Liberal campaign, said "many thousands, indeed tens of thousands, of votes were cast in condemnation of the federal Liberal government."

Prime Minister Pearson was described by one source as keenly disappointed at the personal defeat of Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer and the setback for the provincial Liberals.

But Liberals here were quick to draw attention to post-election statements by Premier Robarts stressing the need for non-

Ministers Too Naive

Should Have Doubted Profumo

LONDON (CP) — Lord Denning's report on the Profumo affair scotches rumors of ministerial immorality, clears the security services but questions the government's competence in handling the allurant.

This is the general verdict today as the British public settles down to study the exhaustive 50,000-word report, already being praised for its lucidity and thoroughness.

Lord Denning finds all rumors linking present cabinet members with sex scandals to be "unfounded and untrue." He says there has been no security leak and exonerates the security services of all but a minor failure in communications.

However, there is a major parliamentary storm brewing over the report's implications that Prime Minister Macmillan and his colleagues are blameworthy for failing to deal adequately with the Profumo affair earlier on.

Lord Denning leaves the final judgment to Parliament.

But in a crucial passage he questions the prudence of ministers in accepting disgraced war minister John Profumo's story that his affair with Christine Keeler, the red-haired call girl, was innocent when they had reason to believe that he was lying.

Profumo's conduct — an admission that he had dated the girl and written her a letter headed "darling"—was enough, said Lord Denning, to create "a reasonable belief that he had committed adultery with such a woman in such circumstances as the case discloses."

"It was the responsibility of the prime minister and his colleagues, and of them only, to deal with this situation, and they did not succeed in doing so."

"In other words," says The Daily Telegraph, "they failed."

Most newspapers seize on this point.

"It's dynamite!" says The Daily Express.

"Has blamed," is the headline in The Daily Sketch, which goes on to charge editorially that "the government has shown itself completely unaware of what is meant by security."

"Lord Denning puts Macmillan in the dock," says The Daily Mirror.

The report contains one surprising piece of information.

THE LAST HURRAH of the provincial election campaign in West Hastings went to Elmer Sandercock, who greeted his re-election for a fifth term with an exultant cheer (above) surrounded by supporters in his Belleville committee rooms.

Liberal Leader Loses Own Seat, Offers To Quit

PCs Win 78 Seats In 108-Seat House

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts emerged today as master of the Ontario political field in his own right. He had an enlarged Progressive Conservative majority in the legislature and his Liberal challenger, John Wintermeyer, was left without a seat and this morning offered his resignation as party leader.

The 46-year-old premier not only enhanced the House standing bequeathed him by retiring premier Leslie Frost 22½ months ago in Wednesday's general election but may have written the political epitaph of John Wintermeyer.

The final standing:

	1963	1959
Progressive Conservatives	78	71
Liberals	23	22
New Democratic	7	5
Total	108	98

About 62 per cent of the province's voters turned out, up from 58.4 in 1959 despite what most observers considered a dull campaign. With 99 per cent of the polls reported 2,116,029 votes had been counted. Ontario had 3,429,897 eligible voters by an unofficial count.

For Mr. Robarts, who scrambled to the top of his party in a six-way leadership fight in 1961, a record vote confirmed his mandate and swabbed him to improve the showing of master vote-catcher Frost in the last election in 1959.

The London lawyer brought home 78 seats for an over-all majority of 48 in the newly-enlarged House of 108 seats. This compared with Mr. Frost's 71 for a 44 margin in 1959, when there were only 98 ridings.

NDP GAINS

The Liberals got 23 this time —one more than they got in 1959 but one fewer than they had at dissolution—while the New Democratic Party moved up to seven seats from five. The Conservatives had 62 at

Compulsory Registration Is Suggested

TORONTO (CP) — Roderick Lewis, Ontario's chief election officer, today suggested compulsory registration of all citizens for provincial elections.

He said no matter how many warnings and provisions are made to make sure citizens get on the voters list, returning officers are burdened with complaints.

"A lot of people seem to wait until the last minute to find out if they are on the voters list," he said.

Mr. Lewis proposed that a penalty be imposed on citizens who fail to register under a compulsory system.

Robarts Promises Action

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Premier John Robarts, with strengthened support and a weakened opposition, enters his first full term of office promising quick legislative action and full co-operation with the federal government.

And the 46-year-old premier, who a little less than two years ago took over the leadership of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party from Leslie Frost, says he will make good on his election promises.

Smiling under trying physical circumstances and obviously pleased with his party's overwhelming success Wednesday in his first election as premier, Mr. Robarts pledged in a victory statement given in his own riding of London North that the "confidence you have shown will not be misplaced. . . What I have said I will do, I will do."

In a prepared victory statement, which he distributed to reporters and read over radio and television, the premier promised to do all possible "to keep Canada united."

Then, in a back room where he was questioned by half a dozen reporters, the premier promised that the legislature into session "just about as soon as I can do so" to enact legislation enabling the province to take advantage of the $400,000,000 federal municipal loan program.

WILL BE SHORT

The session, which legally could not be called before the third week of October, would be a short one—"one or two days" —and he hoped municipalities in the province could benefit from the federal loans this winter.

Talking Mobster Gives Senators Preview of 'Cosa Nostra' Story

WASHINGTON (CP - AP) — Joseph Valachi, the talking mobster, comes out of hiding today and turns up in Capitol Hill for a private talk with senators investigating the secret criminal society known as Cosa Nostra which Attorney-General Kennedy says is linked with the Canadian underworld.

Valachi's appearance at this morning's closed session was billed as a rehearsal for his testimony Friday when he gets his chance publicly to put the finger on his former bosses in the crime syndicate.

And a strong police escort will be on hand to make certain his debut on Capitol Hill won't be his swansong.

Underworld sources say the ruling commission of Cosa Nostra has put a $100,000 price on Valachi's head.

Police believe any member of the syndicate could collect the bounty by killing the 60-year-old convicted dope pedlar and murderer.

But since the Capone era of homegrown gangland violence from speeding sedans, the mobsters have learned a little finesse. A New York police official reports the gang was thinking of employing public relations to repair the damage Valachi may do to its public image.

The Senate investigations subcommittee arranged today's session to give its members a chance to appraise the story Valachi is expected to tell of brutal murder, crime for profit and terrorism.

Chairman John L. McClellan (Dem. Ark.) already has heard the story in two interviews with Valachi.

McClellan said he saw Valachi Wednesday night but he appeared to be in good spirits and eager to testify as a stream of underworld figures appear before the committee.

Lawmakers Will Earn, Work More When House Resumes Work on Monday

By RONALD LEREL

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal legislators will be making more money when they return to Parliament Hill Monday for the resumption of the session—but they likely will have to put in longer hours than in the first part of the session.

Refreshed by a two-month recess and hefty salary increases, members of the Commons and Senators will face a heavy agenda of committee work in addition to their normal Commons and Senate sittings and office chores.

Three more committees are expected to be appointed shortly. All three will explore large and controversial fields, which adds up to extended sittings.

These committees will investigate consumer credit and interest rates, ways of streamlining Parliament's modes of procedure and the operations of the CNR and TCA.

PLAN INQUIRIES

Several other Commons committees plan major investigations:

1.—The special defence committee, which met 12 times this summer, will continue its farreaching examination of Canada's defence policy.

2.—The special committee on drugs and proprietaries will open public hearings on the cost and safety hazards of these chemical products.

3.—The standing committee on broadcasting will continue its review the Canada Elections Act and hear recommendations that the voting age be lowered and that balloting methods be improved. There also may be a special look at the financial aid be given to election candidates.

4.—The external affairs committee is due to hold public hearings on the contentious Columbia River power treaty with the United States as soon as diplomats reach final agreement on changes in the treaty.

At least eight other standing committees are expected to be active this fall. These include the public accounts committee, which will scrutinize government spending. It likely will be headed by an opposition MP.

The committee will resume Monday on a normal 25½-hour work week but a government informant said the hours likely will be extended in November and December.

In the Senate, which resumes Tuesday night, a special committee will launch a long-term study of the problems of the elderly under Senator David Croll (L—Ontario), who suggested the inquiry this summer.

Industrial Mishaps Rise In Ontario

An increase was recorded in the number of accidents in industrial and manufacturing plants in Ontario during the first half of 1963. A concentrated attempt is being made by the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations to halt this trend.

In a two-month safety campaign, to be conducted during the month of October, an initial booklet will be sent to employers and employees of over 20,000 industrial firms as well as 13,000 retail outlets.

"More jobs, more workers and more accidents. These are the ingredients of the major problem facing Ontario safety specialists at present, which we have to solve," stated H. L. Hinchcliffe, Toronto, the president of the I.A.P.A. The accident trend in 1963 was upwards and that trend has continued through the first six months of this year. It is our hope that the 1963 safety drive in October will counteract the trend and reduce the total number of industrial accidents in the current "human period".

For the past 47 years the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations have conducted an extensive safety program among Ontario industries. One phase of this program is the sponsorship of the annual "safety month". During October, Safety Month this year, the slogan for the Province-wide safety drive will be "Safety prevents sorrow".

During 1962 there was a total of 96 fatal industrial accidents in Ontario. In addition there were 28,104 compensation cases reported for 20,000 firms with the membership of the I.A.P.A. This represented an increase of 10.7 per cent over the previous year.

Coupled to the number of lives lost and injuries sustained in industrial mishaps, accidents cost Ontario 20,000 members of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, during 1962. This was an increase of well over $1,000,000 over accident costs in 1961.

"As in the past, many of the industrial accidents recorded in 1962 could have been avoided by the practice of care and caution and the use of prescribed safety equipment," said Mr. Hinchcliffe. "That is why we are stressing the need for extra care and caution on the part of Ontario's labor force and the co-operation and help of all workers".

Robarts

The premier, whose personal re-election was obvious almost as soon as the first few results were available, received a rousing cheer when he arrived at the downtown hotel campaign headquarters shortly after the 8 p.m. poll-closing time.

London North gave him a margin of 8,526 over his nearest opponent. In 1959 he won by 3,235 votes.

Mr. Robarts, with 78 seats elected and the practice of care and caution and the use of prescribed safety equipment," said Mr. Hinchcliffe. "That is why we are stressing the need for extra and caution on the part of Ontario's labor force and the co-operation and help of all workers".

National Ballet To Appear in City Jan. 29

Canada's National Ballet Company last night confirmed the date January 29 for the Community Concert Association. No program has been planned, yet, for the public stand, but it will probably include a selection of several short dances.

Carman Guild, managing director of the company, was in Belleville last night, for talks with Mrs. Dorothy MacKinnon, president of the Belleville branch of the National Ballet Guild, and her executive. Said plans for the coming performance in the auditorium of B.C.I. were set up at the meeting. Final arrangements will be made by mail.

Town Officials Will Meet With Minister

TRENTON—Oct 19 has been set up as the date that Trenton's Deputy Reeve, Reeve and members of Trenton council and some town officials, as yet undecided, will meet with the federal Minister of Transport, the Hon. George McIlraith at Ottawa to discuss the possibility of the federal department pay 25 per cent of the construction costs of a second bridge for Trenton.

On May 22, the Hon. Charles McNaughton, the Ontario minister of Highways, met with town council and told that his department was "committed" to paying 75 percent of construction costs of the new structure. Construction costs have been estimated at $1,000,000. The bridge is being considered by the Ontario department in the light of a "connecting link," as traffic from Highway 401 on the east side of the river will proceed onto Highway 33, Front St. in Trenton over the bridge.

The bridge, when it comes will run almost parallel to CNR tracks in east Trenton, cross Marmora St., cross the river at the south end of the present CNR bridge and come out at or somewhere near Aquinas Street in Trenton South.

The forthcoming Ottawa meeting has been set up by Robert Temple, MP for Hastings West.

Tourist Booth Has Been Closed For Season

TRENTON — The Trenton Chamber of Commerce tourist booth has closed for another season. Mrs. Ruth Sprague, Sprague, chamber secretary-manager said that 900 persons had registered at the booth and made enquiries about points of interest, hotel and motel accommodation and subjects of general interest from this year's booth attendant, Allan Geay.

Mr. Sprague said that area motels and resorts were by and large satisfied with business this year and that agents even reported increases in business. He said however, that the general feeling among motel owners was that the tourist business would have been increased by at least 50 per cent over that of last year if the 401 and restaurants opened in conjunction with services centre that is now under construction on 401. Mr. Sprague said that the general feeling was that motorists stopped for a meal at the 401 outlets and continued on their journey to points of interest while in other years they had come down into towns to stay the night.

The chamber is presently working on a brochure which will list motels, motor hotels, area motels and hotels and that these will be placed in the 401 service centre when it is ready to be given away to motorists.

"Of course, I am a Liberal and I like to see the Liberals get elected", she said.

"Will this affect the Canada Pension Plan" a reporter asked.

"We will have to wait and see," she replied.

Mr. Pearson was asked for his reaction to Opposition Leader Lesage's declaration of intention of the Ontario result as a vote of no confidence in the federal Liberal government.

"I would expect that interpretation from Mr. Diefenbaker," the prime minister said.

Shortly after, he was escorted to a car by leading party members and driven to Trenton where he again addressed workers in the town that had been one of the biggest question marks on Conservative strategy charts.

At the Liberal rooms Frank Follwell strode in shortly after 9 p.m. with his wife, son and their two children, and his wife's mother.

"How's it going?" he asked a group inside the doors.

"You've lost . . . it's a precipice - wide Tory sweep Frank," one of them told him bluntly.

"Yes, I know. It's a sweep," answered the candidate. It was his third election loss in a long career of bids for public office that started with city council and carried through to Parliament Hill.

He then thanked his workers and told them they must now "bury political differences" and stand behind Mr. Sandercock. By all means take all your problems to him — he is a fine man and a gentleman."

Conservatives Increase Share Of Record Vote

TORONTO (CP) — The Progressive Conservatives increased their share of a record vote Wednesday in being returned to power in the Ontario election.

Tabulation by The Canadian Press at almost complete returns showed that Premier John Robarts' PCs received about 46 per cent of the votes in sending 78 members to the 108-seat legislature. They got 46 per cent in electing 71 of the legislature's 98 members.

In 1959, the last election, electing 23 members compared with 22, received 35 per cent of the vote, one per cent, or 16, while the increasing membership to seven from five.

Other candidates obtained about one per cent, the same as in 1959, and elected no members.

TOTAL IS HIGH

The Liberals won 26 per cent of the polls showed a vote total of 2,118,386, well above the previous record 1,870,014 of 1959. With 329 polls still unreported, it appeared likely the final tally would represent about 62 per cent of the estimated 3,429,991 eligible voters.

This was an improvement over 1959 when 33.4 per cent of the voters cast ballots and 1955 when the percentage was 60.6. It was below the 64.5 per cent figure of the 1951 election.

Should Have

Lord Denning has discovered that responsibility for the security services has secretly rested with the home secretary since 1952. Almost everyone had assumed responsibility lay with the prime minister.

This revelation, which indicates a certain confusion somewhere, together with the verdict that Macmillan "failed" in his responsibility are useful ammunition for Opposition Leader Harold Wilson. Observers have noted signs that he will continue to press for an early parliamentary debate.

PLANS RADIO SPEECH

Macmillan is scheduled to answer questions about the report in radio tonight. Wilson will appear on television alongside Conservative ministers Lord Hailsham and Iain Macleod.

Operating in his own words as "a detective, inquisitor, and vocate and judge," Lord Denning examines some rumors in detail and mentions others more nebulous. All were found to be totally untrue.

Perverted sex parties did take place, he concludes, but no minister was present at them. He does not name the names of victims.

In all, Lord Denning spent 49 days interviewing 160 witnesses ranging from Macmillan to convicted prostitutes. He disclosed that he had interviewed six government ministers about their sex lives in his attempt to cut through the flood of rumors.

One was even asked to strip for medical examination in order that a physician could compare him with "the headless man" in an erotic photograph that formed part of the Duke of Argyll's suit for divorce. This procedure, he said, established conclusively that the man in the photograph was not the minister.

He cleared all the government and spy activity that could bring about blackmail or pressure and that involve security risks. But he leaves a question mark over the moral conduct of one minister or possibly two—the report is vague on this point.

Although there has been no lowering of public life, Lord Denning warned that public figures are becoming more vulnerable to scandal because "scandalous information about well-known people has become a marketable commodity."

Lord Denning's report at once jumped to the top of the best seller lists. Queues were forming up for copies soon after midnight at the government stationery office in London and Edinburgh. Some 30,000, costing the equivalent of $1.15, have been run off and officials expect the demand may reach 90,000.

Lord Denning's one criticism of the security services is that they might have realized Profumo's liaison postedd to a security risk by exposing him to blackmail. But he added that it is not part of the service's duties to pry into a minister's private affairs.

Mac Wilson Ends 38 Years Of Service

TWEED—After 38 years in the service of the Department of Lands and Forests, McKinley Wilson has retired from the forest protection supervisor's chair in the Tweed District.

Mac began his career in the Bancroft chief ranger division, and like many of the older staff climbed up the ladder of experience, until 1946 when he took over the complexities of forest protection for the district, and followed through with the modern methods of fire suppression.

Mr. Wilson could never be said to be off duty during the fire season as he continually checked and followed through the routine of forest protection.

For dedication to duty and efficiency of service he was supreme and his valued experience and faithful service will be greatly missed by all who came in contact with him. The esteem which he is held was well established on Sept. 17, when the dining room of the Tweedsmuir Hotel was packed by members of the staff at a dinner held in his honor and a presentation made.

The New Champion

Them that has, gets.

The Conservatives have found a new champion.

The latest aspirant, John J. Wintermeyer, was outmatched.

If he had gone down at the head of his army, there might be some hope that he would rise to fight another day. But he was ambushed and slaughtered in his own riding, while the rest of the Liberals fought desperately, and withal successfully, to hold the small Liberal redoubt in overwhelmingly Conservative Ontario.

Mr. Wintermeyer's own seat of Waterloo North was the first of a handful to change hands. What swelled the Conservative tide was not so much conquest of Liberal territory as the almost wholesale annexation of the ten new seats in the Metropolitan Toronto area.

Those few Opposition candidates, five Liberals and one NDP aspirant, who did succeed in unseating the Conservative color-bearers in former P.C. seats are deserving of individual congratulations. Fighting the tide as they were, their victories are all the more noteworthy.

This post-election morning, the view of the battlefield must have differed radically in the three camps. The Conservatives have every reason to rejoice. They have lost Old Mr. Ontario and gained Young Mr. Ontario. Such complaints as were heard—and they were voiced —that Premier John Bracken was able but lacked the personality to lead a political party to victory at the polls have been effectively silenced. The Conservatives have switched horses and the remount has proven sound and strong.

The New Democratic Party, while it has no reason for rejoicing, can take some small satisfaction from the fact that its leader, Donald C. MacDonald, held his seat and the party was able to increase its representation by two. In light of the fact that there were ten more urban seats up for grabs, this is hardly an encouraging score, particularly as the NDP's Tommy Thomas went down to defeat in Oshawa.

But it is a better showing than that made by the Liberals. Despite the fact that there were ten more seats to be won, the Liberals' representation declined by one from that at dissolution. There were some Liberal gains, to prove that the Conservatives were not invincible where there were able and popular Liberal candidates, but the gains were more than offset by losses. The overall showing of the party suggests a flaw in leadership and this would seem to be confirmed by the verdict of the voters in Mr. Wintermeyer's own riding. A search for a new leader would not be an unexpected aftermath of Wednesday's voting.

Here in Hastings County, and in the neighboring ridings, the Conservatives retained a tight hold on the affections of the voters. Kingston, Frontenac-Addington, Prince Edward-Lennox, Northumberland, Durham and Peterborough all remained Conservative. Hastings East and Hastings West returned their Progressive-Conservative members in the last Legislature. Clarke Rollins and W. E. Sandercock will again sit on the Government side of the house and their ability and experience assures the county of able representation. As for the defeated Liberal candidates, they have no reason for self-deprecation. They fought well and made good showings in the face of the heavy tide running against them. The NDP candidates knew that their campaigns were merely gestures, showing the party flag in ridings where victory would have been a miracle, but no political party is stronger than its cannon fodder. Without such willing sacrifices in hopeless ridings, the NDP representation would be even slimmer than it is.

Yippee!

A recent Canadian Press story used just eighteen words to inform the world of the greatest development to hit Toronto since the coming of the white man. A group of Arab investors, according to the story, has just purchased a Toronto hotel, for $360,000.

Small news? Definitely not. Everyone knows how effectively the U.S. owned hotel chains have spread U.S. culture, including cocktail bars, into the less developed lands of the world.

Is it reasonable to expect the passionately nationalist Arabs might do less, in providing us natives with samples of traditional Arab amenities? We'll take a room please, with harem.

Fickle West Loyal Only To Fanciest Wheat Dealers

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The Commons meets Monday under a $500,000,000 political question mark.

And the question: Is political loyalty for sale in the Prairie wheat belt? . . . here the Russian with those half-million dollar wheat order, and Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp with his total $1,000,000,000-plus grain export splurge, combined to win the next election for Prime Minister Pearson?

Right now, nobody on Parliament Hill seems to know — probably least of all Conservative Leader Diefenbaker — just where the Prairies place their political loyalty after this billion dollar windfall.

For the record shows they've swung more freely and fully than any other region in the country and seem to put something of a hard-headed dollar value on their votes.

They seem always to have been for the grabs by the highest bidder.

There have been times when their political loyalty was a secondary consideration, with Ontario and Quebec with their big per vote blocs influencing more.

But not this time.

For this time, the Prairies make the difference between an uncertain election and a possible solid majority for the Government.

REPEAT PERFORMANCE

And this is the second time in as many years and elections.

Last year, Right-of-centre Tories to John Diefenbaker, held against Liberal erosion of Conservative strength, giving him a minority that worked until Social Credit pulled it down.

This year, the West was the rock-hard dyke again that stopped the Liberal tide short of what otherwise would have been a sweeping majority.

Both times, Conservatives, usually fickle, backed the Liberal swing, simply because John Diefenbaker, Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton and the hustling Conservatives had sold enough wheat to China to empty the elevators and solve the problem of the surplus that had plagued all Governments since way back when the binder was invented.

Just look at their voting record.

Was the virus, and not so long ago, in the days when the Prairies were the private preserve of Liberal Agriculture Minister James G. "Jimmy" Gardiner, that Conservatives west of the Lakehead were about as scarce as whooping cranes.

Jimmy was a tremendous personal asset. His special pleader in Parliament for the Prairie wheat farmer. So well could he storm in anger and weep in pity over the awful plight of the gruinmers that grand open the self might have been envious of such deep emotion.

And he had to, for he kept them from being utterly unhappy, filling their pockets with guaranteed prices and various forms of special federal assistance . . . like "bonuses," in large, luscious lumps that could, and did run as sweetly high as $65,000,000 in one generously juicy year, back in 1947.

ALWAYS MORE

But it was never enough, really, to keep them completely content.

So came along the '56 election, with Mr. Diefenbaker, C.D. "Trader" Howe campaigning in the wheat country.

At a Regina campaign rally in rural Manitoba, he poked a well-fed farmer in the midriff. Behind him, in the Conservative sense way that the man did not look to be exactly starving.

Then the Conservative hound him, the "Trader" accused him of being a CCFer. Turned out, though, he was a federal constituency campaign chairman and lifelong fan for "Trader" and his Liberals had been had to worse.

Remember, just before they cast their ballots in '56, some exasperated farmer blasting his new TV set with a shotgun charge just because old "C. D." was making an election pitch on the screen?

Jimmy Gardiner had done well by the farm country, but John Diefenbaker and his boy, Alvin Hamilton, did better.

Alvin sold so much wheat that the disheartened Liberals claimed you could not walk into a Western farm kitchen without having to kick the doorway clear of government cheques.

But since the Russians have pooled up that almost incredible $500,000,000, giving Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp, the "Trader" of this new political generation, that politically potent billion dollar pot for the Prairies . . . so who knows that it won't be the same off-with-the-old-love, on-with-the-new story all over again.

"Alvin" they'll be asking any day now West of the Lakehead, "Alvin who?"

Line Between Discretion and Cowardice Fine

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Pretty Personal Problem:

These emotional vultures who swoop down to attend a squalid trial ought to be put on trial themselves, on charges of contributing to the delinquency of their own characters.

Most people who bemoan their lack of a basic liberal education either have not yet learned the good advice of Thoreau: "Read the finest books first, or you may not have a chance to read them at all."

The toothpaste companies defeat themselves by bringing out a new "miracle" ingredient every year — thus proving the ineffectiveness of last year's highly touted "miracle."

If I were an employer, I would never hire an accountant without first meeting his wife: for a man with an extravagant wife is easily driven to corruption or a crackup. The men who need to be guarded in business are never able to handle it.

The "place-dropper" is a boring variant of the name-dropper, and just as annoying — for it speak intimately and casually of Capri after a one-day hop of the island is as impertinent as calling a great man by his first name after shaking hands once.

The line between "discretion" and cowardice is exceedingly fine; and man's reward in the negative one of failing to speak up when justice cries out for supporters. Nothing we do is half as bad as what we do not do.

If there is one thing I am certain of in this changing world, it is the unchanging affirmation that the "war to end war" will not be fought with arms.

So long as children are miseducated to the belief that natural impulses toward sex are "evil," they will grow up in confusion and guilt, and so long as men are neither good nor bad, but neutral, and morality consists in using them for social ends and spiritually desirable ends.

The project to transform Bernard Shaw's book into a shrine failed for lack of public support; a fitting rebuke to a man who, though he loved and served humanity in the abstract, never cared much for people in the particular. History answers its adequate revenge.

I am tired of hearing the excuse that America is a "young" country. Nobody as old has a right to act as childish as we do.

Moving Joints Necessary For Arthritis Sufferers

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I see that you advise movement of the joints to the fullest extent for arthritis, but not exercise. I have it in both legs. Moderate walks seem to help. Do you recommend this? — D. C. P.

Yes, I do. Movement is important to keep the joints from becoming too stiff.

In cases of acute rheumatoid arthritis, exercise can be harmful. In the latent types, it's important to keep moving. By this, I don't mean constantly, but every day, and several times a day, perhaps.

I recall a woman who, in her 30's had rheumatoid arthritis. Her doctor (widely respected in medical circles,) told her that if in the morning she forced herself to get moving, no matter how much it hurt, she would quickly return to a near normal. But if she let the pain win, and moved as little as possible, she would be in a wheel chair the rest of her life. She gritted her teeth — and moved — and to the astonishment of her doctor she once had rheumatoid arthritis.

So I say move. Call it movement; call it exercise, but move.

Here's another letter on the subject.

Dear Doctor: I have had arthritis for many years. I hate to take "pain pills." I have found that what has helped me tremendously. It was a big fight at first. My legs felt like rubber and my arms like lead and I could hardly lift them.

I have been playing for a year now at the same time each week or more often. If I skip the game I feel the stiffness and aches and become stiff.

To me tennis is better than medicine and it affords a great deal of enjoyment, whether I win or lose.

I agree on this, about heat. The relief from a hot bath is wonderful, if only temporarily. — E.

I don't know B. J.'s age, but I don't recommend tennis for a person in the 60's who hasn't had any strenuous exercise for years.

However, I recommend walking, and more vigorous activity if it appeals to you. Use your common sense and your interests to decide how you move. Remember that it can be very harmful rather than helpful but — well, I'm right back at the beginning. The important thing is movement.

I think aspirin, for more than one reason, is best. You disagree with "B.J." about trying to avoid "pain pills." Move, but make it easy to move if aspirins help.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it safe to donate clothes of a person who has cases of the face and hands? — Mr. R. H. S.

Yes, because cancer is not transmissible from person to person. It develops individually. The only precaution is to wash the clothes thoroughly first. The cancerous areas may harbor unrelated infections.

Must Provide Incentives

Victoria Colonist

Of the 70,000 persons who left Canada between June, 1961 and June, 1962, 34,000 were either wage or salary earners and they must have departed either because they were not satisfied with the conditions as they found them or they saw better opportunities elsewhere.

Most of the persons leaving Canada go to the United States where they expect to find better wages and a higher standard of living, and the closer we imitate that country the more likely it is that this flow will continue.

That Canada must produce its own incentives to keep its people at home. The incentives may not be many to develop but in a young country freedom of enterprise should surely be one of them.

Just What Is Lantern Jaw?

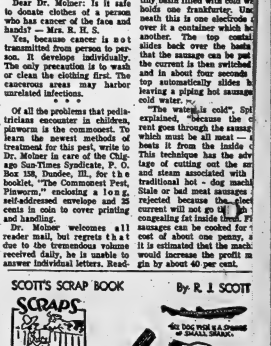
Detroit News

What and why is a lantern Jaw?

Lantern Jaws are defined by the Oxford English dictionary as "long, thin jaws giving a hollow appearance to the cheeks." It quotes from "Piers Plowman," the celebrated composition of William Langland, contemporary of Chaucer, as: "Hunger. . .Inflicteth the Brimer abouts bothe his cheknes, he looketh lyk a lanterne al hilyf after."

So there is nothing new and strange about the expression.

The English have also found that a similar but inferior work in 1700 defines one with lantern jaws as a "very lean, thin-faced fellow," and that in 1707 someone referred to "Anthonn Jawd Woman with a Hatchet-Face."



One recognizes the picture; but what lantern in all history had that jaws caused it to suggest a hatchet?

A quote from Sir Walter Scott's "Rob Roy" offers a possible solution: "His lantern jaws and long chin suggested the appearance of a pair of nutcrackers." This they may well have been, in the absence of such a tool. But why do not crocodiles suggest a crocodile or an alligator?

If cheeks were transparent or somewhat so, and the tongue were a shining light, there might be visible some such "lantern jaws." But they aren't.

Thomasburg United Church Totally Destroyed by Fire; Congregation Will Rebuild

THOMASBURG — (Staff) — Sunday, the United Church congregation of this hamlet was to observe its 107th anniversary. Last night, after the choir finished a rehearsal for the festivity, fire broke out in the vestry. Within an hour of its discovery early this morning the sturdy old church was a smoking ruin at a loss figured up to $100,000.

The destruction of the church momentarily stunned the community. But its pastor, Rev. George Dyson, announced the anniversary celebrations will go ahead anyhow — probably in the nearby Anglican church.

Little was rescued from the blaze, cause of which is unknown. Lost, besides pews and other church furniture, were a huge pipe organ and a smaller organ in the vestry, along with records of one of the area's oldest religious communities.

The fire was first discovered about 2 a.m. A motorist tried to rouse residents by blowing his car horn. Harris Carter, a nearby householder, said he looked out to see the fire and phoned Tweed and Belleville fire departments.

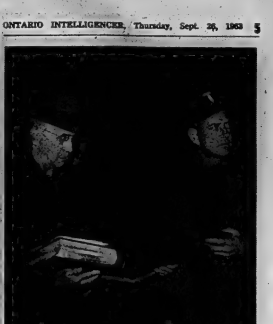
MINISTER ASLEEP

Mr. Dyson was asleep at the time, having retired only about 10 minutes earlier. He was awakened by neighbors banging on his door and the sound of the church bell being tolled as an alarm by the first people on the scene.

"I only put my light out at 2 o'clock," he recalled.

When first discovered, the blaze was centred in the vestry at the rear of the church. However, it rapidly climed the back walls and raced along the eaves. By the time firefighters arrived from Belleville to re-inforce the Tweed unit, the blaze was out of control.

Fire pumpers drew water from a nearby spring and a 2,000 gallon water truck was sent to the scene fom Chisholm lumber mill at nearby Roslin.



However, once it took hold in the well of the church, there was no stopping the blaze as it ate through rows of wooden pews. The roof, and part of the steeple, crashed down shortly after..

The last persons to leave the building before the blaze, was the choir. Before its departure a check was made of a small wood stove, which had been lit in the vestry during the practice. Choristers said the fire was out in the stove at that time.

BUILT IN 1881

The church community was founded in 1856. The church itself, was built in 1881. Mr. Dyson has been pastor since the 1956 centennial year.

Plans for rebuilding are expected to start immediately. However, the first subscription to the fund was donated while the church was still burning. It was given by a Tweed man described by Mr. Dyson as "outside our faith."

RECORDS saved from destruction included church Bible and roll of honor. Rev. George Dyson (left) examines items rescued by Frank Brough and other church members.

"GIVE THE UNITED WAY"

Dear Fellow Citizens:

The time is again at hand when twelve agencies doing benevolent, charitable and character building work in our City campaign for funds through the Belleville United Appeal.

In the coming Campaign a minimum objective of $85,000 has been set. This figure, however, will not cover the full needs of these agencies which, if they were supplied in full, would require approximately $100,000.

Last year the Campaign raised in the neighborhood of $72,000. It is obvious, therefore, that in order to meet the needs this year every person who can contribute should do so, and those who have contributed generously in the past should sincerely consider their contribution this year to see if it can be increased.

We make no apology in asking for generous giving and would suggest that all citizens familiarize themselves with these agencies and their good work. We are confident that the maximum objective of $100,000 is not beyond the capacity of the Belleville Community.

The United Appeal does not presume to tell any individual what may be his fair share contribution as this is strictly a personal problem. However, we do point out that this one appeal for twelve agencies for all of next year's operations, and citizens should consider the possibility of pledging monthly or quarterly if one lump sum contribution for all twelve agencies would be inconvenient at the time he or she is approached by the canvasser for the appeal.

Please, remember that it is not the Belleville United Appeal you will be helping with your donation but the individuals served by the twelve agencies, which have co-operated to achieve economy in collection of funds and to avoid the annoyance and the tremendous duplication of work as compared with separate canvasses for each agency.

These agencies depend upon us let us all strive this year to raise not only our minimum objective of $85,000. but to exceed this up to $100,000. so the agencies will not be handicapped next year in doing the work so necessary for the welfare of our City.

Respectfully signed,

E. G. Garnett
President, Belleville United Appeal.

N. B. Keith
Campaign Chairman,
Belleville United Appeal.

Harassed Mother Feels She's Failed as Homemaker

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a young mother who feels she can't do anything right. My three children deserve a better mother than they have. I am always yelling at them, threatening, spanking and punishing. They are under 10 years of age and constantly at war with each other, the neighbor children and with me.

My husband says it's my job to control the kids and I know he's right, but I just can't do it. I see other youngsters who behave beautifully. This means their mother has done a good job. No one will ever say that about me and mine.

More than anything I want to be a good mother but I don't measure up. I know you can't straighten me out in one letter, but please lead me to the help I need. — BLUE MONDAY.

DEAR MONDAY — First, get a complete physical check-up. You may me run-down and in need of medical attention. This can make people short-tempered and impatient.

Next, contact the Family Service Association or local mental health clinic for reading material on how to raise children.

There are days when every mother, no matter how competent, would cheerfully change kids with any neighbor, but the situation you describe is not an "off day." Your kids sound out of control.

And P.S. Your husband could be helping instead of criticizing. They are his kids, too. Give the doll some reading material and tell him it's got to be a joint effort.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — You must be a man. No woman could ever have given such rotten advice to the daughter whose 69-year-old dad wanted to remarry — in the old folks home yet!

That old geezer should have been declared off his trolley. I almost fainted when you gave him a green light. After all, the man has lived a full life. Fifty years of marriage, a nice family. What more could a person want?

Just because the old elk has met a woman at the home who must be as nutty as he and they want to get married, is no sign that the family should O.K. such nonsense. This just proves what I've always said: Sick, well or dying — just show me a man who is too old or too tired for sex and I'll eat this newspaper — the whole Sunday edition.

Thank you. — GLAD I'M SINGLE.

DEAR MARY SUNSHINE — I'm glad you're single too. This is your contribution to the human race.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Recently you told a mother she wasn't raising a son, that she was raising a vegetable. Well, that's exactly what my mother is doing — raising a 17-year-old vegetable.

I should be having the time of my life now but instead I am miserable. My mother will not let me date although I'm a high school senior. I've never been permitted to spend a night at a girl friend's house (I'm a girl) because mom worries about wild teenagers who crash parties.

My whole life is going to school, doing homework, going to family affairs which I hate. Can you see a way out of this jail? —TRAPPED.

DEAR TRAPPED — A high school senior should be allowed to date. Enlist the aid of your favorite teacher or your clergyman.

Have you thought of going away to college? If you haven't, you should. Even if it means working your way through.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you write for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 30 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Argyll Chapter IODE Holds 'Dessert Bridge,' Hat Show

The officers mess at the Belleville Armoury was filled to capacity yesterday afternoon when the Argyll Chapter IODE held their annual "Dessert Bridge" and a showing of the newest in millinery and furs through the courtesy of Woodley Furriers.

The Regent of the Chapter, Mrs. C. F. Smith and social convener, Mrs. D. Willcocks warmly greeted the guests at the door, while Mrs. Les Digby, as hostess escorted the ladies to the various tables.

Previous to the showing of the new fall collection of hats in charge of Miss Hazel Smith and the latest styles in furs, by Mr. D. Woodley, a delicious assortment of desserts including meringue pies, fruit jellies with whipped cream, angel cakes centred with fruit jellies, were served buffet style from long tables along the balcony.

Mrs. A. S. McConnell as chairman gave a most vivid description of what fashion conscious women of Belleville will be wearing in the line of millinery and furs this coming fall and winter. She prefaced her commentary by welcoming all present on behalf of the Argyll Chapter and introduced Mrs. Bowing, soft background music was provided by Mrs. R. Riedel, at the piano.

ATTRACTIVE MODELS

The attractive models were most striking in their selections, each particularly suited to the one she was wearing. Those who compared were Mrs. E. S. Fairman, Mrs. A. Duffy, Mrs. C. Bristol, Mrs. A. Cunningham, Mrs. R. Allen, Mrs. R. J. Kokesh. In keeping with the sportive trend for this fall and winter there were four sports jackets shown, the ultimate in comfort and warmth. These were modelled by Mrs. Cunningham and Mrs. Al Smith and one in soft grey tweed by Mrs. Bowing. Boots worn were through the courtesy of Leslie Shoe Stores by Mrs. W. O. Cochrane was the convener of the showing of hats and furs.

The fall and winter will have a style all their own with the bowler, pillbox, turban, and high pillbox being the most popular; in felt, velour, brocade, fur and a combination of wool and mohair materials. Cranberry and gold are two of the new more popular shades to be worn.

LUXURIOUS FURS

Among the luxurious furs shown were sheared muskrat, Persian lamb, and beaver and mink coats and jackets were variety in styling with contrasting fur on collars and cuffs. Mink coats and jackets were highlighted with three-quarter sleeves, with a large number featuring the face design. One of the most striking was a full-length coat of beaver, dyed in Rome. The sleeves and capes were most exquisite in design, in particular one with unusual bubble cape of autumn haze mink.

In charge of tickets for this highly successful event, which appears to be getting more popular each year, was Mrs. A. Duffy.

LAWRENSON — RILEY

A lovely early fall wedding was solemnized in Bridge Street United Church recently when the Rev. H. M. Davis united in marriage Susan Margaret Riley, only daughter of Mrs. Stuart Riley and the late Mr. Riley and Ralph Samuel Lawrenson, eldest son of Mrs. John Lawrenson, Tweed, Ont.

Tall white candelabra, standards of white chrysanthemums and ferns formed a background for the double-ring ceremony. The wedding music was rendered by Mr. S. Alec Gordon, church organist.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. R. W. Krumm of Ottawa, the bride was radiant in a floor length gown of white peau de glace, featuring a bell shaped skirt with a slight train flowing out of two bands of material looped by bows above the waist. The bateau neckline and front of the skirt were outlined in appliqued lace and petite bows. Her tiered veil was arranged on a cluster of organza roses and tiny white lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses and stephanotis.

Miss Dianne Elmy, maid of honor, Miss Katherine Coulter and Miss Nancy Lawrenson, sister of the bridegroom, the bridesmaids were gowned alike in street-length creations of yellow organza, featuring bell shaped skirts, accentuated by tailored bows at the waist. They wore matching shoes and headdresses of nylon net gathered at the front with bows similar to those of their dresses. They carried arm bouquets of three large turquoise chrysanthemums.

Mr. Harry Lawrenson, brother of the bridegroom, attended as best man, while Mr. Eugene Plunder and Mr. Stuart Riley, brother of the bride, ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Church parlors where the bride's table was prettily appointed with a three-tiered wedding cake, topped with white and silver bells and sprays of lily of the valley, and surrounded by white tulips intermingled with sprays of tiny pink flowers, white pink tapers and the bridal bouquet completed the nuptial setting. The bride's mother received the guests in a dress of turquoise pure silk chiffon over taffeta, featuring a back panel of chiffon, edged with a wide band of lace appliqué. She wore matching shoes, white feather hat and accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a sheath of mocha brown organza over rose and brown printed taffeta, with matching jacket, beige velvet hat, brown accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

For the wedding trip through Quebec the bride chose a pink brocade sheath with matching cocktail coat, black patent accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Guests were present from Windsor, Ottawa, Toronto, Tweed, Stirling, Plainfield and Consecon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrenson are residing at 187 Ann Street, Belleville.

Women's Activities

Springbrook United Church Women met recently at the church with an attendance of 21 members with the president Mrs. R. Wellman opening the meeting. Mrs. Carman Cline presided at the piano and Mr. K. Thompson conducted the worship service.

Mrs. Gordon Bailey reported for the sick and visiting committee and that several cards had been made to the sick and shut-ins.

The topic on "Formosa" was given by Mrs. R. Wellman, who, with the use of a map of Formosa gave an interesting talk on the country, the four nationalities who lived on the island, the Yawanese, Hakka, Mainlanders and the Mountain tribes.

Mrs. Delbert Fleming convener for the bazaar which is to be held soon, gave her report. It was decided that a mission sale of good used clothing is to be sent to Toronto in October.

Mrs. Gordon Bailey read a poem, also contributed a vocal solo accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Carman Cline.

The president expressed appreciation to the hostesses, Mrs. Don Bateman and Mrs. Bert McCoy.

A Pritchard, Hamilton, Third Woman to Win Seat in Legislature

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Pritchard, 62, a veteran of Hamilton's municipal politics, became the third woman to win election to the Ontario legislature Wednesday and became the first promoted to "carry the torch for the women."

Mrs. Pritchard captured Hamilton Centre riding for the Progressive Conservatives on her first venture into provincial politics. She proclaimed herself "delighted, excited and humble."

She was the only winner among 25 women who contested the election, and she becomes the first of her sex to take a seat in the legislature since 1952.

Only two other women have served at Queen's Park. Best known was the redoubtable Agnes Macphail, who served in Ottawa from 1921 to 1940 as the first woman member of Parliament, then sat in the Ontario legislature as a CCF member in 1943-45 and 1948-51. The other was Rae Luckock, Toronto, who also elected for the CCF in 1943 and served two years.

RELATIVE DELIGHT

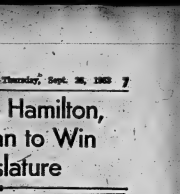
Helping in Mrs. Pritchard's campaign—and sharing her victory at campaign headquarters—was Ellen Fairclough, first woman cabinet minister in federal politics, who represented Hamilton riding from 1951 until her defeat last April.

Mrs. Pritchard, a housewife and grandmother turned politician entered municipal politics as an alderman in 1950 and was elected to the board of control three years later.

She has been senior controller of Ontario's second-largest city since 1956 and said Wednesday night she will leave her post within two months.

"When I have a job, I want to concentrate on it and do it well. But I have a few things to clear up first."

Although she plans to make her way slowly at the provincial level at first,she hopes to concentrate on welfare and the care of the aged.



NEWMAN LOSES

Jean Newman, awoman regarded as an equally powerful Tory vote-getter in municipal politics was less lucky than Mrs. Pritchard in her second bid to win Toronto Eglinton riding for the Liberals.

Mrs. Newman, who had 16 years experience on Toronto school board and board of control, was defeated by 1,500 votes in 25 votes in a 1961 byelection. Leonard Reilly, who won the seat for the conservatives at that time, swept Mrs. Newman aside Wednesday and captured nearly 18,500 votes to 11,300 for his Liberal opponent.

The Conservatives and Liberals each entered three women candidates in the election while the New Democratic Party had seven and two others ran as Independents.

Reform Institutions Minister Allan Grossman eliminated two of them when he retained Toronto St. Andrew Riding Adams, secretary to NDP Leader Donald C. MacDonald, contested the riding for the NDP while Dorothy Cureatz, frequent campaigner in civic politics on anti-fluoridation, anti - cosmetics platforms, ran as an Independent.

Baby-Sitter Practically Has to Be a Parent

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP) — Baby-sitting is not a matter to be taken lightly, says Judy Adams, director of home safety for the Ontario Safety League.

"A baby-sitter practically has to be a parent."

Miss Adams was explaining the philosophy behind a seven-session baby-sitting course set up two years ago by the league with the help of the Ontario Tuberculosis Association and the St. John Ambulance Association.

More than 1,000 baby-sitters of all ages have already taken the course which must be sponsored by a local community group and which enlists the services of nurses, doctors and other local experts.

The approach is positive, emphasizing the health and safety aspects of the job. It includes a review of Canada Food Guide, personal cleanliness and first aid procedures.

"Good character and personal habits are an essential part of baby sitting," Miss Adams says.

The care of infants, pre-school and school children is discussed as well as ways of entertaining and playing with children.

ALWAYS KEEP CALM

"One of the main lessons students learn is that their charges have to be watched constantly."

The course gives few specific dos and don'ts but suggests many ways of stimulating understanding between parents and a sitter.

"All conditions of employment should be agreed on at the time the job is accepted."

Other tips: "Respect the privacy of the home in which you are employed; don't spend the whole evening on the telephone; don't invite friends for company unless you have permission."

And "keep calm" through all situations, even emergencies.

The course points out that a good relationship between parent and baby-sitter depends on the attitude of the parents as well as the sitter.

Parents should give specific instructions on house regulations and the child's routine. The sitter should know where the parents can be reached and should have telephone numbers for the police, fire department, family doctor on hand.

All students who enrol for the course are required to have a tuberculin test.

INQUIRIES FROM AFAR

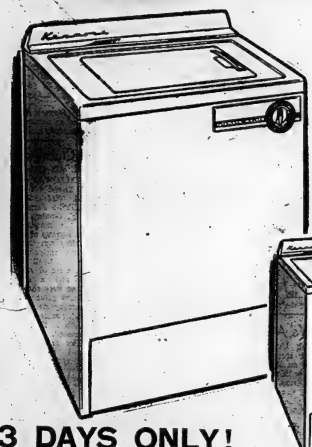
"Babies and small children are particularly susceptible to all contagious diseases including tuberculosis," said Floris King of the Ontario Tuberculosis Association.

Other provinces and countries have expressed interest in the course which has been catalogued by the Library of Congress in Washington, said Miss King.

She has had correspondence with groups as far away as New Mexico and Los Angeles and last week learned the YWCA and YMCA in Moose Jaw, Sask., will sponsor the course for boys and girls.

The International Union Against Tuberculosis will translate the course for use in its 86 member countries. Ceylon is already using it, said Miss King.

Ontario's course was preceded by similar courses organized on a province-wide scale in British Columbia and Alberta.



Groups sponsoring the course are asked not to publicize the names of its graduates, she said. And all graduates are asked to work only for friends, neighbors or relatives, never for strangers, said Miss King.

Canadian Fashion & Fad

BY pegg rogers

NEWS FROM PARIS

In Paris recently, one of the leading fashion designers, Mme Riviere, designs for the Claude Riviere, unveiled her new couture collection. She acknowledges that the hip line must be understated look, but understated. This line diminishes because shoulders have with, although there is no suggestion of the old Adrian "football" look. The Riviere collection uses width in the shoulder area to provide a balanced figure when coupled with slim, but easy skirts. There is not a tight constricting line in the whole array. Even though waistlines are natural, they are casual.

A Canadian favorite, the ankle-length cocktail dress looks new. Although I hate to use the word "basic" when talking about a Paris collection, I must use it in connection with these new dresses. The ankle-length gown has great appeal for Canadians as it fits our social life so well. The social calendar for most of us contains far more "don't dress" evenings, than formal gala. New slim "don't dress dresses" have a real place in most Canadian wardrobes.

CLIPPED OSTRICH TRIM

Although fur was used extensively throughout the collection, as its "dickies" were inside notched collars and in Spencer jackets of fur, a new and imaginative substitute was seen in clipped ostrich. A suit of warm nutmeg wool with a textured surface, appeared collared in ostrich — very flattering and more practical than the fur-collared suit.

The collection acknowledges the Sportive Look with a new type of stocking, tailor-made for Canada. When it is ten below zero, new warm stockings in a host of colors and weaves, from ribbings to patterns, will brighten a cold winter day and provide us with much needed warmth. (I thought last winter, that boots looked all wrong, when worn with sheer nylon hose.)

The nicest part of any Riviere opening is her ensembles. Her dresses stand out for chic and wearability and can be transformed into suits simply by the addition of super-ly tailored jackets. High fashion at its practical best.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

Successful Living

Husband Should Be Boss

By DORIS CLARE

DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS — I, for one, believe a husband should be head of the house. But if a wife has conscientiously done her best to keep a neat, attractive home and healthy children, then surely she "too deserves a little compensation. A word of encouragement when things go wrong, or a little gesture of some sort to show appreciation for a job well done, are essential for a happy successful mother.

In our eight years of marriage, I have never handled the household finances or received an allowance of even 50 cents for personal items. If I ask, I receive it! This is very hard to accept, after working for over ten years and receiving a weekly pay cheque.

We have never entertained at home or accepted invitations out, as my husband doesn't care to do so. However, even a 37-year-old wife and mother needs a change of environment and a bit of adult conversation at times.

Husbands have a constant change of scenery. They see new faces and share little jokes. Why, then don't they realize that women need changes too?

A husband and children are a woman's most precious possession, and I think most of us wouldn't change our positions with the single girl if we had the chance to, but why are we treated like nuns in a cloister? We're human too! — N. E. A.

DEAR N. E. A. — Thanks for putting into words what many women feel. Certain Lords and Masters would do well to take your comments to heart. Marriage and living can be enriched by a thoughtful sharing — of everything!

DEAR DORIS — I would like tips on skin care and make-up. —STENO.

DEAR STENO — For a nice complexion — keep it clean! Rest, a balanced diet, enough exercise, all figure in a good, clear skin.

As for make-up, play it down. Don't gild the lily; just point up your best features, play down the not-so-perfect, with the skilful application of a little rouge, a little lipstick, maybe a touch of eye shadow and eyebrow pencil; so little that only your make-up kit knows for sure!

DEAR DORIS, — I'm sure my request must be similar to many other mothers. My daughter has just turned 11 and I would like to know how to explain to her about sex and things.

I was an only child and though sometimes close to my mother, she always felt out of place or ashamed to talk about such things.

Today things seem to be more out in the open and children know more and ask more questions. I felt I was left in the dark and knew completely nothing about some things even after I was married. — MRS. N. L.

DEAR MRS. N. L. — My message to you and other mothers is this: Overcoming your own embarrassment about such things is the big hurdle. The rewards are tremendous.

When a son or daughter knows he can ask questions comfortably, and be confident of understanding — with never the slightest hint of shock — he comes back to his reliable "font of all knowledge" in the big emergencies later.

I will send you the names of books if you will write again identifying yourself with name and address on a stamped envelope.

DEAR DORIS — My husband and I get along fine except when I go out for an evening.

My sister and I go to meetings of our women's club and I help with refreshments. Last year I was secretary. This means being away from the house two evenings a month. The next morning he is always so cold and indifferent that I feel awful.

It makes me feel better when I get away from the children once in a while. I have explained this to my husband, but since he likes to be around the house, I go out with my women friends when I have the chance.

Please tell me whether I should be staying home with him, or is it all right to go out with the girls two or three nights a month? — MARRIED TEN YEARS.

DEAR MARRIED — You make it sound like a Ten Year Sentence. If he knew what was good for him, he'd be paying the way when you leave the nest.

Confidential to SHERYL — Your sister is not the boss. Ask your mother privately if you could buy a brassiere if you earned the money yourself. Let her know that this is very important to you.

* * *

To GROOM'S MOTHER — The groom makes up his own guest list but this should really be a family affair. On the gift card you sign your own first name and your last name: Marion Blank.

* * *

(Doris knows Canadian resources and can help. Write to her today about your particular human problem.)

History Given Of Canadian Currency

2ND OF SIDNEY—The Bay of Quinte Institute held their September meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Cattle with a fine attendance on Wednesday evening, the 15th.

The roll-call was answered by bringing an old coin and pollist about it. The oldest coin was made in 1813 and it was a token but only cost $1.00 today. There were several taken coins and several keepsakes shown.

During the reading of the correspondence it was noted that the F.W.I.C. will hold a convention at Wolfville, N.S. on June 22 to 26 in 1964.

The Bay of Quinte bought a UNESCO gift coupon to help the Indians and Eskimos in Canada.

An invitation was received from the West West Institute inviting the Bay of Quinte Institute to attend a workshop from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sept. 26. Mrs. J Palmer, Mrs. Arnold Hutcheson and Mrs. Cecil Jeffery will attend.

Five dollars was to be made available to P.E.O. of Bay of Quinte Institute to send to this Institute's adopted Chinese boy for his birthday gift in December.

The meeting was turned over to the convener of historical research, Mrs. Rose Stickle.

"In the early days of Canadian history trade was conducted almost entirely on barter basis. This continued throughout the French period, but as the colony grew the need for a medium of exchange and the extreme shortage of metallic currency caused such substitutes as furs, tobacco and wheat to come into use as legal tender," said Mrs. Stickle.

The French monetary unit was adopted and gold and silver coins were imported from France. The first paper money was issued in 1686 in form of ent up playing cards with which the soldiers pay until the annual ship came from France. Later issues of this card were made without backing and confidence in the currency was sacrificed to undervaluation.

The next paper money in the form of government promissory notes, payable in coin, was issued in 1763 and there was an establishment of a uniform standard of valuation for the various coins in circulation by the British government. Spanish dollars in N.S. - 6 shillings, in N.Y., Montreal and Upper Canada, 7S, 6 pence or 8 shillings. These 2 ratings became known as the Halifax and York currencies.

In 1796 the Halifax currency was made the standard of the country. The York currency was used in Upper Canada until it was depraived of legal recognition in 1821.

In 1853 an act was passed which provided for the decimal system, having as its unit a dollar equal to the American dollar. In 1858 the first Canadian coins were struck from the British mint. By 1900 the decimal system was adopted by N.S. and N.B. paper money was advanced very slowly after 1763, but during the years of 1812, the British administration issued a form of paper money to finance its requirements. Not only did this relieve the shortage but renewed the interest of paper money allowing the early banks to issue notes in 1817.

The British North America Act gave the government control of money. The decimal system was adopted for the whole of Canada in 1871. The British sovereign became the standard coin, and the Canadian and U.S.A. dollar had the same gold content. In 1908 the Ottawa mint was a branch of the British mint and since that time Canadian coins have been made at home.

In 1931 the Ottawa mint was taken over by the Department of Finance which operates the Royal Canadian Mint. The convertability of Canadian currency into gold was suspended in 1933 In 1934 under the Bank of Canada Act, gold bullion was adopted as the standard.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: I went with a date and a group of other boys and girls to a dance last Saturday night. During the evening, many boys cut in, but of one point I was stuck with a chap who stepped all over my feet. He was a friend of my date and I didn't want to scene rude, but I finally suggested we leave the floor. I rejoined the group at our table, and a few of the girls, while sympathetic to my plight, seemed to think it was tasty of me to give him such a quick brush-off. What does one do when this happens. — E. F., Trenton, N. J.

Answer: When a partner has two left feet, a young lady may suggest they leave the floor, but it's kinder to suggest an alternative to dancing, like having a soft drink, or inviting him to the table to meet the rest of the group, or just sitting down to chat until the set ends and she may politely take him on her escort may claim her for the next dance.

BRIDESMAID AGAIN

Question: I've been a bridesmaid twice this year, and now a third good friend has asked me to be a bridesmaid again around Christmas. I haven't given her an answer yet, but it's been an expensive bridal year for me, and I don't see how I can manage it again, especially with Christmas presents to be bought at the same time. Is it impolite to refuse to take part in a friend's wedding? I don't want to hurt her feelings, but my bank account just can't support another bridal party and I don't have too. — C. S., Baltimore, Md.

Answer: It's not impolite to refuse, but it is impolite to keep a bride-to-be dangling for an answer so long, while she can't make final plans for wedding attendants and costumes. On a second acceptance, she can't make final plans for wedding attendants and costumes. On a second acceptance, she can't make final plans for wedding attendants and costumes. World Y.W.C.A. Past President Addresses U.C.W. Conference

"The Christian Woman and the World" was the theme of the Conference of the United Church Women of the Montreal-Ottawa Conference and the Bay of Quinte Conference meeting held at Ivy Lea, Ontario, on September 20, 21 and 22nd, the Guest speaker dealing with the theme was Miss Lilace Barnes, immediate past president of the World Y.W.C.A. and of the United States Y.W.C.A.

Sketching an broad terms the crises of today Miss Barnes said, "We are living in one of the small worlds of God's galaxy of worlds, where little children in elementary grades already have an acceptance of terms which adults and even college students cannot comprehend. Change is coming to man's perspective, and experience, new dimensions into which man's minds are being forced. We feel a terrible need sometimes to escape, she said, but we dare not, as Christians. The church is really ourselves at work in the world."

"In our world today there is division, hunger wherever we look; fear, uneasiness, insecurity which is really cruelty. Much of the struggle and fear is related to the opening of new doors. Privileges and powers of the few have become the property of many, and great problems are created; fundamental changes shake the structure of society. The change comes before we are ready to accept it — or use it wisely — economic tidal wave born of the deep hunger of people."

WORLD PROBLEM

Miss Barnes referred to the bitter antagonism of the women of Persia when the Shah banished veils; of today's racial problems; of Nigeria where she was present when British and African decided the matter would come at once though unready for it.

"We could not stop this tidal wave if we wanted to," she said. "We are caught up in it. We must guide it where we have wisdom, and risk giving the wrong kind of help; one must gamble if in the direction of growth; she referred to the cry of a woman in Rhodesia "Help us now in any way you can". There is a passionate hunger for dignity, independence, education, as for water in a thirsty land.

Miss Barnes said that the challenge to Christian women is to find their way behind the headlines, behind the Statesmen, where ordinary people (like us) live, hunger and fever are real. She spoke of sitting in a small group of women in a sea coast town in Africa. "You know all the coastal areas where the ships come in the slums are very bad, the mothers lack all feeling for work by day, the children run wild. The motherliness and neighborliness that being an African woman are gone; how can we transplant it?"

YOUNG LEADERS

Considering many countries, young and unsophisticated in world affairs, how young the leaders are! Often in their twenties, educated in other countries than their own; their wives women of dignity and distinction. Not with little outreach in underlands, their education standards not equal to their husbands. They are trying to preserve and safeguard the great qualities of their own land, and yet reach out.

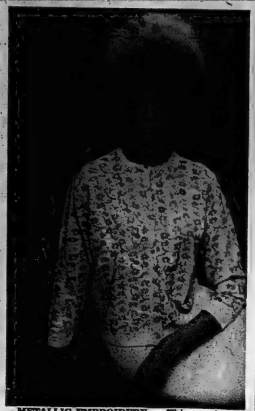
Nationalistic pressure is being put on young Christian women in Rhodesia, as citizens their patriotism measured - how may they keep freedom of perspective to work peacefully??

"In our land young people are no longer willing and able to accept the authority of the Christian faith of an earlier day; a new kind of listening and talking with young people is needed. They are baffled and frightened, and are caught up in the speed tensions of our time. Mobility problems present themselves. Our government stands, "I don't make any friends any more; I know lots of people — I join things we are given so much to leave friends. This is the price we pay for gathering people into our hearts - we leave something of ourselves behind but it is part of the glory of belonging to God's great family.

Suburban developments may present specific problems — school age children at school, husbands away from early morning, incredible numbers of young wives, probably college graduates, suffer from incredible boredom, in turn resulting in a variety of other problems such as daytime drinking and so on. Psychiatrists say that many sex problems are the result of differences in other areas. Divorces are often part of the picture.

VISITS CHUNG KING

The speaker flew into Chung King in the dry season, over the caves in the hills, to the valley below. If it had been the rainy season they would have landed on the hilltops, just rolling up the landing mats. So we must the Christian be able to transfer from one situation to another; the thing that is vital, a sound perspective where values are concerned.



Miss Barnes warned "Some quite ordinary people will build the future; will it be of walls to divide, with distrust and hate? It is peculiarly important for us as Christians to be aware of this. The whole way we live day by day decides how we build the future." Dr. Albert Swetzer was quoted as saying that great ideas come into the world as doves, with a faint flutter of wings.

The U.S. National Council of Y.W.C.A. took a stand on the race issue and representatives joined in the march on Washington. Miss Barnes spoke of her personal impressions as she joined in the march, where the Christian leadership in command held it in dignity and safety; it was bathed in glory, she said.

Seen on television Martin Luther King was not impossible to see small. Miss Barnes was on the plane on which he was a passenger from Chicago to Washington. So impressed was she, she asked to shake his hand at the Washington Airport, the slight before the march and felt the greatness of his spirit, a spirit she was sure neither he nor those leaning on him in earlier days were ever suspected he possessed.

Below he has taken people young and old, who risk their lives, go to places of danger with dignity and control. The speaker was present in a church where they were training to go to the countryside to canvass for volunteers to go to the pubs, and they had to promise they would demonstrate peacefully. They were taught how to protect themselves without fighting back; how to cover their heads with arms for protection; the words, my sons, the Anglo-Saxon race."

Discussion group sessions, led by prepared leaders, followed all addresses.

CHAPEL SERVICE

A chapel service was conducted on Sunday morning by Rev. D. D. Garnor, B.A., D.D. of Wall St. church, Brockville. Using the theme Christian Witness he said instead of emphasis on other lands today, we would be told first to take the gospel to the Anglo-Saxon race in Canada; Jesus would say "you know them - but them". In late years the frontier has been at home, the suburbs of the city, your sons, my sons, the Anglo-Saxon race."

During the business session $25 was voted to be sent to the anniversary fund.

A reading was given by Mrs. B. Haggart. and Mrs. William Donnan contributed a vocal solo. The meeting was closed with a hymn and prayer.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart R. Kennedy

When Rabbi Enzyx reached his latter years, he sat weeping one day amidst his assembled students. "Why do you weep, Master" they asked. "My pupils, the world to me," he said, "the Almighty will try me with questions. He will not ask me: 'Why have you not been like Moses' — for I am not Moses. Nor will He ask why I have not been like Isaiah — for I am not Isaiah. "Then why do you weep?" his distraught disciple asked. "Ah," sighed the Rabbi, "for He will ask me: 'Why have you not been Enzyx!' And what shall I answer?"

WILFUL OPINIONS

The Rabbi understood well the dilemma, even the tragedy of human affairs. Society bears in so heavily upon us that often it seems we can only fulfill ourselves by playing a role, acting a part, becoming something other than ourselves. It is not easy to hold firm to the image of what we, ourselves believe ourselves to be. Always, to be assignment given us by the wilful opinions and the false expectations of others, seems to transcend the call of our own fading voices.

We are expected to concentrate our energies on "making impressions," "winning friends" and "pleasing crowds."

We are made and unmade by those who surround us with their false affections, whose limited concern in us stretches no further than their own egos. And for their appeals, their smiles, their gratulations we scrape and bow, bend and kneel, contorting the form of our own personality that it may conform to their conception of what we ought to be. If to their own selves, and our own, we must be true, can we ever be true to anyone?

If I cannot learn to love my neighbor as himself — with a builtin guarantee that I will let him be himself — how can I ever learn to love my neighbor?

The vision is one another for what he is, and to refuse to condemn him for what he is not, consent to those who scrupulously criticize and defend their own uniqueness and will not barter it for the false prize of popularity.

SELF-CONCERN

But truth to tell, being true to ourselves alone is only a half-truth. We must consider self - concerns with a willingness to share ourselves with others. We must be ourselves, and yet, must be more than ourselves. There are all too many examples of men who justify their efforts only in terms of what it does for them. They forget that a man must not only be concerned with what he is doing for himself, but what he is doing to himself.

We have the moral duty to "love ourselves" — which is to say that if we will not esteem our own persons properly, we will never come to understand the need of others for our care and our concern for them. This is the lesson we learn from the human need for quality, only those who feel "equal" will perceive and know another man's passion for equality. But beware the man who believes that he is "more equal" than anyone else. Beware him whose self - esteem breeds self-worship, for his "love" is really a self - indulgence which divides rather than joins his links to the lives of others.

LOVE THY NEIGHBOR

We walk along the narrow line of a tight - rope; we must be to ourselves and yet never cease to be more than ourselves.

Perhaps this is the profound-er meaning of what seems like a simple commandment: "Love thy neighbor as thyself." Two people are always involved — we our alone — and always the esteem we have of ourselves must be linked to the love we share with others.

Flower Displays Are Demonstrated

Members of the Peterborough and District Gladiolus Society held their annual dinner meeting on Friday night in Peterborough when it was decided to donate $200 bulbs to the junior members of the society.

Mrs. Evelyn Bryant of Belleville discussed the importance of artistic displays when exhibiting at flower shows. She demonstrated various pointers on creations using driftwood as a base for arrangement.

Women's Institutes

FOXBORO W.I.

The president, Mrs. L. Trupp, was the hostess when the Foxboro Women's Institute met for their September meeting.

The meeting was opened in the usual way by the president and a variety of answers were given to "My Pet Peeve," by the seventeen members and five visitors present. An invitation from the Pine Grove Institute to attend their short course on "Women's Institute Procedures" was read, also a number of "thank you" cards and notes.

A notice from the Hospital Auxiliary regarding their fashion show resulted in some interesting facts about the work of the Auxiliary being given by Mrs. M. J. Weller.

It was decided to send $20.00 to be used for the Northern Institutes.

Mrs. Hayton took charge of the meeting and introduced Donna Moorcroft, a 4-H Club member, who gave her speech on her special project as a third year garden club member, "The Life of Senator Dimkin," since Donna's special project is a strawberry patch. Following Donna's humorous and interesting and informative speech Mrs. Hayton called on Sharon Lewis who had attended a 4-H Club girls conference in May. The theme of the conference was "A Girl and her Coat" gave some of the ways in which being a 4-H Club member could help a girl in her life's work or as a homemaker.

Since it had been stressed at the Officers' Conference in Coaldale, for Women's Institutes in June that all members be ladies convenor, Mrs. Skinner read from the handbook some of the material given there on the making of resolutions and matters of business.

Mrs. Schell read "The Postmaster" Lament," and closed that part of the program.

During the rest of the business it was decided to have discussion on the fireworks at a later date. A committee to make up a list of local activities was selected.

This meeting being under the convenorship of the "Resolutions convenor, Mrs. Skinner read from the handbook some of the material given there on the making of resolutions and drawing them up in a manner acceptable to the necessary authorities.

"Do not only make resolutions, keep them," was the motto given by Mrs. W. L. Johnston, saying in part, "Why make a resolution if you are not going to keep it?"

A delicious lunch was served of had a social half hour enjoyed.

Liberal Leader

The margin of the improved ...owing over 1959 lay in the 18 ...w seats fashioned out of ...nks of Metropolitan Toronto ...a redistribution this year. ...ey took eight of these—all in ...d Conservative territory ...while the other two parties ...ok one apiece.

Elsewhere, there were scat...ered gains and losses with the ...onservatives gaining seven ...om other parties and losing ...ix; the Liberals gaining five ...nd losing seven and the NDP ...aining two and dropping one.

All 16 ministers were re...urned with Premier Robarts, ...ho had a landslide win in Lon...on North, but a prominent fig...re in the government party ...as lost in Essex South in the ...efeat of William Murdoch, ...peaker of the last legislature. ...e was defeated by Liberal Don ...aterson.

The Conservatives also re...urned the first woman mem...er of the legislature since the ...efeat of Agnes Macphail, long...time CCF member, in 1951. She ...as Mrs. Ada Pritchard, 62-...ear-old Hamilton city senior ...controller, who held the Con...servative seat of the former la...bor minister, W. K. Warrender, ...a Hamilton Centre.

MACDONALD IMPROVES

NDP Leader Donald C. Mac...Donald coasted back in Yor...k's York South, winning his ...third election, but had his 1959 ...margin of 5,503 reduced to 3,557.

Premier Robarts backed up ...his victory as party leader with ...a overwhelming success in his ...own riding. He increased his ...margin to 8,288 from the 2,228...vote plurality he got in 1959 ...when he was minister of educa...tion.

Mr. Wintermeyer nosedived in ...Waterloo North as a 1959 plur...ality of 4,162 was transformed ...into a deficit of 2,737 in favor of ...Keith Butler, 43, owner of an ...insurance agency and a ...wounded veteran of the Second ...World War.

Mr. Butler, "semi - stunned," ...to be put it, after bringing down ...the biggest target among the ...enemy in his first try for pub...lic office, said he felt Liberal ...support for state-run pensions ...influenced voters in the insur...ance business to vote Conserva...tive in a district that has sev...eral large insurance firms em...bed in it. The Ontario govern...ment's controversial old age ...pension plan would operate ...through private firms.

Mr. Wintermeyer, native son ...of Kitchener in the Waterloo rid...ing and House member since ...1953, attributed his defeat partly ...to the fact that he spent little ...time in the constituency during ...the campaign as he hustled ...around the province during the ...last month.

The political blow followed by ...only a few hours a personal ...family upset when his father, ...Ward C. Wintermeyer, was ...taken to hospital gravely ill.

High - ranking supporters, in ...the first blunt postmortem, de...cided that the tough campaign ...waged by Mr. Wintermeyer ...reflected both locally and ...across the province.

Friends commented that the ...style of the campaign—heaping ...harsh criticism on the Robarts ...administration — destroyed Mr. ...Wintermeyer's home-town image ...as a personable, straight...laced politician.

Some argued that the leader ...received bad advice and sug...gested that Mr. Wintermeyer's ...image throughout the province ...had been distorted into that of ...a hack-raker.

The illness of Mr. Wintermeyer's father, 73, and his defeat in ...his home riding came within ...hours of each other. He arrived ...at party headquarters in Kitch...ener shortly after the polls ...closed, saying he had been ...beaten by his father's illness, ...and 45 minutes after the polls ...closed his defeat in his home ...riding became a certainty.

"I just can't understand it," ...the Liberal chief commented as ...he returned told the story. "We ...thought we were all right here. ...It's like being hit with a. . . ."

His voice trailed off.

Mr. Wintermeyer has been ...party leader since, taking over ...from Farquhar Oliver, an ...equally unsuccessful predeces...sor in 1958.

OLIVER WINS AGAIN

Mr. Oliver, now dean of the ...legislature by point of service ...having been first elected in 1926, ...was returned Wednesday as us...ual in Grey South.

It appeared possible he might ...act as temporary House leader ...during a session Premier Ro...barts intends to call next ...month, though there was some ...speculation the choice might be ...Arthur Reaume, Essex North ...veteran who held the seat.

Mr. Robarts' first move after ...his party's return was definite ...confirmation his intention of ...calling the session as soon as ...possible to pass legislation en...abling Ontario municipalities to ...obtain their $141,000,000 allot...ment of Parliament's $400,000,...000 Municipal Development ...Loan Fund. The session also ...would reconstitute legislature ...committees studying municipal ...law and excessive consumer ...credit interest rates.

Mr. Robarts, too, announced ...he wanted hypocrisy to be by...gones on the campaign uproar ...over Mr. Wintermeyer's ...charges — abetted by Federal ...Health Minister Judy LaMarsh ...—that he was trying to sabotage ...her government's Canada Pen...sion Plan. He reiterated that ...he is for co-operation with the ...federal government and without ...political partisanship.

His post-election plans call ...for continuing talks with the ...federal government to integrate ...Ontario's new pension plan into ...the federal scheme, but he had ...few other campaign promises ...on which he had to make good. ...His appeal to the electorate ...was directed almost solely on ...his record as head of the gov...ernment except for diversions ...where he slurred it out with ...Mr. Wintermeyer on attacks by ...the Liberal leader.

He had nothing to say about ...the NDP at all during his ...month of travel through the ...province in search of votes. He ...is recalled as having discussed ...that party only once, and that ...during a press conference when ...he was asked a question involv...ing it.

FERGUSON HAD RECORD

While Mr. Robarts managed ...to better the last election total ...of his predecessor, his mark of ...78 shpporters is far from a rec...ord. Conservative Premier G. ...Howard Ferguson led in ...members out of a House of 112 ...in 1929. Mr. Frost himself won ...94 of 98 in 1955.

But Mr. Robarts — the fourth ...straight Conservative premier ...in the last 20 years—outdid all ...his predecessors in votes ob...tained, passing the 1,000,000 ...mark for the first time. With 99 ...per cent of the polls tabulated ...he obtained 1,030,000 of 2,118,...586 votes. The previous record ...total was 1959's 1,876,014, of ...which Mr. Frost got 868,815.

The Conservatives got 49 per ...cent of the vote while the Lib...erals with 747,086 had 35 per ...cent. The NDP with 329,526 got ...16 per cent. The remaining ...votes went to miscellaneous ...candidates, with less than one ...per cent.

Lost deposits were the order ...of the day for the Communists, ...Social Crediters, Social Credit ...Action candidates, one inde...pendent Progressive Conserva...tive and unaffiliated independ...ents who rounded out the 337 ...candidates.

These included Bruce Mag...nuson, Ontario leader of the ...Communists, in Port Arthur; ...Neil Carmichael, described as ...Social Credit Action leader for ...this election, in Toronto St. ...George, and Gordon Lavergne, ...Progressive Conservative mem...ber of the last House who ran ...as an independent PC after be...ing dumped by the party lead...ership in Russell.

Mr. Lavergne had been men...tioned unfavorably in a report ...by governm e n t investigators ...into a report on municipal in...regularities in Eastview while ...he was mayor of that town. The ...official candidate, Bert Law...rence, beat him, first English ...Canadian to r e - ...French Russell in generations.

In the metropolitan Toronto ...area there were some cheer for ...all three major parties in the ...big block of 30 seats comprising ...Toronto and the York. Snap...ping back from its defection to ...the Liberals in the last Federal ...election, "Tory Toronto" gave ...20 seats to the Conservatives—...including the eight from the new ...10—five to the Liberals and four ...to the NDP.

NEGRO WINS

The one Liberal seat among ...the new ridings — Etobicoke—...went to Leonard A. Braithwaite, ...29-year-old Negro lawyer and ...first of his race ever elected to ...the Ontario legislature. He is a ...member of the Etobicoke Town...ship council.

Fred Young took the new rid...ing of Yorkview for the NDP, ...and Stephen Lewis, 26, son of ...national vice - president David ...Lewis, unseated YorkWest from ...the Conservatives.

Another notable win in the ...Metro area was that of Progres...sive Conservative Edward Dun...lop, blinded while winning the ...George Medal for heroism in ...the Second World War, who took ...the new Forest Hill seat.

Sports notables had their ups ...and downs. Progressive Con...servative Syl Apps, former star ...of Toronto hockey Maple ...Leafs, held Kingston in his first ...bid for provincial office after ...losing once in the federal field. ...Joe Krol, one-time kicking ace ...of the football Argonauts, ran as ...a Conservative in York West, ...losing to Stephen Lewis.

They seemed to take comfort from Mr. Robarts' promise to work closely with Ottawa on a workable pension plan and the $400,000,000 federal municipal loans program.

Both are cherished projects of the minority Liberal govern...ment which won parliamentary approval of the loans program before Parliament took a sum...mer recess.

Health Minister Judy La...Marsh, who campaigned in On...tario on the portable pension plan, brings it before Parlia...ment when the session resumes Monday. Her campaign battles with Mr. Robarts on the ques...tion may be warmed over in the Commons by jubilant Conserva...tives.

LaMARSH COMMENTS

On the fate of the pension plan, which she has said would have to be abandoned without Ontario support, Miss La...Marsh commented:

"It's too early to say what's going to happen. We'll have to wait and see."

Liberals and Conservatives were agreed on one thing—the Conservative MPs would be heartened and more lively as a result of the Ontario election.

One Conservative called it the best news for the party since the April 8 federal election which ended a six-year Conserv...ative term in office and ushered in a minority Liberal govern...ment here.

A Liberal figured the Con...servative MPs would display "vicarious bounce" in Parlia...ment. But he didn't consider this would mean the minority government would be any less determined to win parliamen...tary approval of its plans.

SOCIAL CREDIT SPLIT

The basis of his thinking was that since Parliament recessed one of the three opposition groups—Social Credit—has split into two which might make it harder for opposition groups to combine to alter or defeat gov...ernment proposals.

He suggested that any new Conservative bounce may be offset by the difficulties of get...ting co-operation among four opposition groups rather than the three were before the sum...mer recess.

The Conservatives took spe...cial pleasure from the Conserv...ative preserve in federal elec...tions, Toronto swung sharply Liberal last April 8.

Conservatives contend that the efforts of Liberal cabinet ministers on behalf of provin...cial colleagues in the Toronto area proved to be a liability in Wednesday's voting.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1963

Wintermeyer's Personal Defeat in Waterloo May End Liberal Leadership

KITCHENER (CP) — John Wintermeyer offered his resignation today as leader of the Ontario Liberal party in the wake of a crushing defeat in Wednesday's election.

The Kitchener lawyer who sped to the leadership of the Ontario Liberal party in three years met his Waterloo in a riding of the same name in the space of an hour.

Waterloo North riding voters, who first elected him in 1953 by more than 2,000 votes and doubled the winning margin in 1959, spurned him this time in favor of political initiate Keith Butler, a war-wounded insurance agent who won by almost 2,000 votes in a total poll of more than 39,000.

Voters elsewhere in the province were just as decisive in rejecting the Liberals, sharply reducing the party's weight in an enlarged provincial legislature.

DOOMED POLITICALLY

Mr. Wintermeyer, grey-haired but trim and fit at 46, thus sacrificed doomed politically as the electorate apparently put paid to his leadership.

He won the leadership in 1958 after three years in the legislature and an apprenticeship at Notre Dame, Harvard and Dalhousie Universities and law.

The political blow was compounded by anxiety in the family. His father, millionaire investor Alfred C. Wintermeyer, 73, was sent to hospital three hours before the polls closed for surgical treatment of a perforated hernia.

The elder Wintermeyer, who suffered a stroke two years ago and was confined to a wheelchair, was said to be in grave condition late Wednesday but his condition was described by the hospital early today as "satisfactory."

The Liberal leader conceded defeat in his home riding within an hour of poll-closing and formally recognized the Progressive Conservative victory in Ontario at 9:38 p.m.

Gloom settled quickly into the crowded hotel ballroom that was Ontario Liberal headquarters for the evening.

In Waterloo North, which takes in the twin cities of Kitchener and Waterloo and Mennonite farmland to the north, the first poll reporting gave Mr. Wintermeyer 40 votes to 31 for Mr. Butler and 19 for New Democrat Morley Rosenberg, a student lawyer.

TREND TO PCs

Thereafter the trend was to the Conservatives.

Mr. Wintermeyer maintained his composure and his ready smile in the face of political destruction, congratulating his opponents both locally and province-wide.

"There is another day and there'll be another fight," he said. But he declined to comment at his one political future before he left headquarters shortly before midnight for an attempt at a night's sleep.

Mr. Butler, who helped organize the defeat of his brother Bill to city council at the top of the poll on his first try in 1960, spent Liberal headquarters to accept congratulations.

"I'm delighted and semi-stunned," he said in an interview. He attributed his success to a good door-knocking organization, the support of the local insurance industry and the backing of war veterans.

"The industry in which I work was with me completely," he said in reference to the big insurance companies of Waterloo. He said the support was in votes rather than funds.

Mr. Butler, who lost his right right leg above the knee in Normandy during the Second World War, is one of five Dominion Council members of the War Amputees Association.

The 43-year-old Conservative said he felt Liberal support for a state - run federal pensions program and criticism of Premier Robarts' plan for privately-operated pensions "influenced insurance people" to vote Conservative.

RESULT SHOCKS

Senior Liberal organizers were shocked by the result. One top campaign manager said before the polls closed that he saw 45 of the 106 ridings as "certain" for the Liberals, with a good possibility that at least 53 confidencetwo would support the party.

Kitchener friends of Mr. Wintermeyer blamed bad advice for the defeat, claiming that his true personality as a warm, straight-forward politician was distorted by the hard - hitting campaign thrust upon him.

But one of the men who helped map Liberal campaign strategy said that if it had to be done all over again, the situation would still call for a similar kind of hard-nosed line.

"It's simple," he said. "Political parties don't win office, they are turned out of office. The voters have to feel personally threatened by the party in power if they're going to turn it out.

"On the crime issue, nobody was getting shot at and nobody's daughter was being forced to use narcotics.

"Nobody got excited about pensions. Talk to a factory worker and he'll tell you: 'I've got a company pension.'"

He announced his action at a press conference in his home, reading the text of a brief letter of resignation sent to Robert Nixon, president of the Ontario Liberal Association.

"I feel that I should leave no doubt in the mind of the party or the public as to my position after the events of yesterday's conclusive result," he wrote.

"In order to assure the opportunity for the party's success and the party to undertake those changes that are required as a result of the election I am tendering my resignation as leader of the Liberal party in Ontario."

Mr. Wintermeyer said it was "extremely unlikely" that he would continue as leader of the party. But he added:

"I don't want it suggested that I am forever giving up public life."

He said his immediate plan is to reorganize his personal affairs and find some activity outside of public life.

He said the election results "came as a surprise—all indications were that the party would do extremely well.

Two Veteran House Members Are Returned

TORONTO (CP) — Two veteran members of the legislature — with the nicknames of "the Vicar of Duntroon" and the "golden Voice of Grey South" — were returned to Queen's Park in Wednesday's Ontario election.

Farquhar Oliver, 59, twice former leader of the Liberal party in the province and long regarded as one of the smoothest orators in Ontario politics, won Halton-Peel riding for the fourth time. He has been sitting in the legislature since 1926.

Earl Rowe, 68, Conservative, Rev. A. W. (Wally) Downer, also 59, was re-elected for the sixth consecutive time since capturing the riding in 1937.

The two are the only remaining members of the legislature elected before the Second World War.

Mr. Oliver, now a semi-retired farmer at Priceville, entered the provincial legislature at the age of 22 as a member of the United Farmers of Ontario, and the youngest man ever to sit in the Ontario house. He became a Liberal in 1941 when late premier Mitch Hepburn invited him into the cabinet as minister of both public works and public welfare.

He became Liberal leader for a brief period in the late 1940s, resigned the job and then was elected leader again in 1954. He held the post finally in 1958.

Mr. Downer is an insurance agent and has been Anglican minister of the village church at Duntroon since 1935.

He was an army chaplain in the First World War and was first elected and re-elected in 1943 while overseas. He was appointed Speaker of the legislature in 1945 and held the post until 1960, when he was given a cabinet position with the Liquor Control Board of Ontario.

PROTEST 'CHARITY'

CINCINNATI (AP) — About 1,000 members of the U.S. Printing and Lithographing Company walked off their jobs Wednesday night in a wildcat strike to protest against forced contributions to organized charity. Wilmer Howard, president of Local 98 of the United Papermakers and Paperworkers, said company officials h.a threatened to reprimand workers who did not contribute.

VICTORY for Elmer Sandercock, once again Conservative MLA for West Hastings came little more than an hour after the polls closed. Above he returns well wishes with supporters as he arrived to hear news at Belleville committee rooms.

Premier Lesage Says Advertising Creates Needs

MONTREAL (CP) —Premier Lesage said today that advertising creates needs and excites appetites which not all citizens can satisfy.

"The people are then tempted to call upon the state and the community to provide the goods that advertising offers them, and which they cannot obtain immediately by themselves," he told the Newspaper Advertising Managers' Association of Eastern Canada.

"This is a very great danger, a very real danger that the future of advertising represents," the premier said, "not only in our Western society which is abundantly provided for, but in a world in which people are still, generally speaking, unable to possess all the plenty that advertising puts before their eyes."

He said if advertising, "which today is almost all-powerful," would combine its efforts to spreading human values "which are the aim of true progress," as well as to spending material appetites, "the face of the world could find itself changed."

Premier Lesage said commercial advertising in all its forms, and particularly in the newspapers, is one of the most dynamic and essential elements in the economic life of a country.

Liberal MPs Arrange for Caucus Setup

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal MPs are aiming at strengthening their voice in the councils of government with a new caucus setup to be brought into being at a special conference later this week.

Guy Rouleau, chairman of the Liberal caucus and MP for Montreal Dollard, announced Wednesday the convening of a special caucus conference Sept. 27-28 prior to next Monday's reopening of Parliament.

Mr. Rouleau was instrumental in organizing the caucus of Liberals MPs from Quebec during the last Parliament into a united and a stronger voice through a system of provincial caucus committees.

The system worked well and is generally credited with playing a major part in influencing Prime Minister Pearson, as opposition leader last December, to backtrack in the Commons a royal commission inquiry into the whole question of bilingualism and biculturalism.

The Quebec caucus also is said to have played a similar role in convincing Mr. Pearson and the cabinet to call a federal-provincial conference earlier this year to discuss its municipal loans and development legislation with the provinces.

Put Partisanship Aside Says Robarts in Message

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Following is the text of a statement by Premier John Robarts after the Progressive Conservatives were assured of victory in Wednesday's Ontario election:

I need hardly tell you that I am deeply gratified by the result of today's contest and I desire to express my appreciation and my heartfelt thanks to those who have made our success possible.

First of all to the men and women, the young people and pensioners, illness who went to the polls in such large numbers to register their approval of our progressive policies, to our 108 standard-bearers and to the thousands of devoted campaign workers who labored with such zeal and enthusiasm in carrying our message to the people.

I should like to express my special thanks to my cabinet colleagues who have shared the responsibility of government with me and who have always given me such loyal support.

To all those who were victorious and regardless of party affiliation, I extend my warmest congratulations.

SOURCE OF REGRET

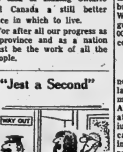
It is, of course, a source of deep regret to me that some of our own candidates as well as those of other parties, experienced defeat, which comes to all of us at one time or another—but knowing them as I do, I am confident that they will not withhold their talents and their services from the province to which they have given so much of their lives but will find other ways of playing their part in working for the welfare of Ontario and of Canada.

Now that the election battle is over let us put whatever bitterness that may have developed aside. Let us put the accent on our Canadianism and the emphasis on the things that need to be done to move Canada forward. Let us make Ontario's 27th legislature the greatest in our history.

I assure you that I do not regard the mandate we have received today as a mere personal triumph—or even as a party triumph—but rather as an opportunity and a challenge to do a still better job for Ontario and for Canada.

I am extremely anxious to keep partisanship out of federal-provincial relations. It is my desire that we should work closely together as allies in a common cause and not as adversaries in a perpetual jurisdictional dispute. We must at all cost avoid any action that would place the two levels of government on collision course.

WILL CO-OPERATE



I repeat again my offer of full co-operation to Mr. Pearson and I repeat again that while we regard it as our first responsibility to keep Ontario strong we are equally determined to do all in our power to keep Canada strong.

We shall never pursue a narrow "go it alone" policy but will continue to work in concert with our sister provinces and the federal government in developing those forward-looking policies which will open up a great new era of progress for ourselves and for all Canadians.

Let us, therefore, put partisanship aside and put the needs of our country first. Let us devote ourselves united to the task of making Ontario and Canada a still better place in which to live.

For after all our progress as a province and a nation must be the work of all the people.

"Jest a Second"

"He doesn't look very way out' to me."

How Prominent Candidates Fared in Ont. Election

TORONTO (CP)—How prominent candidates fared in Wednesday's Ontario election:

Robert Macaulay, 43, minister both of energy resources and of economics and development was reported re-elected in Toronto Riverdale 35 minutes after polls closed.

Major Franklin J. Miller of Niagara Falls, running as Progressive Conservative, was defeated by Liberal George Bukator, member since 1958.

Agriculture Minister William Stewart, 48-year-old farmer, returned in Middlesex North which he won in a 1957 byelection.

George Wardrope, mines minister since 1961, was re-elected in Port Arthur.

Ontario Communist Party Leader Bruce Magnuson was defeated in Port Arthur by Mines Minister George Wardrope.

John Yaremko, whose provincial secretary's department was under constant campaign, fire, was returned for a fourth term in Toronto Bellwoods.

Transport Minister Irwin Haskett was re-elected in Ottawa South.

Stephen Lewis, 26-year-old son of David Lewis, national vice-president of the NDP, took Scarborough West from the Conservatives, and also defeated Liberal Joe Krol, member of five Toronto Argonaut Grey Cup teams.

Kenneth Bryden, former deputy labor minister in Saskatchewan, retained Toronto Woodbine for the NDP.

Haldimand - Norfolk returned Provincial Treasurer James Allan for a fourth term.

Allan Murdoch, speaker of the last legislature, was defeated in Essex South by Liberal Dorr Paterson.

Lands and Forests Minister Keiso Roberts, controversial forestry-general, was returned in Toronto St. Patrick.

Edward Sargent, 44, who won the George Medal and was blinded during Second World War, captured Toronto Forest Hill, a new seat, for the Conservatives.

Dr. Matthew B. Dymond, health minister since 1958, was returned in Ontario riding.

Murray Cotterill, public relations director of United Steelworkers of America and New Democratic candidate, defeated in Toronto Lakeshore by Conservative Alan Eagleson.

James Auld, appointed travel and publicity minister a few days before the election was announced, re-elected to a fourth term.

Municipal Affairs Minister Wilfrid Spooner, first elected in Cochrane South in 1955, returned.

Charles MacNaughton, named highways minister a year ago, was returned in Huron.

Two New Ships Are Built To Haul Tuna to Fishery

By DAVE BUTLER

CAMPOBELLO, N.B. (CP)—The New Brunswick Fishermen's Loan Board is participating in a scheme designed to establish a 1,000-boat commercial tuna fishery in Charlotte County on the Bay of Fundy.

Two 50-foot steel stern-seiners have been provided for two groups of Campobello Island fishermen at a cost of $200,000 each and have been equipped with the latest in navigation and fish-detection devices. They will be built in Bathurst, N.B., under a federal cost-sharing program.

Employing 30 men, the two vessels—Green Waters and Blue Waters—will haul 300 tons—of skipjack and bluefin tuna every two weeks to a converted sardine cannery at Eastport, Me., operated by a U.S. firm, Cape Cod Tuna Corp.

When the operation reaches capacity later this summer, more than 100 persons will be employed in all phases, most of them in the processing plant.

Medford Matthews, veteran herring and mackerel captain, estimates his boat can make a round trip to the fishing grounds off Long Island, N.Y., and New Bedford, Mass., every two weeks.

Catches, which will range from 125 to 200 tons, will sell for as much at $125 a ton depending on the quality and species of tuna. At these rates a vessel could gross $25,000 a trip.

Residents of Campobello Island, who will benefit most from the new industry, have been forced in the past to rely on the herring and groundfish industry which is plagued by a scarcity both in catches and market.

Stuart Hahn, general manager of the Maine plant that processes the fish, says his company will process all fish caught by the Canadian ships.

Mr. Hahn says two 120-foot tuna seiners from San Diego, Calif., are also supplying fish to the Eastport plant "to supplement the Canadian catch." The ships are helped in locating schools of tuna by long-based aircraft from the United States.

Connors Bros., one of the world's largest processor of sea herring, located at Black's Harbor, N.B., 10 miles from Whitehead Beach where the tuna seiners are based, has indicated it will not enter the commercial tuna field, at present anyway.

Greatest Joys in Life Are Postponed Pleasures

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The greatest joys in life are postponed pleasures—the things you dream about now and may get around to doing later.

Here is one man's catalogue of things he'll like to do—if somebody would only leave him $1,000,000, or if he simply weren't too darn busy doing something else:

Run a motel in Timbuktu.

Serve a hitch as a sergeant in the Foreign Legion.

Throw the winning 70-yard pass in a pro football game.

Learn how to drive an automobile and cheat successfully at poker.

Find a glamorous, red-haired girl under 70 who could manage to fall head over heels in love with a middle-aged fat man—me.

Meet a girl with any color of hair who found a man who smokes cigars irresistible.

Have a cigar store Indian for my very own.

Find a lifelong friend who never needed to borrow money.

THE LOVE KNOTS

Spend a year on the island of Bali practising the difficult art of tying love knots with flowers in long, dark feminine locks.

Eat a pomegranate.

Sue a landlord. Landlords have been threatening to sue me ever since I was 13 years old.

Buy a golf course, fill up all the holes and just walk around admiring the birds.

Get a job selling brassieres on the island of Pogo Pogo, or land the hamburger concession at the Taj Mahal.

Invent an umbrella for men that would attack on sight all women carrying umbrellas.

Give a $10,000 bill to a bus driver—and watch him break his heart trying to give me change for that in nickels.

Break the bank at Monte Carlo—then come back the next night and break it a few more times over again.

These are my pet daydreams. What are yours?

Davie Fulton, PC Leader In B.C., Has Fight on Hands

VICTORIA (CP)—The entry of E. Davie Fulton into British Columbia politics raises a number of interesting questions that will be answered by the Sept. 30 election.

Will he lead his Progressive Conservative party out of the political wilderness to form the government or official opposition?

Or will he simply split the free enterprise vote so much that the New Democratic Party will be elected?

Mr. Fulton, a Kamloops lawyer who served as justice and works minister in the Diefenbaker government, took over the provincial leadership this year.

Not for 10 years, since Dr. Larry Giovando, has a Conservative been elected to the legislature. In the 1960 election, Conservatives ran last in half the 52 constituencies, not once coming close to winning. In several ridings, however, the difference between Social Credit and the NDP was only a few score or few hundred votes.

NDP members say Mr. Fulton's revitalized Conservative forces may draw some votes from the Social Credit, leaving the socialists with a winning margin.

HAS TOUGH FOE

In addition to leading his party throughout the province, Mr. Fulton is fighting a battle of giants in his home constituency of Kamloops.

The area, which includes part of the district he represented in Parliament for 18 years, is represented in the legislature by Highways Minister Gaglardi, a colorful campaigner. Mr. Gaglardi, a Pentecostal Assemblies minister, and Mr. Fulton have always won easily in their respective ridings in the past and the clash of the two is being watched with interest.

In seeking provincial power, Mr. Fulton is following family tradition. His father, Frederick John Fulton, was provincial secretary, attorney-general and minister of works in the Sir Richard McBride cabinet from 1901 to 1909.

Grandfather A. E. B. Davie and great uncle Theodore Davie were premiers from 1897 to 1899 and 1892 to 1895 respectively. C. F. Davie, an uncle, was Speaker of the legislature.

A native of Kamloops, the 47-year-old Mr. Fulton was educated in Victoria, Kamloops and at Oxford where he studied on a Rhodes Scholarship from the University of British Columbia.

He served with the Seaforth Highlanders in Italy and at 1st Division headquarters during the Second World War.

He is married and has three daughters.

SPORTS

Sport Slices . . .

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Call an OHA hockey meeting anywhere between Ball Hall, Vhtsann, Ahtsvil and Timbuctoo—and sooner or later he'll show up.

He testhed on a hockey stick and broke his first window when he heaved a puck out of his crib.

He is the Marco Polo of the hockey highways and byways. He'd ship his wedding anniversary if the call came to organize or assist in the organization of anything that resembles a hockey league.

Lorne Cook

They tell me he is so infiltrated with the hockey virus that he has blue lines running crosswise of his chest and stomach.

I dropped in to watch and hear the junior-intermediate hockey meeting here the other night—and sensed something was missing. I couldn't remember at the time what it was until he popped his good-looking mug through a doorway.

There he was as debonair as ever, the big smile creasing his youthful face, the brief case as much part of him as a bundle of a Victorian dowager, tucked under his arm and a wave of the hand to everybody.

He is Lorne Cook, Eastern Ontario's "Mr. Hockey," past president of the Ontario Hockey Association, sportsman, gentleman, good fellow, a fine friend and as natural a candidate for the OHA Hall of Fame (if they get one) as ever breathed the smoky atmosphere of a committee room.

He's been mixed up in hockey since the days he had to look up to see a man's knee. He is highly intelligent, probably as a result of residing in Belleville for some years before going to Kingston.

He is retired from what one may call active participation in administrative hockey but keeping Cookie out of this phase of the game is like trying to keep a New York cop out of a St. Patrick's Day parade.

Come to think of it he did "shu" one OHA meeting. He happened to be with our party in Czechoslovakia in 1959 at the time—but I'll be damned if he didn't attend a meeting of the International Federation of Ice Hockey as an accredited member of the OHA. You can't keep this kind of a "Cookie" in a jar, if hockey is outside the kitchen.

He has fought hard and well for hockey in Eastern Ontario.—Nor has he ever let his district teams, or clubs, down if fighting for them will get what he thinks is right.

When professional hockey "died" in Kingston, local sportsmen looked back to the senior brand. They reckoned with Lorne and reckoned right. He turned the Ottawa Valley district seeking out clubs and fighting for entry for a Kingston club. He was successful.

As was said, Lorne popped up at the hockey meeting here the other night like a piece of well browned toast. He went into a huddle with delegates and the result was the formation and organization of a district intermediate "B" five-team circuit. Wotinell else could you expect with a guy like Cook skippering the organizational craft?

He has travelled thousands of miles in his hockey safaris. For years he never took annual vacations, taking the time off in winter to look after his beloved hockey.

He was a prime favorite of newspapermen and newsmen of other outlets. He was always willing to cooperate, but gave out straight facts with no trimmings and asking no personal credit.

During his terms as OHA president Lorne was as loyal as an aging hound dog to his organization, his clubs and his executive. He showed no favors believing what was fair for the people was fair for the clubs. Overall he worked for the good of hockey as a sport, its furtherance and betterment.

He seldom missed a game in his district. He attended many, not as an OHA official but for his sheer love of the sport. True he had a soft spot for Belleville for many times after this city's clubs were the-class playdown team in the district, Lorne stoked the Cook "thunderbird" and took off for the Old Lady of the Moira.

Like Ole Man River, Lorne keeps on rollin' along. The other night he looked the picture of health. I hope the picture doesn't fade for a host of years. Eastern Ontario amateur hockey just can't afford to lose a man like "Cookie."

N.H.L. Exhibitions

Four National Hockey League teams cut "figure eights" on the ice Wednesday night to win exhibition games against minor league opposition.

In St. Catharines, Chicago Black Hawks whipped Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League 9-2, and in Providence the Boston Bruins beat Rhode Island Reds of the AHL by the same score.

Detroit Red Wings ran over Pittsburgh Hornets, also of the AHL, by an 8-1 score in Johnstown Pa., and Toronto Maple Leafs visited Edmonton to bury the Western Hockey League's San Francisco Seals by the same 8-1 score.

Four players shared in the Chicago scoring—forwards Reg Fleming, Billy Hay, Bobby Hull, Chico Maki, Len Lunde and Ken Wharram, and defencemen Howie Young and Elmer Vasko.

Former United States Olympic star Tommy Williams led the Bruin scoring with two goals and two assists.

For Detroit, Gordie Howe continued his hot scoring pace with three goals and a pair of assists.

Mays Bounces Back, Could Win Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Watch Willie Mays, baseball's bounciest convalescent. He may be the first guy to win a batting title with an off-year.

The San Francisco Giants' centre fielder, who fought through a protracted slump and then was forced into a four-game layoff with nervous exhaustion early this month, is on a hitting streak.

Willie went four-for-four Wednesday—a triple, two doubles and a single—although the Giants were beaten by Philadelphia Phillies 6-4.

Mays was hitting .301 when he was sidelined, and in a phenomenal climb since then, has raised his average to .317. He's currently on a 13-game hitting streak, 23-for-53 and a .472 clip.

Ahead of Mays in the scramble for the National League batting crown are:

Defending champion Tommy Davis of the pennant-winning Los Angeles Dodgers—he's at .333 after two singles in three trips in a 1-0 triumph over New York Mets. Sandy Koufax won his 25th in that one, and became the fourth pitcher in major league history to strike out 300 in one season.

GETS TWO HITS

Dick Groat of St. Louis Cardinals—batting .320 after two hits in five tries as the second-place Cardinals ended a six-game losing string by beating Chicago Cubs 5-2.

Orlando Cepeda of the Giants, whacked a three-run homer in four appearances and has a .319 mark.

Hank Aaron of Milwaukee Braves—got his 43rd homer for a .318 average, helping Warren Spahn beat Cincinnati Reds 9-5.

Spahn, 22-7 for the year and with 340 victories in a magnificent career, also homered.

And Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh Pirates—went four-for-four in a 2-1 defeat at Houston and slipped to .318.

New York's American League champion Yankees took only one hour and 36 minutes to dispose of Los Angeles Angels 9-1. Jim Bouton warmed up for a World Series start with a seven-inning workout for his 21st victory.

Bob Severine, in his last game before starting a six - month army hitch, got three hits and batted in two runs in leading Baltimore Orioles to a 10-3 romp over Chicago.

Also in the AL—Ken Retser, a .227 batter, rapped out four hits and knocked in five runs, leading Washington Senators to a 6-3 victory over Detroit Tigers, and Ed Charles' sacrifice fly in the seventh inning delivered the clinching run as Kansas City Athletics edged Boston Red Sox 7-6. Minnesota and Cleveland were not scheduled. Koufax worked five shutout innings in the Dodgers' close one over the Mets, with eight strikeouts extending his NL record to 308.

Froehling Davis Cup Starter

BOURNEMOUTH, England (AP)—The Americans sprung a big surprise and named bullet-serving Frank Froehling III along with Wimbledon champion Chuck McKinley for opening singles matches against Britain Thursday in the Interzone Davis Cup semi-finals.

McKinley will meet Britain's hard-hitting Mike Sangster in the first match, to be followed by a battle between six-foot-four Froehling and the left-handed Billy Knight.

Ex-Giant Jailed for Ten Years

HOUSTON (AP)—In a quiet courtroom, Hank Thompson, former New York Giant third baseman, received a 10-year prison sentence Wednesday.

Thompson, now 30, had entered a plea of guilty to charges of robbery, burglary and felony theft.

"This is one of the toughest sentences I have ever had to pass on anyone," said Judge John Barron.

"You are still a young man," Barron told Thompson, one of the first Negroes to play in the major leagues. "You have a great past and you still have lots of friends. Keep your prison record clean and I'll give you all the help I can."

Thompson, arrested in July, was charged with taking pistols from a friend's print shop and using the guns while taking $150 from a liquor store.

With time off for good behavior, Thompson will become eligible for parole in about four years.

MOORE HURT

MONTREAL (CP) — Dickie Moore, who retired last week as a member of Montreal Canadiens because of recurrent knee injuries, was operated on Wednesday for a compound fracture of the knee—suffered when a rotating wheel in his equipment shop suddenly shattered and a piece of the wheel flew across and struck him. He will spend a few days in hospital. The knee was placed in a cast and will remain there for probably six weeks.

Perranoski Gives Dodgers Hill Edge

Koufax, Ford Starters

NEW YORK (AP) — Four years ago it was Larry Sherry. This time it may be Ron Perranoski.

When Los Angeles Dodgers last represented the National League in a World Series in 1959, their star was Sherry, a relief pitcher. He turned in a king-sized effort, working in all four games won by the Dodgers over Chicago White Sox, picking up two victories and saving two.

When the Dodgers open the 1963 series against New York Yankees in Yankee Stadium next Wednesday, Perranoski will be their relief ace in the hole.

The lefthander gives the Dodgers an edge over the Yanks both in pitching. He has been an effective stopper all season, appearing in 42 per cent or 66 of his team's first 157 games. He has a 16-3 record, an earned run average of 1.73 and a couple of dozen saves.

The best Yankee reliever, righthander Hal Reniff, has been the match for Perranoski on the regular season's performance. He has a 6-3 mark and a 3.19 ERA.

Most prominent among other series relievers will be Ralph Terry, whose 1-0 victory over San Francisco Giants in the seventh game gave the Yanks the 1962 title. Terry has been relegated to the bullpen by manager Ralph Houk although only one of his 37 appearances this year has been in the relief role.

There isn't much to choose between the starters, Sandy Koufax, Johnny Podres and Don Drysdale for Los Angeles and Whitey Ford, Al Downing and Jim Bouton for New York.

The opening game will match Koufax, the best pitcher in baseball, and Ford, the pitcher with the best series record in history.

Koufax has won 25 games. He has the most complete games, 20; the most shutouts, 11, and the most strikeouts, 306, in the majors. In series competition he is 0-1 with two appearances against the White Sox in 1959.

Ford won 20 games for the second time in a fine career. The veteran southpaw holds series records for most victories; 8; innings pitched, 128 2-3; strikeouts, 82, and consecutive scoreless innings, 33 2-3.

Officials Back Referees

Mann Cup Final Under Control

CORNWALL (CP) — According to its convenors, the Mann Cup lacrosse final is under control.

Wally Cattell of Dundas, Ont., co-convenor with Jerry Johnston, also of Dundas, said Wednesday he won't be stampeded by any threats from Vancouver Carlings.

Vancouver's coach, Alex MacKay, and president Bill Ellison, both have said the team won't play tonight's sixth game if the referees are the same two as last Tuesday.

They contended after that game, won 9-6 by St. Catharines Athletics, that the officiating of Bill Frick of St. Catharines and Gord Hammond of Port Credit, Ont., was "absolutely inefficient."

The loss cut Vancouver's lead to 3-2 in the best-of-seven series. They won the first three games 19-3, 11-5 and 12-7 before losing last Sunday 19-12.

"They're referring by Ontario rules, not by Canadian Lacrosse Association rules," said Ellison. "We are certainly looking for a chance Thursday night."

Cattell was non-committal. He said the referees will not be announced until just before game time, in keeping with CLA policy.

HAS FAITH

"At the moment I can only say that we have every faith in our officials," he added. "I think they have handled the games competently."

It also appeared that threats of suspensions to Vancouver players John Cervi and Fred Usselman will not materialize, at least no before tonight.

Both received two misconduct penalties Tuesday night, including one each during a scuffle with the referees just after the game ended.

"We are still considering the two cases," said Cattell. "But at the moment neither man has been suspended."

LACKED MEDICAL AID

KESWICK, England (Reuters) — A Britishper's daughter who died at home three weeks after a riding accident received only Christian Science assistance, a coroner was told at an inquest here Wednesday. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death for Bryony Kemp, 16-year-old daughter of Lord and Lady Rochdale. She died last week after fracturing her skull.

City Hockey Meeting Tonight

Belleville hockey enthusiasts are reminded of the City League's all-important organization meeting, scheduled for the Recreation Centre, tonight at eight o'clock.

If sufficient interest is shown, an effort will be made to expand the league, which will be starting its second season. Four teams took part last year.

President Cliff Belch says tonight's meeting will be an open one so if you are interested in any phase of the league, from executive work to sponsoring or managing, get out and have your say tonight.

Last year's entries have received invitations and are especially urged to have representation this evening, at eight.

East York Wins Over Oakville

TORONTO (CP)—East York Argonauts made good breaks and a strong rushing attack pay off Wednesday night for a 27-10 Ontario Rugby Football Union victory over Oakville Black Knights.

East York scored a pair of touchdowns on a fumble and an intercepted pass and ran for 288 yards to Oakville's 68 to overcome the passing arm of Oakville quarterback Gerry Doucette.

With negligible support from his offensive line, Doucette completed 16 of 29 passes for 307 yards.

Gerry Burrows led the Argonaut attack with a pair of touchdowns, one a 45-yard run from scrimmage and the other a 35-yard return of an intercepted pass.

Brian Aston scored a five-yard touchdown and a single on a wide field goal attempt. Charlie Hatfield ran 27 yards after a fumble for a touchdown, and John Vilanus added a pair of converts for East York.

Als Plunger Gets Chance

Burket To Replace Clark

By JOE DUPUIS

MONTREAL (CP) — Good news came to fullback Ferdie Burket Wednesday in the form of bad news for halfback Don Clark.

Burket, a powerful plunger and kicker who set a Western Football Conference punting record in 1961, learned he's finally going to get in some actual football playing with Montreal Alouettes.

Clark has been declared out of action for the rest of the season because of a leg injur., and there is at least some room for Burket. He had been a sort of forgotten man with Alouettes since coming East.

This is somewhat strange because Burket was brought here this season after four years with Regina to relieve a nagging Montreal punting problem.

His reputation as a punter was solid, but the job went to Italian - born Gino Berretta, the Als' 1961 rookie-of-the-year.

Burket appeared in Montreal's Eastern Conference opener at Hamilton, punting 12 times for a 43-yard average, slightly better than Berretta's over-all average at this stage of the season.

Since then, Ferdie has been riding the Montreal bench and, naturally, he doesn't like it.

"I just know I could help this ball club, if only the old man would give me a chance," Burket says despondently. The "old man" is coach Jim Trimble for whom Burket has a great deal of respect and admiration.

Burket's chief problem is that the Alouettes are loaded with good backs, such as the explosive twins George Dixon and Don Clark. Trimble says Burket is a "good replacement" for any of his backs but he hasn't given any sign that Burket will ever crash the lineup.

NAME MUSIAL

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Stan Musial, 42, who will play his last major league baseball game Sunday, was voted a vice-president of St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday.

BENNY SWITCHES

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jack Benny is switching networks for the second time in his 31-year broadcasting career it was announced Wednesday. But he says there are no hard feelings. NBC announced the veteran comedian next season will bring his half-hour television show back to the network where he started in radio in 1932.

Firemen Clip Public Works; Finals Tied

Unleashing a 16-hit attack, the Fire Department hosed the Public Works 11-3 to square their Interdepartmental softball league finals at one game apiece last night.

Third game in the four-of-seven series will be played Friday night at the CNRA Park, at 5.45 p.m.

George Woodhouse hurled the Firemen to last night's victory, stopping the Works on half a dozen hits. Al Ryan was his battery mate.

Gary Reid pitched for the losers, tagged for the 16 hits, while Gordie Green was his receiver. The team committed four errors.

Ray Read paced the winners at the plate with a perfect four-for-four performance while big Freddie Smith zapped two hits, one of them a home run. Parks, Danford and Reg Christopher also had two hits apiece, Lyle Wannamaker and Stephenson one each.

Pierce had a pair of safeties for Public Works. Smith, Reid, McIlroy and Green also hit safely.

ANGRY YOUNG MAN — A bright future is predicted for Tony Collacott, 17-year-old Toronto jazz pianist. An angry young man who is determined not to become complaisant either in his music or about life in general, he expresses disgust with what he describes as society's "low level of mental health."

17-Year-Old Jazz Pianist Old Mentally and Musically

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP)—Tony Collacott is a 17-year-old jazz pianist who is deeply preoccupied with what's wrong in the world.

He's absorbed with the existentialist philosophy of Kafka; draws his moral convictions from De Sade and Nietzsche; wishes he'd been born "Ukrainian or Negro or something like that," and is disgusted with society's "low level of mental health."

He also has talent.

Dave Caplan, jazz critic for The Star, who describes Collacott as "the oldest 17-year-old I know mentally and musically," says he has the potential to become a prominent jazz figure if he continues to develop as he has in the last two years.

Tony appears to know what he's after. He admires jazz musicians with variety and emotional range in their style and maintains that "a jazz musician should never begin to sound complacent."

He thinks Erroll Garner "swings harder than any jazz pianist that ever lived;" he really "digs" Ray Charles, and is crazy about Bix Beiderbecke "even though to say this to most jazz fans is just like saying you like Lawrence Welk."

TO TRY NEW WORK

He admits he learns a lot from listening to Oscar Peterson but does not idolize the Canadian pianist. And he finds Dave Brubeck "revolting."

Tony's success to date is partly accounted for by six years of serious piano study—all paid for by scholarships—at Toronto's Royal Conservatory of Music.

"To express yourself completely and freely," he says, "you have to have great command of your instrument."

Tony admits he needs lots more work and as soon as he saves $500 he plans to leave Toronto where there are only two jazz clubs and where he can't work in bars because he is not 21.

"I may as well starve in New York as here," he says.

His real goal is to play with one of today's most avant garde jazzmen in New York—Charlie Mingus.

"This is what Tony needs," says Caplan, confident the young musician will be "able to hold his own."

Chinese 'Picked up' Russians

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet military newspaper Red Star says that Chinese authorities discriminated against Soviet players during the recent basketball tournament in Peking.

"The entire conduct of the Chinese sports officials," Red Star says, "made it clear that their aim was to humiliate the Soviet competitors, to place us in conditions where we would not be able to achieve high results."

The account charges that the matches were arranged by the Chinese so as to make the Soviet team play several difficult games in a row.

The story, however, had a happy ending for the Russians. They won.

European Champions

Night Of Soccer Magic

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Internazionale of Milan, Ezrich of Switzerland and Dynamo of Romania went into the second round of the European Soccer Cup of League Champions Wednesday night.

It was a night of soccer magic, involving teams from 20 different countries. The teams took part in four major European competitions—the Cup of League champions, the Cup of Cup Winners, the Intercities Fairs Cup and the Cup for National Teams.

The European Cup of League champions is the biggest money-spinner of the lot. That was proved with crowds of 30,000 in Glasgow for the Rangers-Real Madrid of Spain match and 70,000 in Milan for the Internazionale - Everton of England clash.

Internazionale and Everton had tied 0-0 in the first leg at Everton. In the Milan game, Brazilian star Jair da Costa scored a minute after half-time and the home team advanced to the next round, winners 1-0.

Matches in all European Cup competitions are decided on aggregate goals after home-and-away games.

Zurich advanced to the second round on a 4-2 aggregate over Dundalk of Ireland. Dundalk won 2-1 in Zurich Wednesday but had lost the first leg 3-0 in Ireland.

A goal from inside forward Ferenc Puskas, the former Hungarian star, gave Real Madrid a 1-0 victory over Glasgow Rangers with only four minutes play left.

Will Try To Break Lotus Hold

ORONO, Ont. (CP)—Some of the world's most impressive autoracing machinery was being arrayed today at nearby Mosport Park to break the three-year hold of the British Lotus on the Canadian Grand Prix.

Since the inception of the 200-mile international race over the hilly, twisting 2.5-mile course, the stubby, relatively low-powered Lotus has been supreme.

In Saturday's race, only four Lotus cars are entered in the field of 36 which will be winnowed down to 23 after Friday afternoon trials. The big challenge comes from seven Italian-built Ferraris, led by 22-year-old Pedro Rodriguez, a small Mexican lad who looks as though he is still driving bicycles.

Rodriguez, son of a Mexico City millionaire, was twice runnerup in the Canadian Grand Prix and this time will be driving a 12-cylinder rear - engine car identical with that of John Surtees of London. Surtees, 29, was world motorcycle champion in 1958-59, has three top European performances under his seat belt and is racing in Canada for the first time.

Another new face on the track, 30 miles northeast of Toronto is Lorenzo Bandini of Milan, also driving a Ferrari. Bandini won the famed 24 hours at Le Mans this year with an average speed of 118.1 miles an hour.

TO USE ROOKIES

HOUSTON (AP)—The Houston Colts plan to field a team of the future — nine rookies — against New York Mets Friday night, Manager Harry Craft announced Wednesday a starting line-up averaging just 19.8 years in age.

WILL BE NUCLEAR

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government announced Wednesday a defence department space satellite, to be launched in the near future, will have instruments wholly powered by nuclear energy. It uses a thermoelectric generator to convert the heat released by radioactive plutonium into electricity, and has a design life of five years.

Judy Garland's Daughter Will Appear With Mother

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Ask this 17-year-old what her ambition is and she says:

"I suppose I want to be a star—it being a star means acceptance in the profession. But I would like to avoid some of the things that go with stardom, especially the lack of privacy."

She is a special 17-year-old named Liza Minelli. Her mother is Judy Garland.

Those who saw Liza's professional debut off-Broadway in Best Foot Forward got the hint that the star quality is there. The television audience will have a chance to reach a verdict when she appears on her mother's CBS show in December.

SAME ELFIN CHARM

If she comes across on television as well as she does in person, Liza might make it. She has the same elfin charm and ingenuous manner of her ma.

Liza's wish to avoid stardom's travails is understandable. She was growing up during some of Miss Garland's stormy years. For Liza it meant a succession of homes and schools.

Liza attended seven schools in California, two in New York and one in England, topping it off with a term at the Sorbonne in Paris.

"The one in England was the best," she said. "It was almost like private tutoring. I have friends in their second year of college who are just studying things I learned there."

Liza is up for roles on Dr. Kildare and Twilight Zone. Her only complaint: "They always want to case me as unwed mothers or girls who have been raped."

AT THE PARK — Rolf Wanka (centre) gives betrothed Guy Williams and Heidi Bruehl his royal blessing in this scene from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Captain Sinbad". The spectacular King Brothers Production, suggested by the legendary hero of the Arabian Nights, features some of the most remarkable magic special effects ever created for a motion picture. It was filmed in Technicolor with a cast of thousands, opening tonight at the Park Theatre. On the same program "The Young and the Brave" starring Rory Calhoun and William Bendix. Both attractions are first Belleville showings.

Danny Kaye's First Show Gets Praise From Critics

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Danny Kaye is a great comedian because he can evoke laughter in so many ways.

Wednesday night in his CBS premiere, the red-haired pixie sang a song with a pantomime accompaniment by a high stool that magically followed him around the stage. Then he had a sketch that went a little too long about a nervous man on his first plane ride.

Later, he danced in his light-footed way and sang a graceful duet with singer Lovelady Powell.

The big production number was a demonstration of how a baseball song would be written by Lerner and Loewe, Leonard Bernstein and Meredith Wilson —they were called My Fair Umpire, Horsehide Story and The Baseball Man. Along the way Danny did marvellous imitations of Rex Harrison and Robert Preston.

Generally the show was delightful. If that is to be Kaye's pace for the season he will wear well.

The kindest thing one can do for Glynis, the other CBS premiere of the evening, is to hope that it will go away—quietly.

An alleged mystery-comedy, it was so broad and corny that one felt sorry for capable Glynis Johns and handsome Keith Andes, its stars.

For the first time in almost two weeks, there will be no new programs tonight. However, CBS' Password starts its new season on a new night and hour 7:30-8 EDT).

NFL Rejects Plan to Meet AFL

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Football League has rejected an informal proposal by the rival American League that the two pro leagues meet in a post-season championship playoff.

"We have no plans for such a game," said NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle. The comment came after AFL commissioner Joe Foss said Wednesday his league might make a formal proposal to the NFL for a playoff in 1964.

Blood Donor Committee Is Named

PICTON — The regular meeting of the W.H.A. was recently held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church hall, with thirty-two members present and Mrs. A. Clarke presiding.

Following the prayer for Hospital Auxiliaries, the minutes of the last meeting were read and the reports of the officers accepted.

Mrs. Ern Ward will be the representative of the W.H.A. to the Planning Board of the Hospital and replaces Mrs. L. F. Chartier who resigned in June.

Mrs. Harry Sisson, Sr., reported for the Blood Donor committee. The clinic, being held in the Armories on October 7th, will be preceded by a door to door canvass, and a contest.

The executive of the Blood Donor committee was announced by Mrs. Sisson as follows: chairman — Mrs. H. Slaven Sr.; co-chairman — Mrs. Armand; W.H.A. representative — Mrs. J. deB Arnaud; secretary — Mrs. Alice Hemmingway; enrollment — Mrs. M. Hagerman, Mrs. F. S. Dowe; appointments — Mrs. Ern Ward, Mrs. Duncan; transportation — Mrs. J. M. M. Pryde; social convener — Mrs. Lyle Storritt; publicity — Mrs. Clarence Rutter; publicity — Phil Dodds, Jack Ross.

Mrs. Ern Ward paid tribute to the Collegiate students who had served as fallrobin for the gift shop during the summer months and asked for five more six volunteers to work either afternoon or evening or even act as a substitute.

Mrs. William Adam and Mrs. Winston Hicks will act as conveners for the coming year with Mrs. F. S. Dowe, Mrs. R. Hart and Mrs. F. Murphy, as helpers.

CAROUSEL AND MOTORAMA

Mrs. Clarke then spoke on the Carousel and Motorama being held in the Community Centre on October 16th. She highly praised the support given by the car dealers in this new venture and expressed appreciation of the W.H.A. in their contribution to the Motorama and the success of the carousel.

The fashion show, sponsored by Francis Gray Knox, will commence at 8 p.m. There will be musical interminsions supplied and the organ music for the fashion show will be played by Mrs. Stackhouse.

Fine Holsteins Shown at Recent Fair

There was strong competition between the herds of John May and Sons, Picton, and Ross Parks, Bloomfield, with the May entries winning a total of ten firsts and the Parks entries six firsts. Ross Parks showed the Senior and Grand Champion female winning with Anne Texa Pabst who placed first in two-year-olds in milk and had previously been Grand Champion at Belleville Fair. She is a very stylish, sharp shouldered individual with plenty of quality and carrying a very well-balanced udder.

The feature of this show was the first futurity class. This calls for animals to be nominated by their owners at each year's fair and to three-year-olds at which time they are shown. Of the twelve calves originally nominated, six competed for total prize money of $125. The — and — Reserve Supreme Shirley owned by John J. May & Sons. She also won the milking Shorthorn class and was named Reserve Senior and Reserve Grand Champion. In addition she won the class for Best Uddered female of the show. She is sired by Ross Parks' herd sire with Mrs. F. S. Dowe, Mrs. R. Hart and Mrs. F. Murphy, as helpers.

CAROUSEL AND MOTORAMA

Mrs. Clarke then spoke on the Carousel and Motorama being held in the Community Centre on October 16th. She highly praised the support given by the car dealers in this new venture and expressed appreciation of the W.H.A. in their contribution to the Motorama and the success of the carousel.

The fashion show, sponsored by Francis Gray Knox, will commence at 8 p.m. There will be musical intermissions supplied and the organ music for the fashion show will be played by Mrs. Stackhouse.

The Junior Champion female was the first prize senior yearling heifer and Reserve Junior shown by Ross Parks, while the Reserve Junior Championship went to Leland Connors, Picton, on his winning heifer, Curtillia Sue Pontiac. The Junior Champion was stewarded in front, is tall at the shoulder and very smooth in the rump. The Reserve Junior Champion is very dairylike heifer with a deep open rib and level top.

The only senior bull was shown, this being Gladibrae Pabst Triumph, who was named Senior and Reserve Grand Champion for Ross Parks. The Grand Championship went to the Junior Champion, Cherry Crest Pabst, who stood first in the Junior Yearling class for James R. Alexander of Hillier. The Grand Champion is smooth on top, wide in the pins and long in the quarter. He moves well on well-proportioned legs. The Reserve Grand Champion is a deep-bodied bull, straight on top. The Reserve Junior champion was shown by John J. May and Sons on the first prize senior bull calf, Mayeroft Royal Governor.

Eastern Breeders Inc. bulls sired both the winning Junior and Senior get-of-sire. Rosalind Domino was the sire of the first prize senior get and John J. May and Sons sire Selling Ingleman sired the winning Junior get for Leland Dunnes. Ross Parks had the first prize progeny of sire from Park Acres Reg Apple Brenda while John J. May & Sons showed the top junior herd.

Other first prize winners included: Junior E. Alexander, first senior heifer calf and first dry three-year-old; Leland Dunnes, first junior heifer calf; Ross Parks, first dry aged cow, first dry four-year-old; John J. May & Sons, first junior bull calf, first aged cow in milk, first milking two-year-old and first dry two-year-old.

The Judge was Robert Flett of Oshawa.

Prince Edward Rod, Gun Club Still in Lead

PICTON — Prince Edward Rod and Gun Club still retain a lead in the battle for the Quinte District trophy in clay pigeon shooting championship for 1963. Standing 309 out of a possible 350 flying targets the local squad topped the five villa representatives by eight birds at the Picton range on Sunday afternoon. The Picton team placed third with 289 broken targets. Stadacona, Frankford, Campbellford and Brighton defaulted, leaving only the three clubs in the race.

A strong wind from the north made shooting rather tricky and 44 out of fifty was the best score registered by an individual shooter.

The Prince Edward squad consisted of Herb Cole, Ivor Hughes, Duff Folkard, Lark Harrington, Danny Greenlaw. Also shooting but with low scores were Jim Byford, Jim Cole, Harry Leavitt, Boyd Blakely and Ken Pritchard.

Belleville shooters were: Dick Thompson, Cy Gardiner, Bob Johnson, Bob Gardiner and Ed Learvens.

Napanee squad: C. Barnes, Ken Attenborough, Harold Albrecht, Jack Cook, Garret Hagerman.

The final shoot is scheduled for October 20th at Belleville with Stadacona as host.

Commencing next Sunday the regular weekly trap shoots will be held in the Picton conservancy at 10 o'clock.

RIFLE SHOOTS

Weather permitting the larger bore and small bore rifle shoots for two separate trophies will be held at Consecon gravel pit on the former Murray Pickering property on Sunday, the 29th, commencing at 12.30 p.m. A moving "deer" target is to be used for both events with three shots by hand from 50, 75 and 100 yards. Club members only are eligible to compete.

The annual presentation dinner is being held at Consecon Valley hall, Wednesday, October 16th, with the Binsbird club as caterers.

S. McConnell Wins Title of Miss Quinte Isle

PICTON—Sunday was a colorful beauty contest in which eight girls turned out seventeen loads to compete for the title of Miss Quinte Isle at the Outboard Club's final race of the season at Hayward, Lake Beach.

Judges, Dorothy Wight, Lorna Kennedy and Creighton Cole placed Kristine Vandervoort, 15, Picton third and Linda Morrow, 16 of Picton, fourth. All four girls are students at Prince Edward Collegiate.

Selection was based on ten points for beauty, poise and personality.

Miss McConnell as winner received a $10 cash prize from the Picton Outboard Racing Club and a $5 gift certificate from G. E. Fraser store, cup and saucer from Duncan D'Eater and a bouquet from Dunn's Flowers.

Mrs. McConnell received a $10 certificate from Barbour's, $3 cash from th Outboard Club and a bouquet from Dunn's.

Let Car's Thermostat Do Its Job

By EUGENE B. MILMOR

Many motorists still hold to the old concept that the cooling system thermostat must be removed for summer driving in order to avoid overheating. When we last wrote about this, more than one reader claimed to have absolute proof that it is correct procedure to take out the thermostat every time because hot weather cooling system troubles were cured when it was removed. Naturally, this only proves that the thermostat was clogged, binding, inaccurate or otherwise defective, and should have been tested if working properly, it will allow water to circulate freely a s d steadily.

"Remove it just to be on the safe side" is another theory. This is wrong, too. Without the thermostat, coldengine warmup takes longer, thus there is more gas burned, more wear on parts, quicker fouling of plugs. It's also possible to encourage coolant loss and overheating by leaving the thermostat out of the system. At high speeds, water may tend to surge up excessively in the radiator top and out the overflow pipe.

Q. J. asks: "Suppose t h e brake pedal has to be pumped to build up pressure, but there is definitely a new sharp ring to the crankcase fillers?" The oil filler or breather cap which keeps dirt out by screening air entering the crankcase is what we had in mind.

P. L. writes: "Must bear of anyone adding kerosene to the gas tank in order to prevent stalling and hard starting?"

This is a popular hot weather treatment to remedy vapor lock. Diluting the gasoline with approximately 5 percent kerosene stops formation of th e vaporized bubbles which block fuel flow.

L. L. asks: "A rebuilt carburetor cured my engine of gas waste, hard starting and roughness at higher speeds, but now it tends to stall when idling, particularly if the engine isn't well warmed up."

Loosely anchored carburetor mounting bolts or a faulty gasket — either of which can allow excessive air to upset the fuel ratio — is the likely cause.

Syl Apps Wins In Kingston By Big Majority

TORONTO (CP)—Syl Apps, a former great play-making centre with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, won a seat in the Ontario legislature Wednesday.

Apps, running as a Conservative, was the only one of three prominent sports figures who ran in Wednesday's election to capture a riding.

He collected more than 10,000 votes, almost as much as both opposition candidates combined, to win traditionally Conservative Kingston constituency. He had been opposed by William Mills, mayor of Kingston and Liberal candidate, and social worker Lavada Pinder, running for the New Democratic Party.

The election was less successful for another former member of the Maple Leafs, Bucko McDonald, and for Joe Krol, longtime star quarterback and halfback with Toronto Argonauts.

McDonald, a former defence-man with the Leafs and a formidable vote-getter when he represented Parry Sound-Muskoka for the Liberals in Parliament, had less luck in provincial politics against Allister Johnston, who had represented Parry Sound for the Conservatives since 1948 and won re-election Wednesday.

WON EASILY

Johnston had as many votes as Bucko and Dorothy Sieeth, NDP candidate, Combined.

Krol lost out in one of the Toronto-area seats, Scarborough West, to 26-year-old NDP candidate Stephen Lewis.

A Conservative candidate, Krol was runner-up with 8,100 votes to Mr. Lewis's 10,500. Liberal candidate Thomas Summerville had 5,500 while a Communist candidate was far behind.

Krol, now a 44-year-old insurance man, was a member of seven Grey Cup teams and was the key man when Toronto took the Canadian championship in 1945, 1946 and 1947.

He played his last season with the Argos in 1952, the last year they won the Grey Cup, and remains the highest scorer ever in cup history with a total of 30 points.

No Ceremonies For Beginning Of New Session

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson meets with his cabinet today for a last assault on the pile of legislative proposals to go before the parliamentary session when it resumes next week.

High on the priority list are bills to place warring Great Lakes unions under a government trusteeship and to write the controversial Canada Pensions Plan into law.

The session, which adjourned Aug. 2 for its summer recess, resumes Monday without special formality. Since it has been in adjournment for eight weeks, it merely picks up where it left off without the ceremonies that mark the beginning of a new session.

Cabinet committees on legislation and special matters were busy this week and today's meeting of cabinet is expected to climax opening preparations. Morning and afternoon meetings may be necessary since Mr. Pearson has a speaking engagement in Montreal Friday.

The bill to establish the trusteeship over Hal Banks' Seafarer's International Union (Ind.) and four other labor bodies on the Great Lakes has been ready for several weeks. The problem now before cabinet, however, is whether to proceed with it in its present form or to delay or modify it in hope that the unions can reach agreement among themselves to make federal intervention unnecessary.

Nuclear-Force Suggestion Hits Nerves of London

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The French suggestion that Britain should join nuclear forces with France seems to have touched a twanging nerve in London.

The timing of the move caused a particularly sour reception at the British foreign office, which let any easy tends to examine with special care any proposal emanating from President de Gaulle.

The cabinet was already wrestling with an agonizing decision on whether Britain should endorse the United States plan for putting Polaris-armed ships to sea manned by crews from several NATO countries.

The Earl of Home, the British foreign secretary, was reported to be still convinced — as he left for New York Wednesday to attend 18th United Nations General Assembly — that Britain should at least join without commitment the forthcoming discussions of the NATO multilateral force.

NEW OPPORTUNITY

Home was hardly overjoyed that at a crucial time the French proposal gave opponents of the U.S. project a new opportunity for debate.

Reflecting the general unpopularity of President Kennedy's plan in defence circles, senior British officers of all three services are said to feel the French offer deserves consideration.

In a more general way, the snap British reaction appears to be that de Gaulle is merely trying out a political-military diversion — seeking to divert Britain from its vaunted "special relationship" with the U.S. on nuclear matters, holding out the hope of membership in the European Common Market.

Comment is in cloudy terms, however, largely because the whole issue is clouded. No one seems to know the exact meaning of the speech by which Michel Habib-Deloncle, French secretary of state for foreign affairs, put forward the nuclear idea at Monday's meeting of the 17-nation Council of Europe in Strasbourg. He said:

". . . If Great Britain conceives of her future as being within the community of Europe, she can find in this field the opportunity for a positive contribution, taking into account the necessary choices that such a decision implies."

TOO VAGUE

In the prevailing British view, this is far too vague a proposition for London to become concerned about at present. It is known in Gaullist circles the mixed-manned force because the U.S. would retain the right of veto over use of its Polaris missiles.

The U.S. would fire them only in its own interest—not necessarily that of Europe—in his view.

But British officials note the French nuclear force does not yet exist and, in any case, an offer of partnership to Britain has yet to come. They also recall a statement by Edward Heath, British deputy foreign minister:

NDP Chieftain Assails Liberal Party's Tactics

By DAVID DAVIDSON

TORONTO (CP) — The New Democratic Party increased its representation in the Ontario legislature and provincial Leader Donald MacDonald, an easy winner in his own riding, is happy.

But he added in comment on Wednesday's election that he feels the seven seats his party won did not give it representation in proportion to the popular vote.

"I'm sorry we didn't win more seats," the NDP leader said in an interview. "I thought we could have taken a dozen. If we had we would have had a fair share of the popular vote representation."

Mr. MacDonald swept his York South riding in Toronto by capturing 10,529 voters — more than double Liberal Bert Robinson's 4,633 and comfortably more than Progressive Conservative William Thomson's 4,977.

RAPS CAMPAIGN

Of Liberal Leader Winternmeyer's defeat in Waterloo North Mr. MacDonald said: "I thought the Liberal campaign was the most deplorable in the history of Ontario and apparently the people of Waterloo North concur."

Defeated Conservative candidate Thomson said: "Mr. MacDonald has been the only effective leader of the opposition in the legislature since Mr. Winternmeyer became Liberal party leader."

Prince Philip Likes to Wear Double-Breasted Jackets

LONDON (AP)—A pair of tailoring experts drowned scissors Wednesday and came to Prince Philip's defence for wearing double-breasted suits.

"Prince Philip carries his double-breasted jackets well," said John Newton, secretary of the National Union of Tailors and Garment Workers. "He has the right figure for them."

A columnist had called Queen Elizabeth's husband one of the worst dressed men of the year for wearing what he described as old fashioned double-breasted suits.

Newton said:

"Prince Philip keeps his double-breasted jackets buttoned, which many less careful persons should do.

SOME ARE UNBUTTONED

"Some men wear double-breasted suits unbuttoned and allow the foreparts to dangle to their knees like a flag at half mast on a rainy day."

John Taylor, editor of Tailor and Cutter, an arbiter on men's style, said:

"About 95 per cent of British men wear single-breasted jackets which might suggest that his royal highness may be out of style."

Pointing out that Prince Philip's duties are different from most men's, Taylor continued:

"The double-breasted jacket is more formal than the single breasted, and as Prince Philip has to attend many formal functions, I see no reason why he shouldn't wear double-breasted jackets. Anyhow, he likes them."

Asked whether he saw any signs of a comeback by the double-breasted suit, the editor replied:

"No, not yet, but Prince Philip's insistence on wearing them might be the impetus that's needed to make them fashionable all over the world again."

Charge 2 Men With Murder Of Mimico Man

TORONTO (CP) — Two men were arrested and charged with capital murder Wednesday only hours after Peter Campbell, 42, of suburban Mimico was found dead with a crushed skull outside a house in the Regent Park housing development in Toronto's east end.

John Mooney, 26-year-old customs designer, was arrested at gunpoint at his home in the late afternoon. Four hours later Kenneth Feltham, 28, also was arrested.

Jodoin, Meany Locked In Feud Over Shipping

Open War Is Possible Between Federations

WASHINGTON (CP)—Claude Jodoin and George Meany are locked in a bitter behind-the-scenes feud that threatens to erupt into open warfare between Canadian and United States labor federations.

Informants close to the scene say Meany, president of the 13,500,000-member AFL-CIO, has privately ridiculed some of Jodoin's views on the Great Lakes labor dispute and in recent weeks has even refused to discuss the issue with the president of the 1,100,000-member Canadian Labor Congress.

Meany is said to support the view that any trusteeship of Canadian maritime unions should be dominated by the AFL-CIO while Jodoin wants to retain full influence over such operations.

The formerly warm personal relationship between the 70- year-old Jodoin and the 69-year-old Meany appear to have vanished, informants say. They point to the reported treatment accorded the Canadian trade union leader in recent efforts to reopen private negotiations with Meany.

AVOIDS DISCUSSION

Meany bluntly let it be known through a third party that he was unwilling to discuss the Great Lakes issue privately with Jodoin. This may have been the reason why no progress was reported when Jodoin conferred with certain unnamed AFL - CIO officials here last Wednesday.

Informants say whatever took place in those discussions did not help to eliminate the deep dissatisfaction in the Canadian leadership that powerful U.S. labor forces are at work to destroy carefully-built international unions, independence from U.S. domination in the Canadian labor movement.

The drive for labor independence in Canada has grown so strong, it was said that Jodoin may be forced into a rough-and-tumble battle against American influence at the polls where he may openly accuse U.S. labor leaders of interfering with Canadian sovereignty.

The weakness of Jodoin's position is that about 75 per cent of the CLC's membership is made up of international unions whose headquarters are in the U.S. Many of the Canadian branches' welfare and pension funds are invested with the head of the main union bodies in the U.S.

And many of the Canadian branches and districts feel a strong support from the north of numerous pleas for powerful U.S. affiliates to enforce decisions against higher wages and other benefits.

Hemmed in by this valley of opposition, Jodoin is understood trying his best to salvage what he can from the CLC battle with

Minister Has No Intention Of Resigning

QUEBEC (CP) — Rene Levesque, Quebec's natural resources minister, Thursday described as "dishonest and idiotic" the exploitation of a letter he sent to a member of an independence movement called La Phalange.

A paragraph from the letter declaring that "emancipation" of the French-Canadian people to be "the only goal that counts in the long run" was cited by the movement's self - styled spokesman, Lee Tremblay, at a press conference Wednesday.

Mr. Tremblay said Mr. Levesque should leave the cabinet and join the struggle for independence.

Mr. Levesque said the paragraph is a standard response he decided recently to use in reply to numerous letters from supporters of Quebec independence.

He had no intention of quitting the cabinet.

SENT TO MATTE

The letter in question, dated last May 2, was addressed to Rene Matte, whom Mr. Tremblay described as a leader of La Phalange. It acknowledged receipt of a piece of stone found on the plains of Abraham near the spot where a monument to General Wolfe was erected by vandals earlier this year.

Mr. Levesque said he had read the letter before signing it.

The paragraph quoted by Mr. Tremblay and described by Mr. Levesque as a standard response to independence letters reads:

"Even if people do not agree on all points, and no matter to what movements we belong, the only goal that counts in the long run is the emancipation on all levels of French-Canadians as a people. Provided that all those who truly believe in it work, without quarrel and without too much and without fear, for the achievement of this emancipation, we shall not miss our aim."

Mr. Levesque said Thursday he isn't a separatist and does not know where separatism will lead but "one sure thing is that French-Canadians will be represent at least 85 per cent of Quebec's population, ought to control at least 80 per cent of the economy."

National Output On Rise

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's national output registered a 1.2-per-cent gain in the second quarter of this year, rising to an annual rate of $42,436,000,000, the bureau of statistics estimated today.

About one-third of the gain from the first-quarter level of $41,852,000,000 was accounted for by higher prices. The figures are gross national product — total value of goods and services produced—is adjusted to discount seasonal fluctuations.

The advance occurred on a wide front, with expansion fuelled mainly by a sharp rise in exports, larger capital expenditures and higher consumer spending.

The 1.2-per-cent rise compared with an advance of 0.8 per cent in the first quarter of the year.

PREDICTS RISE

Finance Minister Gordon, in his June 13 budget, forecast a substantial rise in national output this year, with about one-third of the gain resulting from higher prices. In a recent speech Privy Council President Maurice Lamontagne revised this figure to 25 per cent.

Last year the economy registered an eight-per-cent expansion with a total output of $40,- 401,000,000. Today's estimate for the second quarter was six per cent ahead of the national output level in the second quarter of last year.

An upsurge in export trade was one of the big factors behind the second - quarter advance. Merchandise exports rose 5% per cent to an annual rate of $6,300,000,000 and the surplus on merchandise trade jumped to a rate of $500,000,000 from the first-quarter figure of $284,000,000. That was the highest level since 1962. Merchandise imports rose four per cent to an annual rate of

Governors In Same Position As Chairman

TORONTO (CP) — Governors of the Toronto Stock Exchange are in the same position as their Chairman George Gardiner, named with the exchange in a $1,000,000 action, the Ontario Supreme Court was told Thursday.

R. A. Willston, counsel for plaintiff Wilfred M. Poulins, said that when the governors voted on the action which would cause a breach of Mr. Poulins' employment contract, they were part of the conspiracy.

The agreement to which he referred was the action in March, 1961, of their exchange governors terminating their consent that Mr. Poulins be a director, officer or shareholder for R. A. Daly and company.

Mr. Poulins subsequently removed as a director and discharged by the company. His registration as a salesman was also cancelled by the Ontario Securities Commission.

Mr. Gardiner and the exchange are being sued by Mr. Poulins, allegedly because they caused him to be ousted from the stock brokerage field with a resultant loss of employment and income and injury to his reputation.

The hearing continues.

MOVED FOR AID

GLASGOW (AP) — Lord Astor's beautiful wife, former model Bronwen Pugh, was carried on a stretcher into a Glasgow nursing home Thursday night after a stormy sea crossing from the Astors' retreat where she became ill. Lady Astor, 31, is expecting her second child next spring.

Relief Succeeded by Unrest

Speculate Anew on Macmillan's Future

LONDON (CP)—The wave of relief that washed over the government when the Dennings report first appeared was succeeded today by a backwash of speculation about Prime Minister Macmillan's personal position.

The report, providing ammunition for both parties, leads two pro-Labor newspapers to call for or predict Macmillan's resignation on grounds that he and his colleagues failed to deal adequately with the Profumo affair.

The Daily Telegraph, usually faithful to the Tories, makes a pointed reference to Macmillan's age—he will be 70 in February — and sees the "strong possibility" of a new prime minister emerging between now and Christmas.

It says there are many Conservatives, in Parliament and outside, who believe that the best service Macmillan could do to the party would be to resign.

There has been uneasiness about Macmillan's leadership among sections of the party for some time, even before the scandals and sensations of the summer, but uncertainty about a successor has tended to keep criticism within bounds. There is as yet no heir apparent

AFTER TESTIFYING, A CIGARETTE — Mobster Joseph Valachi pauses to light a cigarette after testifying behind closed doors on his experiences as a member of a nation-wide crime syndicate. Valachi, 60-year-old convicted dope peddler and murderer, was brought from the District of Columbia jail to testify before the Senate Investigations Subcommittee. He is scheduled to testify at a public hearing today. (AP Wirephoto)

'Ya Got That?' Probe Asked By NCO of Crime Syndicate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joseph Valachi, a second-string mobster in the big leagues of crime, is a man with a long memory.

For more than a year he's been using it to feed the government a stream of information about a vast crime syndicate said to control vice, narcotics and gambling in a dozen U.S. cities.

Now Valachi is turning it on in public. Before he's done, the convicted dope dealer and slayer may have spent a week before television cameras and the public eye, telling the Senate investigations subcommittee what he knows about the underworld organization called Cosa Nostra—Our Thing.

Valachi's testimony stories are said to have posted a $100,000 reward for the man who murders the talkative turncoat.

Police records give the dry details of Valachi's 60 years. Arrested at 18, charge sometimes fled; sentenced to a reformatory. Seventeen more arrests in his native New York, on charges ranging from petty larceny to robbery and burglary. Then, on Nov. 18, 1959, arrest on narcotics charges—and

Speculation, Guessing In Wake of Ont. Election

TORONTO (CP) — Speculation and second-guessing are the order of the day in the wake of the sweeping Progressive Conservative victory in Wednesday's Ontario election.

Prime topic for guesswork is who will lead the Liberals? John Wintermeyer tendered his resignation as party treasurer Thursday after failing in his attempt to take his party to power, and losing his own seat in Waterloo North.

The post-mortem exercise is trying to figure chances of early changes in Premier Robarts' government. All 18 cabinet minister came unscathed through Wednesday's test, but a new minister could be named to replace William Goodfellow who resigned as minister without portfolio last May. Mr. Robarts must also name a Speaker to replace William Murdoch, defeated in Essex South.

The cabinet meets today to plan for a brief early session of the legislature the premier has said he will call.

Liberals, stunned by the results, were mentally flipping through the lists of re-elected

Combat Centre at North Bay Turned Over to Air Force

NORTH BAY (CP) — The United States Air Force electronics systems division turned over the SAGE control centre outside this Northern Ontario city to the RCAF Air Defence Command Thursday.

The control centre is the only underground unit in the North American air defence system. SAGE stands for semi-automatic ground environment.

The SAGE combat centre was instrumented by the U.S. Air Force at a cost of $36,000,000. The RCAF dug the $17,800,000 hole for it.

The hand-over ceremony took place partly at the Voodoo jet interceptor base and partly in the underground combat centre. No reporters were permitted underground Thursday with one exception, which was arranged by a U.S. Air Force captain, a public relations officer.

The American captain also instructed Canadian reporters not to talk to any Canadian airmen below officer rank about the Bo-

Pension Plan Issue

Two times due for early attention are loaded with potential political fireworks.

First of these is the proposed federal trusteeship over five maritime unions in a move to curb labor violence on the Great Lakes. Prospects for an alternative measure by the labor movement are slim.

Second is the Canada pension plan which became a prime issue in the Ontario election campaign and faces strong opposition from an insurance company lobby. Critics of the payas-you-go contributory pension idea claim the government is rushing into it without enough thought.

The minority Liberal government has pledged itself to forge ahead on the issue.

Another item Mr. Pearson didn't say will get early attention is legislation to increase the $65-a-month old age pension to $10. The plan is available to all Canadians at age 70.

WILL INCREASE TAXES?

He said the measure will increase taxes required to raise the extra $118,000,000 needed. The prime minister said speculation on the tax increases for this purpose have been "grossly accurate." The speculation has been that there will be an increase of one or more of the taxes on personal or corporate income or succession duties.

Adding to the tension of such issue is the prospect of a governmental defeat forcing a new election. The Liberals have 129 members in the Commons against a combined opposition force of 135. The opposition

Meeting Over Wheat Sales Not Conclusive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two cabinet members met with two House committees Thursday on the subject of selling U.S. wheat to the Soviet Union. The result was inconclusive.

Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman called the meeting "useful and helpful." But Representative Albert Quie (Rep. Minn.) said it was a "big hassle" that produced no useful resolutions.

Freeman was joined by Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges, who said he would decide on export licence for any Soviet wheat sale. They spoke behind closed doors to members of the House agriculture and foreign affairs committees.

After the meeting, there were conflicting views as dozens of congressmen left the room. Most said they were not much wiser than when they went in.

Representative Paul Rogers (Dem. N.C.) chairman of the House agriculture committee, said Freeman told Congress "didn't make any promises and didn't ask any recommendations from."

Quie said he tended to favor a cash deal with the Soviets. He called for an overall review of export policies to Russia.

The award to both was made on their cross - complaints in the suit brought by her husband of 16 years. Mrs. Burt McGuire Jr., of Sedona, Ariz.

Insurance Firms Out To Scuttle Pensions--Judy

Opposition Has Root In Self-Interest, Claim

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said Thursday Canadian insurance and trust companies are mounting an offensive against the proposed national pension plan, using the vast resources of their policyholders and depositors.

"It's quite a milfull, and they intend to scuttle any plan such as this national pension plan," Miss LaMarsh told a luncheon meeting of reporters at the National Press Club.

"It would be a sad day for Canada if financial interests are free for saying 'oh, we are not interested; but we are doing this for the good of Canada'—to persuade the majority of Canadians that they should be denied decent pensions at minimum cost."

Miss LaMarsh said she made no apology for participating in the recent Ottawa conference on behalf of the Canada Pensions Plan.

"Whatever the cause happens to be under my responsibility—particularly health care, drug control, or the tobacco problem—I intend to speak up as long as I am there. I am prepared to go down if I am wrong and it is not acceptable."

WAS NO HEAT

Miss LaMarsh said that in the federal-provincial conference on the Canada Pensions Plan here two weeks ago, there was no argument, heat, or partisanship in discussing the federal proposals for an earnings-related contributory pensions system supplementing flat-rate old age pensions on a pay-as-you-go basis.

The Canada Pensions Plan was closely examined by economists, actuaries, provincial ministers, and administrators, and—as a member of the Ontario delegation—an official of a major insurance company. But opponents of the plan now are raising a haze of distortion and half-truths and self-interest is a very powerful motivating force, Miss LaMarsh said.

Canada is the last Western industrial country without a national pensions system, and it will soon be time to act as a matter of political philosophy but one of social change."

"The insurance and trust companies have made no bones about it—they have called it a lobby which is fair enough thing. Many of you have seen a brief which called for export licence for any Soviet wheat sale. They spoke behind closed doors to members of House agriculture and foreign affairs committees.

"The insurance companies have given us fair warning that they will employ their entire resources—resources, of course, which aren't theirs; they are their policyholders' and other peoples' money."

Miss LaMarsh said she is "heart and soul a Liberal politician."

$270,000 In Notes Taken

LONDON (AP) — A gang of eight men ambushed an armored truck today and got away with £90,000 ($270,000) in bank notes. The holdup occurred on a road near Swanley in Kent.

First reports of the loot consisted of gold bullion, but a police spokesman said later: "The loot was all in notes."

The armored truck was making a routine transfer of cash from one branch of Martin's Bank—one of Britain's biggest financial institutions — to another.

The robbers rammed it with another truck and a car, blocked it and guards in plain clothes and fled with the loot in another truck. A farmer who saw the wild chase said: "It was all over in less than a minute. ,

One of the guards on the armored truck suffered severe head injuries.

U.S. Observers Pleased With Viet Nam Tour

(CP from Reuters-AP)

SAIGON — Voters went to the polls in a National Assembly election today as President Kennedy's two top-ranking investigators continued their tour of troubled South Viet Nam.

Defence Secretary Robert McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, have been in South Viet Nam since Tuesday to check on the progress of the United States-backed war on Communist guerrillas.

McNamara and Taylor Thursday flew over Communist-infiltrated northern territory for on-the-spot briefings.

Defence department spokesman Arthur Sylvester said the men got a favorable impression of the military situation at briefings, adding no official comment was to be offered.

The Communist effort was impaired in any way by the government's dispute with the Buddhists.

Today's election was free in theory—but in practice all candidates were approved in advance by the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem. Communist candidates were barred fairly certain to win in districts where there was a contest.

Tentative Settlements Reached Of Montreal Students' Grievances

MONTREAL (CP) — Two grievances of French-speaking high school and university students were settled today in the form of settlement Thursday during a third day of student protests.

At the high school level, a general meeting of the Teachers' Alliance approved a proposed by the Montreal Roman Catholic school commission.

Some student representatives said Wednesday after a walkout of 1,000 students at 20 of the commission's 31 schools that they were supporting the Teachers' Alliance opposition to the commission's double session system of periods.

At the University of Montreal, the Students' Association called a temporary halt Thursday to their boycott of new prices in the university cafeterias. The students had continued paying the old price of 75 cents a meal, ignoring a 10-cent increase.

Pierre Marois, head of the Students' Association, said it had been agreed the association will stop the boycott pending negotiations with university officials during the week.

Several hundred high school students also took part in protests late Thursday afternoon and evening.

The high-school student walkouts began Tuesday, but entered their first day Wednesday.

The 1,000 students held a quiet meeting at an east-end park Wednesday and then sent 35 representatives to a meeting between the school commission and the Teachers' Alliance.

Some students said they were prepared to remain out in the lunch hour to 80 minutes from 1½ hours. Others said they were against too much longer work, while yet others said they supported the teachers.

The compromise made the lunch hour two hours again, but added 10, minutes to the school day. A move accepted by teachers and students.

Difficult to Go Against Santa' Negro Says of Dr. King's Plan

RICHMOND, Va. (CP) — Two Negro leaders disagree on the effectiveness of a proposed boycott of Christmas gift buying to commemorate the deaths of six Negro children in racially troubled Birmingham, Ala.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., called for the boycott during his annual report to the Southern Christian Leadership Conference Thursday at Richmond, Va.

A short time later, Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People commented, "I find it difficult to go against Santa Claus." He added that no organization had ever been able to demonstrate more effectively the power of a large-scale boycott.

The NAACP official looked with more favor on Dr. King's call for a Birmingham-type task force to be sent into Danville, Va.; a march on the state house in Montgomery, Ala., and a northern selective buying campaign to begin immediately.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — Another fine, warm early autumn day is in store for the lower lakes today as balmy warm air flows over western states continues to dominate the weather picture in southern Ontario.

Considerably cooler air flow over central and Northern Ontario and a few pressure systems moving eastward across Lake Superior is causing rain in many localities bordering the upper lakes.

As this storm moves into southern Quebec the cold air will slip southward across southern Ontario Saturday.

Plan United Appeal Parade Downtown Saturday Morn

About 200 people will march Saturday morning in the Belleville United Appeal parade, but so far it looks as though they may march without bands. Four bands were invited to march with the parade, two of those accepted, and both dropped out within the past week.

The Army, Navy and Air Force Association's Kilnie Band dropped out at the beginning of the week; the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment Band dropped out last night. There's still a chance that part of either, or both, bands may show, but Angus Duffy, parade marshal, isn't counting on it.

Marching personnel in the parade will include a group of Sea Cadets, members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade and Boy Scouts. Majorettes from the Gail Champan Studio and from Brenda Brandenburg's School will also march with the parade. There will be a group of clowns recruited by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Main feature of the parade will be the floats and cars containing "Miss United Appeal," the directors of the Appeal, and representatives of the 12 agencies participating in the Appeal. The Downtown Businessmens' Association will have a car in this group, and plans call for one or more antique cars to drive in the parade.

The parade will assemble at the Armory about 9:30 a.m., and move off at ten o'clock. From the Armory, the parade heads west on Bridge Street, north on Pinnacle, south on Front and east on Bridge, back to the Armory. For a parade, it's more than a half hour's walk. That's a long way, without a band.

Improvements At Factory to Cost $22,000

The 65 patrons of the Ivanhoe Cheese Factory at Ivanhoe are so well satisfied they decided to go ahead with $22,000 worth of factory improvements, details of which are now being completed.

The factory rejuvenation saw the make room shifted and enlarged, a new receiving room, complete with can washer provided a new refrigerated curing room, and a new front office for over-the-counter sales of cheese and curd.

The factory improvements provide the latest in factory equipment and at the same time will allow winter cheese making if patrons decide on year-round operation.

"We're mouth operation is being considered by the patrons," stated William Moore, factory field man for the district.

The factory with its four vats now has a yearly make of slightly in excess of half a million pounds.

Speculation

front benchers, other candidates for the leadership when Mr. Wintermeyer was chosen in 1958, and prominent Liberals outside the House.

Farquhar Oliver, twice before leader of the party and for a time former member of the legislature, was mentioned as a possible stop-gap leader until a leadership convention can be called, probably in the spring.

Voting results for the Conservatives 78 seats, Liberals 23 and the New Democratic Party seven.

Four seats—Huron-Bruce for the Conservatives, Brantford, Grey North and Toronto Rosedale for the Liberals were won by less than 50 votes and might be affected by recounts, or when the results of the service vote are announced Oct. 8.

Most frequently mentioned leadership candidate is Robert Nixon, member for Brant. He is only 35 and was first elected as a Liberal. Formerly that is president of the Ontario Liberal Association and the son of former Liberal premier H. C. Nixon.

NAMES MENTIONED

Senior Liberals re-elected and mentioned for the leadership race included Arthur Reaume, Essex North, Elmer Sopha, Sudbury, Ross Whicher, Bruce and Vernon Singer, Toronto Downtown.

Outside the legislature eyes were being cast in the direction of Walter Harris, former federal finance minister, who did for the leadership in 1958, corporation executive Robert Winters, Victor Copps, mayor of Hamilton and Controller Allan Lamport of Toronto.

None of them would comment Thursday, and Mr. Nixon said he personally was in the party executive to hold over Mr. Wintermeyer in a position until it can be dealt with by a management committee representing every part of the province.

Mr. Wintermeyer, announcing his resignation at a Thursday morning press conference in his Kitchener home, said he was delighted "to be out of political arena" until the next election, but "I don't want it suggested that I am forever giving up public life."

SCOFFS AT REPORT

He laughed at questions about a report that he had been offered a seat in the Senate by Prime Minister Pearson, saying: "I can't really see myself as a senator."

Mr. Wintermeyer admitted the Liberal program did not "get through to the public."

But he suggested there had been no alternative to the unsuccessful attempt to hit the electorate hard on alleged scandals, organized crime and pensions, even though many of his friends considered it out of character for the 40-year-old lawyer.

Mr. Wintermeyer's supporters blamed his defeat on lack of time to campaign in his riding, plus opposition from several large insurance companies located in Waterloo due to Mr. Wintermeyer's stand on pensions

Cheese Exchange

The average price on the Belleville Cheese Exchange this week for raw milk white cheese was 35¼ cents per pound for both regular and square types.

Colored cheese in the same categories sold at an average of 38 5/16 cents.

There were 10,559 large regular cheese offered; 12,657 square cheese and 3,465 specials.

Bennett, Fulton Feud Over Power Policy

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett and E. Davie Fulton have turned British Columbia's Sept. 30 election campaign into a feud over the Social Credit government's two - river power policy.

The premier and the leader of the Progressive Conservative party have made the hydro-electric development of the northern Peace and the southern Columbia rivers main issues in their campaigns.

Robert Strachan, leader of the New Democratic Party, and Liberal Leader Ray Perrault have power policies but they are concentrating on other aspects of their campaigns.

In the final week of the campaign Mr. Fulton and Mr. Bennett gave these issues:

Bennett: "Whether you are for or against our power policies."

Fulton: "Do you want the Peace River dam to much that nothing else really matters?"

FEELINGS STRONG

During amplification of these themes the two men have had some strong personal remarks to make about each other.

Mr. Fulton has called Premier Bennett a "mad man."

Mr. Bennett has called Mr. Fulton a "junior," a reference to what he calls the Conservative leader's "demotion" from justice minister to postmaster general minister in the federal Conservative government of John Diefenbaker.

The government's policy is simultaneous development of the $750,000,000 Peace and the $450,000,000 Columbia projects.

Work now is under way on the $73,000,000 dam of the Peace and progress is being made to-ward ratification by Canada of the International Columbia treaty with the United States. The U.S. has already ratified the treaty.

Mr. Fulton says a Conservative government would start work on the Peace at the earliest point at which the work could be undertaken for some investment in the future. It would go ahead quickly with the Columbia development.

Mr. Strachan says the NDP stands by orderly and gradual development of both rivers.

Mr. Perrault proposes to stop the Peace dam half way and to build an "experimental" dam at some future date. Power would be generated from the half-completed dam.

The NDP and the Liberals want early development of the Columbia.

Can Tell Man's Character by Pants Bottoms

LONDON (AP) — One of Britain's biggest tailors said Thursday pant cuffs can tell a man's character by the bottoms of his pants.

The company, Burtons issued a chart which a spokesman said was based on 62 years of making clothes for men and observing the character of its customers.

The chart divided men into groups, based on the width of the bottom of their trousers, and on whether the pants have cuffs. Here's the chart:

Pants 14 inches wide at the bottom: "Probably the owner of a motorcycle and possibly only one suit. The suit is rarely worn, as jeans and a leather jacket are the official uniform."

Pants 15 inches wide: "More clothes conscious. He will be fond of dancing."

16 inches and without cuffs: "A man keeping in line with all the latest fashion trends. He likes to dance, but prefers jazz clubs to dance halls."

17 inches, also cuffless: "A fashion conscious man who may visit more exclusive night clubs. Probably will get married late in life and have a large wardrobe."

18 inches, cuffless: "A hard working man who is reasonably aware of fashion, but does not worry and have the time to take it seriously."

19 inches, with cuffs: "For this man the word fashion conjures up something which is far removed from his way of life. He knows it exists, but feels it doesn't concern him."

20 inches and over: "Not in the least interested in, or aware of, fashion. This man will wear a hat until it's well worn before buying a new one."

20 cuffless: "Either a sailor or totally and completely unaware of fashion. Clothes keep him warm and the clothes merely cover...up the moth holes in his sweater."

Suspect Held After Break-in Is Discovered

For the second time in three months Belleville city police have arrested a burglary suspect inside a city soft-drink company office.

At 2 a.m. today constables on the cruiser patrol made a routine check of Carm's Beverages on Parker Street. As the patrol car halted outside the building, two youths fled the scene. Suspecting they may have been acting as lookouts, the officers checked around the building. Peering through a chink in a blind, one of the constables saw a man kneeling before the office safe prying it with an electric drill.

Reinforcements were called and the building quietly surrounded. Police then entered the office and arrested the man.

A weak before the Munich signing Hitler brought the crisis to a climax in a meeting with Chamberlain at the Dreesden Hotel at Bad Godesberg. There Hitler declared he could no longer wait for a peaceful end in the German-speaking border areas of Czechoslovakia — the Sudetenland he coveted.

At Berchtesgaden only a week before he had agreed to the cession. Now he insisted on marching in and occupying the area's fortifications by Oct. 1.

PREMIER SHOCKED

Neville Chamberlain, Britain's umbrella-carrying prime minister, was shocked—but he did not say no.

The Munich agreement, virtually as Hitler wanted it, was signed between 2 and 3 a.m. Sept. 30, 1938, at the Fuehrer-haus. Then Chamberlain flew Hitler had his Munich office.

Chamberlain made his first trip to Germany after the French urged him to make the best deal he could on Czechoslovakia, which they were bound by treaty to defend. Hitler had him go all the way to Berchtesgaden at the extreme southeast tip of Germany, then an all-day trip from London by air and rail. It was the first time that Chamberlain, 69, had been in a plane.

The talks were held in Hitler's favorite residence, the Berghof on a mountain overlooking Berchtesgaden.

Chamberlain agreed that Hitler could have the Sudetenland "on the basis of self-determination"—that is, the local population would decide by a vote. There was resistance but the Czechs had to give in.

HITLER RENEGES

Then, at Bad Godesberg, Hitler reneged. War looked almost certain despite all the British and French could do. They urged Hitler's fellow dictator—Benito Mussolini of Italy — to mediate. But the two dictators agreed that they must one day fight the West side by side.

They met Chamberlain and Edouard Daladier, the French premier, in Munich, Sept. 29. Czechoslovakia was not invited, nor was the Soviet Union, which insisted on its readiness to fight for the Czechs if the French would.

Mussolini presented a compromise drafted for him by Berlin. The German occupation of the Sudetenland was set for completion Oct. 10 instead of Oct. 1. Everyone promised a vote later and guaranteed the rest of Czechoslovakia's boundaries never carried out.

It took 13 hours to arrange the details.

After a few hours' sleep, Chamberlain brought Hitler a pledge that the agreement before them was "symbolic of the desire of our two peoples never to go to war with one another again." Hitler was quick to sign.

"I believe it is peace in our time," Chamberlain told a jubilant crowd when he returned to London.

INVADES POLAND

Less than six months later Hitler took over the rest of Czechoslovakia, and six months after that he invaded Poland. Britain and France then declared war.

What France and Britain gained above done in the Munich crisis still is debated.

In his history of the period, Winston Churchill speaks of the "tragedy of Munich" and says:

"For the French government to leave their faithful ally, Czechoslovakia, to her fate was a melancholy lapse from which all the terrible consequences . . . The British government not only acquiesced but encouraged the French government in a fatal course."

Had the French kept their pledge to fight for Czechoslovakia, many people believe, Britain and the Soviet Union would have followed suit. The Czechs had a considerable army.

Without Germany's conspiracy of generals, already organized, might then have toppled Hitler and prevented the Second World War.

Others think Chamberlain did as well as could be expected.

Name T. Somers As New CO Of Sea Cadets

The good ship R.C.S.C. Quinte is under way again. Officials there has been activity all summer at the Sea Cadet barracks, September is always the official time' parades begin.

The Corps is fortunate—in securing the services of Mr. T. Somers to be the new commanding officer. Mr. Somers, who carries the rank of lieutenant is a former officer in the RCNVR, Canada's Wavy Navy, which gave such yeoman service in the last war.

This is a ship's bell presented to the Corps which is most proficient in this area of training. Lieut. Rocque Davis is in charge of rifle shooting and many cadets have earned their badges under him.

The Sea Cadet movement is well represented in this part of Ontario in various towns and Belleville is in the midst of a rebuilding job. The result is that there are some openings for interested boys between 14 years and 17 years. Recruiting officer, Sub Lieutenant James Robertson will interview prospective cadets on Wednesday nights at the Sea Cadet barracks.

Participants Say Munich Pact of '38 Had Beneficial Clauses, Ignored by Hitler

By CARL HARTMAN

MUNICH, West Germany (AP)—Twenty-five years ago this month the word Munich came to have a new meaning and the umbrella became a bitter symbol.

Adolf Hitler and the prime ministers of Britain and France signed an agreement in Munich sealing the fate of Czechoslovakia. Observers of the political scene today still speak of "another Munich" to condemn real or imagined failure to stand fast in the cold-war struggle which has followed Hitler's downfall.

In September 1938 the world was on the brink of war.

A week before the Munich signing Hitler brought the crisis to a climax in a meeting with Chamberlain at the Dreesden Hotel at Bad Godesberg. There Hitler declared he could no longer wait for a peaceful end in the German-speaking border areas of Czechoslovakia — the Sudetenland he coveted.

Elephant Ruins Store After Short Visit

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A 3,000 pound elephant broke away from a carnival Thursday night, smashed through a store front and, somewhat surprised one person in a panicky run along city streets.

Police, detectives shot and killed the animal after a 12-block chase.

Police said the 12-year-old elephant rumbled out of the carnival grounds at a shopping centre on Lansing's southwest side during evening shopping hours.

The animal shattered a window in a department store, roamed around inside, and finally left.

Test-Ban Treaty Approved

The action of the U.S. Senate in ratifying the treaty imposing a limited ban on nuclear tests is heartening.

It proves that the cool voice of reason, as exemplified by the views of President Kennedy and members of his administration, is able to prevail over the hot-heads and the alarmists.

Objections to the treaty were far from impressive.

One was that it would freeze an advantage the Soviet Union may now enjoy in the high-yield weapons.

The obvious answer is that, since the U.S. already possesses far more than enough nuclear warheads to devastate Russia, it has no necessity for increasing the power of single bombs. There might be an advantage in high-yield weapons if the delivery system were vulnerable to a first-strike, as Russia's system might well be if the strikes of her intercontinental ballistic missiles were known. But in the Polaris submarines the U.S. possesses mobile missile bases immune to any surprise attack. If Russia enjoys any advantage on the field of high-yield weapons, it diminishes, rather than increases, the danger of war. Since it provides Russia with a greater power to retaliate after a first-strike by a foe, it reduces the possibility that she will herself strike first, in panic.

Another objection to the treaty by U.S. opponents is that it permits Russia, by underground tests which are not prohibited, to continue to improve her small-yield weapons in the field in which the U.S. now has an advantage. It seems doubtful whether, in any war in which these small-yield weapons were used, they would prove decisive, because their use would almost certainly provoke use of the heavier-yield warheads. If there is any hope of such limitation to small-yield warheads, though, it can only be enhanced by Russia enjoying equality in this field, and thus being able to compete in it without resort to her bigger missiles.

As for the fears of Senator Richard B. Russell of Georgia that the unpoliced test ban treaty may lead to an unpoliced disarmament pact, we cannot see the wary and distrustful Russians ever agreeing to disarm without being given the right to make certain that other nations were disarming also. So, even if the Americans should get as far-headed as Russell fears they might, the Russians would block any treaty of that nature.

It is heartening, as we said before, to find that the great majority of Senators paid little heed to objections of this type. At the same time, it would be unfortunate if anyone supposed that this treaty, in itself, did anything to diminish the peril of the nuclear weapons which destroy each other and the world. Not one warhead will be scrapped because of it. If it has any practical value, it can only be that it is a safeguard against further pollution of the world's atmosphere by continuing tests. Whether this is important or not—experts differ on the danger of such pollution.

The greatest value of the treaty, though, is as an exercise in the gentle art of compromise and agreement, pointing the way to the path which must be followed if really important steps are to be taken leading to a lessening of tensions and a process of gradual disarming.

Uncivilized Reaction

An amusing election prank was answered by violence in Toronto Friday night. Two young Liberal supporters had smuggled a shrewd banner into a New Democratic Party rally, and very nearly managed to erect it on the stage as New Democratic leader Donald MacDonald spoke. The two pranksters were beaten before they were ejected from the rally.

Why the beating? About the only logical explanation is the injured pride of the people who had allowed the banner to be smuggled in. Surely there was little chance of the prank leading anyone at the rally to switch his vote from NDP to Liberal. If there were any at the rally, in fact, who were not convinced NDPers, the mistreatment of the young Liberals would have alienated them.

It is an unfortunate fact that the fun has gone out of Canadian elections, and that partisan feeling and enthusiasm is being replaced by hate.

It is the sort of development one would expect in a new and inexperienced democracy, or in a democracy about to fall under a totalitarian regime. It is not a healthy sign.

The young Liberals, with their apparently light-hearted gesture, presented no threat to the rally, and might have reversed the trend. But the violent reaction of the New Democrats scotched the attempt, and will prove a discouraging precedent to be considered by anyone planning another attempt at pranks.

Mystery of Burned Ballots

By ARTHUR BLAKELY in the Montreal Gazette

In his parting shots at National Socred Leader Robert Thompson, co-leader Real Caouette (whose new style and title have yet to be announced) lobbed a couple of explosives in connection with the 1961 leadership convention at which he lost the honor to Mr. Thompson.

"Mr. Thompson knows perfectly well," said he, "that if I had wanted to, he would never have been elected national leader of the Social Credit Party.

"Why were the voting slips burned at the time of the 1961 national leadership convention? Ask this question of Mr. Thompson."

It's a good question. But it's one that Mr. Caouette is raising long after some weird and wonderful shenanigans at that 1961 convention were questioned by reporters and other observers in attendance.

Convention chairman Orvis Kennedy announced, that fateful July day in 1961, that a total of 982 ballots had been cast for the rival candidates. It was an odd figure, because there were only 981 delegates registered. Mr. Kennedy, however, supplied the information that five Ontario delegates might have voted, perhaps in error. The winner wasn't announced immediately.

Instead, a hurried conference was called. It was attended by the three candidates, the scrutineers, Mr. Kennedy and a few others. It lasted for 10 minutes.

Then Mr. Kennedy announced that Mr. Thompson had been elected. A few minutes later Mr. Caouette was elected by party leader by acclamation and they posed with arms about one another's shoulders in a fond embrace which they rarely duplicated in the next few years and which must now be rated as a collector's item.

The number of votes polled by the three candidates was not revealed. Mr. Kennedy said later that the candidates had been informed. The candidates said that they hadn't been.

As soon as the result was announced, Mr. Kennedy called for a motion that the vote to destroy the ballots. One was forthcoming at once and carried without discussion.

The ballots, accordingly, were burned.

Why? Party officials assured reporters that it was a security precaution to destroy the ballots less standard practice at Social Credit rallies.

Asked by reporters if the burning of the ballots were not an "unusual" practice, Mr. Kennedy smiled.

"Social Creditors are unusual people," he said.

Were there backroom irregularities?

One reporter found a scrutineer's scratchpad in the room in which these impartial officials had tabulated the votes. It contained notations which suggested that 1116 ballots had been cast in excess of the total f...ld have come from the registered delegates.

Was there a hurried, last-minute deal?

It is a fact that Mr. Thompson's victory was a surprise.

His arch-rival, Mr. Caouette, had entered the convention with the solid backing of a 236-vote Quebec delegation — the largest on hand. Mr. Caouette had as well, the support of B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett who felt that his Conservative-Liberal bee politico would lead the party farther, faster, than the more restricted Mr. Thompson. Many observers, in fact, didn't see how Mr. Caouette could possibly have lost. In the fact that way, he kept it to himself.

In another revelation at Grenby, Mr. Caouette said that he had the convention cleared up tight when Alberta's Premier Manning approached him 10 minutes before voting time and asked him to switch the votes of his delegates to Mr. Thompson, who, alone, would be acceptable to voters in Western Canada. Mr. Caouette didn't disclose, apparently, his response to this curious invitation. The anecdote sheds remarkably little light on Mr. Caouette's last-minute conference, and the decision to burn the ballots.

It is just barely possible that Mr. Caouette was the real winner of the 1961 convention; that at that hurried conference some kind of quid pro quo was offered and accepted; that Quebec scourged the party brass to reverse the decision taken by the overpowering majority, and the burning would, in such circumstances, become a minimum precaution. Maybe not. But it was an old Socred custom.

At that convention, almost anything could have happened. Perhaps it did.

Rear - window wipers, to reduce one cause of accidents, little bag holders, to save millions spent on litter, and skyways and parking areas. Why not?

These will be "standard" items on the 1966 cars made in the U.S., if Washington has its way. There's a report that if automakers balk, there will be a law.

We could use these ideas in Canada And while we are at it, why not add a defroster to the rear window as standard equipment?

Boys Who Are "All Boys" Unwholesome

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In dinner a friend commented on a paragraph of mine about the men who are so insecure about their masculinity that they won't carry a woman's umbrella in a sudden downpour.

"We have some neighbors," she said, "who have a little boy about a year-and-a-half old. The father won't let the boy have a doll or play with a teddy bear. He says he doesn't want his boy effeminate. Don't you think there's something insecure about a man like that?"

I certainly do. Every young child, it seems to me, needs some object to identify with and pet and love as its very own. Until considerably later in life, little boys are not aware of the very much alike in this respect.

The fathers who want their sons to be "all boys" from the child as early as a mother who overprotects a girl baby. "All boy" is a hideous designation, a sympathy, if it implies a neglect of the essential tenderness of childness, sensitivity and grace.

Although we still know comparatively little about sex and its subject, I venture to guess that as many boys are turned into homosexuals by the harsh and tyrannous father as by a soft and doting mother. A little boy cannot easily identify with his father if he turns to his mother as an "ideal" figure.

Boys who are "all boy" are as unwholesome as girls who are "all girl." The professional female, who simpers and flounces all over the place and takes advantage of her femininity, is as emotional deformed as the hearty masculine character who thinks that loudness and coarseness constitute virility.

Modern genetics teaches us that every human being has a small percentage of the opposite sex in him, which is nature's way of balancing our traits. What we call "normality" is often a matter of custom and convention: the elegant 18th century gentleman would seem effeminate to us, though he may have been braver and more adept at fatal swordsmanship than we are.

I am convinced that the rise in the number of sexual deviates among young boys stems directly from the fact that they are not given enough paternal love of the right sort, and that the mother is charged with the exclusive responsibility for their conduct.

And it is a terrible punishment upon these fathers that so frequently their frenetic effort to turn a son into "all boy" creates a son who is no boy at all, but a bewildered and resentful adolescent, uncertain of his manhood and unable to resolve his conflict. Only a father afraid of his own masculinity would take a teddy bear away from a child.

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

September 27th, 1943.

Members of Belleville City Council turned their attention to street cleaning at their regular session on Monday night. Ald. Fred Chamberlain led the discussion when he enquired if Belleville was being discriminated against in the matter of supply of bacon and meat. Ald. Chamberlain stated that in all the small towns around the city it was quite easy to procure meat and bacon, but in this city bacon was nearly an unknown quantity, and if one wanted any the only way to do was to order it early in the week and even then it could not be obtained until Friday or Saturday and sometimes not then.

"Eastern Ontario was the largest county in Ontario — has long boasted of varied mineral deposits. As one mining man expressed it, "there is a showing of every mineral, but not a sufficient quantity of anything." From the personal observation of a party of Belleville residents who visited the Tomahawk Iron Mines recently, Hastings County may at last come into its own as a producer of magnetic iron ore."

The car load shipment of high grade iron ore was made to a well known Hamilton steel manufacturer last week. A price of $9 per ton exclusive of the government bounty, was established for the ore, and the steel company expressed the desire for further shipments at the earliest possible date.

Who Runs Country?

Vancouver Sun

The courts may not choose to take note of Hal Banks' latest attack upon Mr. Justice T. G. Norris. We do.

The SIU's 85-page booklet issued last Friday is a vicious, slanderous document clearly designed to undermine public confidence in the impartiality and ability of this distinguished judge. By extension, it is an attack upon the fairness of all our courts.

In one long vituperative screem the booklet declares that Mr. Justice Norris, the one-man royal commission who investigated the savage Great Lakes shipping war, displayed bias, disregarded the tenets of fair play, ignored natural justice, prejudged the issues and showed contempt for the democratic process.

This from Hal Banks, exconvict from the United States who is now under sentence of jail for contempt of the Quebec Superior Court. He has a real brains of the most sordid, brutal labor war in Canadian maritime history.

Canadians may be pardoned the cynicism of asking just who is running this country today. Is it Parliament? Or is it Mr. Banks?

Has any MP in our history, speaking under parliamentary immunity, made such a scurrilous attack upon the character and motives of a Supreme Court judge? We think not.

This SIU pamphlet is final proof (if any more proof is necessary) that Mr. Banks considers himself above the law.

He may have issued it secure in the belief that our courts would consider him beneath contempt. But ordinary men and women, who appreciate the courage, fairness and sense of duty displayed by Mr. Justice Norris, will now wait with increasing impatience for the federal government to remove Mr. Banks from the Canadian scene.

Souvenirs Disappoint

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

Perhaps nothing so quickly destroys Canada's exotic charm as the purchase of one of those souvenirs with a "Made in Canada" tag — such as a gilded maple leaf pin or a model of a Mountie) with "Made in Japan" stamped on the back or bottom.

The reaction by Japan to what a Canadian went into a restaurant in Italy and discovered that the shopkeeper came out of a Kraft package.

One of the more ironic instances of the sale of bogus souvenirs is the story of the Bracebridge, Ontario, shop operator who contracted with local Indians for the sale of native beadwork. Later, she found the items had been purchased from a Toronto wholesaler, and that they had been made in Hong Kong.

Fortunately, in Ontario, at least, the trend seems to be to-ward the production of genuine Canadian-made souvenirs.

That is not to say that every Souvenir of Canada is likely to be Canadian-made in the future.

The Japanese, in particular, seem to be very proficient at producing the small cheap items which some tourists covet.

There is no reason why the Japanese and others should not be permitted to export these products, especially if Canadian manufacturers are not interested in the market.

It would be better, however, if

Milk and Raw Meat Can Transmit Undulant Fever

Dear Dr. Molner: What about undulant fever? — Mrs. T. M.

Undulant fever (known also as brucellosis and as Malta Fever) is an infection from one of the brucella germs which occur principally in cattle, hogs and goats.

Rarely is it transmitted from person to person. The principal means is through unpasteurized milk, and where all milk is pasteurized, undulant fever is most unusual.

The disease also can be contracted by handling meat of animals carrying the germ. From these routes, the germ can see why it is most prevalent in rural areas, and among meat packers and veterinarians.

From the standpoint of danger to life, it is not particularly serious, but it has a tendency to become chronic, in which case the mortality is about two percent.

With the disease, attacks of fever come and go, accompanied by weakness, sweating, loss of weight, pains in the back and various aches.

The outlook for recovery is good if treatment is begun early even though there is no specific cure. Aspirin (and sometimes a stronger medication) to relieve pains, bed rest and lots of sleep/easiness which is often a symptom of undulant fever, and general care to help nature overrest and good diet are basic in treatment. The new drugs and streptomycin probably are of some little help.

Prevention, however, is the best answer. Pasteurize all milk. If you handle animal carcasses, wear rubber gloves.

The disease used to be much more prevalent, and is still in some parts of the world.

Possibly mention of it will nudge the memories of those who read the book "Shannon's Way," which was a fiction story based on early efforts to prove that undulant fever came from cattle.

Dear Dr. Molner: I was only a week or two past my period and had a Pap test X-ray. I did not know at the time that I was pregnant. I am wondering if this may be harmful to the baby. — F. W.

Probably not, since the X-ray was of your chest and not of the pelvic region. The exposure involved in a chest X-ray is very small. Therefore, don't worry.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the cause of bleeding from the rectum? I have had this condition for quite a while. I am very worried. — Mrs. P. B.

There are a number of causes: Piles, ulcerative colitis, fissures, cancer, diverticulitis and others.

Some are more readily treated than others, but all require attention. The least of the ills is the sheer loss of blood which, if continued, can bring on anemia. The other conditions vary from such things as pain, infection, death.

It does no good just to worry. You must go to your doctor immediately and find out what is causing the trouble.

Dear Dr. Molner: One of my best friends has tuberculosis, and I am wondering whether he can spread the germ to me, or whether I am safe from it. — M. M.

Nobody is safe from a friend who has active T.B. You should be examined regularly to make sure you have not acquired it. A person with TB should be in a sanatorium for his own protection as well as that of others.

Never take a chance on diabetes! For better understanding of this disease, write to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 'OS, Grand Central Station, for a copy of the booklet, "Diabetes If The Sneaky Disease." Please enclose a long, self-addressed envelope and 30 cents in coin to cover the cost of printing and handling.

Because of the tremendous volume of mail received daily, Dr. Molner regrets that he cannot answer individual letters, but whenever possible he uses readers' questions in his column.

Smile Best Passport

Hamilton Spectator

"A traveller's most valuable passport is a friendly smile and an open mind." These words were never spoken. Used by two travellers so put in a nutshell their feelings after a worldwide journey through five continents, they are words of wisdom, simple and easy to understand, and can be applied to almost every human experience.

"Let a smile be your umbrella" suggests an old song. "Smile and the world smiles with you," says another. "Grin with a smile" is a famous slogan that brightens the walls of some of the worst as well as best restaurants, and "Smile, darn you, smile" is a command we recall from an old song in our heart.

Like the beauty of the full moon, the glory of the smile is not only immortalized in song and story, and in slogans, too, but in photography alone. "Smile", said the old - time photographer, "it costs nothing," says the modern expert. It means the same. A smile can brighten not only the face of the wearer but the atmosphere around him.

A smile opens doors and hearts. Accompanied by an open mind, it can win the wearer friendships for a day and permanent influence. It is one of the most valuable assets any person can have, and it is sad to think that it is so seldom used. To be able to smile in the face of adversity is to show courage and a humility that too few people possess.

How easy it is to smile. How different the history books when Churchill smiled and when he could not. How different the world would be if more people smiled.

If no private, union-sponsored solution is found, the Canadian government plans to impose a federal trusteeship over all five maritime unions in Canada, as recommended by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris in his report on Great Lakes violence, tabled in July. The report was sharply critical of the SIU.

Jodoin is ready to agree to a trade-union trusteeship, providing the CLC is given some influence over the trusteeship's operations. Paul Hall, president of the SIU of North America, has refused to negotiate with the CLC and has publicly referred to Jodoin in derogatory terms. Hall wants the trusteeship to be dominated by the AFL-CIO.

Hanover Strike Brings Violence

HANOVER, Ont. (CP) — Early morning strike violence involving more than 300 persons which saw one car overturned and the windshields of five others smashed prompted town council Thursday night to order its police commission to take necessary steps to ensure adequate law enforcement.

Three policemen patrolled the area.

The violence occurred when members of the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) attempted to stop workers entering the Hanover Kitchen Canada) Limited plant.

There were no reported injuries.

Dr. Olga Nitzapska, mother of two children, told a conference called by the Royal Institute of Public Health:

"We have made teenagers taller and earlier in stature but we don't regard them as mature enough to marry.

"In Israel the age which they can marry now is 14 and the illegitimacy rate is going down."

In British sexual relations below the age of 18 are illegal. Couples can marry at 16 but only with consent of parents or a magistrate.

ALYEA — FARNSWORTH

Tall standards of large white mums and pink snapdragons formed a lovely setting in Bridge St. United Church, Belleville on Saturday, September 7th, when Mary Jo Farnsworth, daughter of Mrs. John Franklin Farnsworth, Belleville and the late Dr. Farnsworth, became the bride of Elmer Clifford Alyea, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Alyea, Belleville. Rev. Harry M. Davis officiated at the double-ring ceremony. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

The church organist, Mr. Alec Gordon rendered traditional wedding music which included the processional, "How Lovely Thine The All Our Court" and the recessional Mendelssohn's "Wedding March".

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Dennis F. Farnsworth wore a traditional floor length wedding gown of snow white peau de faille, fashioned on classic lines. Its serene simplicity was emphasized by the minute waist circled in fine Battenburg lace. Her three-tier shoulder length tulle illusion veil flowed from a halo of lace. She carried a semi-cascade bouquet of pink Sensation roses, stephanotis and ivy.

The maid of honor, Miss Barbara Joan Fairman and the bridesmaid Miss Barbara Jane Bird, both of Toronto, were gowned alike in short length antique gold peau de soie sheaths with overskirts. They wore petal headdresses matching their dresses and matching shoes. Each carried a semi-cascade bouquet of white mums and ivy.

Mr. Arthur John Dick of Kingston attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Melvin Alyea, brother of the bridegroom, of Toronto and Mr. David Wray of Belleville ushered the guests.

The reception was held in the Bridge Street United Church parlors where the bride's table was prettily appointed with white linen cloth, centred with a three-tier wedding cake flanked with white candles in tri-branch candelabra. Vases of pink gladioli and the bridal bouquets completed the nuptial setting. The bride's mother in an Urban blue peau de soie ensemble, with matching shoes, white gloves, off white marlboro hat and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a gold brocade sheath with Chanel jacket, a matching feathered hat, brown accessories and a corsage of bronze mums.

For the wedding trip to Montreal, Boston and Cape Cod, the bride chose a cherry red Chanel suit trimmed with black mink collar, black velvet hat, patent accessories and a single white gardenia corsage.

Showers honoring the bride were held at the home of Mrs. Louise Reynolds, and at the home of Mrs. Robert J. Orr in Toronto; at the home of Mrs. E. S. Fairman in Belleville with Miss Barbara Joan Fairman and Miss Betty Ann Makar as cohostesses. The bridal party was entertained at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Lisa Bird.

Mr. and Mrs. Alyea will reside at 138 King Street East in Kingston.

QUESTION:

I liked your recipe for Buttered Zucchini (August 23/83). If you have any other recipes for zucchini will you please print them? I planted some zucchini seeds from California and they are growing so large I don't know just how to use them — Mrs. H. T.

ANSWER:

I hope the zucchini do not crowd you out! If mature zucchini must be used, in recipes No 1. and No. 3, peel them first.

SAVORY SUCCHINI:

About five 6" zucchini, 1-3 cup olive oil, 2 medium onions, peeled and sliced, 1½ teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon of rosemary, 2 tablespoons catsup.

Wash but do not peel zucchini. Cut them into slices. Cut bacon into about 1½" pieces and fry over medium heat until it begins to sizzle then add onion rings and cook 3 minutes, stirring frequently but do not brown. Put a layer of zucchini into a casserole, sprinkle with a little salt, pepper and basil, dot with catsup. Cover with a layer of onions and bacon, and repeat until casserole is filled, ending with bacon and onion rings and dot top with catsup. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until zucchini is tender, about 45 minutes.

CHEESE-STUFFED ZUCCHINI:

6 small zucchini (6"), 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup grated cheese, ½ cup fine breadcrumbs, paprika.

Wash the zucchini and slice in half lengthwise. Parboil in boiling salted water, covered, until barely tender. Drain and scoop out the seedy portion in the centre of each half. Sprinkle the shells with salt and pepper. Fill with the grated cheese and breadcrumbs mixed together. Sprinkle with a little paprika and broil until the cheese melts. Serve immediately while cheese is still bubbly and hot.

ZUCCHINI AND TOMATO CASSEROLE:

Note to other readers: You may use this method with parboiled peeled eggplant instead of zucchini if you prefer. . . .

Wash and slice about 3 or 6 zucchini. Parboil for 5 minutes. Arrange a layer in a casserole with layers of equal quantity of sliced tomatoes in a buttered casserole, sprinkling each layer with salt, pepper and accent between layers. Top with 1 cup buttered crumbs. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E. Q.?

When the party's over, do you know how to exit gracefully? The following questions may help you brush up on this important social technique.

1. Is it necessary to say good-bye to everyone in the room?

2. Should a guest let himself out?

3. If it's necessary to leave early, how does a guest depart graciously?

4. Is the hostess thanked by the departing guests?

5. Should a guest expect the host to see him to the elevator or to his car?

6. How long should one stay after a dinner party?

7. Is it permissible to linger after other guests have left?

8. Is it necessary to send a hostess a thank-you note the next day?

9. What would a guest of honor do to show her appreciation to her hostess?

10. What should a well-mannered guest avoid doing while saying goodnight to the host and hostess?

Answers:

1. This may be done at a small gathering, but at a large party it's necessary to say good-bye only to those who are nearby when you leave.

2. No. He should let the host, hostess or some other member of the family show him to the door.

3. He lets his hostess know in advance, if possible, then leaves unobtrusively when the time seems, saying a quick farewell to the hostess.

4. Yes. It's always courteous to say you've had a lovely time and to comment on the excellence of the food and company.

5. The host usually waits at the door, but some pare the departing guest gets safely into the elevator or finds his way down the path to his car.

6. Unless other entertainment is planned, a guest may leave about an halfhour to an hour after dinner. If dinner, for instance, is scheduled for eight o'clock, then guests may plan on leaving about eleven or eleven-thirty at the minimum.

7. Very close friends of the host and hostess might stay behind if it's wise to let them suggest it.

8. It's a nice gesture, if the party was particularly gala. Generally, though, a note is not necessary. If you think it's always courteous to phone a hostess after any party and let her know it was a success.

9. A guest of honor should always send the hostess a thank-you note the next day, along with an offering of flower. "

10. Lingering over good-byes at the door. It's especially discourteous when other guests are still in the living room and the host has to ignore them for a prolonged length of time.

At the regular monthly meeting of the White Cane Club, Helen Wardrough presided and welcomed the 21 members and guests present.

Mrs. H. Rollins read an interesting commentary from the C.C.B. of the overseas blind. Mrs. Baverstock read from a letter of Rev. King, secretary to the legion in Canada. It described how 43 women patients in Mikinzies, Africa, were learning to thread needles, and do fancy work with only stubs for fingers.

From London's Mr. and Mrs. Seldon went to Dover where they saw the white cliffs and the fields of lambs and sheep. In Paris they saw the residence of Charles de Gaulle, and the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. They lunched at the sidewalk cafes, and had a boat trip down the Seine.

In Geneva they saw the United Nations building. In Monaco, the flowers growing from the cliffs, put there by Prince Ranier, were a wonderful sight. Their trip took them on to Rome, Venice, Vienna, Hamburg, Copenhagen and Norway.

Mrs. White thanked Mrs. Seldon for her interesting talk. Geralé Maracle and Betty Woods thanked the members for the baskets of fruit sent to them in hospital.

The Kinettes served refreshments and Pat Baverstock thanked them and the Lions' Club who provided transportation.

5) The Board met for a second time at the Redwood Motor Hotel, Trenton, Ontario, on the 30th day of May, 1983. All members of the Board were present.

6) The Board ceased its attempts to cause the parties to effect a settlement on the 30th day of May, 1983, when confronted by an unwillingness on the part of the representatives of the Hospital.

7) The Board is therefore obligated to report to the Minister the failure of its attempts in mediate, its consideration of the merits of the dispute, and its recommendations for future action.

a) Failure to Mediate:-

The Conciliation Board of this Board has recently been successful in bringing the parties to many a dispute to effect a voluntary settlement, including the Ontario Association of the Hamilton Health Association, the Joint Shopmen Committee of the Toronto Hospitals, and their respective Unions have all made use of the Conciliation Board procedure to the benefit of their community and themselves. In all of these disputes, the ultimate success was achieved through much willingness on the part of the negotiating committees to accept a degree of logical persuasion.

In this dispute, the Conciliation Officer expressed a desire to cooperate, and demonstrated its good faith by accepting to almost all of the proposals of the Chairman of the Conciliation Board. The Chairman must state that the Union was prepared to consider proposals of a conciliatory nature, but the Hospital Board, with the exception of the Chairman, refused to line with all other similar agreements within the Province.

The Hospital Board refused to make any concessions in any way with the Board; and in fact, were reluctant to consider the Union's proposals, and refused to make any counter proposals that in the warranted interference with their rights.

The Chairman is aware of the seriousness of the situation, and accept the fact that it must not be made if it cannot be substantiated by direct evidence that proof will be submitted to the Board.

The reply of the Respondent to the opening presentation of the Applicant was submitted in a written Brief, De page two (2) the following sentence appears:- "The first problem, therefore, that this Board must consider is that the Hospital has little confidence whatsoever in this Union, and it is felt that the problem may be increased with the passage of time."

The sentence may have meaning if any indications are present that the Union has been guilty of any breach of faith to warrant the apprehension. What, then, are the reasons given for the Hospital Board's lack of confidence in the Union?

1) The Union, after applying for certification, filed a complaint under the Labour Relations Act, alleging interference by the Hospital.

2) Three months after Certification, the Union advised the Hospital that it desired to negotiate a collective agreement.

3) On November 8th, 1982, the Union advised the Hospital of its desire to meet with the Board, and a month later applied for permission to prosecute the Hospital before the Labour Board.

The Hospital Board has above quoted has submitted for the purpose of showing that the considered conduct of the Union has resulted in creating an atmosphere of apprehension on the part of the Hospital in which the Union has been dealing with the Union."

The Chairman has been informed that the complaint under Section 43 was investigated by the Labor Relations Board, and that considerable time in hearing was held by the Labour Relations Board. The Union reported that the Board found McKinnon to have been ill-advised by the Hospital and ordered that he be paid the full salary for the period reasonably to cover the period of his suspension.

MINORITY REPORT OF F. L. Ward, Q.C., representing Trenton Memorial Hospital Board.

The premises are correctly outlined by the Chairman of the Board, as to the time and meetings, on the first page of the Majority Report and I shall not in this Minority Report repeat the factual matters.

The Minority Report is submitted in an attempt to clarify and explain certain matters which should be directed to the attention of the Minister of Labour of the Government of the Province of Ontario.

In the first place, I cannot agree with the Majority Report which clearly bears the implication that negotiations were conducted with bona-fides in themselves on the part of the Hospital Board.

The hearings were conducted for a period of two days and an attempt was made by me to the Hospital to give consideration to all matters submitted but the proceedings were abortive and I clearly point out in the Majority Report.

The Board submitted fourteen points of reference in an effort to bring the parties together on these points and actually, and in point of fact, and in the final analysis, there were only two points upon which agreement was incompetent.

The Hospital refused to deduct Union dues or to in any way carry out the administrative functions of the Union. The Hospital took the position that the Union is considered as a separate entity, capable of its own administration and the Hospital refused to be burdened with the expense, from an administrative standpoint, of administering the Union dues. This is commonly known as a "checkoff" and the Union refused to consider this position taken by the Hospital and there was a complete impasse on this point.

The second point on which there was a complete impasse related to the duration of the proposed agreement. The Hospital considered that there should be a long term agreement but the Union would not consider an agreement of this duration. In this respect, the Hospital Board felt that it was unjustifiable that there had been two (2) strikes in the Hospital with employees and the last five-year agreement is also in effect with the Hospital and the employees of the same Union and that in all three, been satisfactory. The Hospital duly recognizes that the Union, notwithstanding these agreements, has the same rights as other unions and was ready and willing to submit to a five-year agreement upon satisfactory terms. The Hospital Board could not be compelled to duration of the agreement.

My final recommendation is, that there is no necessity for compulsory arbitration. In my opinion, there is no necessity for the matter to go to an arbitration Board because in due course, and in process of time, matters in dispute may be completely resolved.

In my experience, compulsory arbitration in the final analysis would only result in chaos, from the standpoint of public interest, and the Labour Relations Board would not allow this to happen or failing to administer affairs of a Hospital and thus the public would be the ones most seriously affected, and the Union would probably result in the complete resignation of the Board of Trustees and certainly a new Board could not be obtained under existing conditions.

This Minority Report is respectfully submitted this 30th day of June, 1983.

(Signed) F. L. Ward, Q.C.

WHAT IS THE REAL ISSUE

The real issue is whether or not the employees of the Hospital are going to be guaranteed their rights under the laws of this Province.

HERE ARE SOME WAGE COMPARISONS

TRENTON	BELLEVILLE
Orderly 5 years of service .... $200.00 per month	2 years service $237.00
Nurses' Aides 4 years service .... $170.00 per month	2 years service $172.00
Housekeeping 4 years service .... $150.00 per month	2 years service $172.00

These are but a few comparisons, and all the employees want at Trenton Memorial Hospital is a fair approach to collective bargaining.

We urge you as a citizen to call the Hospital demanding they sit down and bargain and avert the strike.

Battered Wife Needs Help

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — My husband is a good provider, and a good husband and father when he isn't drinking. However, on several occasions he has come home drunk, knocked me around and smashed up furniture. He becomes me of everything he can imagine, including other men, sex and all that goes through his mind at the time. He says I've never been a wife to him.

I've never given him any cause to even think such things of me; in fact I've been told by friends that I'm too good natured. He gets the children awake and crying; then as soon as I sit down and cry he says that's proof that I'm guilty and it's the truth that hurts. He is always sorry after.

Could you suggest some help? I can't ask a minister as he won't go to church, and when the minister does call he just walks out. — UPSET.

DEAR UPSET — A typical alcoholic. Beats you, suspects you, bullies the children, is sorry after. He may take several years to sink low enough to call for help.

Something else is usually at the bottom of it; a child hood withdrawn enough love, or guidance; feelings of inferiority through imagined or real failure to compete — with other family members, or schoolmates, or fellow workers.

It may take skilled help for him to make a comeback, once he asks for it. Meanwhile, for your children's well being, and your own, consult The Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation, 24 Harbord Street, Toronto 5, Ontario.

Confidential to MIXED-UP TEEN-AGER — If your mother has let you down, you need someone to talk to. I don't know your friend, but I can certainly recommend a social agency.

Go to the Children's Aid Society of Belleville, Hastings County and Trenton, 63 Moira Street, Belleville, and say you want to talk to a counsellor about your family situation. You are bound to get help and understanding.

DEAR DORIS — I am 17 years old and am recently going out with a boy 20. I have been out with him several times but not too often lately because he works.

For my birthday he brought me flowers and I have been out with him once since then. When we do go out he tells me that he cares and misses me, but if we can't go out why can't he just phone.

I don't believe in necking and I don't think he does either because he hasn't tried anything. He is really a gentleman, one in a million! Please tell me if I am doing anything wrong or if it is my imagination. I try to follow the rules of you-know-who and have had no complaints previously. — BEWILDERED.

DEAR BEWILDERED — Everything is hunky-dorey. He's just no tjelephoner. Don't take it out on the telephone; find yourself a good hobby to fill in the time between rings.

Speculate

clearly in sight and acceptable to all.

One virtual certainty now is that there will be no snap vote this fall.

On television Thursday night Conservative party chairman Iain Macleod stated there will be no election until 1964. Observers note this would give the party time to groom a new leader if Macmillan resigns soon.

Macmillan himself, interviewed on radio, admitted again that he was deceived by former war minister John Profumo, who lied to Parliament about his illicit liaison with Christine Keeler.

But Macmillin defended himself by saying he was "not a lawyer" and would rather have been proven wrong than "to destroy a man's life when he is innocent."

He said he was "pleased but not surprised" that the Denning report had confirmed his account to Parliament, cleared the security services and scotched rumors of more sex scandals in the government.

DEMANDS DEBATE

Opposition Leader Harold Wilson, also interviewed, said the report disclosed "an appalling state of affairs over security" and renewed his demand that Parliament be recalled to debate the issue.

"If you just look at the dates, you will find that, in January, two security branches of the government knew about that there was a danger in the security situation.

"It took about two months before the home Secretary (Henry Brooke) knew about it and even he did not bother to tell the prime minister because he thought the prime minister knew."

The Daily Herald predicts Macmillan will probably retire "not later than November" because "it is unlikely he can count on the loyalty of the Conservative party to get him through another crisis."

SHOULD RESIGN

The Daily Mirror says the Denning report is the writing on the wall for the prime minister.

"The Tory party, his own government and the nation would be grievously relieved if he now resigned and let a new man lead the Tory party into a general election as soon as possible."

The Guardian of Manchester says Macmillan failed in his task of keeping a competent watch on administration and making a competent choice of men.

"Failures of that sort are not tolerable in the head of the government."

Sunday School Lesson

This Matter of Faith

By ROY L. SMITH

There is no more confusion about any subject in all the field of religion, than about this matter of faith. Quite unfortunately, our misunderstandings in this regard are the most expensive experiences of life.

There are those, for example, who assume that faith is a flight in the face of facts. It is a presumption that if we have wills strong enough to make sufficient demands, we can compel God to substitute our opinions for His own.

Therefore we refuse to take medicine, use normal precautions, or appropriate means already at hand which have demonstrated their effectiveness.

WHEN FAITH IS CONCEIT

Many years ago I had a very splendid friend who became ill. Being a strong believer in "divine healing" he announced that he did not intend to take any medicine, call any doctor, go to any hospital or use any other normal means of restoring his health.

In spite of all the persuasion any of us could offer he persisted, saying "God is my doctor." And within the space of days the microbes had multiplied to the point that death ensued. The members of the family said "We never saw such faith." And because he died they declared that God had let them down.

Over on the other side of town, a few days later, another friend was stricken by the same illness, completely without any knowledge of medical practises, he sent for the physician in whom he had faith.

"Doc is a good man. He knows. I'm going to do as he tells me." And with that faith he took the doctor's medicine, and obeyed orders.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for September 29: "Heirs of the Promise," Genesis; Psalms 105:1 - 24; Galatians 3; Hebrews 11: 1 - 22.

Now the doctor himself was also a man of faith. He knew the story of the microbes. He understood the conditions under which they multiplied. And he knew the powers of a certain drug to deal with them.

The doctor and the patient, both men of faith, went to work on the situation with a common trust, and within a few days the crisis had passed and the healing process began.

Faith had won the victory — faith in drugs; knowledge, judgment, and co-operation. And that, too, was divine healing!

FAITH IS ACTION

A genuine religious attitude of faith expresses itself in action.

If I believe in the law of gravity, and I am sure that I have built my wall true and straight, I can trust it to stand up.

If I believe in the moral law, and if I have built my life true and straight, I can depend upon it to stand up.

The young woman who saw her husband off to the office that morning was quite right when she said, "Tell them the truth, Jim. Be honest and fair, and I know it will come out right." And the young husband was a man of faith, for he did tell the truth, and he did report honestly. And it did come out right.

FAITH IN LABORATORY

The student instructor was starting the freshman off in the chemistry laboratory. "Put these two chemicals into the test-tube, bring the mixture to a boil, and add this, and you'll have it," he said.

"How do you know?" the freshman asked, unconvinced.

"It's got to!" the instructor replied. "That's the way it rule works."

He knew that inside the chemicals there were certain elements. And he knew that when they fused they combined to produce a certain result. The addition of the third chemical introduced the needed catalyst and it had to work. If it did not, then there was nothing in the laboratory that could be trusted.

LAW TO BE TRUSTED

Dr. Karl Compton, the famous scientist, once said that the greatest discovery science had ever made was made that day that someone discovered that all of life is governed by law.

Once we know the law we can rely on the results. Faith consists of living according to the law.

Every time the doctor prescribes, he exercises faith. Every time the engineer raises a bridge, he exercises faith. Every time the electrician throws a switch or pushes a button he exercises faith.

Trusting the moral law is like that. If we know the law, and meet the conditions, we can live out into the law with complete confidence.

In that way we live by faith.

marc anti-aircraft missile or any other aspect of the defence installation here. Such questions could be dealt with at a Friday press conference.

VOODOO FIRST RATE

Air Vice-Marshal Max Hendrick, chief of RCAF Air Defence Command, said the Voodoo will remain a first-rate aircraft until replaced by another interceptor.

He conceded, however, that the U.S. defence department has not yet acceded to NORAD's request for a new long-range interceptor.

The SAGE unit enables RCAF to replace the Second World War manual system of controlling interceptors. Now an electronic computer gathers detection and tracking information from the radars and plots courses for interceptors, manned and unmanned. Even instructions to fire the Bomarc or the air-to-air Falcon missile in the Voodoo can be transmitted automatically.

The North Bay SAGE is housed in a hillside out of which a two-mile tunnel and five 36-foot - high caverns have been dug. It will be the best protected air defence post in North America until the NORAD underground headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo., is completed in 1965.

a 15-year prison sentence.

That started the chain that post Valachi before the Senate committee five days after his 60th birthday.

GETS ANOTHER 20

Valachi was in a federal prison at Atlanta, Ga., when narcotics agents smashed an international dope ring. Twenty-four persons, Valachi among them, were indicted. Valachi got another 20 years.

Then he heard talk that syndicate overlords suspected he had turned informer, and had marked him for murder. In June, 1962, he killed another prisoner with a pipe, fearing the man was his intended assassin.

Sentenced to life, he told the government he was ready to talk.

And he's been talking in closely guarded hideouts ever since. For a while, he was held at Ft. Monmouth, N.J. His current home: the District of Columbia jail.

At the jail, Valachi got a television preview of the Senate inquiry. He watched as testimony from Attorney-General Kennedy launched the subcommittee inquiry Tuesday.

Valachi himself was the star witness Thursday in a closed-door committee session.

A squat man in a rumpled grey flannel suit, Valachi looked tense as he entered the hearing room. But when he came out 3½ hours later, he was smiling and relaxed.

A composite picture of the New York-born Valachi, son of Italian immigrants, paints him as a cautious man of average intelligence.

HAS GOOD MEMORY

"He has a pretty good memory," says subcommittee Chairman John L. McClellan (Dem., Ark). "He's led a life of crime. He talks . . . the mobsters' language. I think you sense in his testimony perhaps some reticence."

Valachi—alias Joe Cago, alias Joe Cargo, alias Anthony Sorge —speaks in a husky voice tinged occasionally by the accents of his Italian forebears. But the main flavor of his talk is that of the New York streets.

"Do ya follow me?" he asked senators during the closed door session "Ya got that?"

Valachi, says one government agent, "was mostly a corporal, sometimes a sergeant, never a lieutenant" in the hierarchy of the syndicate.

"But Valachi knew what was going on, who was doing what. . . . He was an observant and curious man," the agent added. "One reason he remained in the lower echelons was his native caution. The mortality rate is high up there."

Somewhere in Valachi's past are a wife named Mildred and a son, Donald.

Young Boy Anxious About Homework Problem

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a boy 13 years old and I read your column every day. I have learned a lot from it.

The letter about the boy who got lonesome at camp and called up his mother to come and get him was interesting. It sounded like something that could happen to me. It probably won't happen to me because I'm scared to go to camp and my mother says I don't have to go if I don't want to.

Two years ago I was invited to spend a night at my friend's house and I never had a worse experience in my whole life. I got so homesick it was terrible. There were two other boys there and they seemed to have a swell time. I felt embarrassed so I hid my loneliness but I didn't sleep a wink.

I realize I have to get over these feelings sometime. It can't go on like this forever. Can you help me with my problem? — KENNY.

DEAR KENNY — Your battle is half won because (1) you recognize that you Do have a problem and (2) you have a genuine desire to do something about it.

The best way to conquer fear is by doing the thing you are afraid to do — over and over — until you have it licked. Ask your mom if she will let you sleep at a friend's house next Friday night. Make up your mind you're going to have a good time. And good luck.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — With all the serious problems that cross your desk I feel guilty about taking your time, but this annoyance has made me so angry that sometimes I find myself breaking out in a rash over it.

I have a dear friend who has a habit of interrupting people when she wishes to speak. She has done this to me time without number. Of course it's bad manners but it's even more than that. It's gross inconsideration and total disregard for the opinions and feelings of others.

There were times when I thought surely this woman must be hard of hearing and unaware that someone else was speaking. I know better now. Please tell me how to deal with this. — HIVEY HILDA.

DEAR HIVEY — People who impose this objectionable habit on others often do not realize the effects it has.

A sure cure is this: When the clod cuts in on you, simply say, "Please don't interrupt. I would like to finish what I'm saying. You will probably be ignored and the clod will continue to talk — but don't relinquish the floor. Repeat the words — emphatically — until she stops talking. If you stick to this routine, you will break her of the habit.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband and I are having a disagreement. It's too late to do anything about the recent occurrence but I would appreciate it if you would settle this for next time.

A business associate of my husband lost his mother last week. The woman was in her 80's but had been in good health and was quite active until the week she died. We did not know the woman well, but I felt we should attend the funeral because of my husband's association with her son. My husband refused to go to the funeral because, according to him, "We were not invited."

I tried to explain that people do not issue invitations to funerals. My husband stubbornly insisted that since he was not called and notified of the woman's death, his presence was not wanted. What about this? — STAYED HOME.

* * *

DEAR STAYED — You are right. No invitations are issued for a funeral except in special instances when the funeral is a private one. Private funerals are announced as such in the newspaper.

$6,400,000,000.

The over all balance-of-payments deficit on current transactions with other countries fell to an annual rate of $420,000,000 —about half of the total 1962 deficit.

Another expansionary influence in the second quarter came from capital investment, with outlays on fixed capital rising 2.8 per cent from the first quarter to an annual rate of $7,252,000,000. Main increases were in residential and non-residential construction.

SPENDING UP

Consumer spending rose 0.7 per cent to an annual rate of $35,856,000,000, with the main gain in purchases of durable goods—notably new and used cars. Spending on non-durable goods declined by half of one per cent.

Government spending registered a 1.3-per-cent rise. The only dampening factor during the second quarter was a small reduction in business inventories.

Labor income rose to an annual rate of $21,516,000,000—up nearly 1.5 per cent, compared with the first-quarter gain of 2.5 per cent.

But total personal income registered a big advance of 2.8 per cent to an annual rate of $32,784,000,000, largely as a result of large payments to farmers by the Canadian wheat board. Net income of farmers jumped to a rate of $1,816,000,000 from $1,292,000,000.

Corporation profits, before taxes and before payment of dividends to foreign investors, rose three per cent to a rate of $4,120,000,000.

The economic expansion in the second quarter brought a rise of more than one per cent in total employment. The unemployment rate, adjusted to offset seasonal factors, was 5.5 per cent of the labor force—the same as in the first quarter but below the 5.9-per-cent rate in the first half of last year.

Unless Disposal Is Orderly In U.S., Canadian Metals Industry Could Be Scuttled

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — The occasional jitters are evident here as the United States slowly moves closer to the target defined by President Kennedy in January, 1962—disposal of part of the mammoth U.S. stockpile of strategic materials.

Unless the disposal is orderly, the Canadian base metals industry would be scuttled. Dumping the excess commodities not only would disrupt the market in the U.S., but wreck the price structure and marketing arrangements the world over.

Canada's stake is a huge one. Last year it exported $217,600,000 worth of nickel to the U.S. and overseas, plus $295,000,000 in aluminum, $211,000,000 in copper, $25,300,000 in lead and $61,-30,000 worth of zinc. Total—$98,000,000.

These are the mineral commodities—along with some others—that make up about two-thirds of the American stockpile.

That stockpile, scattered at 170 locations across the United States, began to soar during and after the Korean War when there was a market value of about $8,700,600,000.

Of this, some $4,400,000,000 has been estimated by U.S. authorities to be in excess of "presently established maximum objectives." These objectives soon will be changed.

Canadian observers have taken some comfort from the following presidential reassurance:

"I am very much aware of the intricate and inter-related problems involved in this area, including the difficulties experienced by certain domestic mineral industries, the impact of the world markets and the heavy reliance of certain countries on producing one or more of these minerals. And I can say that we will take no action which will disrupt commodity prices."

Canada has continued to send Washington repeated "reminders" of the Canadian position, sources say. And the situation was reviewed in general terms at the Washington talks last week by the joint Canada-U.S. ministerial committee.

Newer objectives have just been set for conventional-war supplies of aluminum, nickel, copper, lead, zinc, chromite and mercury.

Net result was a drop in the objectives for aluminum, nickel and copper—the big three on the Canadian export scene—and no further reductions in lead, zinc or pulling lead and zinc.

However, these objectives still have to be meshed with the quantities the U.S. feels it would need not only for a nuclear war but for post-nuclear reconstruction.

Fall of Bosch Regime Leaves Country in Shambles

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The fall of the Bosch government in the Dominican Republic shatters high hopes that democracy could be established quickly in the chamber left by the Trujillo dictatorship.

When he was elected last December, Juan D. Bosch, 54, a writer just back from 24 years in exile, was hailed by liberal movements throughout the hemisphere as the man who could achieve that goal.

He took over a country that had been run virtually as the private property of the family of dictator Rafael Trujillo, assassinated in 1961.

He had campaigned among a people that had not freely elected a president in 38 years, and won their support by promising to break up the big estates of the Trujillo era.

VICTORY IMPRESSIVE

His Dominican revolutionary party won 628,000 of the 1,050,-000 votes cast—twice as many as its nearest rival.

But in less than a year he was a prisoner in his own palace, overthrown by his military chiefs on charges of dividing his country towards communism and economic collapse.

The reasons given for his downfall are numerous: He was charged with letting Communist and pro-Castro elements get out of control; with fomenting war against neighboring Haiti; with threatening his business community by his planned economic and social reforms.

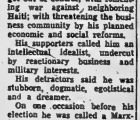
His supporters claim that an intellectual idealist, undercut by reactionary business and military interests.

His detractors said he was stubborn, dogmatic, egotistical and a dreamer.

On one occasion before his election he was called a Marxist—by a Jesuit priest. Bosch met that charges head-on, challenging the priest to a television debate and persuading him to withdraw his accusation.

Despite his clear leftist views, Bosch was well liked by Washington. America officials hoped he could do for the Dominican what it has close friends Romulo Betancourt and Luis Munoz Marin had done for Venezuela and Puerto Rico, respectively.

The U.S. offered major aid in hopes of building a democratic showcase that would contrast with Cuba and Haiti.



Bosch's overthrow, though not unexpected, dismayed Washington, which cut aid and diplomatic ties immediately after the coup Wednesday.

In previous instances the U.S. practice has been to restore contact with the new government in good faith and particularly if it plans new elections.

In the present case some observers think the U.S. will continue a break in relations longer than usual to show clearly its hostility to military takeovers.

Body in Water For 30 Years Is Recovered

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—A body found remarkably preserved in the deep, cold waters of Lake Placid was identified Thursday through detective work of medical men and police as that of a women's colleague who disappeared 30 years ago.

State police said the principal clue that led to the positive identification of Mrs. Mabel Smith Douglass was a broken upper right arm she suffered while a patient at a sanitarium a few months before she vanished while boating.

Her death was recorded officially as accidental, since proof was lacking for any other verdict.

Mrs. Douglass, who was 36years-old when she disappeared, was a founder and dean of New Jersey College for women in New Brunswick. The college was renamed Douglass College in her honor in 1955.

She was last seen alive rowing across Lake Placid alone Sept. 21, 1933, during a vacation in this Adirondack resort.

Her body was discovered by skin divers Sept. 15 on a ledge in water about 95 feet deep.

They told state police a rope was around her neck and attached to an anchor, which they estimated would weigh about 50 pounds. The rope and weight kept the body from coming to the surface.

Lieut. Warren Surdam of the state police said the investigation into the disappearance of Mrs. Douglass 30 years ago showed she had been ill in health and extremely nervous.

He said no evidence of murder had been found. Since the rope around Mrs. Douglass' neck could not be examined to determine whether it was knotted or whether Mrs. Douglass had become entangled accidentally, Coroner Onslow Gordon of Essex County had issued a verdict of accidental death.

Dr. James Utterback, a Saranac Lake pathologist, said the body had been preserved by the gradual substitution of mineral salts and other chemical substances for body tissue, "in effect, forming a cast of the person that existed before."

The process of preservation had left the body "more or less mummified," investigator said. But he added that the flesh on the head "disintegrated like a puff of smoke" when the skindivers raised the body to the surface.

STAY-AT-HOME ARTIST — Except for a period in France 10 years ago, painter Jack Humphrey has remained near his native Saint John, N.B., mainly because he started in the depression years when there was little money about for travel. But this hasn't prevented him from building an impressive reputation among dealers and other artists in the main art centres of the country.

Noted Canadian Painter Spends Life Far Removed From Current of Art World

By JOHN MOSHER

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Painter Jack Humphrey admits to mixed feelings about spending his life far removed from the main currents of the art world.

His main concession to the migratory habits of the Canadian artist was a period in France 10 years ago. Otherwise the distinguished painter has remained pretty well in his native Saint John.

There is something to be said for the comparative peace and natural beauties of a backwater," he says.

"This hilly seaport city and surrounding area have unique charms besides the summer temperatures. P painting landscapes, there is easy accessibility to rivers and lakes and to the seashore.

"However, it might have been better if I had been able to move to a more stimulating environment, which would have eliminated the expense and insurance of sending work to art centres and the remoteness from critics, dealers and others."

There is reason, nevertheless, to believe that being removed from the critics in Montreal, Toronto, New York and Paris has not been a serious handicap.

WIDELY RECOGNIZED

For, as early as 1938, Graham McInnes, writing in Saturday Night, called Humphrey "one of the finest painters at work in the Dominion today."

And when McInnes's book, Canadian Art, appeared in 1950, it had this to say:

"Jack Humphrey, working in solitary grandeur in New Brunswick, has distilled a personal and highly private mood."

Montreal critic Robert Ayre has described Humphrey as a "major Canadian painter," and another Montreal critic, Dorothy Pfeiffer, has written:

"If he can be described as a semi-abstract expressionist, the fact still is apparent that few can equal him as a superb draftsman and water colorist, a subtle and truthful interpreter of nature, and a sensitive and perceptive portrait painter. . . (His) work will be recognized long after the exaggerated adulation now accorded some other Canadian painters has petered out completely."

Humphrey, who has been represented in many important exhibitions in Canada and abroad, recalls that the Depression of the 1930s kept him and many other artists in their home regions. Later it was a matter of having become "more or less involved and rooted."

But he has sought to avoid embassies in Washington, Moscow, The Hague, Oslo, Caracas and elsewhere. His paintings also are represented in other public collections as well as some notable private ones.

Among an imposing list of international exhibitions in which he has participated by invitation was the Summer Festival last year at the Bordeaux Palace of Fine Arts in France.

It featured four centuries of Canadian art, examples of which were chosen by the French curator. The 30th century phase was confined to 23 Canadians, and Humphrey painting loaned by the National Gallery was the sole representative from the Atlantic provinces.

Four Members OPP Precision Team Injured

BARRIE (CP) — Four provincial police constables were injured Sunday as an accident marred the first public appearances of the OPP motorcycle precision team.

The 18-member team was completing its last formation during a show at the Barrie Agricultural Society fall fair when four motorcycles went out of control.

Const. D. H. Pursley of Oakville was the most seriously injured. A 900-pound motorcycle fell on top of him and he suffered leg injuries. Const. H. H. Winters of Barrie suffered a serious injury to his left knee.

Provincial Police Commissioner Eric H. Silk said the ride will continue as scheduled today and Saturday.

The team was formed after Labor Day from some of the provincial constables who took the Canadian Education Association.

Paul Gerin—Lajoie, Quebec education minister, said the annual dinner, a few hours after the ministers' meeting, that provincial spending for education will soon reach the saturation point.

FUTURE CLOUDY

"... As far as we fall short of a major adjustment in federal - provincial fiscal agreements, the financial future of Canada is not so bright."

The only logical solution "lies in a vast reappraisal and readjustment of our fiscal structures in a view to providing the provinces with sources of revenue that will yield much greater sums than they dispose of at the present time."

The ministers said they wanted to go on record as favoring "a more adequate system of financing" for educational projects underlined during the federal government.

This was done as some either through tax-sharing agreements, or through direct grants and some through a down general nature than those provided through the present agreements."

Labor Minister Meets Jodoin For Report

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister MacEachen and President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress conferred for an hour Thursday following Mr Jodoin's brief trip to Washington over the Great Lakes labor war.

No announcements followed the meeting in dismissing the latest developments. It was believed Mr. Jodoin brought back conditions of the AFL-CIO — the Canadian counterpart to the United States counterpart to the CLC—for a voluntary trusteeship of maritime unions.

But he declined to comment on the prospects of progress before Parliament, moves to impose a federal "trusteeship on five waterfront unions.

It was also known that he did not see George Meany, his opposite number as AFL-CIO president.

There was no indication whether he saw Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers' International Union of America, which is affiliated with the conventional SIU here and backs it fully.

Malaysia Chief Says Sukarno Plans for War

SINGAPORE (Reuters)—Malaysian Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman today charged Indonesian President Sukarno with preparing for war.

He was commenting on arrival at Singapore airport on reports Indonesia is stepping up military preparedness in Indonesian Borneo, which borders Sarawak and North Borneo.

The two latter states are members, along with Malaya and Singapore, of the new Malaysia federation. Indonesia has bitterly condemned the federation as an outpost of "neo-colonialism."

Rahman said he is prepared to have a peace meeting with the leaders of Indonesia and the Philippines, both of which opposed Malaysia, provided he could be satisfied they would abide by any agreement reached.

Education Ministers Agree They Need More Money or Taxes From Federal Govt.

By JOHN TORSTON

QUEBEC (CP) — Canada's education ministers unanimously agreed Thursday they need more money or tax resources from the federal government.

The seven ministers and three deputy ministers representing 10 provinces issued a statement following a private meeting suggesting the question of more money for education be taken up at the November federal-provincial fiscal conference.

One of two resolutions adopted during the ministers' meeting, an annual event, said in part that although education is under provincial jurisdiction, federal government grants have "the effect of imposing, in greater or lesser degree, federal policy upon education in the provinces."

The ministers met in conjunction with the annual convention of the Canadian Education Association.

Paul Gerin—Lajoie, Quebec education minister, said the annual dinner, a few hours after the ministers' meeting, that provincial spending for education will soon reach the saturation point.

FUTURE CLOUDY

Direct Loans May Provide 10,000 Homes

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's new program of making direct mortgage loans to homebuilders is expected to provide for as many as 10,000 additional homes by the year-end, Revenue Minister Garland said Thursday.

But in a statement he emphasized that the direct loans won't be made in areas where the demand for new homes is low.

"Local market conditions will be the main criterion in determining loan approvals," Mr. Garland said.

The program of direct builders' loans by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation was announced Tuesday after the supply of private funds for National Housing Act mortgages virtually dried up.

The minister said: "What we are really trying to do is to ensure a steady supply of mortgage funds so builders may carry on a basic winter operation."

"In addition, however, we are also hoping to bring forward for winter construction some of the homes that would have been built next spring and summer."

The three-month program of direct loans—applications will be received up to Dec. 31—was intended only to supplement the flow of mortgage funds from private lenders "during a period when their mortgage money is normally at a low ebb and they are engaged in calculating their allocations for the ensuing year."

Famous Trotter Now 31

'Greyhound' Lives Like King

ST. CHARLES, Ill. (AP)—In this day of fenced and idolized champions, the most majestic one of all is a horse.

At the age of 31—about 100 in a human being's span—the great gelding trotter, Greyhound, is living out his years like a retired king.

He has an air-conditioned, panelled "apartment" on the R. C. (Doc) Flanery Farm. He frisks in a small, Japanese maple orchard nearby. Meticulously attending him since he retired in 1941 is Prevalel, Vernor (Dooley) Putnam.

Dooley's wife Leone, says:

"We probably are the only couple in the world who live at their race at a time while a horse lives up from."

They love it. So does Greyhound, now gone white, who was assured of this royal treatment through directive in the will of his late owner, Col. E. J. Baker, St. Charles philanthropist. He bought the champion for $300 as a yearling.

Greyhound carried Baker's colors to 18 world records. The most impressive mark still standing is 1:59¾ trotted in a time trial on the Lexington, Ky., mile track in 1938. It is the equivalent of a athlete running a three-minute mile.

Parliamentary Notebook

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The parliamentary session resuming on Monday will be a testing time for the Progressive Conservative opposition as it tries to probe Prime Minister Pearson's minority Liberal government.

The opposition must initiate a division of opinion on the tactics the Conservatives should employ to "get at" the government if it is not open in a vote on a snap non-confidence motion.

Some leading Conservatives believe the opposition should make Mr. Pearson the principal target of attack, in much the same way that the Liberals made Conservative leader Diefenbaker the target when he was prime minister.

Others, however, believe the Conservatives should concentrate on members of the Pearson cabinet rather than on the prime minister.

In the latter group's view, several of the ministers—notably Finance Minister Gordon, Health Minister Judy LaMarsh, and Agriculture Minister Hays—have a performance record which will be more easily and effectively attacked than Mr. Pearson's personal record.

The Conservatives are expected to hold a caucus meeting Monday to sift through the opinions the MPs bring back to Ottawa from their constituents across the country, and possibly to discuss the line of attack in the coming weeks.

Four weeks hence, the Progressive Conservative party's national executive will meet here to plan an annual meeting for early 1964. Mr. Diefenbaker has said he will put his continued leadership of the party to a confidence test at the annual meeting.

From his point of view, therefore, much depends on the performance of the party in the first few weeks of the newly-resumed session.

Mr. Diefenbaker, meanwhile, intends to resume the active part he took in party functions across the country before the spring election. He is scheduled to address the Alberta Progressive Conservative in Red Deer Nov. 12, and in other speaking engagements in the planning stage.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

Celebration, elimination and exultation mark the end of the trail for sports organizations of the city and district this weekend.

The Belleville Keamers who romped to what looked like an easy three-game lead in the Eastern Ontario Senior Baseball championship, dropped the next three tilts and now find themselves with their backs to the wall and elimination staring them in the face.

Fate and circumstance have been unkind to the Kenmore, who started on a financial shoestring, were let down to the tag and have been operating next to bankruptcy since.

Youth of the club, an outstanding factor in any team, has had an adverse effect on its chances in why its second Ontario senior championship. Key members of the club have had to answer the call of education and employment and this has robbed the team of much of its effectiveness, particularly when the playoff and playdown chips were down.

Coach Sid Forster has gone all out to present as strong a lineup as possible for the important championship games and has not spared time nor effort to have and secure as many of the better players as possible.

They face the big test in the seventh test here Saturday when they host the Rockcliffe club at the Fair Grounds. Forster will have the strongest team available and hopes to get them "up" for the big one.

Another baseball championship looms on the baseball horizon. The surging Jones Boys, with the Hamilton scalps on their belts, and a win over Chatham in the books, trek in the Toronto Oriole city on Sunday for the second tilt—and they could very well take this one and the OBA juvenile major "A" Ontario title.

A softball title looms over the horizon for the Woods-Horlock juveniles, but they have a stiff barrier in front of them. They are supposed to meet the powerful Galt Sixes here in the second tilt of their OASA playoffs "A" semi-finals. They were beaten 10-1 in Galt in the opener.

It seems that both juvenile baseball and softball teams rely on the same bevy of players but coincidence of playdown dates may cause trouble in the rosters.

It seems the "crems of the crop" leave on Saturday for Chatham for a Senior game—and where does that leave the softball squad? Players could be rushed to Chatham on Sunday morning in time for the afternoon game, but it is doubtful if this will happen. Woods-Horlock may be faced with the possibility of forfeit. (Later: It was forfeited.)

On the waterfront the Quinte Hydroplane Racing Club winds up a successful experimental season with its final race meet off Victoria Park on Sunday afternoon. Doug Storey, the power behind the boat racers, says the putt-putts will start the program at two o'clock. The club will lay plans for a bigger and better season next year with craft from district clubs taking part in meets.

The Bay of Quinte Country Club rings down the official curtain on one of its best seasons on record Saturday with the men's closing field day followed by the annual dinner and presentation night.

President George O'Brien and women's division president Ena Corke can take well-deserved pats on the back for jobs excellently done. Club pro George Balma kept the greens and fairways in topflight shape. The Thursday ladies' tournaments proved a fine success. Committeet chairmen in both divisions co-operated to the fullest extent. Membership took an upsurge and the golfing youngsters had their days. It was an outstanding season all round.

The Bay of Quinte Yacht Squadron and the Quinte Power Squadrons also enjoyed good season.s The yachtsmen climaxe the year with the club's outstanding social event, the Commodore's Ball, on Saturday night. Commodore Fred Yealland and Mrs. Yealland will receive their guests at a pre-ball cocktail party in the club lounge at nine o'clock.

Yankees Rely On Home Run ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Everything Indicates Mound Series

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The home run, a lethal weapon that has carried them to 30 World Series triumphs in 60 years, is likely to bring New York Yankees another world championship, their seventh in eight October meetings with Los Angeles Dodgers.

As in four of their previous seven meetings, the 1963 series should go the limit of seven games. Except for the long ball, a department in which the Yankees clearly excel, there is little to choose between the teams.

The Dodgers, because of the possibility of the appearance of Sandy Koufax in three games, have a slight edge in pitching. The Yankees have a stouter defense, but the Dodgers offset much of this advantage by their superior speed. The Yankees also will have whatever advantage accrues from series experience.

Everything points to a pitchers' series with runs scarce. This should suit the Yankees fine. One single blow has been known to end many a series pitching duel and the Yankees' starting lineup, with the exception of Bobby Richardson and Tony Kubek, harbors home run power. The Dodgers, forced to claw and scratch for runs during the regular season, have only two legitimate long ball hitters in Tommy Davis and Frank Howard.

BATTLE FOR THE YANKS

Opening at Yankee Stadium, which would be the site of four in a seven-game series, is another plus factor for the Yankees. Ralph Houk's team has a remarkable record at home, winning 58 of 79 so far. In contrast, the Yankees won 46 while losing 32 on the road.

The Dodgers surprisingly have played almost as well on the road as they have at home. Through Thursday's games, they show a 43-32 home record compared with 40-33 away.

The planned pitching alignment by the rival managers also figures to give the Yankees a slight, however slight. Barring 11th hour changes, Houk will open with Whitey Ford. Koufax still opposes him, as he shapes up as a brilliant duel of lefthanders.

Ford, the 35-year-old wonder, holds a flock of World Series pitching records including 10 victories in 15 decisions. Koufax' only previous World Series decision was a 1-0 loss to Chicago White Sox in 1959.

SOUTHPAWS AGAINST AGAIN

Another left - handed matchup is expected for the second game, also at Yankee Stadium. This one will pit Al Downing, the Yankees' 23-year-old sensation, against veteran Johnny Podres. It will be the first series participation by Downing who has won 13 of 17 decisions since his recall in June. Podres, 14-11, owns a 3-1 series record, including an unforgettable 2-0 triumph over the Yankees that brought the Dodgers their first world title in 1955.

Based on past performances the lefthanded duels figures to favor the Yankees. Ford owns the Dodgers as a bete noire. The converted was missed, so the score at halftime was 6-0 for Quinte.

After a few minutes of play in the third quarter John Beach scored for Quinte on a six-yard run. Mike Matthews kicked the convert.

In the fourth quarter Mike Chatland, one of Quinte's fullbacks, scored on a run on which he received superb blocking from the line. Bill Leslie of Quinte then went over for the first of his two touchdowns. Minutes later he smashed through for another touchdown. All three of the last touchdowns were converted.

The main factors, in the Quinte victory were the running of Mike Chatland and the rest of the backfield, the blocking they received and most important the Quinte defence, which never let Napanee close enough to the scoring area of the game.

In the junior contest the Napanee juniors overpowered the Quinte team for a 18-13 victory.

The Napanee fullback, Don Forbes, got two touchdowns and Don Fox, Napanee quarterback got the other.

The Quinte Saints won an easy 34-0 victory over the Napanee seniors in the first game of the Bay of Quinte O.R.F.U. schedule yesterday afternoon.

Quinte started out with a bang, with quarterback Richard Ives, completing a pass to Mike Chatland for a 60-yard gain. The Napanee defence held and forced Quinte to kick. This was the pattern of the first quarter.

Quinte opened the scoring with five minutes left in the half when Wilmer Matthews completed a 105-yard drive by going over for a touchdown. The convert was missed, so the

'No Co-operation From Manager, Players'

Sponsor Angry Over Forfeit

Elmer Woods, sponsor of the Woods-Horlock Juvenile "A" softball team here, angrily announced yesterday afternoon that his team has been forced to forfeit their playdown series to Galt.

"It did everything possible to get a team out for Saturday and Galt offered to play the game anywhere and any time that day but we were finally forced to forfeit," said the dejected sponsor.

"I could get no co-operation from them and the players themselves are apparently more interested in going to Chatham early Saturday and having a good time than they are in playing softball first," he added.

Suits is coach of the Belleville Jones Motors baseball team which plays the Juvenile finals game in Chatham Sunday afternoon. There are five players who are on both the Belleville Juvenile clubs.

Woods said he even offered to play the game in Galt Saturday so the players would still go to Chatham that day. He said he could not reach an agreement with Galt on this arrangement either.

Woods-Horlock lost the first game of the series in Galt last Saturday afternoon, while Jones Motors were winning their series here with Hamilton at the same time.

The softball team had only nine players in Galt.

Woods felt that there was no reason why both clubs could not play their games as scheduled (here Saturday at one and in Chatham Sunday at two) with full lineups.

"However," he added, "the players would not speak out and if that is the way they want to treat me, I guess I am the winner in the long run."

Woods has sponsored the softball team, with chiefly the same players, for the past two years.

Koufax Writes Book

'The Year The Yanks Struck Out'

By MIKE RATHEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

Sandy Koufax is working on a book. If it meets the success, it'll gross about $13,000 and probably be titled "The Year the Yankees Struck Out in the Series."

The ace left-hander of the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers, scheduled to pitch the World Series opener next Wednesday, said Thursday he has started taking notes on the American League champion New York Yankees.

"I have faced every one of them at least four or five times during spring training," said Koufax, "but I need a complete accurate line on them before we play that first game."

What does Koufax, only the fourth pitcher since 1900 to strike out 300 or more batters in a single season, think of the Yankees?

"I know they're basically a fast-ball hitting team, and have power," the 25-game winner said.

UNDERCUTS YANK POWER

"I really don't think they have more power than the San Francisco Giants, in our league-and the St. Louis Cards are a pretty good hitting team too, you know," he added.

Koufax was 4-1 against the Giants and 4-0 against the Cardinals. Wednesday he led the Dodgers to a 5-4 win over New York Mets.

In other NL games, Billy O'Dell pitched a three-hitter and Willie McCovey regained the league home run lead with Ever Hear of a "DIURETIC"?

Maybe not. But you should know what a "diuretic" does. There may be times when you should use one. The kidneys filter blood and help control the balance and amount of body fluid. Also find if the kidneys fail to function properly excess acids and waste materials remain in the system. This may result in inflammation of kidneys, bladder and bladder discomfort, often followed by backache, tired feeling and disturbed rest.
This is where the diuretic action of Dodd's Kidney Pills may be helpful. Dodd's act as a diuretic stimulant to help restore normal kidney action, and so relieve the systemic conditions causing backache and tired feeling. When you are bothered by backache from disturbed kidney action be sure Kidney Pills as many have done during the past 70 years. Look for Dodd's at any drug counter.

Vancouver Carlings Win Cup

Take Series 4-2

OORNWALL (CP) — Vancouver Carlings, after backing down on a threat didn't back down on the floor Thursday night and won the Canadian senior lacrosse championship.

The western champions had The western champions had said they wouldn't take the floor unless the two referees who handled the last game Tuesday night were changed.

The same referees were there, but Vancouver played anyway and easily subdued St. Catharines Athletics 13-6, winning the best-of-seven Mann Cup series 4-2.

After Tuesday's game, won by St. Catharines 9-4, Vancouver coach Alex McKay and president Bill Ellison said the refereeing was unsatisfactory and only Ontario rules were being enforced.

The same referees, Bill (Whitey) Frick of St. Catharines and Gord Hammond of Port Credit, had to call only four minor penalties Thursday night and the western officials tempered their criticism

"The referees were calling the game the same as they did all year in the East," said MacKay. "We just weren't used to it."

Vancouver, which had lost the last two games after winning 19-3, 11-5 and 13-7, was used to it by Thursday. They had only one minor penalty and built up period leads of 3-0, 7-3 and 9-5.

Four Vancouver players—John Cerri, Fred Usselman, Wayne Feckniold and Bill Barbour—each scored two goals and four others—Garry Sleeves, Gord Gimple, Bob Marsh and Bob Babcock — scored one apiece.

For the Athletics, forward Pete Sergo, who flew here from St. Catharines for each game in the series, scored a pair of goals and Brian Aherne, Skeeter Mewer, Bill Castaign and defenceman Bruce Wanless netted one each.

MacKay paid tribute to the eastern champs, the underdogs who were supposed to lose the series in four games.

"They gave us a real argument," he said. "They play good, tough lacrosse and are pretty stronger than we expected."

The victory gave Vancouver its second Mann Cup in three years, and MacKay said the team did it by running.

Defeats Albert College

Moira Wins Cross-Country

Moira Secondary School added a new wrinkle to the usual football game as they ran a cross country meet with Albert College on this, the first day of interscholastic competition for 1963-64.

The runners, twenty-four in all, started out from the field with five minutes remaining in the first half and crossed the finish line during the half time break. Some 250-300 spectators were on hand to cheer the runners as they sprinted the last 100 yards.

Stan Woodcock led the Trojan victory as he set a new senior course record — running the course in 11:07—32 seconds faster than the record he set last week in the Moira inter-squad meet. Trojan intermediate Gary Lovett won his age group race in 12:15 followed closely by three of his team mates.

John Hayman of the Moira junior team covered the shortened junior course in record time of 11:32—27 seconds ahead of second place Alex McLaurin also of Moira. Tops in the juvenile age group was short but durable Bill Slater with a time of 13:20.

The next such meet will take place at the Moira-BCI football game when the Trojan runners will compete against Quinte, Norwood District High School and Albert College.

Meet Brockville Here Tomorrow

Kenmors Have Backs To Wall

Either Brockville Beavers or the Belleville Kenmors will hang up their spikes for the season tomorrow afternoon.

The clubs will climax what has turned into a red-hot OBA Senior semi-final series when they clash at the Belleville Fairgrounds, at 2.00 p.m. A special practice has been called for the Kenmors tonight, at the Fairgrounds at 7.30.

There is no second chance for either team. The series is deadlocked 3-3 and tomorrow's winner will enter the Ontario finals against either Galt or Campbellville. Those two teams also play the deciding game of their sel in Galt Saturday afternoon.

The Belleville-Brockville series looked like a one-sided affair at first, Kenmors winning the first three games. Rather than sit around idle, Belleville consented to change the series to a four-of-seven - and that little decision may cost them a place in the finals.

Beavers have turned into a real scrappy club of late and you can bet they will be going all out for a win here tomorrow. They have won the last two games of the series without the services of starry Dave Smith but Smith returned to action this week and will likely pitch here tomorrow.

Sid Forster, Kenmor coach, is expected to send Bill Latchford to the mound for Belleville. Neither club can afford a mistake in this one so relief pitchers are expected to be ready from the first pitch on.

The Kenmors also hope to have a number of their away-at-school players home for this key tilt. "After all, we are the defending champs and we don't expect to give up without a battle", said one club spokesman.

Just how long they can retain their title depends a great deal on how well they play Saturday. Coach Forster has not been happy with the team's efforts since the Peterborough series some weeks ago but thinks they can snap the slump in time, if they want to bad enough.

Don't forget the new starting time tomorrow, 2.00 p.m., in order to provide better baseball weather.

Alouettes Sign T. Gates

MONTREAL (CP) — Tommy Gates, 24-year-old fullback from Oregon State already cut by three football teams this season joined Montreal Alouettes Thursday night as a candidate for injured Jim Clark's job.

Gates was released earlier in the season by Los Angeles Rams and two Eastern Conference teams, Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Toronto Argonauts. He saw limited action in one game with Toronto.

Coach Jim Trimble announced that tackle Mel Semenko, an import, cut earlier by Ottawa Rough Riders, has been signed to a contract. He was put on the Als import roster list in place of Bobby Jack Oliver, out for the season with injuries.

Little Interest Shown In City Hockey

Lack of interest may kill the City Hockey League before it gets past the meeting stage.

What was supposed to be an organizational meeting last night fell flat on its face when exactly six people turned up for the affair. Only two teams, Joyces and Pepsi's were represented.

League president Cliff Belch said another meeting will be held in a couple of weeks. He felt that yesterday's warm summer weather may have had a bearing on the poor showing at the meeting.

Never the less, the feeling was that unless at least some people are interested enough to show, what is the point in attempting to organize a hockey league?

Belch told those present that one night per week would be available for play at Memorial Arena. There was some thought of trying to secure a different night than last year, when the Clubs played Wednesdays, if there is a league to operate, that is.

Have you seen this hang tag on WISER'S whisky bottles?

One day we looked at our various brands of Wiser's whisky, each in a different type of bottle. It suddenly struck us as a little bit absurd that we should spend so much time, effort and money on different bottles; why not get the best bottle we could find and use it for all our brands?

It made so much sense that we decided to do it. We chose this attractive yet functional bottle... it's easy to handle, easy to use, and easy to pack in a bag or briefcase.

Now we can devote all our time to the things that have interested us most since 1857... aging and blending the finest Canadian whiskies.

Drink a whisky that's older and WISER'S

WISER'S

If you like well-aged whiskies, here are some good values: Wiser's De Luxe, 10 years old; Wiser's 101, 6 years old; Wiser's Old Rye, 5 years old; Wiser's Special Blend, 4 years old.

Als Tangle With Cats Sunday

Argos Meet Hot Rough Riders Saturday

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The moment of truth is fast arriving for all four Eastern Football Conference teams.

With the season past the halfway mark, three of them—Ottawa Rough Riders, Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Montreal Alouettes—are still tied for first place.

For the unpredictable Toronto Argonauts, time is running short. The Argos have only four points in eight games, and are four behind the other three EFC teams.

Six games are left in the schedule, and coach Nobby Wirkowski says the Argonauts can't wait for one of the other teams to fold.

"It's squarely up to us," he said Thursday. "We have two games with Ottawa left, two with Montreal and one with Hamilton, so we don't have to back in."

RIDERS ON STREAK

They get their first chance Saturday, when they visit Ottawa to play the Riders, now rolling with a three-game winning streak.

Sunday Montreal journeys to Hamilton to tackle the Ticats. By Sunday night, at least one of the leaders will be out of first place.

Ottawa coach Frank Clair is worried about his team coasting on the crest of their winning streak, but he says he decided to continue with the same lineup.

The Rough Riders have won consecutive games over Hamilton, Winnipeg Blue Bombers and British Columbia Lions.

In Montreal, Alouette coach Jim Trimble said Fred Buzbee, who has been on the Als bench all season, will play Sunday in place of Don Clark, out for the season with a knee injury.

The Ticats, under coach Ralph Sazio, appear well set and will probably go with the same lineup that whipped B.C. 38-21 last Saturday night in Hamilton.

Davis Cup Matches

Yankees Virtual Shoo-in

BOURNEMOUTH, England (AP)—The United States, with Chuck McKinley and Frank Froehling wielding the rackets, virtually clinched a chance to challenge Australia for the Davis Cup by taking a 3-0 lead over Britain after the first two singles tennis matches Thursday in the interzone semi-finals.

"We're almost there," said U.S. captain Bob Kelleher. "No match is won until it's finished and the boys must not relax, but I think we're riding pretty high."

McKinley and Froehling mastered their British foes in equally weather and on a slow, damp court.

McKinley, the Wimbledon champion and No. 1 U.S. player, whipped Britain's Mike Sangster 7-5, 6-2, 7-5 in the first match.

Then Froehling, ranked No. 2, trimmed Ian Thandar Billy Knight, 4-6, 8-6, 6-4, 6-4.

That means McKinley and Dennis Ralston, his doubles partner, can claim victory for the United States today by beating Sangster and Bobby Wilson. Failing that, either of the two remaining singles matches will DeJohn, 25, a former member of the top 10 among heavyweights from Miami Beach, Fla., has a record of 46 victories, 11 losses and one draw, with three straight knockouts this year.

Chuvalo, former Canadian heavyweight champion from Toronto, has a 34-7-1 record. He is 26.

Kansas A's Home Not Definite

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Charles Finley, owner of the Kansas City Athletics, said Thursday he is not definite as yet that his club will remain in Kansas.

He said he would like to say that the Athletics would like to stay in Kansas City and will stay provided they are offered a lease that is fair and comparable to the lease the city gave the football club.

The Kansas City Chiefs, pro football team, has leased the municipal stadium for $1 a year.

Watson Barb Left Mark

'Gump' Touchy on Weight

BY MARVEN MOSS

MONTREAL (CP)—The barbs of Phil Watson have left Lorne (Gump) Worsley more than a bit sensitive about his physical proportions.

The impish goaltender with the elfin wit is normally a man of marked affability.

But ask him about his condition and he undergoes change.

"What's me you gonna start that, too?" he snaps, making no effort to conceal his considerable annoyance.

"That's that Watson. He started all this. I don't want to talk about it."

Phil was Gumpy's coach—and tormentor—with New York Rangers for a number of years before Worsley came to Montreal Canadiens in a seven - player National Hockey League deal last June.

Tough taskmaster Watson seldom passed up a chance to put in a dig about the Gumper's squat dimensions—he's five-foot-seven, 180 pounds—and waistline.

IS AMIABLE

Worsley, changing into street clothes after a brisk 70-minute practice Thursday, calmed down a couple of minutes later and was more of his amiable self.

"Actually I feel good," he said, "and if you wanna know, my weight is about the same as it always was."

How does Montreal's pre-season camp under Toe Blake compare with New York's in the Watson regime?

"It's much easier here. We don't do stops-and-starts, for example. You know one year at New York Watson had the team do 50 of them at a practice—before the playoffs. Boy, that is tough."

Worsley was referring to a procedure whereby the players skate at top speed, jam to a halt and then start again, the bursts directed by a whistle signal from the coach.

DOESN'T USE MASK

Worsley, usually, I just can't see with one on. It's a matter of confidence. If you have more confidence with one, all the better. But it's not for me."

Blake said afterward that, while the club is still carrying Charlie Hodge, "we're not going to alternate our goalies this year and Worsley will be our man."

"We'll carry a spare, of course, but it won't be our second-best goalie," he said, indicating Hodge will likely be sent back to Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League.

He was asked how the camp was progressing, compared with last year's.

"It's much better," he said. "There seems to be much more spirit. Everyone is hustling more. Last year we were dead."

AUTOMATIC TV BECOMES REALITY

Presenting Philips 1964 Monitron 500 TV with five 'features of the future' plus true high-fidelity sound!

Philips 1964 Monitron 500 TV is likely to change your viewing habits forever! No longer do you have to put up with pictures that "tear" or "roll"—e.g., fine-tuning after every channel switch . . . frequent contrast adjustment . . . picture shrink . . . distorted sound . . . all of these annoyances are eliminated, thanks to Philips "five features of the future". Now you can just sit back and enjoy the first truly automatic TV!

'Automatic Contrast'—A tiny electronic eye measures the light in your room, automatically adjusts the contrast on your Monitron 500 TV screen to the most desirable level.

'Optimatic Brightness'—Philips Monitron 500 TV senses—and automatically adjusts—the black level of the picture so that the detail is always clear, even in the darkest night scenes!

'Memomatic Tuning'—With Philips Monitron 500 TV, you fine-tune each channel once, then get perfect pictures without any further adjustment.

'Monitronic Circuit Stabilizer'—Philips "electronic brain" keeps your picture from shrinking or stretching, a common occurrence on sets without Philips exclusive Monitron circuit.

'True High-Fidelity Sound'—Usually found only in expensive stereo combination sets, true high-fidelity sound is now standard equipment in Philips Monitron 500 TV. Laboratory tests establish the frequency range at 25 cycles at the low end and 25,000 cycles at the high end of the spectrum. Philips Monitron 500 also features 'Sound-Off', an exclusive new push-button "muting" switch.

Your Philips Franchised TV Dealer will show you all the outstanding features of Philips 1964 Monitron 500 TV. See him today for a demonstration of the first truly automatic TV.

Challenges Friend's World Mark

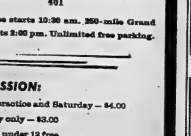
ST. LOUIS (AP) — Craig Breedlove, 26, the world's fastest human on wheels, has one thing on his mind these days — a Los Angeles doctor on the Salt Flats of Bonneville, Utah.

The doctor is Nathan Ostich, a friend of Breedlove's, and also a challenger for his world's speed record of 407.5 miles an hour.

"We were talking the other day and Dr. Ostich told me that if he clips my record—and that's possible—he's going to dance the biggest rain dance you've ever seen," Breedlove said.

Rain is something that Breedlove fears these days. If Dr. Ostich breaks Breedlove's record, the diminutive Hollywood, Calif., native said he will have to dash out to Utah and try to top it.

He plans to top his present record next summer. But should Ostich beat him to it, Breedlove said he will have to do something before the sporadic rains hit the salt flats.



"We've worked over the car almost completely since Aug. 5 record run," Breedlove said. "I don't know. I can get almost 100 miles an hour more out of the Spirit of America as it stands now."

AT THE BELLE — Celebrating his 25th year on the screen, Bob Hope stars opposite one of the world's most popular comediennes, Lucille Ball, in "Critic's Choice," the Warner Bros. comedy playing tonight, and Saturday at the Belle Theatre. Hope plays a drama critic who finds his marriage jeopardized by his wife's insistence on writing a play and his own determination to review it impartially — and harshly if it deserves it. The comedy was lensed in Technicolor and Panavision as are the Featurettes.

Not Fair to Judge Series On Basis of One Program

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YOR K (AP)—The annual fall television explosion will soon be over and the new and old shows established in their evening networks spots. The next three weeks will be the complaints that it is not fair to judge a series, anywhere from 13 to 26 programs, on the basis of one show.

The pleas will come from parties whose initial offering received harsh treatment from reviewers. Such a cry has proven once passed the smiling lips of anyone connected with a show that drew raves notices.

It probably is a bit unfair to condemn—or to praise—on the basis of one program. But there is impressive evidence indicating that it is the method used by the public in picking its pet shows.

By the end of next week, all network programs will be settled in their time periods. By the middle of October, most "heavy viewers" will have decided which of the competing programs they will follow. The report by a national rating service which estimates audience size will be issued a couple of weeks later.

Historically, the evidence indicates, it takes about three weeks of sampling the new schedules of the networks for the audience to make choices. And the ratings indicate the public usually sticks by its early selections.

The next three weeks are pitched in the life of all networks television programs. There are bound to be casualties.

Four new programs will make their debuts during the weekend.

Tonight there is CBS' Great Adventure series (7:30-8:30 EDT) starting with a drama written around the Hunley, an American Civil War submarine. NBC has a Bob Hope variety hour (8:30-9:30) which kicks off his new weekly anthology series.

The Phil Silvers Show joins CBS' Saturday night lineup (8:30-9) following the return of the Jackie Gleason show, a change that pushes The Defenders back a half hour.

Ray Walston's new comedy, a fantasy called My Favorite Martian begins Sunday evening (7:30-8) on CBS. At 9 Judy Garland and company start their weekly variety hour on the network.

Dodger Star Pulls Muscle

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Rookie Jim Hansman, Ken McMullen, a big factor in Los Angeles Dodgers' pennant victory, pulled a leg muscle Thursday night in their National League game against New York Mets and may be out of action indefinitely.

N.H.L. Exhibitions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

They aren't expected to make the National Hockey League—but three Swedes are going, to have some stories for the folks back home.

The three Europeans are seeing lots of action in the exhibition schedule. They all figured in the statistics Thursday night as NHL clubs again rolled to wins over opposition from the weaker Western League.

Ivar Ciesberg scored a goal and goaltender Kjell Svensson played the third period as Toronto Maple Leafs whipped Vancouver Canucks 4-3 before a capacity Vancouver crowd of 6,000.

And Ulf Sterner, a teammate of Ciesberg and Svensson on Sweden's national team last winter, picked up an assist with a strong effort as New York Rangers drubbed San Francisco Seals 7-1 at Calgary.

Other Toronto scorers were John (Mac)Millan, Bob Pulford, Dave Keon, Bob Litzenberger and George Armstrong. Howie

VANCOUVER (CP)—Monday is a big day for "Senator" Capozzi.

As Herb Capozzi, general manager of the British Columbia Lions, there is a crucial game with Calgary Stampeders with first place in the Western Football Conference at stake.

As Harold Peter Capozzi, he is the Social Credit candidate in suburban North Vancouver in the B.C. general election the same night.

"I shall be the first candidate to try to be two places at the same time," Capozzi said Wednesday night.

"I shall spend the day in the constituency; go to Empire Stadium to see the game started, then return to campaign headquarters."

CALL HIM 'SENATOR'

Capozzi, called "Senator" by his players since his nomination, is running against Liberal leader Ray Perrault and five other candidates in the two-member riding.

Capozzi says he attempts to keep football out of his campaign although he is often attacked on the matter by his opponents.

Zenda's Chances in N.Y. Appear Better Than Average

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Early in the second act of the new musical Zenda the villain lands the motion of hurling a dagger at the hero.

The dagger, which was to pop out of a box in a bit of stage trickery, arrived about 30 seconds too late.

It was one of those onstage mishaps that brought a laugh from the audience, and the performers. To some patrons it seemed to emphasize the hit-and-miss quality of the show. But the hits seemed to outnumber the misses, and Zendas chances for Broadway success appear better than average.

Zenda, which will open at the Mark Hellinger Theatre Oct. 26, is a product of Los Angeles-San Francisco civic light opera which gave the theatre such hits as Song of Norway, Kismet and Peter Pan—and such flops as Magdalena and Three Wishes for Jamie.

Zenda has three top stars, direction by George Schaefer, music by Vernon Duke, dances by Jack Cole.

The idea of basing a musical on the Anthony Hope novel, The Prisoner of Zenda (filmed in 1922, 1937 and 1952), seems to be a good one. The story of a British wanderlustin who doubles for the king of a tiny European country isn't too intricate to allow slow downs.

Why, then, is Zenda not an unqualified hit? The answer seems to lie in a clash of styles. The show is primarily an operetta, even nowadays. The ponderous scenery, the sometimes florid acting style are at odds with attempts to update the proceedings. Some dances bear little relation to the whole — especially a twist number and a final ballet that looks like Martha Graham rampant.

The music lacks the lilt required for a successful operetta.

But there are assets that help offset these factors. Alfred Drake, possibly the best star of the musical stage, gives utmost skill to the tricky, dual role. Whether in a corny music hall song or a love song, in bedroom farce or court politics, he proves the indispensible man of Zenda.

Chita Rivera, late of West Side Story and Bye Bye Birdie, shows her versatility. Playing the king's fiery mistress, she belts with style, dances beautifully and handles comedy like a veteran.

September comes from the Latin septem, meaning seven, as under the old Roman Calendar, September was the seventh month of the year.

Rory Calhoun and William Bendix. Starts Saturday at the Park Theatre. On the same program "Captain Sindbad". In Color, starring Guy Williams and Heidi Brook. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00. Trick of Introductions Is to Appear Natural

By JACK HUTTON

A friend was talking to his girlfriend on the street the other day when a former teacher walked by, followed in quick succession by my friend's father, an uncle and old girlfriend.

How did he feel?

"Tongue-tied," he confessed. "My tongue felt like someone had just tied it up with two thick strips of leather. How in the world do you introduce all those people to each other?"

Eventually, he said, his teacher saved the day by quickly introducing himself to everyone and introducing the latecomers to everyone else.

It's a strange truth that just the simple act of introducing two strangers to each other can be one of the most agonizing challenges a person can face.

But if you quietly memorize a few rules, it can be as simple as rolling off a log. (Pardon that expression because it sounds as if one logroller got confused trying to introduce two lumberjacks to each other!)

Remember the following rules and you'll breeze through any situation as if your entire family for the last four generations had specialized in the diplomatic service:

First, when introducing a male and female friend, always present him to her, saying her name first. Example: "Joan, may I introduce (or present) John Jones, an old friend of mine."

Secondly, remember when you're introducing a girl and a woman to present the girl to the woman, saying the woman's name first. Example: "Mrs. Smith, may I introduce a classmate of mine, Mary Jones."

Finally, if you are introducing a boy to a man, always present the boy to the man. Example: "Mr. Harold, I'd like to introduce a friend of mine, John Brown."

The trick of introductions is to appear natural and at ease — but without appearing too casual. Watch a few friends of the family and you'll see what I mean. The secret is simply knowing that you are correct, and know what you're doing.

EXCEPTIONS

Are there exceptions? You're darn right there are, but none so serious that they can't be remembered easily.

For example, you will present a girlfriend to your father, minister, teacher or any other adult who deserves respect. The old phrase "age before beauty" is absolutely true in this case.

How formal should you be? It's better to be casual (but still correct) when introducing friends. But I personally feel it's good to remember some formality when introducing friends to your parents.

It is after all, an important occasion when a good friend meets your folks for the first time, and you'd like both sides to get the best impression of each other.

It's quite acceptable, by the way, to say, "Mom and Dad, I'd like to introduce Bruce Cook." Don't bother to repeat the names (Bruce, this is Mom and Dad) because they've all heard the names.

Will you sound stuffy if you use the accepted forms? You may fee self-conscious the first time or so, but this disappears with practice and the self-confidence you'll soon feel. Just try it.

MORE ELEPHANTS

What would you do if you had more than 300 "elephant jokes" hidden in your desk? Hire a private detective? Jump out the window? That's my problem.

Since I passed on a few of these jokes two weeks ago, the herd of jokes hasn't stopped. At least duplicate each other, of course, but we're still finding others that are new.

In case you're making a private collection (and many of you seem to be) here are a few more samples.

Question: "Why was the elephant wearing red trousers?" Answer: "Because his blue ones were in the wash."

Question: "Why do elephants have wrinkled knees?" Answer: "From playing marbles."

Question: "Why does an elephant have one yellow eye?" Answer: "So he can hide behind a banana."

Question: "How do you stop an elephant from smelling?" Answer: "You hold his nose."

Question: "How can you tell if there's an elephant in your refrigerator?" Answer: "The door won't close."

Question: "What's red and white on the outside and grey and white on the inside?" Answer: "A can of cream of elephant soup."

MAY PLANT TREES

TORONTO (CP) — Residential subdividers in Metropolitan Toronto may soon be required to plant a tree on every building lot as a condition of government approval of building plans. In Western Eyes Sukarno Is a Talented Rogue

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—In the International rogues' gallery, President Sukarno of Indonesia rates a section all to himself.

For superb villainy, as seen from the West, Sukarno is alone in his Asian archipelago, a distant demagogue who cannot sustain an impoverished country despite aid from all sides.

His sheer, breath-taking effrontery commands a kind of grudging admiration. Who can imagine anyone else extracting handouts from such an incongruous trio as President Kennedy, Nikita Khrushchev and China's Mao Tse-tung?

Who else could turn the 3,000 resource-rich island, potentially the golden hinge of Asia, into a set of slums about which departing diplomats speak with a shudder?

Indonesia has pockets of grandiose luxury, but tourists staying in Jakarta's palatial hotel are usually more impressed by the poverty outside its doors. A magnificent cloverleaf overpass tapers off into dirt roads.

A RITZLER

"Poor man's Hitler," scoffs Richard Bagbee in The Sunday Times, and Paul Johnson writes in the British magazine Twentieth that Indonesia is the worst-governed country in the world, barring Haiti.

Batawa

BATAWA — Mr. D. Medved has entered Toronto University.

Mrs. Helen Leatherland has returned home after a visit with relatives in England.

Miss Hettie Oostendorp and Miss Draha Dukar have entered Queen's University, Kingston.

Mr. Peter Horcica has resumed his studies in his second year at Carleton University, Ottawa.

writes Chapman Pincher in The Daily Express, adding that nuclear weapons may be the key to safety for 10,000,000 Australians menaced by 10 times as many Indonesians.

"As the Germans and Canadians can be given U.S. nuclear bombs under an American veto system, surely the same facilities could be offered to the Australians by Britain," says Pincher.

An odd sidelight of the Indonesian situation is that the world's golfers may have cause to take a swing at Sukarno. It seems that more than half of the material used to cover golf balls comes from Indonesia, and there is no substitute.

Pearson Calls On Moderates To Speak Up

Says Bigotry, Prejudice Should Be Attacked

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson called Friday for an organized "voice of reason and moderation" to speak up more loudly against separatism in both French and English Canada.

"Bigotry and prejudice, from whatever source they come, should be attacked and rejected by all men of good will in this country," he said in a half-hour luncheon speech to the Canadian Club here.

He urged "more positive pressure . . . more expression of national loyalty and a greater appreciation of national unity."

"Indifference, here, is our greatest obstacle."

The prime minister's speech, delivered partly in French to a largely English - speaking audience of about 800 businessmen, was seen by observers as one of the strongest statements he has made on the subject of national unity. He struck a serious note throughout and was interrupted only once by applause. But there was prolonged applause at the conclusion.

NEED SECRETARIAT

Mr. Pearson also said there should be another try to establish a federal-provincial secretariat to provide effective cooperation and consultation between the two levels of government.

He said a "re-examination and reshaping" of Canada's constitution has become a necessity.

"It is time, however, a time for tearing down the building, not at the protest of repairing and strengthening it."

Mr. Pearson also dealt with federal-provincial financing of the direct tax fields of personal and corporation income taxes and succession duties. He said he hoped will come before a federal-provincial fiscal conference in November. Quebec's Premier Lesage has called for larger provincial shares of the tax fields.

The prime minister said that if the federal government turns over more of the shared tax fields, or all of them, it must either find new tax revenues "or it must ask the provinces to take over full responsibility for expenditures now undertaken, in whole or in part, by the federal government."

"It is not going to be easy for any government, Ottawa or provinces, to raise more money for its own increasing needs, resulting from increasing duties and costs, at the same time make more money available to the provinces."

SOME WANT BREAKUP

In reply to questions by reporters, Mr. Rouleau said there is certainly a general feeling that it now is time to break up Canada.

This defeatist trend is expressed, for instance, in the demands of the French-speaking independentist movement.

This separatist demand was already beginning to provoke an END OF HIS FREEDOM: "Rajjee", a carnival elephant that ran through backyards and down sidestreets in Lansing Mich., and into a discount department store Thursday night, eventually succumbed to city police high-powered rifle bullets. Medicare To Start In Alta.

EDMONTON (CP) — An Alberta government plan to help an estimated 425,000 persons in low-income groups buy prepaid health insurance was reported Friday to have received only modest initial response.

An estimated 100,000 of those eligible were reported to have obtained coverage from approved medical care insurance companies—or are irrevocably for those seeking government help in meeting premium payments.

Those covered by policies issued by the Oct. 1 start of Alberta's medical plan will get immediate help while other applicants must wait three months.

The plan sets out a wide range of benefits approved companies must provide and also the maximum premiums that may be assessed. It provides premium subsidies for those with less than $500 taxable income in the preceding year and ensures that no Albertan will be denied health insurance by approved companies.

DOCTORS SUPPORT IT

The plan is voluntary for all concerned and has received support from the Alberta Medical Association, the Alberta College of Physicians and Surgeons and private health insurance companies.

Dr. L. C. Grisdale, vice-president of the college and a member of the association's fee coordinating directorate, said Friday: "It is my belief that at least half those in low-income brackets would be covered by approved companies when the plan began.

"But we are reasonably happy and not at all discouraged. We are certain more will join the plan in the next year. We made a couple of mistakes, the most significant being our failure to put across to the public the simplicity of the plan.

"Its purpose is to provide a good standard of prepaid medical care insurance, available to all with the added feature of government assistance for those that qualify."

"Even some of the doctors don't understand the scheme. Some people are trying to read into it complications that just are not there."

ON LAW INCOME

He said a college survey indicated there are about 225,000 persons in families who pay no income tax and qualify to receive the full government subsidy while another 100,000 have less than $500 in taxable income and would qualify for a partial subsidy.

Health Minister Dr. J. Donovan Ross said he is certain the plan was favorably received by Albertans. "There is already evidence of increased interest lately."

Both he and Dr. Grisdale said the plan would show that a compulsory plan — such as one proposed by Saskatchewan in 1963—is not the right solution to people's needs in this field.

Forty nine private insurance companies, including the doctors' Alberta Medical Services (Alberta) Incorporated, have been approved as carriers. Their premiums range from $60 per person a year for single persons, $116 for married couples with no dependents and $138 for married couples with dependents.

KILLED BY CAR

TORONTO (CP)—Mary Ellen Eyre, 22, formerly of Wiarton, Ont., was struck by a car and killed Friday night as she ran across a suburban street.

May Not Call Fall Session Of Legislature

Special Two-Day Sitting Will Be Held

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts said Friday the regular fall sitting of the Ontario legislature may be dispensed with this year in favor of a session starting in January.

Back at Queen's Park with his house majority reinforced after Wednesday's general election, he told a press conference it might be preferable to start the session in January and go as long as necessary.

An advantage of this procedure, he said, would be that the provincial government could see how conclusions of the federal-provincial conference in November might fit in with its legislative program.

The year's legislature session ran past Easter, the premier pointed out. One starting in January probably would carry through until May.

Premier Robarts said his victorious cabinet—which came through the election intact — held their first meeting Friday and made plans for a special session of the legislature for late next month. The two-day session will adopt legislation to enable government to handle Ontario's affairs after losing his Waterloo North seat in the election.

Premier Robarts also has said he wants the house to re-establish its committees on streamlining municipal law and dealing with interest rates on consumer credit.

The special session will be held after the results of the election are officially confirmed after Oct. 21.

SPECULATE ON LEADER

Speculation continued Friday on a successor to federal leader John Wintermeyer, who lost Thursday after losing his Waterloo North seat in the election.

Gordon Francis, who brought Carleton constituency into the Liberal fold for the first time since Confederation in the last April's federal election, may be a candidate for the leadership.

The 43-year-old MP who defeated a Conservative cabinet minister in his second bid in federal politics said to have been approached by a group of eastern Ontario Liberals to seek the leadership.

Mr. Francis, economist and former Ottawa controller and deputy mayor, said Friday he had been approached.

"I'm going to give him a lot of thought," he said, "it's not the kind of decision you make in a moment."

Rebukes Indonesia For Threats

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Britain's Foreign Secretary Lord Home rebuked Indonesia Friday for what he called a "stream of abuse and threats" directed at Malaysia.

Home delivered a sharply-worded reply in the United Nations General Assembly after Indonesia's Lamberton Palar blamed the crisis on Britain's desire to maintain her influence in the area.

The Indonesian described Malaysia — uniting Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and North Borneo—as another example of British techniques of side-stepping genuine independence by federating territories.

He also, Palar said, was to destroy the "Maphilindo" concept of an alliance among Malaysia, the Philippines and Indonesia.

Home said in reply that the federation "was a fascinating idea, in its conception and origin, and was in no sense a British plot."

WANT TO JOIN

Britain had carefully studied the wishes of the peoples involved and found it was their "emphatic desire" to join the federation, he said.

The Indonesian delegate, he added, had suggested that the British made a habit of imposing federations on people against their will.

"If I wonder if the representatives of Australia and Canada and Nigeria will relish being told that they were servile stooges and that their constitutions are, in fact, a flop."

Palar said Indonesia, the Philippines and Malaya had agreed at a ministerial conference in Manila last summer to formation of Malaysia — provided a UN commission found that the people of Sarawak and North Borneo really wanted it. The two territories adjoin Indonesia on the island of Borneo.

Later, Palar said, Malaya had reversed itself and announced in Sept. 16 formation date before the UN commission completed its study. He said the reversal could only be resolved from "heavy British pressure and manipulation."

DIES OF INJURIES

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Edmund Malcolm Seaborn, 70, Ont., died in hospital here Friday night of injuries suffered when he was struck by an iron boiler door at a Seaforth foundry earlier Friday.

B.C. Power Gets Added $25 Million

VANCOUVER (CP)—With an election just a weekend away, British Columbia's Social Credit government has confirmed its ownership of the expropriated giant B.C. Electric Company.

A government-backed cheque for $25,281,306 changed hands in the out-of-court settlement Friday with the B.C. Power Corporation, parent company of the BCE, an electric, gas and transportation utility.

The cheque to B.C. Power represented the difference between the compensation set arbitrarily by the government when it took over BCE two years ago and the figure of $297,114,358 negotiated as the final purchase price.

A joint statement by the principals—the provincial attorney-general's department, the B.C. Electric and Power Authority and the parent company — enterprise B.C. Corporation—said:

"This settlement confirms the ownership of the common shares of the British Columbia Electric Company Limited, by the provincial government."

Premier Bennett

The agreement comes into effect immediately upon the receipt by the government of the judgment of Chief Justice Sherwood Lett in the Supreme Court that the government's original BCE takeover was illegal on constitutional grounds.

The chief justice was instrumental, in a private capacity, in bringing government and corporation together. He agreed to act as interim mediator after the two parties agreed to accept his decision as to final settlement.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner hinted the constitutional question would be settled by means of a special conference in Ottawa. Chief Justice Lett had declared: "The takeover is beyond the jurisdiction of the legislature on the grounds the BCE operated inside and outside the borders of the province.

WIDOWER JAILED

TORONTO (CP)—A suburban Mimico widower was jailed for six months on Friday on a dangerous driving conviction, even though Mr. Justice Dalton C. Wells felt that loss of his wife was punishment in itself for Douglas Lindsay, 40, a father of five, was charged with criminal negligence in March following a head-on car crash which killed his wife Edith, 39.

Canada's Bomarcs Will Get Nuclear Warheads in 2 Months

NORTH BAY (CP)—Nuclear warheads are expected to be fitted into Canada's 56 Bomarc anti - aircraft missiles "within two months," Air Vice-Marshal James Harvey, commander of the northern NORAD region, said here Friday.

He said it will be "several months" before nuclear warheads are available for the RCAF's 63 Voodoo jet interceptors. The planes are based at Chatham, N.B., Bagotville, Que., Ottawa, North Bay and Comox, B.C.

Air Vice - Marshal Harvey said the warheads are "the right side" after emerging from the electronic ratacombs 500 feet under Reservoir Hill which comprise his combat operations headquarters. He is, as it were, the RCAF senior troglodyte here.

Some 700 persons, military and civilian, work underground in three daily shifts in the new SAGE (Semi-automatic ground environment) combat centre which becomes operational

Design Caucus System

OTTAWA (CP)— Backbench pressure from Liberal MPs has brought a pledge by Prime Minister Pearson that a system will be worked out by caucus committees and government supporters in closer harmony.

The pledge was delivered Friday night at the opening of an unprecedented round of meetings in which Liberal MPs and senators were to air their grievances and give detailed study to the government's legislative plans and the party's political affairs.

Guy Rouleau, chairman of the Liberal caucus of MPs and senators took the unusual step of giving reporters a briefing on the opening deliberations at which addresses were made by him, Mr. Pearson and James E. Walker, deputy Liberal whip and MP for York Centre.

"Mr. Pearson reviewed events of the parliamentary session," Mr. Rouleau said. "He said that if any gap has opened between parliamentary government and the cabinet we can work out a system that will close that gap."

In reply to questions by reporters, Mr. Rouleau said there is certainly a general feeling that a gap had opened between the backbench MPs and cabinet ministers.

A new caucus system designed to foster greater participation in government support ers in Parliament in the shaping of policy and to improve liaison between MPs and cabinet ministers is expected to emerge after meeting today and Sunday.

Mr. Pearson was reported by as aides who attended the Friday session to have described it as "a unique and important step by the Liberal party. This is the first time since Confederation in

Britain's Season of Scandal, Sensation About at an End

LONDON (CP)—British political warriors will conduct their rather racy brand of electioneering at the beaches during the next two weeks.

Lord Denning's best - selling judicial report on the Profumo affair is certain to be used for anti - government ammunition when the Labor party opens its annual convention Monday at Scarborough, east coast resort.

Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservatives are likely to quote the same report when they meet the following week at Blackpool, west coast resort. Macmillan sees it as vindication of the government's handling of the Profumo scandal.

Even before the Denning report was published, many thousands of Britons were worried about it at the recent Liberal

Suspect Says He Helped Rob Bank to Support Group

MONTREAL (CP) — A 20-year-old bank robbery suspect has told police he helped rob a bank of $8,500 to raise money for a secret organization similar to terrorist groups, a police source said Friday.

He was one of two persons picked up at a police roadblock after five men robbed a bank branch in the west end Thursday. Three escaped, along with the loot. Two live time-bombs were found in the steps of the bank after the robbers fled.

The youth, described as a second-year university student majoring in commercial French-speaking family, told police in a statement that the secret society was organized in small, separate "cells," a structure similar to that of Le Front de Liberation Quebecois which has been blamed for terrorist bombings here last spring.

He said he had been instructed Thursday to help rob the bank to raise money for the organization. Three other society members and another man were to help. The youth said he was a petty criminal with a record, police said.

The dynamite used in the two bombs, each of two sticks and each wired to an alarm-clock mechanism, appeared similar to the dynamite stolen several weeks ago from a road construction site in the Laurentians.

Education Leaders Castigated For Failing to Face up to Facts

QUEBEC (CP) — Canadian educationists must face up to a new era in education, created principally by spiralling enrolment figures, an Ontario authority says.

At the same time, education leaders were castigated Friday for failing to prepare for the rapidly rising numbers of students applying at all levels for schooling.

Dr. A. W. B. Jackson, director of the department of educational research at the Ontario College of Education, said the numbers of students don't create the problem. It is the emergency measures required to meet the situation.

"As usual, we have delayed action and decision until the 11th stroke of the midnight hour," he said, noting that the first wave of post-war babies would be hitting colleges a year from now.

He was addressing the second annual meeting of the Canadian education association which concludes today.

The experts, he said, affects more than in the universities alone. It affects all of society. The universities would get along "quite well" by limiting enrolments.

The solution to the problem is to decide a policy rather than trying to find human and material resources. "Our society has the resources to support a greatly increased enrolment in higher education, could mobilize the personnel necessary to accomplish it, but has not yet fully decided whether it wants to do so."

'When I Say Canada I Mean Toronto'

Buffalo Mafia Covers 'All of Canada'

WASHINGTON (CP) — Mobster Joseph Valachi, who revealed Cosa Nostra's "rites of death" because a Toronto gangster said he was an informer, told congressional investigators Friday that the high commission of organized crime has spread into Canada.

Valachi named Vito Agueci, a convicted Toronto narcotics smuggler, as a member of the Cosa Nostra family that covered the Buffalo area, taking in "all of Canada."

Valachi declared "when I say Canada I mean Toronto."

In his first day in the witness chair before the Senate investigations subcommittee, Valachi said that Agueci, a native of Salemi, Italy, who came to Canada in 1952, wielded enough influence in Cosa Nostra, the high commission that runs the mafia syndicate, to bring about the turnover of gangsters who fall.

He said Agueci, Valachi said, who put the finger on him as an informer while both were serving long prison terms in the same federal prison at Atlanta, Ga., for dealing in narcotics.

This led to the "kiss of death" — Cosa Nostra's death sentence planted by Vito Genovese, labelled by Valachi as "the boss of all bosses" on the high commission.

Valachi had been Genovese's cellmate at Atlanta where the so-called kingpin of Cosa Nostra was serving a 15-year term for violating the narcotics laws. Valachi said that Genovese picked him for his cellmate.

Valachi, a gravel-voiced 60-year-old dope peddler and murderer who admits he acted as a Cosa Nostra "executioner" in return for Genovese favors, obviously was getting his revenge for the "death kiss" with words instead of bullets.

Unlike Al Capone, who sought near Naples, has managed to keep details of his life a deep secret.

After Valachi put the heat on Genovese, he promised to drag the 10 or so other members of the high commission from the shadows of anonymity into the spot of public attention when the hearing resumes Tuesday.

Why was he doing this, asked Chairman John L. McClellan (Dem. Ark).

"I want to destroy them," retorted Valachi.

"You get nothing but misery, once you're in you can't get out," said the hoodlum who all hall in hopes of getting in.

The senators sat behind their enormous coffin-shaped cakey table and fired questions at a man from another world, the world of Cosa Nostra.

At times they seemed dumbfounded by the answers, the casual recital of killings on orders from the boss of bosses, the ritualistic "kiss of death" Valachi got from boss Vito Genovese in a federal penitentiary cell in Atlanta.

From time to time, Valachi's 6-foot-1 frame, "strong as a bull" chief counsel, Jerry Shea, could obey, "Okay if I go on?"

Then climax came when he told of killing a man in prison he thought was about to kill him. But it turned out to be the wrong man, someone who had no connection with the clannish, tightly organized group of Cosa Nostra members in Atlanta prison.

"You — imagine how I felt," he said, for all the — like an embarrassed man — trie relating some social faux pas he had committed at a party. "And I — I — I — I —

Construction Roundup

Bare is erected, the basement is nearly finished and the swimming pool is in at the new Y.M.C.A. building on Victoria Avenue. More than 15 men are on the job now, according to Archie Johnston, superintending the job for Hugh Murray Construction. Work this week on the nearly $400,000 job has been mostly preparing to pour slabs for the basement, and laying concrete blocks for the first floor walls.

• • •

Excavations, floors and most of the walls for the partial basement on the new 60-unit apartment building at Victoria and George Streets, are completed now, says Tom Lucas, foreman for Galloway and Wilmitey, of Downsview. Footings for most of the outside walls are in, and blocks are being laid on some walls. A soil pipe in the ground above the George Street frontage causes some delay, and cost the contractor some extra cement.

• • •

The North Front St. bridge is finished, except for the paving and some details, according to Karl Lagerli, of Damas and Smith, consulting engineers on the job. The bridge deck has been waterproofed and railings have been put up during the last week, including the flank beam railings on the approach ends. Topsoil and sod have yet to go on the sides of the approach ramp, some bolts are yet to be tightened on the railings, and street lights are yet to be installed. Part of the same contract, but not directly connected to the bridge, was work on pedestrian ramps from Ridley Street, to the approach ramps of the bridge on the west side. Installation of telephone lines through ducts in the bridge floor has not yet been done, although the ducts have been ready for the past two months, according to Mr. Lapins. Until the phone lines are hooked, gaps will be left in the sidewalk on both sides of the bridge. Looby Construction expects to call the city engineer in to inspect the bridge Oct. 10.

Up at Quinte Secondary School, Heinz Kothlow, in charge for Strobel Construction, plans to be through in two or three weeks. Delivery delays held up completion of the laboratories, and work on a girls' occupational shop was started within the past few weeks. Originally a machine shop, the girls' occupational shop is being cut up with restaurant and hairdressing equipment. So far, it lacks services and millwork.

• • •

J. L. Lanther of Beaver Construction, reports South view and Herchimer Ave. sewer will be paved by the middle of next week. Other small jobs, all part of the same contract, on Sidney St.; Douglas West and the Wallbridge Road will be done in about two weeks.

Beaver Construction won't be starting town for a while though. Two more contracts will begin next week, one a sanitary trunk sewers on Fahey St. and Tracey St., and on North Front St. The city limits run to Craig St. Deadline for these jobs is 20 weeks; plans call for completion about the new year.

Norm Whittig, handling two jobs in town for Andrus Construction of Kingston, reports St. Columba's Church, at Bridge and Farley Streets, is nearly complete. The congregation has been using the church basement for the past two weeks.

The new vocational building on Dundas St. is a bit slower, mostly because of delays in getting U.S. made equipment. Floors and have been laid now, and electrical fixtures being hung. Hoped-for completion date is about one month.

• • •

Down on Coleman's bayshore, George Dicencio and his Inspiration Co. crew, have laid concrete slabs for the buried phone line from the bay, at Ewick's Island, up to Lou's Transport on Dundas St. Some footings there by up James St. to Bridge. About 15 men are working on the job, but Whittig said the line is coming from Montreal. The firm specializes in laying the concrete and will for underground cables.

New Class Of Technicians Is Initiated

Late afternoon shoppers in the downtown area Friday must have thought Hallowe'en had arrived early as a group of costumed fun making young people made their way up and down Front Street.

Street length skirts with appropriate accessories and paint daubed faces seemed to be the favored costumes for members of both sexes.

It was masquerade all right but it wasn't Hallowe'en.

The masqueraders were members of the new laboratory technicians class at Belleville General Hospital, having themselves a bit of initiation fun before getting down to the serious business of studying.

The laboratory technicians course at the hospital was established this year, and this year (October 4th) will graduate 18 students. The course originally was for 12 months but this has now been extended to 18 months.

Ask Hunters Collect Wings Of Woodcock

Hunters who enjoy the challenging target of the quick, erratic flight of a woodcock are asked to assist biologists of the Canadian Wildlife Service of the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources by collecting one wing from each bird they shoot. The biologists need information which can be obtained only by examining and measuring a large sample of woodcock wings.

The wings are used by the biologists to determine the age and sex of the birds. Age is determined by examining differences in the pattern and color of the feathers on the wings. Sex is determined by observing a difference in the size of the large outer primary feathers.

Age and sex ratios provide an indication of the number of young birds being shot, and thus of the success of the preceding breeding season.

Over the years, the numbers of wings sent in by hunters will give an idea of the total number of birds taken each year. The more information hunters can give the biologists, the better our management of woodcock can be.

The woodcock is a challenging game bird for the hunter. It is usually found in alder thickets where the ground is soft and a supply of worms is available. The woodcock's color protects it well from the hunter's gun. It is very difficult to spot when not in flight. Most woodcock hunters depend on their dogs to assist them with their sport.

The Canadian Wildlife Service has prepared printed envelopes in which the wings can be placed for mailing in bunches. The envelopes are available in Ontario from conservation officers of the Department of Lands and Forests. For hunters in other provinces, envelopes can be obtained directly from the Chief, Canadian Wildlife Service, Ottawa.

Parade Held to Introduce United Appeal Campaign

Three drummers of the Hasty-Tees band and eleven men of the Belleville Men of Brass saved the day, this morning, for the United Appeal Campaign Parade, which showed up at City Armories this morning, despite last minute cancellation of the band's commitment to march in the parade.

The Belleville Men of Brass enlisted in the parade last night, with a ten o'clock phone call from Charles Hammond, representing the band, to Col. Angus Duffy, parade marshal. The Men of Brass don't march, but if the parade could supply a truck, they could ride and play. True to form, the Belleville came up with a truck just before midnight and everything blinked.

The parade moved out from the Armouries at 10 a.m., led by Regimental Sgt. Maj. Cadet and St. John Cadet color party. Next in line were Miss United Appeal and her committee members in a white convertible, then Brenda Branscombe's majorettes.

AGENCIES REPRESENTED

Wolf Cubs and St. John Ambulance Cadets followed, the total of more than a hundred marchers, then a series of cars representing the various agencies in the appeal.

Floats, along the tail end of the parade, included a Sea Cadet whaleboat, on trailer, complete with crew, a truck-borne display of Belleville Minor Sports Association activities, and two from the YMCA.

From the Armouries, the route of the parade led along Bridge St. to Front, down Front to Bridge and via Bridge to the Armouries.

CAMPAIGN OPENS MONDAY

Main purpose of the parade was to stir up interest in the United Appeal Campaign, opening in Belleville, Monday, Sept. 30. From Monday to Thursday Oct. 3, main emphasis of the canvass will be in the downtown area. Starting Oct. 28, a canvass of the residential area of the city will begin and continue until the close of the campaign, Nov. 7. Objective for this year is $85,000; achievement last year was $72,000.

Members Will Make Walking Tour of City

The Hastings County Historical Society is planning an experimental walking tour for Sunday afternoon.

Location of the walk will be the corner of Front Street and Pinnacle Street area. This was one of the two earliest settled areas in Belleville, and the plan for the tour is to view and discuss many of the early buildings in the area.

According to tour supervisor Rodger Grafe, a resident of the home in the lower Front Street area show a distinct New England style and may date back to before 1820.

Persons interested in viewing and discussing some of these early and interesting buildings are asked to meet in front of the County Museum, 240 Church Street, at 2 o'clock. The tour is expected to last almost two hours.

Also invited to attend are persons who may be able to shed some light on the origin and uses of the buildings in the lower Front Street and Pinnacle Street area.

Society Will Hold Workshop At Museum

On Monday evening, September 30, at 8 o'clock, the Hastings County Historical Society will sponsor a workshop in the new Museum, 240 Church Street.

Purpose of the workshop is to analogous the society's growing collections of newspapers, school books, documents, and other articles.

Interested workers are invited to attend, and those persons with copies of W.-C. Miles's "City of Belleville History" are asked to bring them along.

The parade moved out from the Armouries at 10 a.m., led by Regimental Sgt. Maj. Cadet and St. John Cadet color party. Next in line were Miss United Appeal and her committee members in a white convertible, then Brenda Branscombe's majorettes.

Pope Paul's Ideas May Make Ecumenical Council Productive

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP)—Pope Paul's announcement that he intends to reorganize the curia, the powerful governing body of the Catholic Church, has sparked lively interest in the second session of the ecumenical council opening in the Vatican Sunday.

And it is the first demonstration of his declared intention to carry on Pope John's campaign to modernize the church, to present it in a softer, more moderate light to Catholic, non-Catholics and non-Christians alike.

Many observers predict this session will be even more productive than the first. Pope Paul has ordered the agenda trimmed, bishops restricted to 10 minutes to reduce trivia and rhetoric, and in general has told the cardinals to get down to business.

The Pope earlier pledged his full support to the drive for church unity. Indeed, he went even further and said it was his wish to establish closer contacts with the world's non-Christian faiths.

His plan for an explanation of old truths in modern language reflects also similar calls by Pope John.

But the big surprise was his announcement on the curia, the 11 sacred congregations each under a cardinal, which is roughly equivalent to the cabinet in a secular government and which has been virtually all-powerful in the administration of the church throughout the world.

INTENTIONS UNKNOWN

The Pope hasn't yet said specifically what he has in mind but the so-called "progressives" of the church hierarchy are known to have been complaining for years that the curia is "Rome-enclosed in its thinking and judgments. In fact, 10 of the curia heads are Italians and the other two have been in Rome 30 years.

Although the first council last year was secret, many of these complaints became known after the council began. And the being sufficiently incisive and up to date a plan dealing with, among other things, the rights of bishops in their relationship to the curia.

It was this plan that caused the progressives and the conservatives to take sides and the fact it was given first consideration was taken as a victory for the progressives.

The revised edition will be the first item of business before the new council session and most observers take the Pope's statement as an indication he intends to come down on the side of the growing progressive wing.

The main aim of those who press for reform is greater "decentralization" of the curial functions and greater powers for local bishops and an end to the Italian monopoly on the curia.

No Comment From Deputy Labor Secretary

WASHINGTON (CP) — John Leslie, U.S. deputy assistant labor secretary, said Friday night his department will make no immediate comment on the plan by Great Lakes Shipping Limited to send the ship John Ericsson to Chicago next week.

"We're not saying anything at the moment," Leslie said when asked whether Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz would provide any details about Wirtz's meeting Thursday with Peter McGavin, secretary - treasurer of the AFL-CIO maritime trades department.

After McGavin conferred with Wirtz, a trade union source said Wirtz promised to do what he could to dissuade the company from moving the ship into Chicago when negotiations on the Great Lakes issue are marked by new tensions. Leslie would neither confirm nor deny that Wirtz had made such a promise.

Leslie added that it might be assumed that the question of the John Ericsson would be raised when Wirtz meets with Canadian Labor Minister Allan MacEachen at Boston today.

"But I'm not the purpose of our trip," he said, indicating that the main purpose is to attempt to find some solution to the Great Lakes labor battle involving the Seafarers International Union of Canada and the Canadian Maritime Union, which is supported by the Canadian Labor Congress.

SAILS AS TEST

The Great Lakes plans to send the John Ericsson into Chicago to fill a grain haulage commitment and to test whether the U.S. judge will make good his threat to impose a fine of $3,000 a day if union grain clerks again refuse to handle an Upper Lakes vessel.

The judge gave the warning after fining the trimmers union a total of $16,000 for boycotting the Upper Lakes' Howard N. Shaw, which finally pulled out of Chicago a week ago after being tied up five months because of a union battle.

The Canadian parliament opens Monday with a proposal for federal trusteeship over five maritime unions as one of the items expected to come up. The trusteeship was suggested by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris in a report on an intensive inquiry into labor violence on the lakes.

Mr. MacEachen spent an hour Thursday in conference with Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, after Mr. Jodoin's return from Washington talks with U.S. labor leaders.

Mr. Jodoin was believed to have brought back a proposal from the AFL-CIO for a voluntary trusteeship.

CLC Counsel Tears Into Seafarers

OTTAWA (CP)—Another faillade was fired by the Canadian Labor Congress Friday in its battle against Hal Banks' Seafarers' International Union.

Maurice Wright, CLC counsel tore into the SIU—"these unprincipled People"—for what he described as "scurrilous personal attack on the integrity of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris, who conducted Great Lakes union warfare.

At issue was an SIU statement issued recently concerning the Norris report to the government. The report recommended government trusteeship over the maritime unions.

"There is simply no point in discussing this (SIU) statement since it is filled with lies, complete distortions and quotations torn out of context and I will not dignify this rubbish with any comment," said Wright and Privy Day in his own statement.

ACCUSED JUDGE

Wright said that charged that the SIU has accused the British Columbia Supreme Court judge of "a flagrant disregard of the basic principles of fair play and justice" and of "violating, ignoring or distorting canons of justice" and displaying "apprehensiveness, prejudice and bias."

Said Mr. Wright:

"Never in the history of this country has a member of the judiciary, or indeed any person appointed to fulfil a public function, been exposed to such cynical, brutal and thoroughly unconscionable tactics.

"Mr. Justice Norris had to sit through months of delays, obfuscation and frustration, all of which were deliberately engineered and staged by the SIU.

"Although from the outset, he was baited and exposed to the worst kind of provocation. Only the future will tell what Mr. Justice Norris could possibly have endured this ordeal."

Wright added the judge has won the admiration of everyone "except those who have been exposed as the wrongdoers of the truth.

"Although he was exposed to deliberate contempt by the SIU, he was' objective throughout."

Youth Tells Of Bizarre Shooting Contest

TORONTO (CP)—Charles A. Ward, a 16-year-old high school student, said in court Friday he was shot in the foot as the aftermath of a bizarre shooting contest in a suburban Willowdale house last July 25.

He was testifying at the trial of Wayne Ford, 17, charged with criminal negligence causing bodily harm. Ford is the son of Mrs. Minnie Ford, a widow who disappeared mysteriously from her home last May. The boy has been living alone in the house since.

Ward said he and three other youths went to Ford's home and when the subject got around to guns "Wayne took out three—a pellet gun, a .303, and a .22 rifle."

He said they went to the basement and somehow a shooting contest developed. Ward said Ford wanted to shoot a spool of thread off the head of one of the boys—14 - year - old George Foster.

Then, Foster was to try the same thing with the spool on Ford's head," he said. "The rebel got a coin, big as a nickel, a bottle of blackberry brandy."

HOLES IN MOUTH

Ward said everyone was "chicken" toward the game except Foster, who agreed to a different version of the game—to hold a ruler in his mouth with the bowl of a corn cob pipe balanced on it.

"But Wayne said there was nothing to it and that would be no contest," Ward testified, "so the pipe bowl was moved up to the 12-inch mark—two and one inches from the Foster's mouth.

Ward told the court Ford fired the .22-calibre rifle, but missed the pipe.

He said they then went up to the kitchen and had a drink of brandy, returning to the basement to play pool.

Ward said that when Ford appeared to point the rifle at him, he tried to jump out of the way on a bar stool. A shot was fired and Ward was wounded in the foot.

The trial continues.

Bond Market Active, Prices Are Strong

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Prices were strong in active trading on Canadian bond markets this week.

Short-term securities improved as much as 60 cents, while gains of 1¼ to 1½ points were registered in the long-dated issues.

The treasury bill average was 3.65 per cent compared with 3.68 per cent last week. The strength in the bills reflected the easy cash position of the chartered banks, as placing new money dropped a new low of 4 per cent.

The provincial and corporate markets were also buoyant with the new Ontario 5½-per-cent, 1983, issue selling at 102 compared with last week's 100.50. The Bell Telephone 5¾-per-cent, 1986 issue, closed at 103-100.50 compared with last week's close of 101.50-102.

Expenditures Grow Faster Than Revenues

OTTAWA (CP)—The government set Friday nothing to cut $1,900,000 in the first five months of the current fiscal year as expenditures grew faster than revenues.

For the corresponding period last fiscal year the deficit was $5,800,000.

The monthly treasury statement of Finance Minister Gordon issued Friday night showed that there was a deficit of $100,000 for August, a drop of $5,700,000 compared with one of $72,-800,000 in August, 1962. Expenditures totalled $265,400,000, revenues $463,400,000.

In the five-month period, expenditures jumped by $32,800,000 to $2,468,000,000 from $2,435,200,000 in April - August, 1963, while revenues increased marginally by $9,000,000 to $2,416,-700,000 from $2,408,100,000.

Mr. Gordon has forecast that his June 13 federal budget, together with subsequent changes in it, will make a budgetary deficit of $655,000,000 in the current fiscal year compared with next March 31. Last year's budgetary deficit was $709,000,000.

Youth Missing For 11 Days Found in Bush

NAKINA, Ont. (CP)—A 16-year-old Hamilton youth, missing in northern bush since last Monday for 11 days in northwestern Ontario, was found huddled in a make-shift rock shelter about noon Friday.

Cameron Lovelady was found by Ontario provincial police patrol by a party of Indians and prospectors following an air and ground search since last Monday week, provincial police said.

Police flying flown to hospital in Geraldton, Ont., after they told his rescuers his feet were sore and swollen. He was not since he became separated from two companions on a fishing and hunting trip at nearby Lake Wabahimiga, some 200 miles northeast of the Lakehead.

Const. Jack Hymers of the Nakina OPP detachment said in a telephone interview the youth was in fair to good spirits when found by the search party.

Some 30 men and five company aircraft had joined in the search, Const. Hayes said. One of the aircraft transported the youth to hospital.

HAY BALT BUYING

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Washington Post says the U.S. Army may be forced to stop buying Canadian-built Caribou transport planes because of a defence-trimming move by the Senate. The Post says the Senate action, if supported by the House of Representatives, would lop off $21,700,000 from the current defence budget. The money was to cover purchase of another 10 of the planes built by de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Limited, Downsview, Ont.

Glenora Road School Damaged By Vandals

PICTON — Ontario Provincial Police are investigating vandalism at Glenora road public school. When teacher, Mrs. Bernard Brooks arrived there yesterday, she found desks upset, maps and books on the floor and windows broken and walls defaced. Pupils were dismissed for the day while damage, running into hundreds of dollars is repaired.

Average Duck Bag Was Two Per Hunter

By WM. W. HITTLE

Taking everything in account, and this includes the would be hunter who blasts away at anything and everything that flies or runs and into view, there were just about 2 ducks per pot per hunter in the opening days of the season.

The weather was perfect. A clear cold morning with frost forming on the boats and reeds crackling underfoot. On large marshes the first shots were fired shortly before 8 a.m. while in the beaver ponds the hunters had to wait until 8.15 for sufficient light.

In Prince Edward County the hunt was better than the past several years. There were fewer hunters out as many travellers, due to heavy floods and small marshes The hunting was generally more successful in spite of less hunter density, where the experienced hunter waited until the ducks came into close range.

On the big Conroy Marsh there were more hunters than ducks, or so it seemed at the opening barrage. Some "Hunters" actually shot 30 rounds without bagging a duck. The "sky busters", persons who shot at ducks at a range of 100 yards and over, spoiled the hunt for others. "Sky busting" isn't done only by beginners but by men who hunt year after year, seldom getting anything and never bothering to learn about the weapon they are using and its lethal range.

Conservation Officers of the Department of Lands and Forests checked 178 hunters, who had hunted a total of 1375 hours for 708 ducks (including 2 coots and 26 hooded merganser, the latter of which is not included in the bag limit but nevertheless were being taken home for the pot.)

The scarcity of dogs was noted as was evident in the number of crippled ducks lost. Officers recorded 140 ducks downed and not retrieved and there were likely many more. This is a waste of natural resources and something all sportsmen should strive to prevent.

The record take of waterfowl was as follows: - blacks 211; woodducks 158; mallards 156; blue wing teal 64; ring-necked duck 41; ringnecked duck 41; pintails 6; scaup 5; and coots 2 and hooded mergansers 38.

Marine Pilotage Board Returns To Montreal

By GEORGE FRAZION

MONTREAL (CP)—The royal commission on marine pilotage returns to Montreal Monday for hearings which commission sources believe may last until Christmas.

It has visited nearly every Great Lakes port since starting its work last February, but by far the greatest part of its time has been spent investigating pilotage on the St. Lawrence River system.

Testimony before the commission has turned up numerous problems in the operation and administration of pilotage services in Atlantic and Pacific waters, but these have been mostly of a local nature.

St. Lawrence pilots are putting up the basic case for Canada's 600-man complement; they form the oldest, best-organized and wealthiest group of pilots, and the district they work in is the biggest and most varied in Canada. It comprises 1,000 miles of deep and shallow, wide and narrow, east and inland waterway from the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Cornwall, Ont., and includes two of Canada's largest ports, Quebec and Montreal.

GUIDE SHIPS

The job of marine pilots is to guide ships through waters with which the captain could not be expected to be familiar.

St. Lawrence pilots contend that the basic principle of pilotage in Canada is that there is no uniform system regulating it. In the Welland Canal, pilotage is carried out by federal civil servants out-right. In the St. Lawrence, they are independent professionals although the transport depart-ment collects pilot fees, provides boats and dispatches and runs the communications system.

In some ports like Toronto, harbor pilots come under the jurisdiction of local harbor commissions.

The royal commission was established in November, 1962, with Superior Court Justice Yves Bernier of Quebec City as chairman.

Other members are R. K. Smith of Vancouver, retired chairman of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, and H. A. Renwick, Vancouver businessman.

COULD SLOW WORK

STRIKE (CP)—Union officials warned Friday that a threatened strike against an acetylene manufacturer over wage demands could slow down construction of the $206,000,000 Lake - west subway line. The United Steelworkers of America (CLC) Friday threatened to strike against Canadian Liquid Air Company, but did not set a deadline.

ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

Now that the politicians have made the conventional noises, a cautious forecast might be that Britain's season of scandal and sensation is just about at an end.

The 50,000 words of the Denning report on the Profumo affair certainly lend themselves to differing interpretations, and there will be at least one more parliamentary debate in which rival opinions will be hotly pressed. But the real fireworks may be finished.

Public opinion, in particular, appears to be getting bored with a chapter in British history that had a certain novelty value, but is nevertheless irrelevant to the real problems of a nation still pleasantly uncertain about its role in the post-imperial era.

NO MORAL DECLINE

A visiting New Zealand newspaper executive said the Denning verdict would have only one impact in his (not necessarily loyal country.

"Most of our people will not vastly relieved to have Lord Denning's assurance that there is, after all, no decline in the standard of public life in Great Britain. That is all that we wanted to know."

A Manchester Guardian reporter, trying to find out what ordinary people thought about the report, said there were a "good many yawns."

He said the reaction of the suburban - commuter, furled-umbrella brigade was that the "whole thing's been blown up out of all proportion."

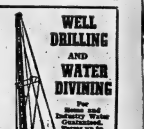
AFFAIR ENDED

The London weekly magazine Spectator in a leading article entitled "The End of the Affair," commended:

"Lord Denning has said what he had to say, and the long-drawn-out Profumo affair is at an end, or should be."

In the Post-Denning speculation, one point that seems unlikely to be settled for there will be no election until next year. But there is conflict over Prime Minister Macmillan's personal position.

The Daily Telegraph and the Financial Times, Conservative papers that usually take the true-blue Tory line, appear convinced that Mr. Macmillan will make a dignified exit within the next few months.



But Henry Fairlie, in the right-wing Daily Express, says without hesitation that Macmillan plans to lead the Conservatives at the next election, which must be held before October, 1964. Fairlie says Macmillan is likely to make this plain at the Conservative party conference starting Oct. 2.

Tea-Sing the Voters

Tea seems to be the world's most controversial beverage. To noted tea parties of the past, such as that one at Boston and Lewis Carroll's tete-a-tete between Alice, the Mad Hatter, the March Hare and the Dormouse, has now been added the London tea party that never was. Premier John Roberts, it seems, may have just escaped unseating himself by the proverbial slip between the cup and the lip. The lip in this case was provided by Harry Quigley, the Liberal candidate in London South, who called attention to a section of the Election Act which forbids furnishing meat, drink, refreshments or provisions to voters. The Conservatives in London quickly emptied their teapots down the drain, but Mr. Quigley's protest came much too late to prevent dozens of other candidates from debauching the electorate with a dazzling variety of items, which probably included those standard aids to seduction, the candy which is dandy and the liquor which is quicker.

Since one of the ridings of Hastings local contenders provided the electorate with a wide choice, including barbecued chicken, corn on the cob, hot dogs, pizza and coffee. None of these, apparently has the same potential for raising a political storm as tea. A variety of pleas might be entered for the different selections—this was profitless before the election campaign started, that was served in a private home, corn is inseparable from any election campaign, pizza is obviously an immigrant ignorant of our laws, hot dogs are universally accepted as non-partisan fare fit for prince, president, publican and plebian alike, and so forth. Moreover, the whole argument against this procedure may be as vulnerable to a probing finger as yesterday's teabag, for the returning officer in London South, George T. Miches, can see no evidence of a contravention of the Act.

Nevertheless, before another election rolls around, it would seem advisable the legally elected members of the Legislature, if any, review the Election Act. Either it should be brought into line with present-day political practice or present-day political practice should be radically altered.

A Good Start

Russia may want to buy grain from the U.S. as well as from Canada and Australia, some Canadian sources believe, but be reluctant to risk a rebuff. The U.S. Government discourages Russian-U.S. trade, apparently on the assumption that lack of trade will hurt Russia more than it will hurt the U.S.

Meanwhile, U.S. grain traders are camped in Ottawa, awaiting U.S. government permission to negotiate with the Russians. These men have millions of tons of grain to sell, and they are more interested in the color of their customers' money than his politics. Were it not for the U.S. Government's attitude, one might suggest, they would have been selling to Russia all the time. And so, would have had no farm surplus and Russia would not face a possible food shortage.

To a person unacquainted with U.S. extremist politics, it would appear only logical that there is a solid basis for U.S.-Russian trade. The U.S. could supply the goods it can produce best —such as grain. Russia could pay for the grain with the products it can produce best, but one hesitates to suggest the payment be made in spaceships.

In a more serious vein, it is a distinct possibility that establishment of trade relations between the two great nations could be the start of a new world situation. Neither side, so far, has really given peace a fighting chance.

Crump's Definitions

President of the C.P.R., Norris R. Crump, should know his way about the ins and outs of handling money. It follows, then, that what he says about the national economy is worth our attention. Maybe, maybe not.

Not long ago, at Banff, he explained the difference between economic planning and a planned economy. When some one, your wife for instance, tells you how to spend your money, that is economic planning, according to Mr. Crump.

But when "a few people, the government," tell the country where it is going, the result is a planned economy, "and that is not democracy."

If Mr. Crump thinks that this is going to make everybody detest the government's "planned economy" and adore the wife's "economic planning," he hasn't much idea about how some wives plan.

Gilles Gregoire Out to Get Grim-Faced Gromyko's Goat

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It begins to look as if perhaps we had a "Secret Weapon" in Gilles Regoul in helping up our end in what is known as the Cold War, and just didn't know it.

Well, the "secret" is out . . . and the "weapon" is Gilles Gregoire, the young (37), intensely ambitious, fast-talking Social Credit MP for Lapointe who currently is being touted as the Soreed "Creditiste" most likely to grease the political skids under the already fast-sliding Real Caouette.

You should have seen our dynamic little "Creditiste" overwhelming the grim-faced Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko under the sheer weight of unending words.

It happened at a reception given for Prime Minister Pearson by Paul Tremblay, Canada's Permanent Delegate to the United Nations, in his Park Avenue apartment.

As a member of the Prime Minister's press party covering Pearson's appearance at the UN and his conference with President Kennedy, along to the reception went your correspondent from the Intelligencer.

BEWILDERMENT

There, vodka in hand (the drink actually was one of those orange-tinted concoctions known as The Screwdriver) stood Gromyko, eyeball to eyeball with Adlai Stevenson, the Chief American Delegate to the UN.

Just possibly, because their little chat appeared to be as private as such tete-a-tetes can get at these social goldfish affairs, they might have been cutting up old Cuban Crisis touches.

But not for long.

For along came Gilles Gregoire, like a missile.

Taking dead aim through the tight-packed cocktail crowd talking at the top of his lungs, he came boring in on Gromyko.

"I am a member of the Canadian Le Regroupement des Creditistes," Gregoire cheerfully informed the startled Gromyko, "and without doubt the most anti-Communist person in this entire building."

"That covers a lot of territory," grinned Gromyko amiably, "we're on the eighteenth floor, you know."

"In all the city, too," added Gregoire for good measure.

"Coexistence is the international fashion these days," beamed the Gromyko, "I'm all for it, myself."

And with that he raised his glass, "Cheers."

He should perhaps have known better, for Gregoire, seeming to sense that he had softened Gromyko up a little, figured him a possible convert to Social Credit . . . à la Quebec.

"YES YES YES"

Obligingly, and grinning to himself, Adlai Stevenson drifted away, leaving Gregoire a clear field of operations.

On the end of his stiffened index finger, Gregoire sharpened the hefty Communist and steered him through the tricky mazes of Social Credit until his back was to the wall and there was no further retreat — or escape.

Then Gilles Gregoire let him have it.

"I'm going to tell you about Social Credit and free enterprise," he started out and rattled away at his machine-gunned 300-words-a-minute, not giving Gromyko a chance even to get in a "Yes, but."

It must have been some political hash making. For soon Gromyko, bemused, was nodding in decided agreement and murmuring "Yes, yes, yes, yes. I agree. I agree. Yes. Yes."

Finally, he escaped back to the receiving line, bowed his good evening and thank you, and fled down the elevator.

"Interesting confrontation, wasn't it!" grinned the Prime Minister who had caught a few glimpses and snatches of the sight and sound of it. "Must have been a new experience for Gromyko."

And that it must.

DREW AS GG:

You probably saw that on his return from the UN, the Prime Minister shot down in flames that report that he was supposed to be appointing George Drew as the new Governor General after his year-end retirement as Canadian High Commissioner to Britain.

He wasn't, and wouldn't, said the Prime Minister and that took care of that story.

But how, you wonder perhaps do such reports get into circulation in the first place anyway.

Well . . . just possibly . . .

Nehru's Flaw Is Leniency

By From Statis in the Manchester Guardian

Apart from the lunatic fringe who find nothing right in prime minister Nehru's policies or actions, the majority of his critics find him guilty of one major fault.

They say he is not strong enough to deal ruthlessly or even often enough with undesirable colleagues and followers.

This fault is admitted by Mr. Nehru himself, but with many sense of guilt. He is proud of his democratic ways and his liberal opinions.

Some time ago he said with unbecoming sarcasm that he would rather leave "firmness" to "editorial writers."

The result of all this generosity of spirit is a leniency of outlook and a reluctance to take unpleasant decisions which have harmed Nehru's self as the government and the party.

With this leniency of manner Mr. Nehru has combined all these 16 years a curious capacity for sharing responsibility.

This is due partly to a genuine belief in the virtues of collective judgment and partly to an inner fear of building up a rival leader.

Possible because he believes in his own better judgment he finds it dangerous to share power with people who may in turn get to be rivals without the capacity to shoulder responsibility.

Genuine admirers, and timeserving sycophants have also helped to build up a picture of an indispensable Nehru.

There is little doubt that with all his objectiveness and intellectual honesty Mr. Nehru has been influenced by such adoration and has come to acquire more than a great man's normal dislike of criticism.

The country misses his old dynamism. Everyone knows that the China problem will be a lasting anxiety, and it has to be faced.

Relations with Pakistan will never be cordial or secure before they can get better. But anxiety on this score is by no means overpowering.

Indian eyes are today turned inwards in a search for faults and remedies.

Mr. Nehru seems to have lost his vital spark, and yet it is hard to think of India without Nehru.

This is a city addicted, as are all Capitals, to gossip and the political cocktail party.

And politics includes the air of mystery and secrecy and the political cocktail party.

And politics includes the air of mystery and secrecy and the political cocktail party.

George Drew is very definitely one of the political Who's Who, and the post of High Commissioner to Britain is certainly one of the plum jobs.

So enquiries, for months and months, has known George Drew was retiring and the only thing left to be discovered was where he was going.

At one of the scenes around the Commons the same week ago, somebody asked just such a question of the senior political correspondent of one of the three large Canadian newspaper chain organizations.

And kidding (or so he thought) the chap answered, "Why didn't you know? George's going to be the new Governor General."

Like a virus infection the story spread, and even before the last toast was drunk that night, people were slipping up to this correspondent with the "tip" that George Drew was "set" as the new GG.

Once started, such reports can only be stopped by the Prime Minister.

And when he announced the retirement, a clear field for George Drew as High Commissioner, he neglected to say he wasn't in line for the Government House appointment. Perhaps it wouldn't have been the thing to do then anyway.

So, it wasn't until the yarn hit print that the GG finally was compelled to say, maybe a bit regretfully too, that it simply wasn't so.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

September 28th, 1942.

The most recent compilation of enlistments in the Canadian Navy, Army and Air Force by workers of the Canadian National Railways System, shows that 13,264 men from all departments of the railway, express, telegraph, hotels and the marine services joined up and donned the uniform of the various branches of the armed forces.

Counterfeit fifty cent pieces have been reported in circulation in Belleville. Wednesday night a young man reported having been given a counterfeit half dollar during the progress of getting change. The coin was examined by Sergeant Arnott and was found to be a fairly good effort at the original, but the metal is much lighter than the conventional Canadian fifty-cent piece and seems to be an alloy. Citizens and merchants alike are warned to scrutinize their change carefully in the future in an effort to trace the origin of these counterfeit coins.

Expression of appreciation to the many residents of Belleville and district who contributed so generously to their tag day fund on Saturday was expressed this morning by officials of the Holloway Street United Church Girls' Club. Total collections amounted approximately to $300, it was stated.

30 YEARS AGO

September 28th, 1932.

Close to 400 men have registered at the Central Relief Office for work during the coming winter.

There is an interesting item from our file copy of March 3, 1836: "Men and teams are now busy drawing gravel and stone for the building of the new Bridge Street Church."

Mr. T. D. Rutter, inspector of the Children's Aid Society went to Wooler today to attend court.

Miss Bessie Dolan, Reg. N., is visiting friends in New York City.

Mr. Cedric Smith and Mr. Harnett Smith have left to resume their studies at Toronto University.

Mr. Peter J. McNulty of Elsmir, was a visitor in town today.

Mr. Alec Gordon is retiring as organist at Holloway Street United Church and Mr. E. C. Agnew is to be the church leader. Their retirements are much regretted and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gayfield last evening they were each presented with a handsome silk umbrella. The presentations were made by Mrs. Percy Mott and Mrs. Frank Mayfield.

40 YEARS AGO

September 28th, 1922.

Mr. Jack Ford of Cleveland, Ohio, who is spending a vacation here with friends, motored to Crowe Lake yesterday with a party of friends. The things were striking forcibly and the members of the party secured their full quota. The largest fish which weighed 20 pounds was secured by Mr. Ford.

Mrs. Ella M. G. Smith of Cobourg, is the guest of Mrs. J. Wills of Jones Street.

Mr. F. C. Lee went to Toronto today on business.

Mr. D. B. Hamilton is spending a few days in Toronto.

Forty girls and four men will be employed on the start at the J. J. Cash plant on Grier St., one of the city's new industries.

Mrs. R. F. Orme and Miss Isabelle Orme of Bleecker Ave., left this tomorrow to visit friends in Vermont and Portland, Maine.

Should Avoid X-Rays in Early Months of Pregnancy

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: You recently wrote that X-ray could endanger the baby in the first three or four months of pregnancy. I was pregnant just a few days when I had several X-rays taken.

I am very much concerned. The doctor X-rayed my gall bladder and lower part of my stomach. — Mrs. L. K.

I included a brief note about this not so long ago, but quite a few letters have since arrived, about like the foregoing one, and perhaps we'd better discuss this further.

First of all, maybe no harm came from the X-rays. Let's say probably there was no harm. For Mrs. L. K. and for all the others who wrote to me, the X-rays were not of the pelvic area, but of the chest, stomach, gall bladder.

The question is not whether the pregnant mother-to-be had X-rays, but whether they reached the unit, the fertilized ovum, which is the beginning of the baby. Assuming that the ovum was not reached by the rays, then we can stop worrying.

Let's suppose, however, that X-rays were taken of the lower intestinal tract, or some area including the lower abdomen. In that case they may have caused a mutation, some change in the developing baby.

These mutations can occur in humans and plants. Sometimes the change is for the better, more often it is harmful. Sometimes the change, while indicating a difference, may be unimportant.

After the A-bombs of Nagasaki and Hiroshima there was speculation that unborn children would be all sorts of monsters. That did not, however, prove to be the case. There were some mutations, but not as numerous, and by no means as many as had been predicted.

Therefore, I say to women who, unknowingly, have had X-rays early in pregnancy, don't get too upset over an exposure of perhaps one-tenth of a second, which is tiny compared to the total body radiation caused by the A-bombs in Japan.

It's a matter of fractions, percentages and chance. Let's "play the percentages." It is safer to avoid X-ray exposure in the early months of pregnancy. If, in the few days before having an X-ray, a woman believes she may be pregnant, she should tell her doctor. She may, depending on circumstances, decide that the X-rays should still be made, but he will take extra care to be sure that the lower abdomen will not be exposed.

This is a problem which deserves intelligent handling. It is not one which warrants the worry expressed in the letters that have reached me of late.

Dear Dr. Molner: My wife and I have been using powdered garlic for flavoring foods. I have even used it right out of the shaker in small amounts without the food.

Does such garlic aggravate high blood pressure. — A. A.

No. It is a condiment, a seasoning, or flavoring, and not a medicine. Many substances high blood pressure, nor, as some used to think, relieve it.

Dear Dr. Molner: My wife and I are soon going to Europe and can take to increase her iron level. Exercise is not helping. — Mrs. W.

Good posture will do more than anything. Adding some iron to the diet may help a little, mostly a matter of heredity and you can't do anything about that. Maybe your grandmother, 40 years ago, was envied because she was so flat that she looked like one of the drawings of John Held Jr. Fashions change fast, or than the immutable laws of nature.

Troubled with varicose veins? To make sure you are doing all you can to relieve the problem, write to Dr. Molner, care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill. for your copy of "Facts How to Deal with Varicose Veins," enclosing a long, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover the cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Finds Reunions Boring

Asheville Citizen

We know a fellow whose special mission in life is arranging reunions. He's a nice enough guy otherwise, but this get-together urge has become a sort of fetish, and our patience wears thin.

Every few months or so he sends out a sentimental letter reminding that "June 2 will be the 25th anniversary of our high school graduation and I think we ought to round up as many of the class as we can and have a little get-together." The participants — restrained before they can strike a blow — wind up wrestling with each other's shoulder. Near the crack of dawn thoroughly exhausted the host calls curfew, the ordeal ends.

Two weeks later we get a note from our friend: "The former inmates of Hollowell hall, circa '34, will reconvene themselves for a ball and beer session on Sept. 15 at the Blue Goose cellar in Georgetown road. It's twelve sins; you travel."

We're writing him: "Sorry; no sale." That the night we're scheduled to attend a meeting of the Senior Citizen society.

Yes will be served.

ask henry

DEAR HENRY — My friend and I spent last Saturday night in my tent in our back yard. We want to spend this Saturday night in the tent, too, but the only trouble is that he snores and it takes a long time for me to fall asleep. How can I get him to stop snoring?

SNORER'S BEST FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND — If you could get your friend to stop snoring you would be taking a great step forward in solving a problem that many men have with their wives!

Try to get your breathing in time with your friend's and it'll seem like you are snoring and it won't bother you!

HENRY

DEAR HENRY — The other night my father was arrested and withheld for a night. Some kids in my school found out about this and spread it all over the school. Finally one kid came up to me and asked me when my father was going to be hung? Could you help me before I snap? SON OF A PROPER FA

HENRY

DEAR HENRY — I have two good friends who, aside from the following, are perfectly all right. Each morning they wake up about 8.30 a.m. and do paper routes. Then Pete and Jack (not their real names) come down the street and stand in front of my house and sing. This has woken me up every morning and really upsets me. I have asked them to stop but they don't. Do you think you can save my beauty rest? SLEEPY GIRL

DEAR SLEEPY GIRL — What kind of a boy do you think I am? Do you think I'd give you advice and spoil all the fun you and the boys are having and enjoying so much?

Sure . . . I could give you a good answer and if you followed it you'd get plenty of sleep . . . but that way you'd have no one to dream about.

HENRY

DEAR HENRY — Is it fair for our parents to move our TV set into their room?

MAD KIDS

DEAR MAD KIDS — I think your parents want to cut down on your TV viewing by moving the TV into their room. They see that you're watched so much television that you're developing a smile like Ed Sullivan's and ears like Mickey Mouse.

Think about the bright side, after watching a lot of TV your father may start thinking that he owns the Ponderosa, and give you a raise in allowance.

HENRY

DEAR HENRY — I'm have a 13-year-old sister who wears pounds of make-up and teases her hair till there is hardly any left.

I'm 11 and look every bit of it. Yet my sister doesn't want to be seen with me. I think I am pretty cute. Shouldn't it be me who doesn't want to be seen with her?

CUTE

DEAR CUTE — No, it should be you that doesn't give your sister any competition. Stick to 11-year-olds since you "look every bit of it."

Guff and Guffaws

He Fought Japs

NEW YORK (AP)—When confronted Friday night in his wholesale grocery by two bandits, one of them carrying a gun, 63 - year - old Chin Moo Williams meekly handed over $287.

Much faster than you can read this, the Chinese merchant grabbed a 30 - inch length of iron pipe, felled the gunman with a clout on the head, seized the automatic and shot him dead.

The second bandit fled—but not far. Williams got him with bullets in both legs.

When police asked Williams if he hadn't been scared, he replied: "Ho-ho, no scared. Only two fellows, one gun. In China I fought Japanese."

Dentists Repair Sub

LONDON (AP) — Stuck with a leaky submarine, the Royal Navy called in its dentists' and told them to stop the leak.

It happened, the admiralty said Friday night, at Singapore naval base after the submarine Amphion sprang a leak in its radar mast and nobody could find a replacement part.

The dentists fashioned a plate out of material used to make plates for false teeth. It fitted snugly over the leak—and Amphion was seaworthy once more.

irrational reaction from the other extreme—the view that Quebec should go its own way while the rest of Canada would become part of a continental American republic.

"This view represents the English - speaking opposite of separatism. It represents continental integration, though it also means the end of Canada.

"There are also English-speaking separatists, though they would deny the term. They are the people who refuse to accept the French fact in our national life; the French-Canadian case for equal rights and full partnership. They are people who think of the duality of our national existence as a liability, rather than the asset which it is."

Mr. Pearson said men of good will "too often leave the field of assertion and argument and controversy to the extremists, especially the young extremists, while they, the good and sensible ones, go silently about their business."

"I believe it is high time for this voice of reason and moderation to be heard more clearly and become better organized for the purpose of being heard."

Verbal Blows Hard to Take

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — Gord is a good husband,he doesn't drink or chase other women and he is a good provider. Besides, he has never struck me, although there have been times when his words render a harder blow than he could ever administer physically.

I suppose his being childish and inconsiderate stems from the fact that his parents have always spoiled him. If Gordon wanted boiled wheat for breakfast, dinner and supper, well, Gordon got boiled wheat for breakfast, dinner and supper. If he refused to take his bath on Saturday, they would think this quite "cute."

When it comes to Gordon's education, the picture grows very dark. Because he started to school late and got absolutely no encouragement at home, he got far behind his schoolmates. To this day he can neither read nor write. Yet he isn't a stupid man. What he knows about cattle, horses, machinery, and all that is connected with the ranching business could probably fill more than one book.

Could it be that he holds it against me for having an education? He has thought up many ways to hurt or humiliate me, even in front of friends. Sometimes he would suggest that we go to some certain place, and I'd get all ready and excited to go, then at the very last minute he'd tell me we couldn't go. Things like that and even more smaller insignificant incidents, that wouldn't be noticed by an outsider, daze me a low blow.

I wish I knew what was bothering him. — DEFLATED.

DEAR DEFLATED — You've guessed it. His resentment is unconscious but it's there, and it hurts. More literate men than Gordon have hit back at a loving wife whose only sin was to be better educated than he was.

The cause suggests the treatment. Can you be your own social worker? If you'd like to have a try at it, build on his strong points. Praise his ranching skills; his likeable ways with the help.

He can't be realizing how deflated you are. Find a time to explain your need of his approval. And show delight and affection when he comes through.

* * *

Confidential to MARIA — Yes, you are too young for your 17-year-old glamor boy. As time goes on you will find others who are equally attractive and are a much better match for you.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I thank you very much for your advice. We are still going steady. Oct. 31st. will be three years. I'm trying very hard. My self-control is getting much better.

He's given me a hint about an engagement ring. I love him with all my heart. — "THEY HAVE HIM" — BERMUDA.

DEAR THEY — Let's give three rousing Bermudian cheers! Perhaps it's time you changed your pen name to "I Have Him."

Eggleton U.C. Marks 80th Anniversary

MADOC JCT. — The 80th. anniversary service of Eggleton United Church was held recently with a fairly good number in attendance. The minister, Mr. George Tyson, delivered a thought inspiring message on the topic "Use Your Imagination."

Mrs. Bruce Stapley was pianist and a junior choir of 17 girls and boys rendered a number.

The flower committee had arranged colorful autumn leaves and autumn flowers on each of the window ledges. There were also two large baskets of flowers, one on the piano, and the other on a small table. A third basket containing gladioli and asters was placed in the church by the Stirling Horticultural Society.

Several from Moira, Thomasburg, West Huntingdon, Halloway, March Hill, and Stirling attended the service and were guests later at the various homes as follows:

Readers' Saturday Column

BY MARY MOORE

LETTER:

In your column I noticed that a Mrs. G. G. was looking for a recipe for pickles using red and green tomatoes. You gave a recipe for East Indian Pickle which is very good. I am enclosing a recipe which I think is the one she is looking for. It is called Rummage Pickle and is very nice. I hope it is the right one — Mrs. C. K. S.

RUMMAGE PICKLE (courtesy Mrs. C. K. S.):

4 qts. green tomatoes, 2 qts. red tomatoes, 6 sweet red peppers, 2 sweet green peppers, 1 small cabbage (8"), 3 medium bunches celery, 6 large onions, 2 large green cucumbers.

Chop finely, and sprinkle 1 cup coarse pickling (non-iodized) salt over all in an enamel or porcelain container. In morning drain well. Add: Five pints cider vinegar, 1½ lbs brown sugar, 2 teaspoons dry mustard, ½ teaspoon pepper. Cook, stirring frequently, for 1½ hours and seal hot.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Broiled Thick Ground Beef Cakes, Horseradish Sauce, Hubbard Squash; Brussel Sprouts with Drawn Butter Sauce; Celery Hearts; Fruit Applesauce; Orange Twist (orange-glazed doughnuts — see Thursday); Tea.

ANSWER:

Thank you. I hope Mrs. G.G. who made the request, sees your recipe. Let me know whenever I may help you.

QUESTION:

Just cipped out your recipe for Chop Suey Loaf. Your reader asked for the one made with yeast. I would like the recipe for Chop Suey Loaf (oval shape) like you can buy at the bakeshops, which I believe is made with soda or baking powder, also dates — Mrs. A. B.

ANSWER:

This may be the loaf you want.

CHOP SUEY LOAF (baking powder):

¼ cup shortening, 1 cup tightly-packed brown sugar, 1 beaten egg, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup milk, 1-3 cup syrup from red maraschino cherries, ¼ cup drained red maraschino cherries, quartered, ¼ cup chopped walnuts, ¼ cup chopped peel, ¼ cup Sultana raisins or chopped dates.

Cream together shortening and brown sugar and add beaten egg. Beat well until light and creamy. Sift together sifted flour, baking powder and salt. Combine milk and cherry syrup. Add dry ingredients to creamed mixture alternately with milk-syrup mixture. Combine after each addition but do not beat. Carefully fold in cherries, walnuts, peel, raisins or dates. Pour into a greased paper-lined 9 x 5" loaf pan. Let stand for 20 minutes. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 45 to 65 minutes at centre of oven.

NOTE:

If you have an oval-shaped pan, use it. When cool glaze if desired with simple glaze of icing-sugar mixed with water until of thin spreading consistency.

Hillcrest H.S. Holds First Meet

Hillcrest Home and School Association recently held its first meeting in the school auditorium.

The president, Mrs. B. Wey, welcomed the parents and teachers and Mrs. O. Williams presided at the piano.

The president called on Mr. Lott to introduce the teachers to the parents and to explain the new point system project on the attendance banner. Each mother at the meeting provided her child's class with one point while each father will be two points. The class room with the highest points the end of the school term will receive a class room prize.

The room count was taken and the banner won by Mr. Lott's class.

Mrs. Findlay gave an interesting and complete explanation on what is carried out in kindergarten pupils' training from the time they arrive until class is out. A question and answer period followed which was of much interest to all.

Mrs. Williams showed her slides of her trip through Europe which were most interesting and informative.

Refreshments were served by the executive.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: What is the proper way to serve coffee in the living room after dinner. Does the hostess pour, or may guests help themselves? May regular coffee cups be used? — Mrs. L. M., Boston, Mass.

Answer: When after-dinner coffee is served in the living room, demitasse cups are usually used instead of regular-size coffee cups. Coffee and cups, as well a cream and sugar, are arranged on a tray and placed on the coffee table. The hostess pours for her guests, adding cream and sugar, according to individual preferences. If the group is small, cups are served to the women first, then to men. The host often helps hand them around, or guests step up and take cups directly from the hostess. With a very large group however, it's often easier to pour cups in the kitchen, and then pass them around from a well a cream and sugar, are tray and placed on the coffee table. The hostess passed separately.

Fashion Show To Feature Latest Styles

Commemorating the founding of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary 25 years ago, the Auxiliary's annual fashion show, "An Affair to Remember," will be presented in the Collegiate auditorium next Wednesday.

Mrs. George H. Stobie of Toronto first president, will be in town to act as commentator. With Mrs. Ben E. Burley as convenor, the show will present Auxiliary members modelling the latest fashions in clothes, furs, jewellery, shoes, accessories and hair styles. The stage decor this year will incorporate several attractive innovations.

CRUICKSHANK — GREATRIX

Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, was the setting for a pretty fall wedding on Saturday, September 14th, when Gail Elaine Greatrix, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Greatrix, Belleville, was united in marriage to Robert George Cruickshank, son of Mrs. George Cruickshank, Rossmore, and the late Mr. Cruickshank. The Rev. H. M. Davis officiated at the double-ring ceremony before an altar adorned with baskets of white and blue 'mums with gladioli and potted ferns. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mr. Alex Gordon presided at the organ and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. A. Daniels, in her rendition of "The Lord's Prayer" and "O Perfect Love."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of norganza over taffeta, with imported Swiss appliques in a rose pattern, detailed along the bodice and on the bouffant skirt. The jacket with small buttons up the back had long tapering sleeves, lily-pointed at the wrists. Daisy appliques bordered the softly-looped waistline. Her headdress was a pillbox style crown of peau de soie holding in place a shoulder-length veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty and Sweetheart roses, stephanotis and trailing ivy.

Mrs. L. Reid, Rossmore, matron of honor, sister of the bridegroom, and the bridesmaids, Miss Linda Everette, Brockville, cousin of the bride and Miss Darlene Greatrix, sister of the bride, were dressed alike in periwinkle blue taffeta gowns with portrait necklines and full skirt with matching bilfloor style crown and circular veil. Each carried a semi cascade bouquet of white 'mums.

The best man was Mr. Lloyd Chase, of Joyceville, and the ushers were Mr. Leonard Reid and Mr. Wayne Woods.

For the reception held in the church parlors, the bride's mother received, wearing a turquoise sheath dress of pure silk, with accessories to match, with a corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted, in a silver blue brocade jacket dress with a corsage of pink roses.

The bride's table was attractively appointed with white linen, centred by the wedding cake made in the form of a church with the miniature bridal party, and flanked with white tapers in crystal candelabra.

The bridal bouquets completed the nuptial setting.

For the wedding trip to Toronto, Windsor and the United States the bride chose a cranberry tweed suit and hat, with black patent accessories, and a corsage of white carnations.

Guests were present from Brockville, Kingston, Brantford, Toronto, Oshawa and Wellington.

Previous to her marriage the bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. F. Lancaster and at the home of Mrs. L. Reid. The couple also received a beautiful aluminum clock from the Department of Agriculture, where the bride is employed.

Mr. and Mrs. Cruickshank will reside at 33 Holloway St., Belleville.

Germany's House of Goethe Excursion Into 18th Century

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

FRANKFURT-AM-MAIN, Germany — The ancient capital of Charlemagne lives in a new era today, its strategic location having made it a major centre of commerce and U. S. armed forces. Rebuilt from the rubble of World War II, it is modern, cosmopolitan, pleasantly treeshaded, broad-boulevarded and a bit colorless as tourist attractions go.

But on a quiet side street in the heart of the oldest part of town, Frankfurt has a little gem that is well worth the visit. Like the rest of Frankfurt, it is a restoration, but so meticulous that the 18th Century rings through it loud and clear.

This is the house where Germany's greatest — and probably most interesting — man of letters, Johann Wolfgang Goethe, was born. Here he spent 63 of his 81 years writing his classic "Faust," best-loved of the ancient German legend — more deeply woven into the Teutonic character than is generally talked about — of the men who sold their soul to the Devil and regretted it.

The 22-room house is not a bohum museum of the kind tourists feel obligated to breeze through on foreign trips. In it the life and times of Goethe breathe palpably.

The house was destroyed by bombs in 1944, but the furnishings and artifacts had already been stored away. Its plans and measurements, down to the wallpaper design, colors, and building materials, had been recorded to the last detail.

PERFECTLY RESTORED

When the house was restored after the war, even the wooden floors were scarred and polished as of yore. By some miracle the particular blown glass windows were replaced, and the grand staircases were rebuilt. It is today one of the finest examples of a patrician 18th Century home in Europe.

There are mementos of Goethe's life from childhood to death, including the period of his romance with Lotte Buff, on which he based his youthful best-selling novel, "The Sorrows of Werther." It was the most widely translated and read story of its day, and on moving it was said to have caused countless suicides all over Europe. Lotte's framed silhouette, part of the story, hangs in the writer's third floor study.

Throughout his life Goethe was fascinated by science, art and music as well as letters. One of his earliest intrigues, and probably the most interesting object in the house, is a huge astronomical clock built by a lawyer friend of Goethe's father, who presumably could have much of a practice; it must have taken years to build.

Among the features of the amazing clock are a 200-year calendar, which parsed in 1949 because the builder didn't expect the clock to last more than 200 years. But it still works, wound in six places and regulated in various others. It still shows accurately the phases of stars and moon, the seasons, and the time. Bears dance and tile down on the hour, knights, music chimes periodically, and it is little wonder that children of today are as fascinated as the young Goethe was.

In the Music Room Goethe played the cello, his younger sister Cornelia took the piano lessons she hated, and his father spent more time tuning it late than playing it. The instruments are still there, including the rare upright grand piano and, even more rare, a clavicord and a winged harpsichord. The ceiling is intricately worked in stucco with flutes, a horn and a violin.

The kitchen is exactly as it was. Utensils hang on iron wall hooks, along with such rare crockery as the moulds used to make the traditional Frankfurt Christmas biscuits. There is a wrought-iron stove atop a brick oven, and a pump in the sink still draws water from the cellar beneath.

The Goethe House is one of modern Frankfurt's few excursions into the past. In the center of the city the old Imperial Hall has been rebuilt, but its only historical impact is in the bevelled portraits of a millennium of Frankish and Saxon kings which adorn the walls of the central coronation room.

The curious tourist will wander down to the Main River which flows through the heart of town like all good rivers in all good European cities, and has the same mystic attraction to the bargees. Sculls and sailboats, barges and sightseeing boats fascinate the citizenry, especially on weekends. It is many and pleasant to walk across one of the many bridges to ancient Sachsenhausen, and stop in a stube where the traditional green wreath hangs, for a seasonal glass of tart apple wine.

A short ride from Frankfurt are other historic towns, Bad Homburg, where prosperous society first wore the homburg hat. Like all spa towns it is well past its peak, its wooden Victorian hotels bearing a slightly shabby air, although its casino catering to an odd mixture of dead-serious German gamblers and genteelly serious in the world), and holiday-happy tourists and U. S. service men.

It is a good place to watch the curious European system of playing roulette by mathematical laws of probability, a technique every professional gambler knows doesn't work. But scorecards are provided for keeping tabs on the numbers that come up, and, win or lose, everyone has a crack at it. Who can quarrel with Germans when it comes to mathematics?

Fiance Still Dating Others Two Months Before Wedding

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a girl 19 who is engaged to marry a fellow 23. Our wedding date is set for November.

We've gone together for two years. The problem started four months ago when Glenn was transferred to another city. He gets home every other weekend and we talk on the phone twice during the week.

Glen is never in when I phone him long distance. I give up about midnight because I have to get up to go to work in the morning. One night I stayed up until 2.30 a.m. but I still was unable to reach him. I decided not to do that again.

I've heard rumors that he has been stepping out on me. Each time I have asked him he has confessed. He says he gets so lonesome he can't stand it, so he takes out other girls.

Last week he promised it would never happen again — but it did. Should I forgive him and hope for the best?—CHEATED ON.

DEAR CHEATED — You're getting married in November, are you? Well, here it is September and if the guy is still running around I would say a little thing like marriage won't cure him.

If you marry this fellow please keep my address handy. You'll need it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband has always criticized the way I handled the finances and I admit I'm not the most capable person in the world when it comes to money.

Two months ago he hit on an idea. He gave our two daughters, ages 19 and 16, charge of his paycheque and showed them how to budget. They pay the bills, bank a certain amount and each member of the family gets an allowance. It appears that the girls are doing such a bang up job that he wants to let them continue to handle the family finances.

It rankles me to work on an allowance while my young daughters are holding the family purse strings. The finances are being well-managed, I'll admit, but I cannot tolerate the humiliation. Please tell me what to do. — ON THE DOLE.

DEAR DOLE — Tell your husband you want one more crack at the budget, starting next month. Determine to do a fine job of it. If you fail, then he has every right to give it back to the girls but I Do feel you should be given an opportunity to save face.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I've suffered with this problem for 13 years because I am too ashamed to discuss it with anyone.

My husband is a pipe fitter. He works hard and is a good person in many ways. He doesn't drink or run after other women. All our bills are paid on time. The problem is that he comes from work in his filthy work clothes, soaked through with perspiration, and that's the way he gets dinner and goes to bed. On Sunday he puts on his best clothes, right over all the dirt and perspiration.

He takes a bath about once every two weeks and ignores the fresh underwear and socks I put out for him every morning. Begging and pleading do no good.

This problem has led to another one. When he gets romantic I just shoot die. Do I have the right to tell him "no" unless he cleans himself up? — AGNES.

DEAR AGNES — You do and you should.

If the incentive does not produce results then he has a gargantuan in his crankcase and is in need of professional help.

• • •

Confidential to ANNIE'S COUSIN FANNY — The first time I heard that gag I laughed so hard I kicked the slats out of my cradle. Please don't take up my time with such nonsense.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

mitted making $150,000 in a good year during the Second World War selling ration stamps on the black market. "They've (Cosa Nostra) been — let's say, had to the soldiers (men in the Cosa Nostra ranks)."

But Valachi said he got little but protection from the crime syndicate.

"What did you do for them?" asked Senator Jacob Javits (Rep. N.Y.)

"I'd go out and kill for them" snapped Valachi, appearing almost surprised anyone had to ask.

SAY OLD HAT

While Toronto police officials maintained that much of what the stubby, rumpled Valachi publicly disclosed before the subcommittee Friday regarding Canadian organized crime was old stuff, an Ontario Police Commission group, headed by Judge Bruce Macdonald, showed keen interest.

Accompanied by Commissioners Maj.-Gen. H. A. Sparling and Thomas Graham, Judge Macdonald sat in the crowded subcommittee chamber listening to the flabby-faced Valachi spin out the history of his crime-ridden life and the story of how convicted racketeers are still able to operate behind bars.

Later, Judge Macdonald disclosed he had been conferring all week with Jerome Adleman, the subcommittee's general counsel, and hoped to interview Valachi later. Ontario commissioners plan to be back Tuesday when Valachi resumes his testimony.

The police believe Cosa Nostra, which considers assassins call the Mafia, has put a $100,000 price on Valachi's head.

Judge Macdonald said the reference to Aguaci was of particular interest. He wants to find out what more Valachi knows about Vito and his brother, Alberto, who was murdered by gangsters near Rochester, N.Y., two years ago.

"He apparently had been tortured, strangled and his body burned," Judge Macdonald said. The persons responsible have never been apprehended.

'IS ALL ONE'

Valachi said Vito Agueci belongs to the Cosa Nostra family that covered Buffalo and Canada. "Buffalo and Canada is all one," Valachi said.

Vito Agueci and Valachi were among 21 men indicted in two multi-million - dollar narcotics rings in 1961.

Valachi jumped bail and landed in Toronto. Later he gave himself up, figuring he would get a light sentence. Instead, he got 15 years on one count and 20 years on another to run in which Agueci also was involved.

Valachi and Agueci were found guilty of narcotics violations in federal court in New York a year ago last February. Agueci got 15 years and is serving the sentence in Atlanta.

Of the 22 indicted, 14 were tried and convicted, two included Vito's brother, were assassinated after the indictment; another attempted suicide; two turned states evidence and three fled the country.

As for Valachi's testimony about Agueci and Cosa Nostra in Canada particularly Toronto, James MacKay, Metropolitan police chief, said there is nothing in it that "hasn't already been brought to our attention."

Magistrate C. O. Bick, Metropolitan police commissioner, described the evidence as "ancient history."

"He might as well name Jack the Ripper," Bick said.

A Lift For Living

Holy Kind of Carelessness Serves to Enrich Man's Life

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Carelessness is a "loaded" word. To most men's minds it means mischievous negligence or foolhardy thoughtlessness. Of course, such kinds of carelessness do abound, and they are ruinous. Nearly every week we read in our newspapers of someone who has "accidentally" killed himself playing Russian roulette. Or, a care he placed a bullet in the chamber of a revolver. He spun the revolver cylinder so that he could not know whether the bullet-filled chamber or an empty one was in place when he put the muzzle to his head and pulled the trigger. What stupid, wasteful way to die! This is an evil kind of carelessness.

Some carelessness is less dangerous but still show-stick. In the 1936 an official ban was posted against death - defying stunts attempted at Niagara Falls. Before the ban became effective at least thirty-one persons engaged in some spectacular, dare-devilish feat designed more to attract attention than to prove any worthwhile purpose. Nearly one-fourth of these people were killed either attempting to swim through the thundering rapids or passing over the brink in a barrel, or a brink in a barber ball. This kind of person cares less for safety than he does for display and applause. It is an unholy thing.

REPUGNANT WAYS

People who are indifferent to physical pain and mental torture, the poverty and injustice, the ignorance and cruelty, war, hunger, and pestilence prevalent in the world are careless in the most repugnant ways.

But there is a kind of carelessness that is neither self-consciously exhibitionistic or diabolically thoughtless of another's welfare. It is wholesome and holy. The Psalmist possessed it and wrote, "I will fear no evil for Thou art with me." The Psalmist was literally careless — caring less than others did about life's dangers because he cared more about God's presence with him. He could take life's risks. He needed no guarantees of safety from disappointment, disaster, or death.

All dangers could be endured if his spiritual resources were great enough. An awareness of God's nearness and love dissipated concern for his own welfare. "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me." That is a holy kind of carelessness.

Carelessness about "what people will think" is a sacred virtue, enabling a person to act from pure conviction and a clear and uncluttered conscience. A conscience which yields to the fear of what "they" will think or say is always timid, always shaky, and never dependable. Pilate planned to act sacrificially toward Jesus until he considered what the crowd might think.

ITS REAL WORTH

When rightly used, carelessness concerning consequences can be a holy thing. When Socrates was on trial for his life, he could have saved himself by a slight compromise with the demands of his persecutors. But he declared to his judges, "A man who is good for anything, ought not to calculate the chances of living or dying; he ought to consider whether he is right or wrong." Such carelessness makes the stories of other virtues possible. If we care too much about the predicaments virtues may get us into, we may not develop them or practice them. A politician who will be honest only when honesty makes him no votes is already tainted with dishonesty. The businessman who is truthful only when he finds the truth costs him profits has a blemished sincerity. An honesty which is conditioned upon consequences is a shabby and undependable affair. A patriotism that is conditioned upon liking no risks is unbecoming. But when a virtue scorns consequences it demonstrates its real worth.

The answer to unwholesome fear is a whole-hearted trust in God's concern, care, and provision for us — faith in the All-Sufficiency that surrounds our daily need. This does not mean that "everything will turn out all right" or as we wish. Rather it means freedom from the anxiety that life's pressures may be too burdensome for us or that the valley of the shadow is too dark and lonely. Such trust frees teachers from the fear of being afraid. "I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me."

Holy carelessness means to care less about what life might do to us because we have come to care more for what God means to us.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

One of the biggest pre-season problems any amateur athletic club has to contend with, is usually the procuring of a sponsor.

As many a softball, football, baseball official will tell you, sponsors are as scarce as the proverbial biddy's molars.

But every year a certain number of sports-minded community-conscious men come to the aid of athletic clubs with a helping sponsorship hand.

The cost to them varies. It could range from fifty to five hundred dollars. I know of a certain sponsor who laid $1,000 on the line for a hockey club.

No matter the amount, the spirit is there—a desire to help players from the minors in junior, intermediate, and senior calibres enjoy their favorite sport.

The return to the sponsor is negligible. There is no monetary reward. He is merely making an investment in the youth of the city. What he does get is the advertising arising from the use of his name by the team. He doesn't expect anything more in this respect.

But what he does expect and should get is the loyalty and co-operation of the officials and players of the club he sponsors.

In deference to him and his "investment" in their activities they should play the season out to the last ball pitched or puck netted regardless of whether they finish on top of the heap or in the cellar of the league.

There was a case in point in the city yesterday.

The Woods-Horlock juvenile "A" softball team, currently engaged (or were engaged) with Galt in the OASA semi-finals series.

Galt, a powerful young squad with a fine record, had beaten the Woods-Horlock team 10-1 in the opening game of the best-of-three series. The second game was slated for Belleville this afternoon.

On the other side of the picture the Belleville juvenile baseball team, sponsored by Jones Motors, have played their way to the Ontario finals. They defeated Chatham 3-1 here in the opening game of the titular series.

The Ontario Baseball Association ordered the second game of the series played in Chatham this Sunday.

This, on the surface, appeared satisfactory. But it so happens that five players are connected with both softball and baseball teams. In fact they are said to be key men.

In any event it appears that the Jones Brothers' team management decided to leave for Chatham this morning and spend the night in the Western Ontario city prior to playing the Sunday game with the local squad.

This means the Woods-Horlock team would be short the five players and the inevitable happened. The Galt-Belleville game was forfeited.

Mr. Elmer Woods, the team sponsor, was angry over the let-down. And rightly he voiced his opinion of the manager and players who decided to leave the softball ship and board the baseball craft.

It seems to this department the forfeit was not necessary. Had the two games clashed on the same day, same time, it would have been a different matter.

There was nothing to prevent the five "double-players" from playing with the Woods-Horlock team here this afternoon—and lining up with the baseball juveniles in Chatham tomorrow afternoon. The players could have driven to Chatham Sunday morning and arrived in plenty of time for the important championship game.

Perhaps the call of a holiday weekend was too strong.

If the above facts are true and that is the way they were given this department, the whole thing smells of rank unsportsmanship.

The Juvenile softballers should have remembered that next year is another year—and sponsors do not come a dime a dozen. They could experience difficulty in persuading another to come to their aid.

Trimble Seeks Revenge ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Riders, Argos Today, Als, Cats Sun.

By The Canadian Press

Montreal Alouettes limp into Hamilton Sunday, with coach Jim Trimble hoping he can patch together a lineup that will help him avenge a stunning defeat by the Tiger-Cats early in the season.

That was Trimble's first return trip to Hamilton, where he had made his name as a Canadian football coach, and the Tiger-Cats humbled the Als, 30-7.

But Trimble and his Alouettes have bounced back and Sunday's game could decide first place in the Eastern Football Conference, pending the outcome of today's game in Ottawa between the Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts.

Montreal and Hamilton, who have played eight games, began the weekend tied for first place with Ottawa, who had played seven. Each had eight points on four wins. The Argos had four points on two victories in eight games.

With halfbacks Don Clark and Bobby Lee Thompson and linesman Bobby Gluck gimped, Trimble will be using a patch-up lineup. Perdie Burket will replace Clark, out for the season, in the backfield.

As for other changes, it depends on "who limps the least," said Trimble.

The Tiger-Cats, seven-point favorites, will field the same club that whipped British Columbia Lions 38-21 last Saturday in a Canadian Football League interlocking contest.

To Nov. 30, Except Kawarthas, Algonquin

Muskie, Bass Season Is Extended

TORONTO (CP) — Bass and muskie fishing, usually closed after Oct. 15, will continue to the end of November in many parts of Ontario this year but the experts don't think anglers will get much benefit from the extension.

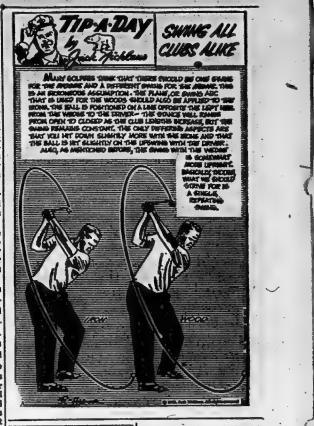
The 1963 fishery regulations extended the season to Nov. 30 in all parts of the province where the previous October close applied except the muskie-rich Kawartha area in eastern Ontario and Algonquin Park, good bass country, in the North.

Anglers for any type of fish is illegal in the Kawarthas and Algonquin Park between Oct. 16 and April 30 inclusive because the areas are fished so intensely during the summer.

Government biologists don't see any great danger to the bass and muskie population resulting from the extension. The fish usually become sluggish in late fall because of cold water and are tough to catch.

Some areas already have a bass and muskellunge season closing later than Nov. 30. The bass season closes in the St. Clair river region Dec. 31 and Thunder Bay, Kenora - Rainy River boundary waters Dec. 15. The muskie season winds up in the St. Clair River, Lake Erie and Niagara River regions Dec. 15.

The bass season opened in most Ontario waters June 29. Opening of the muskie season varied, but generally it was June 29.



REASONS FOR CHANGE

The Ontario department of lands and forests said there were several reasons behind the change, including: An abundance of bass and muskies in the areas affected by the extension, a desire by the department to give anglers a chance to combine hunting and fishing trips and the likelihood that not many bass and muskies will be taken in the late fall.

J. Charles Weir, warm water fish biologist with the lands and forests department, said in an interview Friday:

"Our duty is to provide more fishing, where possible, for the average angler. This is one way of doing it without the danger of seriously depleting the bass and muskie population.

"We have received letters from anglers and resort operators who want to combine fall hunting with fishing, particularly in the Georgian Bay area. Really, only the hardy fellows will benefit from the extended season. Bass and muskies leave such summer haunts as shoals and weedbeds and head for holes in deeper water. They'll be dormant in November and you'll have to work the areas hard to get any significant catches."

Decisions DeJohn In Wacky Bout

Chuvalo Signs To Meet Clay

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (CP) — George Chuvalo the Toronto heavyweight who was said to be washed up more than a year ago, today stands on the threshold of his biggest payday.

The Toronto strongboy, once ranked among the world's top 10 heavyweight boxers, was to sign today to fight Cassius Clay here early in November, the date depending on television arrangements.

Win, lose or draw against Clay, the No. 1 contender for champion Sonny Liston's crown, Chuvalo is sure to pad his pocketbook.

He earned the shot at Clay Friday night with a decision over rugged Mike DeJohn of Miami, Fla., in a 10-rounder televised throughout the United States. The former Canadian champion sent DeJohn to the floor twice in the sixth round for counts of nine and seven.

HANGS OVER ROPES

The fight developed into a masterpiece of confusion in the second round. Chuvalo hung DeJohn over the ropes and peppered a series of punches to the head. A foul was called on the Canadian and DeJohn was given time to recover under Kentucky rules. Chuvalo later insisted he had scored a legitimate knockout.

Asked if Clay posed any particular problem, Chuvalo answered:

"Every fighter is a particular problem. I would like him to come to me but I don't think he will."

Clay, banking on a title fight with Liston next year, would be a fool to get too close. But Chuvalo lacks in style, he makes up in ruggedness. He has a vicious left hook and a strong right.

He will never be in Clay's class as a boxer, but he has the power to do damage if the Louisville Lip leaves an opening.

Larry Mavety To Line up With Kenmors

Catcher Larry Mavety, sorely missed from the Belleville Kenmors baseball lineup for the past few weeks, will return to action this afternoon. Kenmors and Brockville play the deciding game of their OBA Senior semi-final series, at the Fairgrounds, at two o'clock. Mavety has been attending Springfield hockey camp but returned home Thursday. Kenmor coach Forster feels that Mavety may insert much-needed spark and desire into the club for this afternoon's do-or-die battle.

Works Edge Firemen 4-3 In Finals

Public Works, making the most of a few hits and the opposition's miscues, edged the Fire Department 4-3 last night to grab a 2-1 lead in the Interdepartmental softball league finals.

Fourth game in the four-of-seven series is slated for CNRA Park at 5:45 p.m.

The winners were held to four hits in last night's tight decision but five errors by the losers, compared with one by the Works, made the difference.

Gary Reid pitched the victory, allowing seven hits, with Gordie Green doing the catching.

Ray Reid gave up the four hits in a losing cause. Al Ryan was his receiver.

Bill Howes spearheaded the Public Works attack, rapping out two hits, one of them a triple. Singles by McInroy each contributed one safety.

Stephenson and Ryan had two hits apiece while Lyle Wannamaker had a triple for the Firemen. Danford and Reid also hit safely.

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Whitey Ford, World Series' premier pitcher, will break a pocketful of records, mostly his own, when he goes to New York against Los Angeles' Dodgers' Sandy Koufax in the opener at Yankee Stadium next Wednesday.

The veteran lefthander will be starting his seventh opener. His first was against the Dodgers in 1958. Ford currently is tied with ex-Yankee Red Ruffing at six openers each.

Ruffing won five out of his six while Ford has won four, lost once and was not involved in the decision in the other. A victory Wednesday would equal Ruffing's record for most opening game victories.

The moment he takes the mound, Ford will automatically will break three more records, all his own. Whitey has appeared in nine World Series, a record for a pitcher. He has been in 19 games, all as a starter.

COVETS OWN RECORD

The records Ford covets most are his 10 series victories and his 33 2/3 consecutive scoreless innings. He also has pitched the most innings, 128 2-3, and has struck out the most batters, 94, in series competition.

Compared to Ford's feats, the World Series work of Koufax looks pale but significant. Last Sandy hasn't fared badly in his limited post-season work.

The Dodger ace has made two appearances in the 1956 World Series between the Dodgers and Chicago White Sox. He worked two runless and hitless innings in relief in the Dodgers' first game loss to Chicago and suffered a heart - breaking 1-0 defeat as a starter in the fifth game. Overall, Koufax has limited five hits in nine innings, walking one and striking out seven.

Hydroplanes To Wind up Season Sunday

The Quinte Hydroplane Racing Club will officially wind up its initial season of operation with an afternoon of racing on Sunday.

The club calls tomorrow's races their "biggest event of the season," stating that entries will be present from Picton, Trenton and Rossmore, as well as all of the regular club entries.

The races will commence at two o'clock in Bay of Quinte waters, just off Victoria Park.

A highlight of the meet will be the performance of Picton's famed 36-class boat, a Canadian championship craft.

The Quinte club also passed out appreciation to the local civic and business men who have contributed to its support, both tangibly and morally, this season.

The club was formed with the aim of the city in mind and has stressed safety in all of its racing events. Plans call for club expansion and sanctioned meets next summer.

Colts Meet Packers, Lions Tackle Unbeaten Bears

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Have the halcyon days really returned for Chicago Bears—in the National Football League? Sunday may provide the answer when the unbeaten Bears tangle with Detroit Lions.

The game tops a full NFL program that also has St. Louis Cardinals visiting Pittsburgh Steelers, Baltimore Colts visiting Green Bay Packers, New York Giants visiting Philadelphia Eagles, San Francisco 49ers visiting Minnesota Vikings, Dallas Cowboys visiting Washington Redskins and Los Angeles Rams travelling to Cleveland to face the fearsome Browns.

The Browns and Cardinals, currently tied at 3-0 for the lead in the Eastern Conference, expect company after Sunday's games. The Browns, with Jimmy Brown scoring eight touchdowns of yardage, figure to rip the winless Rams. The Cardinals, boasting the best defence in the league, should have their hands full with tough Pittsburgh outfit that drubbed New York 31-0 last week.

In the American Football League, the revitalized New York Titans figure to upset Oakland Raiders at the Polo Grounds tonight.

In another Saturday night AFL game, Houston Oilers visit Buffalo Bills. Sunday, Kansas City Chiefs visit San Diego Chargers with leadership in the Western Division at stake while Boston Patriots, No. 1 in the Eastern Division, are guests of Denver Broncos.

Pitchers Top Hitters In Schedule Final

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

There are only two days of the baseball season remaining, and the pitchers apparently still run the field at the bat.

Here's the way it went Friday night:

Cincinnati's John Tsitouris shut out St. Louis for the second consecutive Friday, defeating the Cardinals 2-0 on two hits.

Dave Wickersham of Kansas City also hurled a two-hitter as the Athletics defeated Cleveland Indians 3-1.

Rookie Fritz Ackley and Hoyt Wilhelm combined on a three-hitter in the second game as Chicago's White Sox clinched and place in the American League by sweeping a doubleheader from Kansas City Athletics 11-2 and 7-1.

Baltimore's Camilo Pascual became the first pitcher in the AL this season to strike out 200, winning his 21st game as 4-3 victory over New York Yankees.

SETS RECORD

And Stu Miller walked out of the Baltimore bullpen for the first time, setting an AL record for most appearances, and pitched two scoreless innings in a 5-3 Baltimore victory over Detroit Tigers.

Edmonton Eskimos will try to halt two losing streaks when they meet Winnipeg Blue Bombers in a Western Football Conference game tonight.

Eskimos have lost seven straight games to their four WFC mates this season—their two wins were against Eastern Conference teams — and have dropped 11 games in succession to Winnipeg at Edmonton's Clark Stadium.

Edmonton is in last place seven points behind third-place Saskatchewan Roughriders. The club has to win at least five of its remaining seven games to retain a chance for a playoff spot.

Coach Eagle Keys has guard Zeke Smith, guard Mel Foss and fullback Clair Branch on the injury list. All have leg injuries. Keys says he'll have to move some defensive players to offence. Some will play both ways.

Winnipeg will have only end Ernie Pitts missing. He has a shoulder injury. Import Roger Locke will replace him.

NEED A VICTORY

The Blue Bombers need a victory to stay in the battle with Saskatchewan for third and last playoff spot.

The Bombers, one point behind Saskatchewan, face the Roughriders in Winnipeg in one of two WFC games Monday night. The other sends Calgary Stampeders to Vancouver against British Columbia Lions.

Stampeders will be without defensive end Rod Payne and linebacker Frank Thrasher, both injured in a 25-17 loss to Montreal Alouettes Tuesday. Coach Bobby Dobbs said Bill McKenna will play defensive end and Cornel Hitchie will move in at offensive end. Defensive halfback Bill Miller, who hasn't played a game in a month, may also see action.

Lion coach Dave Skrien is looking for big things Monday from halfback Ron Morris, picked up this week from Toronto. Sonny Homer appear ready to take back his flanker's job after an ankle sprain. Doubtful starters are fullback Nub Beamer with a knee injury and rookie linebacker Paul Seale who wrenched his shoulder.

Saskatchewan halfback Bill Gray will be out with a knee injury.

PLANT MANY

Ontario lands and forests department nurseries will send out 50,000,000 seedlings for planting next year.

Panasuik Wins Golf Title

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — Bob Panasiuk of Barrie won the Ontario Professional Golfers Association's assistants championship Friday with a score eight strokes better than his closest competitor.

He shot two rounds of 73—one over par—in Friday's play and wound up with a 309 total to top a field of 39 assistant pros. The first 36 holes of the tournament were shot at the Whitby, Ont., course in the spring.

Bob Klingbell of Burlington, Ont., carded a 71 and 72 Friday, giving him second place with a 297 total. Sam Young of Weston, Ont., runner-up in the spring round, had rounds of 76 and 77 Friday but his 301 total was enough to keep him in third place.

Panasiuk won the Earl Morris trophy and $100 first prize.

Jr. Canucks Look for Centremen

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Junior Canadiens of the Ontario Junior A Hockey Association are shaping up for the 1963-64 season and Coach Yves Nadon says he needs centremen.

Nadon was recently named to the post to replace Claude Ruel, now a coach for the parent Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

Jacques Madore of Ottawa, who saw limited action in his two years with the club, is the only holdover centre.

Madore suffered two concussions late in the first half of the 1962-63 season and was forced to quit for the rest of the year.

Winger Bob Charlebois has taken over at centre but Nadon says the change, is only temporary.

Junior Canadiens play an exhibition game against Omaha Knights of the newly formed Central Professional Hockey League, in St. Jerome, Que., Sunday.

The Canadiens also plan to play one or two exhibition games against Peterborough Petes, Montreal's second sponsored club in the OHA Junior A League.

Talented Son, Daughter Join Father in Show

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "As somebody once said, 'there's nothing wrong with nepotism, as long as you keep it in the family.'"

This was actor John McIntyre's wry comment as he was joined in a Wagon Train segment by his talented son and daughter, Tim and Holly.

Only his wife, Jeanette Nolan, was missing. "She was on Wagon Train once," said McIntyre. "In fact, it was the first one when I joined the series. She played my wife, and the story told how I lost my family to the Indians."

Mrs. McIntyre can't return to the train because she is part of the repertory company on the Richard Boone Show, and there's a sponsor conflict.

Not being able to work as a husband and wife team gave them some pain, McIntyre said. "We are at our best when we act together," he said. "I'm her best director, and she's mine. We worked for so many years together in radio that we know exactly how to respond to each other."

CAN'T KNOCK ACTING

How do they feel about their children joining the profession?

"Naturally, we can't knock acting," said McIntyre. "But I did want them to finish their education before they started out."

They're both at UCLA (the University of California at Los Angeles) and doing very well," said the actor. Tim was voted the best supporting actor in theatre arts last year, and Holly is an expert in languages. She helped me with my French drills when I was doing another series, Hotel de Paree."

McIntyre appears saddled to Wagon Train indefinitely, and that's all right with him.

"I've made a lot of pictures at this studio and I know the gang here," he said.

The secondary stakes race of the day is the 1¼-mile Augusta Stakes for three-year-olds and up. In addition, there will be a twomile steeplechase—the first jumping event ever to be held at Woodbine.

The Golden Years

Men Approaching Retirement Just Need Better Perspective

By THOMAS COLLINS

You are between the ages of, say, 50 and 65. You are preparing yourself mentally for the retirement you know must come soon after your 65th birthday.

You're having a little trouble with it.

That's natural. But you would have much less trouble, and possibly none at all, if you could get a better perspective on your life and times, and a few concrete facts on how well you have done.

Herewith is some of both.

You were born between 1898 and 1908. You finished high school from about 1916 to 1923. That is. If you were lucky you did. Many boys in that era weren't able to finish high school. You got your college diploma from about 1920 to 1927. Except that you probably didn't. Very few men now approaching retirement got a college education.

This frets you as you try to sell yourself the idea that your retirement is a good, natural, and positive thing. Because you see all around you men with college degrees, eager-beavers who are pushing and pushing — sometimes making you look silly and always bushing on your job. You come to think that you are an old fogy, used up and washed out, and so outclassed by the privileged men, that you are fit only for the retirement you have been sentenced to.

ALWAYS THIS WAY

Be consoled by the knowledge that it has always been this way. You, with a high school diploma, pushed the man ahead of you who had finished only the fifth grade. Just as the man with the college diploma (and there are lots of them since the G. I. Bill of World War II) now pushes you.

But the eag- beavers who make you feel inferior are already feeling a hot breath down their necks. The men the boys who came along later and got not just a college diploma but a Master's Degree.

And the Master's Degree boys will have only a little while on the stage. Coming up rapidly behind them are boys with Ph. D. degrees, and even multiple Ph. D. degrees.

On and on it goes, to where, nobody knows.

So, if you feel obsolete and suspect this is why you are being retired, be reminded that you are a natural link in the progressing pattern of life. What is happening to you has been, is, and will be, happening to everybody else.

HAVE DONE WELL

And since you are able to subscribe to a newspaper — or you wouldn't be reading this — you have done pretty well with your life in your time upon the stage. Figures from the Institute of Life Insurance show just how well.

The average income of American men who had less than eight years of schooling is $3,403 a year. You make more than that.

(All these figures are based on 1961 U. S. Census reports, and cover men 25 to 64 years old).

The average income of those who completed one to three years of high school is $3,205, or $102 a week. You beat that.

And for those with a high school diploma the average is $6,102, or about $118 a week. Again probably less than you've been making.

Many of you have probably been making around $150 a week. The Institute of Life Insurance study shows that this is more than the average income of all men who finished one to three years of college, which is about $143 a week. Some of you have been making up to $183 a week, which is the average income of men who have won a college diploma.

And a goodly number of you never got beyond the seventh grade in school. Because you had to help Pa on the farm.

In your era, and with your opportunities, you've done all right. So get on with your retirement thinking and let the eager-beavers do as well in their inning. . if they can.

tiana north of Montreal, police said.

The youth's statement said that he was instructed to borrow his mother's car to help rob the bank. Stolen licence plates were put on it.

Shortly before 3 p.m. the five drove to a Royal Bank of Canada branch and four, armed and masked, went in.

They fired one shot into the wall to show they meant business, took $6,500 from tills, and ran out. They left the two bombs at two entrances.

The youth claimed the bombs were not meant to hurt anyone, but just to frighten off pursuers.

Police said the bombs were real and well wired. They would have exploded if they hadn't been dismantled in time.

The two suspects may be arraigned and charged today police said.

Air Vice-Marshal Harvey said there have been no cases of claustrophobia among workers in the underground buildings which look like giant stalagmites in their five caverns. Some persons phoned outside for weather reports.

HAS PROBLEM

He said he has a serious traffic problem because the sloping tunnels into the combat centre —one from the south and one from the north—accommodate one-way traffic only.

"We may have to have traffic lights in the pit," he said.

The chambers were carved out of solid precambrian rock about 2,000,000,000 years old. The excavation took 18 months and cost $17,000,000.

The SAGE unit, paid for and installed by the U.S. Air Force, cost $34,000,000. Essentially, SAGE enables the commander of the air battle to have more information at his fingertips and to react much faster.

Air Vice - Marshal Harvey said, however, he intends to retain part of the Second World War manual system which RCAF air defence command has used up to now in case the SAGE computer fails.

He said the delay in supplying nuclear warheads for the Voodoo is due to the need for the $11,760,000 construction of storage dumps for them. The warheads for the Bomarc will be fitted into the missile.

Air Vice - Marshal Harvey said no nuclear-armed interceptors will fly over Canada unless war is imminent. The Voodoo in emergency will carry an 800-pound Genie nuclear rocket, which can be fitted to the plane in less than 30 minutes.

Wing Cmdr. Art Lawrence, commander of the 28 - missile Bomarc squadron here, said American personnel, who will have custody of the warheads, have begun arriving here.

The other 28-missile Bomarc squadron is at La Macaza, Que.

Wing Cmdr. Lawrence showed reporters how a Bomarc is raised from its flat-roof shed into vertical position for firing in about 15 seconds.

He said a team from his squadron will take its one spare Bomarc to Florida next year for a test firing.

The squadron's two previous test firings from Florida were both successful.

CONTROL IS REMOTE

Wing Cmdr. Lawrence said the Bomarc can be fired only by remote control from a SAGE centre and not from the base itself, which is just outside North Bay. There are no spare Bomarcs—with one exception—because it would take nearly a day to reload the launcher.

Air Vice - Marshal Harvey said his command could exist underground long enough to get the defence job done in event of nuclear attack and emerge without fear of radiation.

He said he has not been approached by North Bay residents about whether they might use the combat centre as a fallout and blast shelter. In event of nuclear war, the blast doors at the tunnel entrances would be slammed shut.

He said a current survey is being made of what shock from a nuclear blast would do to the underground electronic equipment. But the combat centre was the safest hole in North America.

NORAD had taken care of the "air-breathing threat" — bombers and bomber-launched missiles—"pretty damn well."

The next steps might be development of a counter-missile to handle the intercontinental ballistic missile and a satellite-borne missile to destroy any nuclear cargoes in orbit around the earth.

TO BUILD CENTRE

HAMILTON (CP)—Mayor Victor Copps said Friday a multi-million dollar civic centre will be built here. He said he hopes the project will be completed by 1967, Canada's centennial year.

convention, held at Brighton, south coast resort.

Meanwhile, former war minister John Profumo, whose affair with a playgirl and deception of parliament rocked the government, rode out the post-Denning days in seclusion near Tongue, north coast resort.

HOLD INTEREST

The conventions — described by one commentator as "annual bitchery by the sea"—hold particular interest this year because in many minds the campaign for a general election is already under way, although the beleaguered Macmillan has not yet said when the election will be held. It must come before October, 1964.

In another exciting aspect, Labor is favored by opinion polls to win the next election and return to power for the first time since 1951 when Clement Attlee, now Lord Attlee, was defeated by Winston Churchill.

Harold Wilson, dynamic, 46-year-old economist who succeeded to the party leadership after the death of Hugh Gaitskell last January, arrived Friday at Scarborough for the first time as Labor chief.

More than 1,250 delegates representing more than 6,000,000 party members were expected to arrive during the weekend for the most crucial party conference in many years.

Opinion polls as the conference opened credited Labor with a 17-per-cent lead over the ruling Conservative party if an election were held immediately.

BAN DISCUSSION

Wilson and his advisers decided Friday to ban from conference discussion the controversial Denning report.

The Labor executive, in ruling that no emergency resolutions would be received on the subject, ruled out the hottest current topic in British politics.

Wilson, however, was expected to deal with the Denning report in his address to a Labor rally Sunday night on the eve of the conference opening.

Jail White Men In Birmingham Bombing Probe

First Arrests Made Since Church Blast

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Two white men were placed in city jail early today for further investigation into the series of bombings that have rocked this racially-troubled city for several years.

Col. Al Lingo, head of the state highway patrol, said that others also picked up in the investigation have been released. He declined to say how many others are had been questioned.

Night warden L. A. Hokomb identified the two being held as R. E. Chambliss and Charles Cagle, both of Birmingham. Both appeared to be in their late 30s.

Lingo would give no information on the men, nor on results of the questioning. He also declined to identify link them with the blast at the 16th Street Baptist Church Sept. 15 in which four young Negro girls were killed.

Although the investigations into the bombings had been intensified since that church explosion, there were the first arrests.

20 HURT

The city has had more than 60 bombings since the Second World War, but the one which nearly destroyed the 16th Street Baptist Church was the worst.

Twenty persons were hurt in the blast, which inflicted more than $94,000 in damage to the church and was an enraging shock to nearly cars and bulldogs.

The church bombing sparked widespread Negro demonstrations of violence continued through the day and night. Two young Negroes were shot to death Sunday by police officers and the other as he was riding a bicycle.

Police said a sniper fired the $30,000 bomb in the death of the second Negro.

President Kennedy dispatched former army secretary Kenneth Royall and former Army football coach Earl Blaik to Birmingham to help soothe the troubled waters. The ominbus series conferred with leaders of both races last week and planned to return for further talks today.

Police in Orangeburg, S.C., arrested 187 Negroes during a series of weekend anti-segregation demonstrations. Marches on the courthouse, the main downtown section Sunday brought the arrest of 300. The others were held in custody the night before.

In Washington, Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said Negroes favor the boycott.

Stevedores Turn Down Wage Offer

MONTREAL (CP)—St. Lawrence River port stevedores turned down a proposed settlement of their contract dispute with shipowners at a mass meeting Sunday and voted to stop work Friday if nothing is done to reach an agreement by then.

Shipping spokesmen said a walkout of the longshoremen could jeopardize the loading of 60,000,000 bushels of wheat scheduled to be shipped to Russia before the end of the shipping season from Montreal, Trois-Rivieres and Quebec City.

About 1,000 of the 3,000 Quebec members of the International Longshoremen's Association (CDC) attended the Sunday meeting in Montreal's Notre Dame Basilica.

Roland Prégault, business agent of the Quebec City ILA local, said the members of the Quebec local voted to strike action at a simultaneous Sunday meeting.

By a show of hands, the Montreal meeting rejected a 52-cent-an-hour per increase over two years which had been accepted unanimously by a federal conciliation board.

MARKS SEPT 30

The board was set up after longshoremen in Montreal and Quebec City refused to work Sept. 9 and 10 to protest the length of time being taken to negotiate a new contract with the Shipping Federation of Canada, representing the shipowners. The union leaders said they opposed the walkout.

The contract expired last December. The union membership rejected an agreement made between the federation and the ILA leadership last March, calling for an hourly wage increase of 72 cents plus four cents in fringe benefits over a two-year contract.

The union leadership, headed by ILA agent Paul Ameilis, persuaded the 7,000 dockers to go back to work Sept. 11 when a federal government named a conciliation board to speed up negotiations.

The stevedores now make $2.32 an hour in Montreal plus 29 cents in fringe benefits.

MEETS TODAY

Shipowners of the Federation of Canada has scheduled a meeting today to discuss the latest developments.

The contract dispute involves 2,500 stevedores in Montreal and another 50 Otis Quebec City and another 500 in Quebec City

The transatlantic wheat boom is planned to move about one-ence River to pick up the wheat cargoes.

Transfer Kidney of Dead Man, Doctors Hopeful of Survival

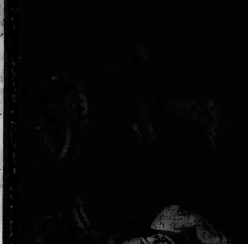
LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Doctors who transferred the kidney of a man who had just died to a 21-yearold tobacco farmer today are hopeful he will survive. The operation is believed to have been the first of its kind in Ontario.

Hospital officials today say the man whose life was saved has been released, is "showing some improvement." He was reported in critical condition Saturday night.

Dr. Vincent Callaghan, chief surgeon of St. Joseph's Hospital where the operation was performed, said it will take several days to assess the success of the transplant.

He said a critical factor is the recovery of the patient is how his body accepts foreign material. In the first few days, the kidney can be considered a foreign material and drugs are being given to prevent the body's natural desire to reject it, the doctor said.

The transplant was performed by a team of surgeons headed by Dr. S. E. Carroll, a vascular surgeon, and Dr. Lionel Reess, a neurologist.



The kidney was taken from Edmond Matthews, 43, of Seaforth, Ont., who had died of injuries suffered when he was struck by an iron boiler door at a Seaforth foundry. Mrs. Matthews gave doctors permission for the transplant.

Expect Kennedy To Agree

WASHINGTON (AP) — The big question of whether or not how the sale of U.S. wheat to Russia fits in the decision basket for President Kennedy, returning to his White House desk today after a 10-day western tour.

Some high officials expect him to say yes.

The Russians have made no formal request to the United States. But Soviet negotiators have been talking in Ottawa of deals for American grain. One report mentioned 3,000,000 tons worth $250,000,000.

Kennedy administration officials sounded out Congress last week on feelings about a grain deal with the Russians, there was some outspoken opposition. However, it is reported that the officials considered the burden of congressional sentiment to be in favor of it.

The government departments involved are expected to recommend a policy change to permit the grain sale when they meet with the president, probably tomorrow.

State Secretary Dean Rusk told reporters in Cleveland, Ohio, Sunday night that the question would be resolved in a few days.

FORBIDS TO CUBA

He said any proposal to sell wheat to Russia to include a provision forbidding its resale to Cuba.

Canada recently concluded a $500,000,000 wheat deal with Russia. Some of the wheat will go to Cuba.

One senator predicted that Kennedy would approve the wheat transaction. Senator Jacob K. Javits (Rep, N.Y.) said it was up to Kennedy to decide the question on the basis of U.S. self-interest.

"From what I see now, I believe that the president would decide to do it," Javits said in a television interview Sunday.

Sails Away Into Exile

Bosch Will Be Taken to Guadaloupe

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Former president Juan Bosch sailed into exile aboard a Dominican Navy frigate today after charging the military coup that overthrew him was organized before his inauguration last February.

A high official source said Bosch was aboard the frigate Mella and would be landed on the French island of Guadaloupe, probably today.

With Bosch Mella were his wife and Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, a leader of the military junta that removed the president from office Wednesday charges he was soft on communism and his administration was chaotic.

Bosch was elected president by an over whelming vote in the Dominican Republic's first free elections since dictator Rafael L. Trujillo took power more than 30 years ago.

Shortly before he sailed on the Mella Saturday night, the silver-haired former president gave a handwritten note to a friend, Manuel publisher Francisco Aguirre, in which he said:

"The coup was established technically after my return from Mexico (in mid-September). The coup was organized before my inauguration last February."

Bosch said he had asked Gen. Imbert Barrera and his wife to accompany him aboard the frigate because he distrusted the navy chiefs.

Bosch's ultimate destination was not known, but Puerto Rico appeared a likely exile home. He and Puerto Rican Governor Luis Munoz Marin are friends.

Pope Paul Makes Strong Appeal for Church Reform

Of Interest AP-Reuters

VATICAN CITY—A proposed readaptation of the Roman Catholic Church was general agreement today from the first prelates to speak at the second phase of the Vatican ecumenical council.

Two cardinals and six bishops took the floor in St. Peter's Basilica at the 2,500 council fathers resumed working sessions. Pope Paul VI reopened the council Sunday after a nine month recess with a strong appeal for church reform.

The council press office, summarizing today's three - hour meeting, told reporters the scheme (topic) before the assembly—"de ecclesia," concerning the church—was accepted by speakers as "a good foundation on which to build."

It was explained during the recess, and will be revised further. It will be the main topic before the council's session ending Dec. 4.

The scheme, considered the key to all the council's work, proposed a new way for the Roman Catholic Church to look at its structure. It came up originally at the council's first session last year and was criticized by many fathers as being too juridicial and academic and not sufficiently pastoral. There was criticism that the original draft would not help the cause of Christian unity.

Labor Minister Sees Little Hope of Settling Dispute

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister MacEachen holds out little hope of a private settlement of the Great Lakes labor troubles before the Canadian government's trusteeship legislation goes before Parliament this week.

Mr. MacEachen returned here Saturday night from talks with Willard Wirtz, United States secretary of labor, in Boston. He said that the federal government still intends to go ahead with legislation to place five maritime unions under government trusteeship.

Reporters suggested his statements indicate there is no hope of a private settlement of the dispute but Mr. MacEachen did not close the door on this possibility.

"I wouldn't say that," he remarked to reporters. "I still think there are activities and discussions going on.

"However, there is no solid action that would justify the government withdrawing its decision to go ahead with trusteeship."

Barring a special arrangement with opposition parties in Parliament, the earliest the legislation could go before the Commons is Wednesday, he said.

Trusteeship was recommended by an inquiry commission which investigated lakefront violence on the labor department. Mr. Justice T. G. Norris, who headed the inquiry, laid the blame on Hal C. Banks and his Seafarers' International Union (Ind.)

Since the Canadian government announced acceptance of the Norris recommendations, Mr. MacEachen, Mr. Wirtz and Canadian and American labor officials have conducted a series of talks, apparently aimed at reaching a private settlement which would make government trusteeship unnecessary.

Pension Plan In Balance

OTTAWA (CP)—Ontario can make or break the federal contributory portable pension plan, Prime Minister Pearson told the nation Sunday night in a fireside-chat preview of today's resumed parliamentary session.

The pensions plan and biculturalism pose serious problems although chances of sales to Red China and Russia have sparked a brighter trade and balance-of-payments picture, he said in a recorded radio and television address.

As he spoke to Canada, he was in Cleveland spelling the highest strategy of the United States National Conference of Christians and Jews. In Cleveland he said only a matter of degree separates the "criminal racial acts of Birmingham and the racist bigotry of a prominent Canadian club that bars a distinguished Canadian Jew."

Canada's problem of racial discrimination is "less pressing only because our situation is different and only a fortunate one," he told a dinner of 1,500 after receiving the award from the State Secretary Rusk of the U.S.

REVIEWS EFFORTS

Reviewing his government's five months in office on the eve of the resumption of the parliamentary session today, Mr. Pearson said that if Ontario does not support the federal government's Canada Pensions Plan, it will have to be entirely revised and possibly not get into effect.

He repeated the concern he expressed in a Montreal speech Friday with the sterilness of separatist cries in Quebec and said it is time the voice of reason and moderation was raised.

Mr. Pearson spoke in the broadcast speech at his official residence Saturday night. It was carried on nation-wide English networks Sunday night while he was in Cleveland addressing the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

The prime minister's television appearance stressed the fireside approach made famous by the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt during the Second World War. Mr. Pearson spoke from an easy chair in his pine-panelled study at 24 Sussex Street with camera catching shelves of books and a fireplace mantel and a black marble fireplace behind him, gratis with partially burned logs.

The text of his address was given to newspapers in advance of broadcast.

He said "things are somewhat better" in Canadian trade, em-

Old Men Battle

LEXINGTON, Ky. (CP-AP) — When policeman Harry Robinson got to the scene Sunday of a fight between Edward G. Hoey, 45, of Auburn, and Mrs. Max Walts, 44, of Alexandria Bay, they were locked in the splintered cabin of Hoey's 45-foot cabin cruiser Friday.

Troopers said there was no indication the deaths were anything but accidental. Autopsies were ordered to determine the precise cause.

Gas Line Leak Probed Blast

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N.Y. (AP) — State police said Saturday a leak in a bottled gas line apparently caused the explosion aboard a yacht, in which the bodies of a business executive and a waitress were found.

Edward G. Hoey, 45, of Auburn, and Mrs. Max Walts, 44, of Alexandria Bay, were found dead in the splintered cabin of Hoey's 45-foot cabin cruiser Friday.

Believe Meeting Rusk, Gromyko Best Talks Bet

Will Explore Many U.S.-Red Projects

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.S. diplomats believe a meeting Wednesday night between State Secretary Dean Rusk and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko is the best bet among forthcoming talks for developing new accords between Washington and Moscow.

Rusk had a breakfast date with British Foreign Secretary Lord Home this morning. The two join Gromyko tonight at a dinner being given by UN Secretary-General U Thant.

The dinner at the UN was described as a social affair to be attended by a few of the foreign leaders here for the General Assembly session.

Rusk's private appointment with Gromyko was for dinner Wednesday at the headquarters of the Soviet mission to the UN.

U.S. sources said Rusk may explore a considerable variety of U.S.-Soviet projects, ranging from a nonaggression agreement to co-operating in outer space.

This week's talks, which will include Britain's Alec Douglas-Home Tuesday, were about all that emerged by way of agreement Sunday from the conferences in a meeting here Saturday.

IS UNPRODUCTIVE

The 25-hour parley — first high - level east - west session since the Aug. 5 signing of the limited nuclear test ban treaty — was described as cordial but unproductive of any agreement of substance.

Gromyko was said to have talked about general disarmament in a philosophical way without giving enough details on the Soviet proposal for an exchange of observers or the Western ministers to join the 18-nation disarmament conference in its struggle with Red China.

The observers would guard against surprise attack.

The Western powers have had difficulty reaching a position.

The Britain, it was speculated, is still undecided about its foreign policy pending further developments in its struggle with Red China.

Heavy Vote Is Forecast Across B.C.

VICTORIA (CP)—There was talk of a record turnout today as British Columbia went about electing their 37th government since confederation.

A heavy percentage of the 872,218 eligible voters was expected at the polls between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. PDT to decide on such issues as power development, medicare, automobile insurance and revamped tax proposals.

The forecast was based on solid attendance at a three-day advance poll last week.

Good weather was expected in all of constituencies.

There was a speculation in some newspapers that no one party would capture the bulk of the 52 seats at stake.

Only twice since B.C. entered confederation on July 20, 1871, has a general election produced a minority situation.

In 1941 the Liberal administration formed a coalition with the Conservatives. In 1952 Premier Bennett came to power with 19 of the 48 seats that constituted the legislature in those days.

RETAINS POWER

Premier Bennett's Social Credit government has been in power ever since. They took 38 of 52 seats in 1953, increased their hold to 39-in 1956 and took 32 in the 1960 election.

When Premier Bennett dissolved the house Aug. 29—40 days before election day—his party held 31 seats. The New Democratic Party 15 and the Liberals six.

Only Social Credit and the NDP have nominated full slates. The Liberals have 51 candidates and the Progressive Conservatives 44. There are four Communists on the ballot—one member of the Socialist Party of Canada on the ballot.

The Conservatives, who have not elected a member in 19 years, predict a resurgence this year under E. Davie Fulton, former justice and minister of labor in former federal administrations.

The premier sees the election as "Social Credit versus socialism" and has warned that a vote for one of the rivals par-

Sundays' 'Bowler-Hat' Parsons Are Workaday Men on Weekdays

LONDON (AP)—The first of the Church of England's "bowler-hat parsons" will be ordained in Southwark Cathedral Sunday.

They will go back to their daily jobs in the Christian witness in office or factory. Only on Sundays will they don the clergyman's collar and help in parishes.

The "bowler-hat parsons"—so named because they will not work full-time as parish priests—have an idea of Bishop Mervyn Stockwood of Southwark. Dr. Stockwood's diocese south of the Thames stretches through London's worst slum areas and the Surrey commuter belt. He is concerned that only one of the 1,500,000 souls in his care go to church.

The 50-year-old bishop felt auxiliary clergy were needed in largeparishes where priests often work singlehanded. His appeal fell on laymen financially-unable to quit their jobs because of family responsibilities.

Dr. Stockwood arranged that such men could attend a three-year course of evening classes with weekend assignments and retreats, while still living at home.

He set his suffragan, Bishop John Robinson of Woolwich, to supervise the plan. Dr. Robinson, 44, is the prelate who won a public rebuke from the Archbishop of Canterbury for the unconventional religous views he expressed in his book Honest to God.

Before long, some 30 men will be ordained in the diocese in grimy Southwark Cathedral to close by the elevated tracks of the city and the suburban rail junctions. Across London Bridge they came after the day's work was done—some with hats, carrying briefcases, some in cloth caps and overalls.

Some dropped out. Others decided to become full-time parish priests and moved to residential church colleges. The first 14 of those who stuck it out were ordained Sunday. Other batches will follow year by year.

Mexican Wins Grand Prix Trenton Driver Did Well

By DAVID STONE

Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico City won the 250 mile Canadian Grand Prix at Mosport Saturday. Driving a Ferrari, the 23-year old Mexican led the race for all but 15 of the one hour, dred laps to win the Pepsi-Cola Trophy and $3,500 prize money.

Less than one lap behind Rodriguez in second place was World Grand Prix champion Graham Hill of London, England. Driving a Lotus 32, Hill led the under 2000 cc cars. Third overall and highest placed Canadian was Dennis Coad Gerwing the "Whit Special" Lotus 19. Following Coad were Don Devine, Scarab; Bill Worthoff, Elva-Porsche and Eppie Wietzes, AC Cobra.

Rodriguez took the lead on lap one followed by Graham Hill; Lorenzo Bandini of Milan, Italy in a Ferrari; Jo Siffert Cosa; and John Surtees of London, England in another Ferrari. By lap three Surtees, the former World Motorcycle champion moved up to second position behind Rodriguez. For the next 28 laps the two identical Ferraris raced neck and neck.

By lap ten the two Ferraris had pulled away from the rest of the field and were in fact lapping the back markers. On lap 14 Surtees passed Rodriguez but Rodriguez regained the lead only to lose it again. Surtees held the lead until lap 32 when a series of pit stops dropped him back. Surtees retired the Ferrari on lap 39 with clutch trouble. When Surtees retired, the order was Rodriguez, Ferrari; Hill, Lotus 225; Harry Heuer, Chaparral; Bill Wuerdoff, Zerex Special, and Dennis Coad, Lotus 19.

Coad was followed in sixth position by Peter Lesrch of Montreal in the Dallu-Chev Special; Lorenzo Bandini, Ferrari; Don Devine, Scrarb; Tom Milne, AC Cobra and Bob Johnson, AC Cobra.

The Grand Prix was actually three races within a race. As well as the race for overall honors there was a race for cars in three classes—sports cars over and under 2000 cc. engine displacement and Grand Turismo cars. The class leaders at lap 35 were Rodriguez over 2000 cc; Graham Hill under 2000 cc; and Ken Miles of Los Angeles driving an AC Cobra, 1st in GT class.

Harry Heuer diving the "Meister Brauser Racing Team" Chaparral had moved up from 7th. on lap 1 to 3rd. on lap 33. Jean Sterne then moved behind 2nd. place Graham Hill. Heuer moved up to challenge Hill and on lap 43 he passed the World Champion to take second place. Heuer began to pull away from Hill and close on Rodriguez when 14 laps later he had to make a pit stop. The pit stop dropped Heuer back to last position when he rejoined the race and twenty laps later he retired.

A strong force in the under 2000 cc class until the latter half of the race was Wayne Kelly of Trenton. Kelly kept his Lotus engine "Monaplace Special" a solid third in class until gear shift problems slowed him down.

As a result of his third place finish in the Canadian Grand Prix at Mosport Dennis Coad of Toronto became Canadian Champion. The Grand Prix climaxed a season long duel between Coad and former Canadian Champion Ludwig Heimrath. Coad driving the Whit Special Lotus 19 edged out Heimrath in the points race, 52 to 52. Heimrath drove a Porsche RS 60 and finished twelfth in the Grand Prix.

Kiwanis Toy Project Now In 12th Year

Now in its 12th year of operation, the Belleville Kiwanis Christmas toy project will get under way at the Kiwanis Centre where for the next two months local Kiwanians and others will be at work repairing an estimated 9,000 toys.

The repaired toys will be distributed by members of the Belleville Fire Department to city and county welfare agencies.

Today, members of the toy committee appeal for repairable toys to keep the project busy.

The toy repair project will get underway Tuesday evening using a backlog of toys left over from last year, but volunteer help for this project will be gratefully appreciated.

Although Kiwanis have lead up the project, many non-Kiwanians turn out to help the project along — many of them professional in a particular phase of repair work.

For instance, Mr. A. Leland does all the toy painting while Smith Signs does the paint striping, the City Cleaners does all the dry cleaning of soft toys. A local woodworking firm sets up the jigs for the manufacture or repair of the wooden toys.

And the work is all done gratis. A number of local merchants contribute generously.

But there are still expenses involved in the toy project. For instance between 30 and 40 gallons of paint are used each year and repair materials have to be purchased. And it all adds up.

To help the project along penny boxes will again this year be placed in downtown business places. Any spare pennies will be welcomed. Your pennies, please.

Country Club Concludes Highly Successful Season With Presentation Dinner

A men's field day and presentations dinner climaxed the official playing season of the Bay of Quinte Country Club on Saturday night.

Some 92 golfers toured the fairways and greens during the day while 128 members, enjoyed the post-play dinner and trophy-awards presentations.

Terrence (the senior, not the junior, "Terry") McCabe was the field day tournament with a gross score of 73 with Spence Woonacott taking the low net honors with a 72.

President George O'Brien who guided the club to one of its most successful seasons, chaired the dinner and presentations. His directors and their ladies sat with him and Mrs. O'Brien at the head table.

Besides the field day winners, those who claimed the club's seasonal trophies and awards were presented with miniatures and other mementos of their links prowess.

Both President O'Brien and Mrs. Ena Corke, president of the ladies' section, spoke to the members, paying tribute to their committees' chairman and others who assisted to make the season a highly successful one.

In his address the president reviewed the accomplishments and achievements of the season.

He commended membership chairman Don Stanton on the increase of 80 senior and an overall 100 new members. He paid tribute to club pro George Balazs and Dave Duffy and men for the marked improvement in the course, sprinklers, fertilization, etc.

He said additional kitchen and other club facilities have been acquired and the club is now more adequately equipped to accommodate the increased membership.

PATTED ON BACK

House chairman "Bud" Trill came in for presidential praise for a job "admirably performed and financially successful."

President O'Brien patted his publicity committee on the back with special mention to Stan Wiggins and his members Bob Trickey and Ken Hawkins. He paid tribute to his game captains, Phyllis Dybik and Don Lamb, saying that the increased participation in tournaments was a sure indication of their fine work.

Everett Fairman, the "man on all committees" came in for special comment by the president.

He reviewed the financial status of the club saying that the net result of the year's activities will result in the club being $15,000 better off than a year ago.

He paid tribute to ladies' president, Ena Cosby, and her committee for a job excellently done. His praise would be added with the result of junior activities and commended senior players for their assistance in this respect.

He also director he offered his sincere thanks for their work and the "harmony that was evident in all deliberations". In all cases decisions were made for welfare and good of the club, he said.

Ladies' president, Ena Corke, said her tenure of office had been "a happy experience." She commented on the Thursday afternoon tournaments and hoped to see many new members out next year.

She asked for membership cooperation for her successor, Mrs. Vera Fairman and "let us all get behind the club president and make next year a bigger and better one."

The club ends the official social season next Saturday night with the annual year-end ball.

Hit, Run Driver Crashes Into Liquor Store

PICTON — Three plate glass windows were smashed by a hit-and-run driver Saturday night in the Ontario Liquor Control Board store here. Damage was estimated at $900.

There were no witnesses to the accident which occurred about 8 p.m. on Picton's Main Street.

Police believe the motorist was turning on a parking lot in front of the store, struck the building cornerwise, shattering the windows.

Residents describe the effect akin to an explosion. A station wagon, parked across the street took off immediately afterwards. Police believe the driver of the wagon may be able to assist their investigations.

Four Injured As Result of Two-Car Crash

PICTON — John Lewis, 17, R.R. 2, Picton, is in Prince Edward Memorial Hospital here, unconscious from head injuries in a two-car crash that injured four other persons Saturday night.

His sister, Florence, 15, suffered broken ribs in the crash and is confined to her home.

The car, driven by Lewis, collided with a station-wagon, driven by Frank Stevens Jr., 18 of Picton. Stevens suffered cuts and bruises and a passenger, Donna Potter, also age 18, of R.R. 2, Picton, was treated for severe head and face cuts.

Stevens was going north on Paul Street and Lewis west on Princess Street, and their vehicles collided at the intersection in front of the home of George Andrews.

Lewis' car then careened an evergreen tree on the Andrews' lawn which latched to the front of his car and crashed into the impact when it crashed against a stone verandah. Stevens' wagon, a 1963 model, crashed into a birch tree on the lawn.

Both vehicles were demolished.

Chambliss was found innocent in 1949 on a charge of flogging while masked. He has been active in anti-integration drive. Officers had to restrain Chambliss recently when he engaged in a near brawl with a reporter at a segregation meeting.

Cagle has been affiliated with anti - integration activities, mostly in the Warrior area south of Birmingham. Last summer he was arrested while going to a Ku Klux Klan rally in Tuscaloosa a short time before the University of Alabama was desegregated. State officials identified him as a Klansman and said he was carrying a weapon.

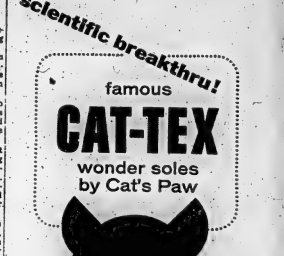
Would-Be Thieves Crack Wrong Safe at Factory

DESERONTO (Special) — A gang of safe-crackers — at least one of them armed — staged an abortive robbery attempt at a canning factory early Sunday morning.

The attempt at Metcalfe's Foods Ltd., went badly for the would-be thieves. Not one did they labor to crack open the wrong safe; they narrowly escaped arrest, when they were spotted by the factory watchman.

Police chief K. G. M. Gloster said the gang used crowbars to smash open the heavy safe in the factory office. When they finally forced the door, the safe was empty of money. Funds were kept in a second safe in the office, unknown to the gang.



As they left, one of the gang was spotted by watchman Leo Linaugh, making his rounds of the premises. One of the men pointed a pistol at him and warned him to keep quiet. Immediately after they disappeared the watchman called police and a search of the area was started with the assistance of provincial police from Belleville.

Chief Gloster said at the time the safe was being forced Mr. Linaugh was at the rear of the factory where it was impossible to hear any noise from the front offices.

Everybody's Business

Belleville has 30,000 citizens.

They are being asked to give $85,000 to finance the work of twelve organizations which cater to a wide variety of community needs.

This means that $2.83 must be obtained from each man and every Belleville resident if the objective is to be met.

This is pin money, little more than a nickel a week during the coming year.

Yet there is a danger this objective will not be attained. It was not, last year.

There are some people, of course, who cannot give their share—many of them it is only a nickel a week. In most cases, the family can make the necessary re-adjustment, the head of the house contributing for those under his roof who are too young, or too old, to share in the community burden. For the average family, a quarter a week will take care of its total obligations.

There are some families which cannot meet even this small figure. No matter. Corporations and individuals will take up the slack, so that, if the average family shoulders its own share of the load, the objective should be reached.

Unfortunately are some families which evade their responsibilities. It goes against the grain to help carry a load which a lazy loafer should be bearing. But does it not go against the grain, too, to let innocent, needy people suffer because of the shirker's heartlessness? Another matter. One of them was a neuro-pathologist, aged 35, who stated that at the age of 19, when she was a student, she became ill at a medical college, she had been cramming anatomy with a number of others. After she had fallen asleep while one of them continued to study, she could provide sufficient money to enable a dozen organizations to do their work. But that is only half a cent a week per organization. Is it enough? Some will think not, and will double, treble or quadruple their giving. The money will serve a good purpose.

Remember six cents is a par capital figure, but many are not wage-earners. A quarter a week is the very least that any person steadily employed as a decent salary should consider giving. The record suggests that many contribute much less, so those who can, and that probably includes the majority of us, should give more, considerably more.

Some will object that they do not approve of one or other of the organizations who derive funds from the United Appeal. The obvious answer is that this is only natural. Once it is unlikely any person in the city will value the twelve agencies at the same figure. Still at half a cent a week, any one of them should be a bargain. Even if it is not, in the opinion of the individual contributor, the organizations of which he approves have raised their fortunes with those of which he disapproves. Does he think so little of their considered judgment that he would deny them the help they need because of the company they keep?

The man, or woman, who would let such misgivings stop him from sharing a community duty is placing too high a value on his small change.

Law and the Poles

We have on our desk a mimeographed book, of some 220 pages, entitled "The Status Under International Law of the Eastern Territories of Germany." It is by Dr. jur Herbert Kraus, who is described as "professor law" but not otherwise identified.

The book purports to prove that under international law Poland has no right to those territories which she annexed when she moved her frontier to the Oder-Neisse line. We suspect he proves his case. In any case, Dr. Kraus sound terribly legal. His book contains various passages of this following type: "But Jellinek's formula is not only applicable to the problem of the origin of objective rights. Should certain basic facts be present in the case, it may also apply to the coming into being and the extinction of subjective rights and obligations (ex factis jus oritur)."

Dr. Kraus may find it difficult to understand why we consider his book the best propaganda the Poles could find if they want to strengthen their hand for the retention of these former German territories.

There are, however, numerous people who will find this exposition of the great German talent for law somewhat revolting in the face of memories of that other great German talent for military conquest.

Will the hon. gentleman just sit down and keep his brains warm. — N.D.P. Leader Tommy Douglas silencing a tormenter in the House of Commons.

Can Learn While Sleeping

By A. M. Opsahlsdahl INSECO Service

In recent years, scientists in Europe and America have been experimenting with the possibility of conveying knowledge during sleep. Some success reported in the Soviet Union about 1950. The author, Prof. Svyadoshch, of the Kazan Medical Institute, is head of the Kazanskii State Medical Institute in Kazakhstan.

In 1956, I happened to hear a patient tell of an unusual experience. One day she fell asleep while awaiting her turn. Visitors who were late arriving, and the next morning she realized that she knew a few words she had never heard before. She found out later that it had been sung while she was asleep, and that her memory had retained it.

The case interested me and I began to wonder whether it would not be possible for a person to perceive speech during sleep and to remember it. About a third of our lives is spent in sleep — at least some part of that time be used for the acquisition of knowledge? To achieve this end, the mere repetition of words in the presence of a sleeping person would scarcely be sufficient. In 1956, people would have noticed it long ago. Thousands of people have to listen to the same information is going on nearby or somebody is listening to the radio at home, but does never remember next day what was said while they were asleep.

I became interested in the problem, and during the winter year, 1956, I questioned a hundred people. "Did they remember ever to have perceived speech when they were asleep?" Only two answered in the affirmative. One of them was a neuro-pathologist, aged 35, who stated that at the age of 19, when she was a student, became ill at a medical college, she had been cramming anatomy with a number of others. After she had fallen asleep while one of them continued to study, whereupon she remembered everything that had been read during the night.

The next step was an experiment carried out on a hundred healthy subjects who had not been warned. A short story was read twice to them during their waking hours. Next day they were asked if they could recall it. The subjects either continued to sleep and went on working undisturbed nothing, or they were awakened by the voice of the author. This experiment was therefore negative.

In another one conducted with twenty subjects, the story was read to them twenty times during their sleep. One of them, a 32-year-old girl, remembered nothing of it next morning but was able to repeat it word for word very quickly, eight times more quickly than the control poem.

Ten experiments having proved that the ability on the part of a person to perceive speech during sleep could be met with, we tried to cultivate this ability artificially. Between 1957 and 1960, experiments were carried out in a number of institutes under both clinical and laboratory conditions. Actography, pneumography and later electro-encephalography served as a tool to record the quality of the sleep.

Experiments were first made on twenty-five healthy young adult subjects, specially chosen for their highly impressionable nature, and their interest in such research. All possessed good hearing; their night sleep was sound and calm. The ability of a passive speech was induced in them by repeated verbal suggestion during hypnotic sleep or when awake. It was impressed upon them that they should sleep calmly, without waking. During their sleep they would hear a signal that they should wake up on, after which they would hear a story or some words and they would recall them, next morning. Further experiments showed that this ability could be cultivated by auto - suggestion, (tense, passionate mental repetition of "I shall sleep and hear"), and also by a special auto-suggestion technique known as autogenic training.

In this way twenty out of the twenty-five subjects succeeded in remembering speech perceived during sleep. They were able to remember words from a foreign language hitherto unknown to them, fiction texts, chapters from manuals on acoustics and mechanics and even philosophical texts. Sixteen of the subjects were able to recall the greater part of the texts (an average of 59.5 percent) and four only a small part (an average of only 18.6 percent).

In all cases the perception of the texts occurred without the subjects realizing it — they slept and did not know that they were listening to words and remembering it. In some cases, the content of the speech perceived during sleep was experienced as an idea occurring to the subject spontaneously without his knowing that it had been heard. For instance, a girl student of linguistics realized that she had remembered a foreign word during her sleep, and even remembered on a simple occasion, although she could not recall it before.

In other cases, perception during sleep was experienced as an event subsequently in a dream. In a dream, a girl student connected three messages in prose, the story of the revolutionary Neshayev, hitherto unknown to them, was read and in the fifth message all three related the dream they had had. Next they had driven to Dostoyev Sele with a man called Lovin who, on the way, had told them the story of Nechayev, which they remembered almost word for word.

In another experiment engaged in last year (1963) in the laboratory of the psychiatric clinic of Karaganda State Medical Institute, it is based upon two subjects that they would be awakened in night - time waking and that during their sleep they would hear and remember certain words. That is, they were asleep a tape-recorder was switched on, playing a list of twenty-five words with translations into Russian had been recorded. Two minutes later the subjects were told: "Moscow . . Red Square . . The May Day celebration is under way . . Lenin is on the grandstand . . There are foreigners near you . . They are waving their hands . ." In the morning the two subjects assured us that they had not heard anything a May Day celebration. Some foreigners had been near them and had waved their hands they recalled — they were the Spanish words on the tape played during their sleep.

Matter perceived during sleep may be retained in the memory in "active" or "latent" form. In the first instance, the subject can, by the exercise of will power, recall what has been perceived. In the case of latent memory, he can learn what was perceived during sleep much more quickly than he could an unknown text.

It is not easy to achieve the actual memorizing of words. Latent memory is easier to acquire especially remembering words from a text read over after incubation or auto-suggestion. To simplify our experiments we now use a tape-recorder working to a pre-determined program which plays the tape over several times during sleep. For instance, the tape repeats ten words during language, each of them fifteen to twenty times, on three occasions during the night — that is, when the sleep awakens. The following morning twenty foreign words are read to him — the ten heard during the night being interspersed with ten others (control words). He is asked to repeat immediately all the words he can remember. This procedure is repeated on the next night. If the subject possesses a latent memory he will recognize seven of the words heard during the night and three others after the first lesson. The accumulation of the data obtained from such experiments shows that latent memory training is quite feasible.

From the physiological standpoint, the type of memory used during which perception is possible, is, according to Pavlov, partial sleep with what he called a "point of wariness". It is because of this "wariness" that speech is perceived.

"Wary sleep" is common to both animals and human beings. Because of the "point of wariness", the cat can react selectively to sounds, smells and remain passive to others. The bird endures long periods of sleep at the bedside of her young child may not be awakened by loud noises but will immediately react to the slightest rustle coming from the child.

In the majority of cases, a "point of wariness" has a biological purpose only when it is awakened by the subject's perception of a signal (for instance when an enemy approaches an animal) but when it leads to the perception of a signal that does not concern the subject. This is probably why the ability to perceive speech in natural conditions is rare in man and is not easy to acquire by training. It may occur in cases when the subject falls asleep while listening to a story which interests him.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

September 29th, 1943

Last Saturday afternoon a soldier wearing the uniform of the Royal Canadian Artillery entered the premises of Modern Cleaners on Pinnacle Street, and enquired from Thomas Rutchinson, the proprietor, if it would be possible to borrow an old pair of trousers and a shirt while he had his soldier suit cleaned and pressed. Declaring he could a boy in the armed services, Mr. Hutchinson complied with the request and the soldier left wearing an old pair of trousers and a shirt stating he would return for his uniform in about two hours. He hasn't returned to claim his uniform yet, Mr. Hutchinson reported to the city police this morning.

At the present time there are only two Belleville men actively carrying on the work of the V.O.N. in Belleville. Since January 1st, 1943, the Belleville service, a total of 463 patients have been visited with a grand total of 3,717 calls, making an average of 543 visits monthly. This reveals an increase of 300 visits covering the same period last year. When the phrase, so common on our vocabulary today, "A war of nerves" is heard it brings to mind these self-effacing, tireless women who carry on a silent, sometimes unappreciated, and often unknown fight to restore fully just a little more livable for the unfortunates who still have not learned to care for themselves.

Barbers in the city are divided in their ranks today over the question of prices. While one-half of the tonsorial shops display in the windows large signs giving the new scale of prices which have resulted from a small conference, the rest of the members stand solidly pat on their refusal to follow the lead of the other ing to speech and the contact with the speaker is retained, or when the subject is keyed up in anticipation of hearing speech. As the latter case "wariness" verbalization facilitates the formation of a "point of wariness".

It is still too early to speak of as extensive, practical application of the data obtained. Methods must be further developed. The problem of fatigue and of the degree of truthfulness afforded by such sleep has not yet been studied sufficiently. There is good reason to believe, however, that the perception of speech during sleep is less fatiguing than when the subject is awake.

The research we have so far carried out shows that, in principle, it is possible to convey information to a sleeping person without his being conscious of it; in principle, therefore, hypnopaedy is a possibility.

Canada was elected to the United Nations Security Council for a two-year term 18 years ago today—in 1947 —by 6ll one of those decisions that would occur at the end of the year. The two-year terms of Australia, Poland and Brazil were due to expire. The newcomers joined 11 nations—the permanent members, the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and China, and six members elected for two-year terms.

1923—The first BBC television broadcast took place.

1800—The Canadian dollar was freed to find its own level, a situation that continued for 18 years.

To Your Good Health

Chimney Needed If You Use an Open Gas Heater

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Could stinging in a room with an open gas heater cause one to be nervous and have palpitation of the heart? Isn't gas poisonous? — R. L.

Fumes of burning gas (coal, wood, oil or any other fuel) contain carbon monoxide, and are deadly poisonous.

Small amounts of monoxide, and it doesn't take much to have an effect, can cause palpitation. Headache and drowsiness, however, are usually the first signs of monoxide poisoning.

I question whether the fumes themselves would make you nervous, but the headache, palpitation or other discomforts might do so.

If the heater is in a fireplace, the fumes will go up the chimney and no danger will result — that is if the chimney is open. But if the flue is plugged, or closed with a damper, then the fumes will disperse into the room.

With a fireplace, there's no doubt as to whether the chimney is open. Does it draw the fire can promptly bother you so that you do something about it. The danger is from fuels that don't create much smoke. They still produce carbon monoxide though!

You can't see or smell monoxide. That is why so many after year, people die of monoxide poisoning and others become ill from it.

While many fuel gases are not poisonous, they can be dangerous in a tightly closed room simply by depriving the occupants of enough oxygen — asphyxiation, but not poisoning.

There is only one safe rule: Never have a fire inside an unvented building unless a chimney, stack or vent is provided to let the fumes escape.

As to gas itself being poisonous, generally speaking, it isn't very dangerous. Natural gas is not, and neither are many other forms of heating or "bottled" gas. The exception is artificial gas produced from the incomplete combustion of coal or oil. This is poisonous because it contains carbon monoxide. Given plenty of oxygen, monoxide will burn to form the odorless carbon dioxide, which is not poisonous.

When gas that is poisonous is used for household or industrial use, manufacturers provide it with a strong unpleasant odor so that people will notice it quickly and shut off any leaks.

A gas heater won't give you trouble unless or until it acts as you have a chimney or vent for it. But if you don't — look out! One part of monoxide in 100,000 can start to make you ill; one in 750 can kill you in an hour.

Dr. Molner: Someone told me that eating a lot of raw onions caused high blood pressure and this true? — W. E. H.

If you mean is true that "someone" told you that, I'm sure it's so. This is one of those old wives' tales that persist. But if you mean whether onions cause high blood pressure, the answer is no.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a niece, seven years old and her hair is turning gray. She parents to be healthy, but has had some circumstances which could cause worry. Do you think my problem has anything to do with it? — L. B.

The direct cause of grayness is loss of pigment in the hair shaft, and it can run in families, just as skin coloring can vary. Emotional disturbances have been known to cause hair to turn gray in some instances, so if the child has been under a profoundly upsetting circumstance, it could be a factor.

Headaches! You can beat them. Write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 196, Dundee, Illinois for a copy of the booklet, "How To Tame Headache." Please enclose a long self-addressed envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover the cost of handling.

Dr. Molner is interested in all his readers' questions, and whenever possible uses their questions in his column, but because of the great number received daily he regrets that he cannot answer individual letters.

Strictly Personal

Not Easy To Combine Opposite Ideas

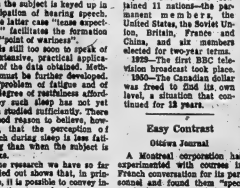
By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The distinguishing mark of a good mind, it seems to me, is the ability to hold two conflicting ideas at the same time, and to be dominated by neither.

This is extremely hard to do. Consider the two propositions: "Everybody is different," and "Everybody is pretty much the same." I believe that both these statements are true, and that a realistic view of life consists in holding them in balance at all times.

If we are dominated only by the first proposition, "Everybody is different," we become the most arrant kind of individualist. If we overstress the uniqueness of the individual, we ignore the fact that it is the spirit of individuality that produces the sad flavor and delight to human existence. The consequences of such a view are often as mediocrity, sheepish subservience, and conformism.

Proust, in his great novel, remarks that "The universe is the home for all of us, and different for each of us." The same for all of us — we have the same needs, the same loves, the same fears, the same rights, the same responsibilities. And the way who identifies us in the darkness of individualism" becomes a dehumanized creature.



Different for each of us — for each is a distinct unique personality, with his own way of looking at life, his own independence and autonomy, his own freedom to make decisions, his own end in himself. And the man who denies this in the name of "society" crushes the most precious values for abstract social ones that never can be realized by collective action.

Humanity is perpetually in the position of standing with two horses wanting to go in opposite directions at the same time. If we pull too hard on one or the other, we cannot avoid crashing over the precipice. And every generation we must give each steed just the right amount of freedom and the right amount of restraint, to determine these degrees, and the proportions between them, is the continuing human task.

It cannot be done if we allow either conflicting idea to run away with us, out of fear, or greed, or simple ignorance. The full combination of opposites, is almost the whole art of living.

A.N.A.P. Weekly News

The Riot Committee reports that Chairman Fernie Kelly is fairly well recovered from his accident and soon expects to be back to normal and resume his work. Comrade Ab Brenton, in Room 240 BGH, is resting comfortably and is making progress. He would be pleased to see any comrade during visiting hours. Comrade Ben Acker is convalescing at home while "Wayne" O'Dare is doing so well as can be expected but is still in Kingston General Hospital. As of yesterday Cec Chapman, was here visiting from Toronto over the weekend and, just prior to leaving Toronto, was up to Sunnybrook Hospital, visiting that grand old comrade, Bert Wells. Cec reports that he is very comfortable there and is getting excellent service. Bert has had numerous visits and since arriving but has had no diagnosis of his case. Cec also said he is quite happy there and tha. he certainly is looking very much better than when he arrived at the hospital. All the old comrades wish Bert all the best and hope his condition will improve and they will again have the pleasure of his company in the very near future.

The next entertainment chairman, Dan Andrews, wishes to remind the comrades about the big stag & pet 21st next Saturday evening, 5 Oct., the Ladies Auxiliary are putting on the lunch so the members will be sure of a good report. Come on down and talk over old times and sing the old songs and have an evening of fun and conviviality. All members are welcome. Comrade Dan was not too happy about the dance held last Friday. There was plenty of good music and prizes. An excellent floor for dancing but too many vacant chairs.

READY FOR TRIP

The sports chairman, George Christopher, reports that things are pretty well organized for the weekend trip to Toronto and a renewal of the feud with the 48th Old Boys Association. He asks any comrade who is intending to go to be sure and get their names down on the list for bus and hotel réservations by next Saturday as time is getting short. The date for this event is Saturday, Oct. 12.

Comrade Don Andrews, who is also secretary for the Dart League, reports that there is a meeting for all team captains and sponsors in the Unit clubrooms this Monday evening. He says that, great interest is being shown this year and hopes to have upwards of fourteen teams this season which should make for a good, well contested tournament. It is hoped that all details will be completed so the season can start the first Monday in October. The sports chairman asks that all members will co-operate with the Darts Association when the schedule starts by leaving the dart boards free for the league games to be played and give the players elbow room. This will be greatly appreciated by all concerned.

Comrade George, in his capacity as band manager, states that Pipe-Major Ken McIvein intends to start a new instruction course for pipers in the very near future. Owing to the poor showing of late of attendances at parades and practices by older members of the band, it has been decided to train new young men to fill the gaps. Any young people, who can read music and are sincerely interested in learning to play the pipes are urged to contact Pipe-Major McIvein in the ANAP auditorium on any Wednesday evening which is the Pipe-Band's practice night.

That is all at present. See you at the Stag Night Party.

On joining a club as a member, a gentleman will inform himself of the written rules and regulations governing the club. He should also endeavor to acquaint himself with any unwritten rules also. He must learn not to assume an excessive air. He must learn to argue good humorously and not stoop rigidly on his rights. On receiving any courtesies on kindness, as he must try to return them as promptly as possible. There are, in every club certain persons who are gossips, scandalmongers and downright mischief makers and should be avoided as much as possible. Gossip is such a rule not to discuss other people's private affairs, or to intrude in other people's affairs. A member who does nothing but condemn other people and who consistently finds fault with every little thing and who never seems to find any thing of anyone to praise at all is certainly no asset to any club at anytime.

If he is so dissatisfied with the way things are run and can find no enjoyment or person worthy of his attention, he would be better off to either continously or ungraciously resign and shake the dust of the club off his shoes forever and leave the members who appreciate the club to enjoy it. (Excerpt from a book on etiquette published about 100 years ago but it still applies today.)

Night School Starts Tonight; Registrations Still Needed

Although night school classes begin officially tonight at Moira Secondary School and on Tuesday at Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School prospective students may still register on these dates. The principals concerned have stressed that in some classes unless more students do register on Monday and Tuesday the classes will not be continued. Fifteen students at least are required for each course offered.

An unexpected demand for instruction in Grade 13 Chemistry has resulted in this subject's being offered in connection with the evening classes at Belleville Collegiate. All interested should register at the Collegiate at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, October 1. Classes will be held for a few more people register.

A great deal of interest has been shown in conversational French. Plans now call for providing one class at Moira on Mondays and Wednesdays and another at BCIVS on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Arrangements will be made Tuesday to transfer any already registered who would find it more convenient to take classes at Moira.

At Moira Secondary School registration so far has been very light for the following subjects: advanced auto mechanics, bookkeeping, carpentry, drafting, basic electricity, machine shop, public speaking, sheet metal and crafts. The registration Monday evening will determine whether or not these classes can be carried on.

At the Collegiate registration has so far been inadequate in these subjects: bricklaying, advanced shorthand, stationary engineering and woodworking. The registration Tuesday will determine whether or not these classes can proceed.

Approximately six hundred people registered at the two schools last week in the various classes. No more registrations will be accepted at the Collegiate in advanced sewing, elementary millinery and welding.

Marian Anderson Is One Of 31 Persons Cited for Highest Civilian Award

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Marian Anderson listens to the question with polite attention.

How does she feel about being one of 31 persons, three of them women, cited for the highest civilian award given by the United States, the Presidential Medal of Freedom?

This great woman, who has sung throughout the world under the sponsorship of the U.S. state department and has been called a symbol of American goodwill, leans back in the overstuffed chair in her Fifth Avenue apartment and thinks a moment.

"As a matter of fact it's difficult to put into words what one feels," she says in her low, musical voice. "One hasn't that capacity to express herself."

She shakes her head in self-reproach.

"It's a very, very tremendous honor.

Clasping her hands, almost prayerfully, as she does often while singing spirituals, she adds:

"We've had letters. One spoke of others who should have been on the list. We wrote the young man that if anyone had asked us if we belonged with this group we'd have said 'absolutely never.'"

The humility of this remark, its almost painful searching for the precisely honest word, have become identified with the great contralto who started life as the daughter of an ice and coal dealer in Philadelphia's Negro district.

TALKS OF PETS

Miss Anderson is a tall, stately woman in her middle 30s. With her smooth, unlined face, she looks much younger, and her sudden bursts of exuberance—especially when she's talking about her husband or her beloved pets — make her seem almost girlish.

With her friend of 20 years, architect Orpheus H. Fisher, she spends a great deal of time, when not on concert tours, at their farm, Marianna, near Danbury, Conn. They have no children.

As a child Miss Anderson sang in choirs, and after her father died when she was 12 she was able to help out the family budget with occasional church concerts. In 1925 she won first prize in competition with 300 others in New York but her career got nowhere until she won acclaim in Europe.

Even after she was an international celebrity, she often couldn't stay in hotels in some American cities where she was singing.

The most famous incident came in 1939 when the Daughters of the American Revolution refused to let her sing in Constitution Hall in Washington. (She has since sung there.) Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt resigned from the DAR in protest, and the government set up for her an Easter Sunday concert at Lincoln Memorial that attracted 75,000.

FIRST NEGRO AT MET

In 1955 she became the first Negro to sing at the Metropolitan Opera House. Three years later she was a member of the U.S. delegation to the United Nations.

But although she has always refused to sing in segregated halls and has worked quietly to bring whites and Negroes together, she has never worked militantly for Negro rights. This has occasioned criticism from some Negro quarters, which hurts her deeply.

In carefully measured words —she usually refers to herself with the impersonal, "one" or editorial "we"—she explains:

"Our contention is that with any great belief one has to be true to oneself in regard to one's contribution to it. If one is committed, it must be in the way that best expresses oneself. With us, it was best done through singing—to do it as well as one can, with serious purpose in mind. We certainly hope it has had some value."

In an almost pleading gesture she flings wide her hands.

"Some are constructed differently. They do it the way they can. . . ."

In the march on Washington in August she had been asked to sing at The Star Spangled Banner.

"Everything was arranged. But we were in the car behind marchers. By the time we reached the stand at Lincoln Memorial the last strains, 'home of the brave,' were dying away."

She doesn't mention her disappointment but the crowd that day saw tears streaming down her face as she walked to the stand on her husband's arm.

Mrs. H. Kiep Will Speak at Canadian Club

Mrs. Hanna Kiep, Women's Affairs Secretary of the German Embassy in Washington will be the speaker for the second meeting of the Canadian Club of Belleville and district to be held this Thursday evening, at Queen Elizabeth School.

Mrs. Kiep was born in Breslau, Germany and studied law at the Universities of Berlin, Oxford and Geneva. The position which she now holds was newly created in the German Foreign Service in 1951 with Mrs. Kiep the first woman to hold it.

Her husband, the late Dr. Otto C. Kiep, served in the United States from 1926 to 1933, first as counsellor in the German Embassy, in Washington and later as Consul General in New York. In 1933 he resigned from the Foreign Service in protest against the National Socialist Government and he and Mrs. Kiep returned to Germany. In the following years Mr. Kiep became a leading figure in the German resistance movement against Hitler and was executed in the Nazi purge that followed the attempt on Hitler's life in July of 1944. Mrs. Kiep was arrested and kept in prison for several months.

Therefore, Mrs. Kiep was ready and anxious to play her part when the time came for rebuilding the shattered fabric of German social life. Speaking on the topic "German Youth and the Hitler Past" (Education toward Democracy), as one who realized that the future of German democracy would depend on the extent to which German women associated themselves with public affairs in postwar Germany.

Mrs. Kiep's primary function as Women's Affairs secretary in the United States is to maintain the contact with youth affairs in Germany.

WEDDING

DURELL — WILSON

Victoria Avenue Baptist Church was the scene of a pretty wedding recently when Gloria Jean Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton E. Wilson, Belleville, was united in marriage to A. Brian Durell, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Durell, Regina, Saskatchewan. The Rev. J. G. Woodcock, minister of the church officiated, assisted by the Rev. Jillard of Kingston before a background of white gladioli and mums and pink carnations.

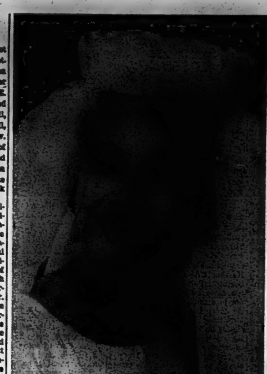
The organist Miss Jane Sullivan of Napanee played traditional wedding music which included the Processional "Be Thou My Vision" and accompanied the soloist Mr. Paul Smith of Kingston in his renditions of "May the Mind of Christ Our Savior," and "Teach Them Thy Way O Lord" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a floor length bridal gown of white peau de soie with the bodice featuring a bateau neckline and long fitted sleeves. The waist was accentuated with a cummerbund of appliqued lace from which flowed a pleated train. A four-tier veil of white tulle fell from a flower headdress of tulle and velvet. She carried a white Bible crested with red roses and cascading knotted streamers with roses and ivy.

The maid of honor Miss Bonnie Hartley of Cornwall and the bridesmaid Miss Christine Wilson, of Belleville, sister of the bride were identically attired in turquoise peau de grain dine featuring bateau neck lines, short sleeves and wrap around styled bell skirts. They were wedding ring fashioned headdresses of matching material with short tulle veils. Both carried cascade bouquets of pink carnations and white mums.

Mr. Phillip Durell of Victoria, British Columbia attended his brother, while another brother, Mr. Ken Durell of Toronto and Mr. Craig Allinson, Corbyville, cousin of the bride were the ushers.

The reception was held in the church auditorium where the bride's table was attractively appointed with three-tier wedding cake flanked with pink candles. Bouquets of pink and white carnations and mums lent colorful accent to the nuptial setting.



The bride's mother received the guests wearing a navy blue linen sheath, white and navy accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted dressed in an ecru lace dress, pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip to points in Northern Ontario the bride chose a wool knit gray suit, pink accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Guests were present from Victoria, B.C., Regina, Saskatchewan, Toronto, Kingston, Winchester, Napanee Belleville and district.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored at a shower in Kingston with co-hostesses Miss B. Hartley Miss B. Earl and Miss B. Woods, nursing friends of the bride; at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of the bride's aunt Mrs. William Rodberg.

Mr. and Mrs. Durell will reside at 309 Westdale Avenue, Apt. 5, Kingston.

Mrs. Clement James Serrie who was married in St. Anthony's Episcopal Church, Miami, Florida, is pictured on her wedding day. The bride was the former Rosemary Margaret Fritz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Fritz, formerly of Belleville, and granddaughter of Mr. Vernon Orr, 213 Dundas Street, Belleville.

SERRIE — FRITZ

Rosemary Margaret Fritz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Fritz, formerly of Belleville, and granddaughter of Mr. Vernon Orr of 213 Dundas Street, was married to Mr. Clement James Serrie on Saturday, September 14, 1963 at Saint Anthony's Episcopal Church, Miami, Florida. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Jeanne Denise Jackson, also formerly of Belleville. The groom is a native of Toronto now serving in the United States Navy.

The bride wore a white satin brocade dress with a long bell skirt and elbow-length sleeves and a finger-tip veil of tulle. She carried a white prayer book topped by a bouquet of white Sweetheart roses. "Something old" was a petal from her mother's bridal bouquet bound into hers and a double strand of pearls from her grandmother.

Miss Jackson was charming in turquoise satin similar style and carrying yellow Sweetheart roses.

The groom was attended by Mr. Frederick L. Grimes and the ushers were Mr. Robert Alpert and Mr. Terrence Peston.

Mrs. Fritz wore a jersey sheath dress in a turquoise color with matching accessories, and Mrs. Serrie wore a lavender dress with black accessories.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

By CONSTANCE LITTON

MAIL CALL

Question: I'm a widow and I am planning to be remarried early this winter. My first husband died seven years ago, but I've maintained a warm and cordial relationship with his parents and two sisters, all of whom have met, and seem to like, my fiance. The wedding will be held in a chapel, with a small reception to follow at the home of my widowed mother. I'd like to invite my late husband's family, but my mother and several other relatives feel this would be in poor taste. My fiance has no objection, and I'm sure their feelings would be correct if they were not invited. What is considered correct in such a situation? — Mrs. C. K. Chicago, Ill.

Answer: It would be in questionable taste to invite your late husband's family to your wedding. If your fiance has any reservations about it, but if he doesn't object and a cordial relationship already exists between them, there's no reason why they should not be included if you so desire.

Question: I'm planning a large cocktail buffet party and would like to know at what point I should start serving the food. A friend who entertains a lot says she usually waits about two hours after the party starts. Even making allowance for stragglers the bridge may be served in about an hour or an hour and a half at most after the first arrivals are still leaving, if time for guests to have a drink or two before eating.

Scout Shows Slides From Jamboree

The Avondale Cub and Brownie Mothers' Auxiliary held their first meeting of the season on Tuesday, September 13, at the home of the president, Ruml Pugh. Seven members were present. The president welcomed the members and opened the meeting with the Mother's Prayer.

The financial report was given by the treasurer, Katherine Thompson. Mr. Pugh has consented to audit the books for the past year. It was reported that two conferences are to be held in the near future. The Quinte Regional Auxiliary Conference is to be held at the Port Hope United Church on Saturday, October 8th, and the Eastern Conference will be held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Kingston, Thursday, October 20th. Members are urged to attend these conferences, bringing with them any ideas and projects they wish to share with other groups.

Plans were discussed for a Hallowe'en Party for the Cubs to be held October 28th. The Welfare convener reported sending a sympathy card to the past president, Joy Wonnacott.

Joan Reid, assistant Cub Master, was present and advised that another assistant was urgently required for Avondale. No further Cubs can be accepted unless another leader is found. It was reported that the father and son wiener roast held at Zwick's Island in June was a success. A short report was given regarding Cub camp held at Camp Sagonaska July 15th to 17th.

Members are to note that the next meeting is to be held on Tuesday, Nov. 5th, at the home of Marg Twiddy, 138 Wright Avenue, with Laura Vogl as co-hostess.

During the social hour that followed, David Williamson, an Avondale Scout who attended the Jamboree at the Plains of Marathon, Greece, showed slides and gave a most interesting account of his experiences there.

Laura Vogl, on behalf of the Auxiliary, extended thanks to David for his informative talk.

Autumn Friendship Night Observed by B and P Clubs

It is an enlightening and frightening experience to learn the tremendous forces of propaganda, and to learn how the minds of men can be cast in a mould so that they believe absolutely what they are told. Lectures and textbooks in United States and Canada are pictured as capitalists mercilessly exploiting the working men, and threatening war, Mrs. Margaret Ashdown, Provincial President, told the members of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs at the "Autumn Friendship Night" dinner at the Masonic Temple on Saturday night.

"Outside information is limited, and the people of Russia never hear about the good things in Canada, but they hear all about race riots in the southern States, and the cost of armaments spent by our governments."

Mrs. Ashdown recently returned from a visit to the Soviet Union and other European countries, spending five weeks with every available minute spent in seeing new things and meeting new people in a school, meeting men and women concerned with improving the lot of people, and entering into a year of international co-operation.

"When we talk about Russia, it is important to compare it with today's what it came from, and to remember particularly that Russia is trying to compress into years what it took centuries to accomplish.

"Winston Churchill said Russia is an enigma, contained in a puzzle. One fact makes Russia alienated from us, its Communist doctrine. Almost 200 years ago, we find the Russian people first revolting against the terrible bureaucracy of the Czars. When Stalin died he left an empire greater than any of his Czars'. More than one-quarter of the land area in the world is under communist domination, and more than one-third of the people.

FREE EDUCATION

"Russia has made great strides in education. At the time of the Czars 74 per cent of the people were illiterate. That is almost a thing of the past. Education is free to anyone capable of absorbing it. University students are paid, and their books, yet adolescent boredom. Teachers' salaries compare favorably with doctors' and lawyers'. Soviet claim to be the best-read people today, with a library for every 300 people.

"There is no advertising in Russia. They have free medical service, the people go to the clinics, and the mortality rate is a quarter less than in 1913. Dentist care is available and free, except for gold crowns. Almost all of the dentists are women.

"Women have equal rights with men, and get equal pay. But they have to work like men, and almost half the people in the labor force. It is still a peasant country, and women are used to hard labor, and they enjoy the social life until marriage. Then they have to live in crowded quarters with substandard housing, and men regard it as a great indignity to help around the house. The married women are overworked, tired and unhappy, although they get medals, honors and titles for having large families.

"There is a distinction between these women and career women. These women have taken over many fields including medicine, engineering and science in a way that is unparalleled in any country.

Russia has many faces today, and whether they are frightening or healing depends on the onlooker. One of the surprises in Russia is that it is not the classless society of Marx, and the difference between the lowest and highest classes is greater than in any western country. There are four classes, the peasant who is the unskilled worker and is at the bottom level living is difficult circumstances; the lower middle class made up of clerks, office workers, teachers, and skilled workers, the most dedicated and idealistic group; the upper middle class, functionaries, senior scientists, authors and artists, University professors, all of whom live well; and the people on the pinnacle, the Soviet party leaders who live in beautiful mansions, are highly paid, have summer homes and chauffer driven cars, a privileged class, with an inheritance tax who will pass on great wealth to the next generation.

"Religion is no longer outlawed but is considered bourgeous, and religious ceremonies are not encouraged. Children are greatly improved, and many girls make their own. They go to hairdressers and appear quite attractive. But the materials are poor, and men's clothes and shoes are expensive.

"The lack of privacy is a great sorrow. Bathrooms and kitchens are shared, and the houses are poorly built and shoddy.

HOLES IN IRON CURTAIN

"We are going to have to live in the world with communism. They are never going to give it up, and we must be assured that it does not engulf us. We must learn more about our own ideology, and have enough confidence in our beliefs that we can meet communism.

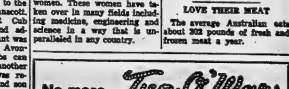
"We must put in communications. Find a way to make holes in the iron curtain, have more cultural exchanges, and be knowledgable about communism."

Mrs. Ashdown was introduced by Mrs. Dorothy Brown as a distinguished career woman with tremendous drive and authusiasm, and a warm human being who had earned the respect and admiration of all who had met her.

Appreciation was expressed by Mrs. Maude Piper. Following her address Mrs. Ashdown showed slides taken on her trip overseas.

Alderman Jack Ellis brought greetings from the citizens on behalf of the city. Miss Florence Fitzgerald presided, and introduction of the guests at the head table was made by Mrs. Anna MacLean. A toast to International Federation was given by Mrs. May Highland, with the response by Mrs. Margery Fewtrell. Mrs. Reverley Shaw contributed two solos, accompanied by Miss Dorothy Ann Shaw on piano.

Head table guests were piped in, and seated at a table tastefully decorated with a low bowl of bronze and gold 'mums, yellow and green candles in unique holders. Colorful refreshments of maple leaves made spots of brilliant color around the hall.



The banquet was prepared and served by the ladies of Melrose United Church.

Representatives from Peterborough, Cobourg and District Business and Professional Women's Clubs attended the dinner.

End of Season Camp Data

by Mary Moore

When the summer begins and camp directors start making plans and hiring staff, I receive letters from women who have been asked to be cooking. Many of these have cooked for camps before but others are optimistic in good amateur cooks. They ask me for quantity recipes and sometimes for the menus (including recipes!) for the whole two weeks.

I do my best with these requests. But this past weekend I have been one of the counsellors for a weekend camp at Ryerson Beach and I hovered over Mrs. Thomas, the personal camp cook, in the kitchen, asking her each step she made in the dinner she prepared for 37 grown-up teenagers. She served roast beef, mashed potatoes, carrots, tossed salad and cherry upside down pudding. I have weights, times, temperatures, amounts and recipes for most of these items.

So camp cooks in our audience should clip this column for next summer's camp cooking.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Roast Shoulder of Lamb; Fresh Mint Sauce; Green Peas with Green Onion White Sauce; Parsleyed Potatoes; Celery Curls and Sticks; Large Hot Baked Potato with 10% Cream; Coffee.

ROAST BEEF (serves 67 generously)

Two rolled, boned round steak roasts weighing 16 pounds each — 28 pounds bone less lean meat altogether. Mrs. Thomas put these 2 roasts into 2 separate ovens at 325 deg. Fahr. without any preliminary preparation, at 8 a.m. and removed them at 11.30 a.m. for dinner at 12.30. By 11.30 the meat had developed a little and she could pet both in one pan and hold them at 200 deg. Fahr. until it was time to slice them on the slicing machine. She cut both roasts in half to give her flat surfaces to facilitate even slicing in the machine. She had an empty oven in which to bake.

UPSIDE DOWN CHERRY PUDDING (provides 24 big pieces each):

Make 3 pansful of this to serve 72 generously.

Mrs. Thomas' Standard Cake Batt: One and one-half cups best-quality shortening, 3 cups sugar, 6 eggs, 3 teaspoons vanilla, 6 cups sifted-once and pastry (soft wheat) flour, 7½ teaspoons single-acting baking powder, 1½ teaspoons salt, 3 cups milk. Cream together in electric beater the shortening and sugar then beat in the eggs and vanilla until very light. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt and fold in alternately with the milk until batter is smooth. Into a large 3-gallon-size greased pan, tip 2 cans cherry pie filling. Pour batter evenly over. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour. Serve with Brown Sugar Sauce (sufficient for 75 3-oz. servings): Throw and one-half lbs. brown sugar, 2 oz. cornstarch, 6 cups boiling water, 3 cups corn syrup, 1½ lbs. butter or margarine, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 tablespoon vanilla, 2 tablespoons vinegar. Combine sugar and cornstarch. Bring water and syrup to boil together. Add sugar-cornstarch mixture, stirring constantly. Cook gently 15 minutes, stirring. Add butter and salt. Remove from heat. Add vanilla and vinegar.

MASHED POTATOES (to serve 75):

Weigh 30 lbs. potatoes with skins on. Wash potatoes and pare in peeling machine and remove eyes by hand. Boil in salted water until tender — 30 to 36 minutes actual boiling time. Drain, mash in beater until smooth. Add 4 or 5 cups hot milk, 6 tablespoons (approx.) salt and ¾ to ⅞ lb. butter. Beat over low low heat until light and fluffy.

CARROTS (to serve 75):

Weigh 15 lbs. before peeling in potato peeling machine. You should have 15 lbs. when prepared. Cut in quarters lengthwise and cook in boiling salted water until tender — between 15 and 20 minutes. Drain.

NOTE:

Mrs. Thomas made 2 extra pansful of the Standard Cake recipe above. She frosted this sponge cake to serve with bowlsful of apples, peaches and pears for dessert for supper. The bowlful of fresh autumn fruits were surprisingly popular with our young people.

U.C.W. Meeting

CENTRE STREET

The general meeting of Centre Street United Church was held in the church hall with Mrs. D. Hudgins presiding and conducting the worship service. The president gave an interesting reading on Community Greetings and based on this friendship that can be shown to new families in the community, as Easter started the church. The remaining part of the meeting was spent in planning the Harvest tea and bazaar to be held the first part of October. Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

VEND MEALS

A Cwmbla firm has developed a machine for vending deep-frozen meals with an electronic oven for quick preparation of the food.

Lady Cat Killer Needs Psychiatric Assistance

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN — I am a middle-aged bachelor. Several months ago I began to keep steady company with a widow. She loves cats and has two or a silver tabby and a rather fluffy one.

I never cared for cats and I resented her paying so much attention to them. On two occasions she asked me to drive her to the vet with a sick cat and it spoiled our plans for the evening.

Last week the fluffy cat was sitting in the middle of the driveway as I arrived. I was going slowly and could have stopped — but I kept right on going. Yes, I killed the cat.

My friend appeared at that moment. She became hysterical, picked up the dead cat as if it were a child and screamed for me to leave and never come back.

I'm sorry I killed her cat, but it was only an animal and I fail to see why she carried on like a maniac. My brother says if she is so nutty that she would break up our friendship over this, it's a good thing I didn't marry her. What is your opinion? — S. X. Z.

DEAR S. X. Z. — What a hideous, unspeakably cruel thing! You intentionally killed your friend's little pet. In my book you are a sadistic nut who should seek psychiatric help. And take your brother along with you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Two years ago when our daughter Lucille was twelve years old she began to nag me about being allowed to date. I told her she could date at 14.

To be honest with you, Lucille was a sensible, mature 12-year-old and I felt certain that two more years would see her a grown-up young lady.

Well, she will be 14 in three weeks and I realize I made a mistake. The girl is immature, undependable and untrustworthy. I've asked her repeatedly to phone me when she plans to go somewhere after school, and she "forgets" to call and I worry myself sick until she walks in at 6.30 and says she went to the library.

Her room is like a pig stye. She must be told 10 times to sew on a button or mend a hem. I get so tired of nagging her to do the supper dishes that I often do them myself.

Lucille constantly reminds me that I promised she could date at 14 and now I must keep my word. Please help me to do the right thing. — FRANTIC.

* * *

DEAR FRANTIC — You've already made one bad mistake. Don't make another now.

Tell Lucille you expected her to be ready to date at 14, but she is not ready and therefore you can't allow it. Explain that privileges entail responsibilities.

When she behaves in an adult and responsible manner she will be accorded adult privileges. Outline in detail what you expect of her — from A to Z. Tell her you will be watching for improvement. And give her every break.

DEAR ANN — I wonder if people who are forever borrowing realize how much bother they are? I suppose an easy way to get rid of such pests is to say you don't have it. This is fine for flour and milk and butter and eggs, but what about a vacuum sweeper, a steam iron and a floor polisher which they know you do have — because they've borrowed those items before.

These people can afford the necessities. The problem is, how do I say no without alienating them? Perhaps if I were a borrower myself I would be more sympathetic, but my husband taught me a long time ago that a borrower is a poor manager. Can you suggest a tactful out? — BORROWED OUT.

DEAR OUT — Some people aren't irritated by borrowers, in fact they are happy to help a friend. It's apparent, however, that you are irritated. So tell them, "Sorry, but I'm through lending things." If people cross you off their lists because they can no longer use you, you haven't lost much.

Pope Paul

spokesman said today, 372 proposed corrections and amendments to the first half of the schema were mailed to the Vatican by prelates around the world.

A feeling was evident among the church fathers that the session would move with greater speed and efficiency than the first, which ran from Oct. 11 to Dec. 8 last year. This session will continue until Dec. 4.

A young bishop summed up this point: "I think all the bishops are coming back to this session with a lot more enthusiasm. They know now what is intended and what it is they are trying to do."

A DRY RUN?

He described the first session, convened by the late Pope John, as a "sort of dry run" where there was bound to be some disorder because of the size of the gathering.

"But we learned from it and I think the council will move much more speedily this time," added the prelate, who asked to remain unidentified.

In opening the council, Pope Paul said its aims were redefinition and reform of the Catholic Church, restoring Christian unity and closer contact with today's world.

He called the episcopal assembly a council "of invitation, of expectation, of confidence." His clear voice rolled through the hushed Basilica and out to a crowd of 30,000 persons in St. Peter's Square as he delivered the 10,000-word address in Latin.

Like Pope John, Pope Paul held the door open for a reunifying of Christians. To the Protestant, Anglican and Orthodox observers seated near him, he said:

"We lay no snares . . . we do not wish to make of our faith an occasion for polemics."

Hopes for completing the council's business with greater dispatch stem from the reduction in the number of schemata or topics to be considered and acted on. Since the council last met, these have been trimmed to 17 from 69.

DEALS WITH NATURE

The first schema is "de ecclesia" — literally, "about the church." A highly controversial subject, it deals with the very nature of the church from the Pope to the parish priest and his parishioners.

Council fathers referred it back for further study last December, describing it as too juridical in tone. Some contended it overemphasized the church's rights, while saying too little about its duties.

The Pope told the council its purpose was not so much to change fundamental doctrine but to consider "how to expound church teaching in a manner demanded by the times."

The Pope did not attend the working session today. Like Pope John, he was expected to follow the working sessions over a closed circuit TV system hooked up to his apartment.

Four cardinals took the Pope's place as special delegates and moderators to rule on procedural problems that arise. They are Julius Doepfner of Munich, Leo Suenens of Brussels, Giacomo Lercaro of Bologna and Gregory Peter Agagianian, prefect of the Congregation for Propagation of the Faith.

EXPECT ANOTHER

Even though efficiency will be stressed, a third session of the council is expected to be convened in 1964 and the assembly may even run over into the following year.

The historic gathering would still have a long way to go before it matched the record of the Council of Trent, called to meet the challenge of the Reformation. It was convened in 1545 and ended 18 years and five pontificates later.

In his appeal for Christian unity, Pope Paul turned to observers from other Christian churches and expressed "deep sadness" at their prolonged separation. He begged God's forgiveness "if we are in any way to blame for that separation."

The Pope also spoke sadly about persecution suffered by the Roman Catholic Church in many parts of the world.

He appealed to those responsible for such oppression to put aside their unjustified hostility to the Catholic religion whose followers ought to be considered neither as enemies nor as disloyal citizens, but rather as upright and hardworking members of that civil society to which they belong.

ployment and the balance of payments.

"Trade is going up particularly, and for that we can be grateful for two very important agricultural arrangements for wheat and flour export that have been made with the Chinese and the Russian government."

But unemployment is still too high, the balance of payments difficulty remains, and there will continue to be difficulties in economic and financial relations with the United States.

On federal - provincial relations, he said some provinces want to take on more responsibility and have more financial resources for the purpose. But at the same time, federal responsibilities are increasing and the federal government must increase its resources.

"It's not easy to reconcile these two things but it can be done with co-operation. That's the only way it can be done, and we will be having a provincial conference next month in which I hope we can work out new machinery for this kind of co-operation."

Mr. Pearson said the government's contributory unemployment pensions plan to supplement the basic old age pension on a pay-as-you-go basis was intended to apply in all provinces but Quebec, however, decided it would put its own plan into effect.

"Now, that can be done and we can ask here for a national plan providing all the other provinces want it. But if, for instance, Ontario decides that it wishes to have its own pension plan, then the national plan would become, I think, entirely impracticable."

Mr. Pearson said he appreciated Premier Robarts desire to co-operate, expressed after winning last week's Ontario election, and the prime minister said his government will reciprocate.

"If this type of co-operation leads to Ontario participation in the Canada Pension Plan, then we could still bring our plan into Parliament. . . .

"But if Ontario, for reasons which might be perfectly sensible to its government, decided to work out its own scheme, then, of course, we would have to revise our plans entirely and decide whether it would be possible to go ahead with any Canada Pension Plan.

If the plan goes ahead, he said it will be submitted to where all those supporting it and opposing it can be heard.

Transistor Ignition Kit Available

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Prompt cold - engine starts, smoother, surer idling, improved high speed performance and better gas mileage are probably the most proclaimed features of the new transistor ignition systems.

...re is another advantage, however, which should be equally appealing. With a transistor system, you can get far greater mileage between tune-ups than has been possible with conventional ignition systems. And, there's far greater and more efficient mileage from every set of points, too. ...stance they are not subject to the heavy burdens imposed on points in the conventional ignition system.

In essence, this new ignition system is based on a transistor unit, special coil and breaker points, incorporated into the conventional circuit. Transistor ignition kits are available (for as little as $30-$35 plus installation) for all types of ignition systems, whether six or twelve volts.

As far as mileage is concerned "average" would be approximately 40 percent city operation, and 60 percent country driving.

ernment intervention unnecessary.

The Boston meeting Saturday was attended by Donald MacDonald, secretary - treasurer of the Canadian Labor Congress who was scheduled to report to the CLC executive committee Tuesday.

Mr. MacEachen said the government hasn't considered suspending the trusteeship legislation during its parliamentary passage should signs of a private settlement develop.

He had no further meetings scheduled with Mr. Wirtz but expected to be in touch with him by telephone in the next day or so.

To suggestions that the Seaforth International Union and its American union allies might tie up the lakefront in retaliation to trusteeship, Mr. MacEachen expressed the hope that "reason would prevail."

"All parties realize the seriousness of the situation and I would hope they would avoid any actions which would worsen a situation which is difficult enough as it is."

tion could result in minority government.

Mr. Fulton says his party, for the first time in years, offers voters a middle way.

Philip Gaglardi, dynamic highways minister who engaged in a stiff, sharp campaign against Mr. Fulton in Kamloops constituency, says six-per-cent swing of votes would be enough to leave the Social Credit short of a majority.

TWO NOT RETURNING

All but two of the members at prorogation are back on the ballot.

Hugh Shantz, member for North Okanagan and Speaker in the last house, has retired.

Frank Greenwood, who won Columbia constituency in a by-election but did not have time to be sworn in as an M.L.A., was passed over on nomination day and James Chabot will contest the seat for Social Credit.

Premier Bennett said he called the snap election because he wants a new mandate before the provincial-federal conference in November. He also wants approval to go ahead with a seven-year development plan.

NDP leader Robert Strachan said the election was called because provincial affairs are in a mess and the premier wants a new term in power before it becomes apparent just how bad conditions are.

The NDP promised a $50,000,000 medical care plan, government automobile insurance at lower cost, loan private power and to "get rid of social welfare" by cutting the work week to 40 hours from 44. It could all be done by better management of present revenues, Mr. Strachan said.

Mr. Fulton disputed the premier's claim that the province has no direct debt, only contingent liabilities of Crown corporations backed by the province.

Mr. Fulton said the province is "mortgaged to the hilt," $1,300,000,000 in debt.

'HALT PEACE PROJECT'

He would halt work on the government's $400,000,000 Peace River power plan and proceed immediately with the Columbia River power scheme.

Mr. Bennett said both can—and must—be developed simultaneously.

Ray Perrault, Liberal party leader, said he'd call a conference on B.C.'s tax system which he sees "loaded with injustices;" introduce an old-age pension plan to increase automatically with the cost of living and to build hospitals for the chronically ill and hostels for the elderly. School taxes he would remove from real property.

An 11th-hour issue, revolving around the Kingsgate B.C. Electric court case, could affect the voting.

The case was settled Friday and all three opposition parties criticized the government over it.

The government took over the giant utility in 1961 and paid $37,000,000. On Sept. 26, the legal air cleared Friday, the government had agreed to ante up another $2,000,000. Opposition leaders said the settlement was meaningless because the $25,000,000 payment was not sanctioned by the legislature.

Mother and Daughter Squabble

By DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — My problem is my 13-year-old granddaughter. She and her mother (my daughter) seem unable to see each other's point of view, and I am very sorry to see how they seem to irritate each other. The girl is big for her age and looks sixteen. I think perhaps my daughter resents the fact that this girl looks so old for her age, as this makes my daughter feel older.

DORIS CLARK

Her next girl, born when the older one was three, was sickly and cried till everyone around her was distracted. Doctors could not say what was wrong but agreed she must be humored, so that the older child was made to give in to her at every turn. Gradually the older one became very quiet and reserved. At ten she seemed lonely and found it hard to make friends.

Could you recommend any book which might help this mother and daughter to see eye to eye more often? The mother says the girl is cheeky, fusses too much with her hair, is not helpful. The girl feels her mother treats her too much as a child, yet allows her to act as baby sitter now and then, and I may say she does a good job at this. — A WORRIED GRANDMOTHER.

DEAR GRANDMOTHER — In this vicious circle the mother resents her blossoming daughter, a lonely 13-year-old who seethes inwardly from the abuse of years and can no longer see her mother as a person to trust.

The mother is the culprit and Dad, who lets this go on, is not blameless. Even now they could make amends by giving their first born her birthright of loving understanding and a chance to bloom happily.

The names of books, literature and a counsellor are on their way to you.

Confidential to S.M. — For your age and height you should weigh between 111 and 114 pounds.

DEAR DORIS — What's the matter with boys nowadays? Why do they always (before they know anything about you) ask you your measurements? Mom says they never asked her that when she was my age. All the boys tell me I have a good figure (35-25-36). I'm satisfied.

I have never told any boy and I don't plan to, but a friend of mine tells them hers. Then she calls me chicken when I refuse to. Then she starts a fight. I plan to stick to my rights, but it's hard. How can I make it easy? — NOT CHICKEN.

DEAR NOT CHICKEN — Attagirl! The girl who answers rude personal questions about her figure is encouraging a trend — a sad one! If all the girls took a stand about it, the boys would lose their nerve.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1963

PHOSPHORUS GRENADE kicks up a column of smoke as men of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment storm a hill at Deseronto Airport, Sunday. Nearly 200 men were out, over the weekend, for the regiment's "Exercise Wetback."

RESTING as they wait to be loaded aboard the naval craft lying offshore, men of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment take it easy, at Point Anne Saturday. Foreground is Wayne Woods, Joe Maracle has his back to the camera. Ted Young is operating a radio and Bob Weaver is resting against the wall.

WHALER from H.M.C.S. Cataraqui was used Saturday, to load men of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment aboard four light naval craft, in the amphibious "Exercise Wetback". In the picture, Number One Platoon is being loaded from a low dock, at Point Anne.

Hasty Pees Open Training With 'Exercise Wetback'

Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment over the weekend kicked off the training season with its first amphibious exercise in ten years. Exercise Wetback lasted a day-and-a-half, and involved three platoons of the regiment and four light naval craft and a whale boat from H. M. C. S. Cataraqui, in Kingston.

Plans were for a series of boatlifts, leapfrogging two units of the regiment down the Bay of Quinte area from Point Anne to Big Island, from Shannonville to Northport, from Big Island to beyond Northport and final return to the north shore of the bay after dark, near Deseronto. A night exercise was planned near Deseronto, then a day exercise Sunday morning at Deseronto airport.

PLANS FELL THROUGH

Plans for the night landing and night operation fell through though, when the navy refused to allow the night landing at Deseronto. Stiff winds which sprang up after the last load of troops had been taken aboard from the south shore made a beach landing impossible, from the navy's point of view. Finally the boats and men returned to Belleville to unload, and the troops already ashore were brought to town by truck. The night exercise was cancelled and the regiment spent the night in the armories.

Sunday's exercise assumed the enemy who had survived Saturday's action had holed up on a hill south of the airstrip at Deseronto Airport. Three platoons of Hasty Pees marched from the highway to the airport and launched the attack in two forces, taking the hill just in time for lunch.

ADDRESSES TROOPS

Speaking to the men after the exercise, Col. Angus Duff, former commanding officer of the regiment, recalled a similar exercise ten years ago. And the regiment's first amphibious exercise, he said, which followed almost the same route up the bay, was 78 years ago. He commented that although Saturday's landing had not gone according to plan.

Few amphibious exercises do follow the plans. The Canadian army had three years of rehearsals for the landing in Sicily, he said, but when he got ashore he was three miles out of position and four hours late.

Heat Decreases In California

LOS ANGELES (AP)—After five days of searing heat, southern California today slipped back into autumn.

Sunday it was 102 downtown. The predicted high today: 93.

By Tuesday, said the forecaster, the temperature should rise only into the low 80s, about normal for this time of year.

It was the end of the second longest heatwave on record in southern California. In 1955 the mercury pushed past the 100 mark six days in a row.

For most people, five was enough.

Judge Laidlaw Of Appeal Court, Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Robert Everett Laidlaw, a civil engineer and lawyer who was appointed to the Ontario Court of Appeal in 1943, died Sunday, five days before his 72nd birthday. He had been ill since June.

Born in Durham, Ont., he was educated there and at Owen Sound, graduating from the University of Toronto as a civil engineer in 1915. He spent a year as assistant coast engineer for the federal commission on valuation of United States railroads in Detroit.

Mr. Justice Laidlaw was called to the bar in 1918 after winning scholarships each year at Osgoode Hall.

He practised law for four years with a major Toronto firm, joining Canadian National Railways' legal department first as assistant solicitor, then as assistant regional counsel for the central region, a post he held until his appointment to the bench.

For many years he was a member of the faculty of the University of Toronto, lecturing on engineering. In 1937 he and former professor C. R. Young were co-authors of a work on engineering law which became a standard textbook in Canada and the U.S.

Fischer Quints Gain Weight, Doing Fine

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP) — Four of the Fischer quintuplets were weighed Sunday, with the lone boy, James Andrew, still the biggest and all gaining weight.

James Andrew scaled four pounds, nine ounces—up from three pounds, 13 ounces a little more than a week ago.

Biggest of the girls weighed is Mary Margaret, three pounds, 13 ounces. Mary Catherine weighed three pounds, nine ounces, and Mary Magdalene was one ounce lighter.

Only Mary Ann was not weighed. She is the smallest of the five babies. Hospital officials emphasized that her not being weighed in no way was an indication anything is wrong with her.

"She's doing fine, too," a spokesman said.

The mother, Mrs. Andrew Fischer, 30, visited the hospital Sunday and took a peek at her babies through the nursery's observation window.

Man Survives Long Plunge in Niagara Gorge

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) A 23-year-old man survived a 150-foot plunge onto rocks in the Niagara gorge early today.

James M. Patterson of Aurora, Ont., was in critical condition in hospital with multiple fractures, lacerations and bruises following his fall.

Niagara parks police said Patterson suddenly switched off the ignition of a car in which he was a passenger as it approached the river bank in Queen Victoria Park.

He leaped from the car, climbed over a four-foot stone retaining wall and fell about 10 feet before grasping a tree.

His four companions in the car were unable to help him and Mr. Patterson lost his grip, falling onto rocks at the rear of the Ontario Hydro power house in the gorge.

Scouting, Layman Vocation, Made Plain at Region Meet

Scouting is not a pastime. It is a vocation for the layman.

If this has never been obvious before, it was made plain in Belleville Saturday when more than 200 Scouters — the Scout's trade-name for leaders in the field — assembled themselves for a giant refresher course in Belleville.

Officially, it was programmed as the Quinte Regional Conference for Scouters and Supporters. The lengthy title matched the size of the program it signified. For 12 hours, starting at 9.30 a.m., Scouters from Bowmanville to Napanee to Peterborough, convened together in Moira Secondary School to discuss mutual problems and find mutual solutions, while advancing their ideas on Scout operations in general.

The convention opened with a general session in the school auditorium at 10.30 a.m., after the delegates had registered. It also closed there about 8.30 p.m. after a campfire songfest and a summary of the day's events, by conference chairman I. R. Griffith, of Belleville.

In-between-times came the meat of the affair — in courses attended by the Scouters in various classrooms throughout the school building.

The workshops included lectures, films and discussions on various phases of Scouting-pioneering, campcrafts, patrol systems, winter camping and handicrafts.

WORKSHOPS HELD

However, besides the activities of the uniformed branch, those of the plainclothesmen — the local citizens who contribute a combination of business knowledge and personal interest to administration — were also taken care of.

Workshops under such headings as group financing, recruitment and committee work, conversed the backrooms of Scouting in mutual discussion.

Each delegate was requested to attend to the workshops during the afternoon. The highlight break in the day's events came with a banquet at 6 p.m., in the school cafeteria, with R St. J. Terrett, provincial executive commissioner as guest speaker. The civic welcome was extended the organizational executive in its policy of nonalignment, has the largest armed force in southeast Asia.

The British have about 25,000 ground troops in Malaysia, controlled from a huge armed forces establishment in Singapore which continues to operate under the defence arrangement with the new confederation.

Two Australian jet fighter squadrons and one jet light bomber squadron are based in northern Malaya.

Malaysia has announced a crash program to develop a "state of preparedness" by beefing up its forces. It could be overrun in a matter of hours but for Commonwealth protection.

The military buildup of Malaysia will take years. There is good chance the United States, along with Britain and Australia, would be drawn into any sudden warfare that might develop.

GOING HOW FAST

How far is Sukarno prepared to go to crush Malaysia with his policy of confrontation? The question seriously disturbs diplomats in southeast Asia.

"Sukarno is a dictator and he is capable of doing anything," an Asian diplomat said. "We can only hope that he is not foolhardy enough to plunge his country into a war. Indonesia would come out the biggest loser."

Sukarno personally took command of the anti Malaysia fight in May after Indonesia's victory over the Dutch in West Irian. He said Indonesia should have a say in any new alignments along its border.

The Tunku kept stressing the close racial bonds that Malays have with Indonesians. While he pleaded for understanding, the Indonesians heaped more abuse on him and his plan. The gap between the two countries kept widening.

Sukarno May Huff, Puff, Move to Cripple Malaysia But Flag to Be Defended

By DON HUTH

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP)—As the new nation of Malaysia views it, there is no burning back now.

Indonesia's President Sukarno may huff and puff, move to cripple the new nation's economy, and even talk in wartime tones.

But Malaysia's Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman has put it on the line:

"We will defend the flag with all our strength, even if necessary with our lives."

Britain is committed to backing Malaysia to a successful future, and an Australian diplomat says:

"Australia would send more troops to Malaysia if the Indonesians try something. We support Malaysia and we have told it so."

Malaysia unites Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and Sabah (North Borneo). It was born Sept. 16 with the blessing of its former British overlords.

HAS 10,000,000

The nation of 10,000,000 was designed to bring greater democratic unity, contain Communist expansion and permit Britain a graceful withdrawal from its colonial holdings.

Instead it has sparked a violent dispute involving two of its neighbors, Indonesia and The Philippines, and cast the shadows of an armed clash over this area.

The prospect of war, which could start as a concerted guerrilla effort along the borders of Sabah and Sarawak, likely would bring the British quickly into the conflict.

Britain already is deeply involved. Indonesian extremists have directed their attacks against the British in Jakarta, burning the Embassy, ransacking homes, seizing British business and driving British women and children out of the country to safety. Stern notes have been sent to the Indonesian government. Other Western nations have rallied to protect British interests in Indonesia.

Britain appears ready to provide any military support necessary to insure Malaysia's safety.

Indonesia, which has curried favor from both East and West robberee by deputy mayor Ben Corbe.

NOW IT'S SHISHKABOB taking the place of wieners and buns in a Scout cook-out. Parliament Resumes Labors With Stress in All Parties

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament resumes its labors today after an eight-week recess during which internal stresses mounted in all four parties.

The Commons picks up its work where it left off Aug. 2 without the formality and pomp that attends the opening of a new parliamentary session.

While on the surface all will appear as though the Commons merely adjourned overnight, each of the parties approaches the resumed session with new and diverse viewpoints.

For the Liberals, an incipient revolt of backbenchers who wanted a more decisive voice in policy-making was arrested Sunday with a compromise arrangement for strengthening the Liberal caucus' consultative machinery. Back - benchers, however, claimed that they had in fact won a stronger position in dealings with the cabinet.

For the Conservatives, during the summer recess the machinery was set in motion for the calling of an annual general meeting of the Progressive Conservative Association next year, at which Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker will submit his leadership to a test of confidence. An executive meeting of the party is to be held here at the end of October.

For the Social Credit party—which at adjournment was the third-ranking party in the Commons—the recess saw a clear-cut split between National Leader Robert Thompson and his Quebec deputy, Real Caouette. With 12 Social Credit backbenchers following him, Mr. Caouette established his group as a separate wing which intends to sit apart from the 11 orthodox Social Crediters.

While the Social Credit split moved the 37-member New Democratic Party group into third position in the parliamentary hierarchy, the socialist group was quietly struggling with its own internal differences. They revolved on the question of whether the NDP should continue to give tacit support to the minority government of Prime Minister Pearson to keep it in office and avoid another general election soon.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

There probably won't be a "flying swan" or a "shoe-shine boy" on the field, but there's sure to be plenty of thrills and drama on tap when the 1963 World Series gets under way on Wednesday.

The "flying swan" title was tacked onto Cincinnati catcher Ernie Lombardi in the 1939 event against the Yankees. The teams were tied 4-all in the tenth inning of the final game. Yankee slugger Joe DiMaggio belted a single with Frank Crosetti and Charlie Keller on base. Crosetti scored easily and Keller, who was built like a barn, steamed toward the plate where Lombardi, who also occupied a sizable chunk of space, waited for the throw home.

As the ball came to Lombardi, so did Keller, like a ton of bricks. Big Ernie crashed to earth, the ball flying from his grasp. He lay there stunned, like a sunken swan, as the speedy DiMaggio raced around to make the score 7-4 and to give the Yankees the set in four straight games. Poor Ernie's swan dive will always be remembered by baseball buffs, but truth of the matter is that Cincinnati shortstop Billy Myers really was the goat. His bobble gave the Yankees the tying run in the ninth frame and his blooper in the tenth helped set up the events leading to Lombardi's misfortune.

The "shoe-shine boy" was Nippy Jones whose handiwork with the polish and rag helped the Milwaukee Braves take the 1957 series from the Yankees. In the tenth inning of the fourth game, with the Braves behind 3-4, Jones hit for Warren Spahn. Jones danced away from a low inside pitch, and when umpire Augie Donatelli called it a ball, Nippy protested the borschide had touched his foot. Jones got the ball and there it was—a smudge of shoe polish.

Jones was waved to first, and Johnny Logan doubled him in to tie the game. Eddie Matthews sewed it up with a homer and the Braves were back in contention. Lew Burdette hurled two wins in the next three games and the Braves took the series in a 7-game set.

The most dramatic game in all series history was the fifth game of the 1956 event when Don Larsen of the Yankees became the first and only pitcher to hurl a perfect game. The lanky righthander retired all 27 Brooklyn batters to win 2-0. He needed only only one and [illegible] Mickey Mantle came through with a spectacular one-handed grab of a sizzling liner by Gil Hodges in the fifth inning.

Another Yankee pitcher, Floyd Bevens, came close to baseball immortality in the fourth game of the 1947 series with Brooklyn. Bevens had a no-hitter and a 3-1 lead going into the last inning, the sole Dodger tally resulting from two walks, a sacrifice and a ground out. Bevens retired the first batter, walked the second, got the third man and then issued an international pass. Cookie Lavagetto found the second pitch to his liking and boomed it off the right field wall for a double that drove in two runs to give the Dodgers the game.

A fluke accident cost the Yankees the 1960 series. In the sweetest and decisive contest against the Pirates, the Yanks were ahead 7-4 as Pittsburgh came to bat in the eighth frame. Gino Cimoli singled and Bill Virdon wrapped an obvious double-play bouncer toward shortstop Tony Kubek. But the ball struck a pebble, took a short hop and struck Tony in the throat as hard he had to leave the game.

The Pirates tallied five runs in that inning but the Yankees didn't give up. They tied it up in their half of the ninth to keep the fans on the edge of their seats. Then came Bill Mazeroski to lead off for the Pirates in the bottom of the ninth. He looked at one pitch for a ball, set his spikes and slammed the next offering out of the park for the game and the series.

This year's series may not wind up in such a thrilling fashion, but it will have its share of excitement. It takes a World Series to key the players to the peak of performance and to give the best they've got for the millions of fans who'll be watching and listening.

Sequence Of Southpaw Duels ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Howard, Mantle Key Men Of Yankees

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—If there is such a thing as a key man in a World Series, Elston Howard, the durable New York catcher could be the man in the upcoming post season struggle between the Yankees and Los Angeles Dodgers.

Attention will be focused on Howard right from the start. Ellie, along with Mickey Mantle, represents the main right-handed power against the Dodgers' left-handed pitching. And this series shapes up as one southpaw duel after another.

Two of baseball's best left-handers, the Yankees' Whitey Ford and the Dodgers' Sandy Koufax, will start in Wednesday's opener at Yankee Stadium. Another southpaw duel between Dodger veterans Johnny Podres and Yankee youngster Al Downing is slated for the second game.

The expected 70,000 customers for the opening game will be watching Howard intently the moment one of the Dodgers' speed demons, Maury Wills and Willie Davis, reach base. The slugging pair have 85 of the team's major league-leading total of 123 stolen bases. In contrast, the Yankees have stolen only 41 bases.

NOT CONCERNED

Howard knows all about the Dodger speedboys but if he is concerned he does not show it.

"They're good," he admitted today, "and I'm not making the mistake of underestimating them. But we have some pretty good base stealers in the American League, too, and they don't give me too much trouble.

"I'd have to say that Luis Aparicio of the Chicago White Sox is as good a base stealer as there is in baseball today. Well, Aparicio tried to steal on me five times this season and I got him five times. He stopped trying."

Baseball people say, however, that runners steal bases on the pitcher, not the catcher. If so, the Yankee-Dodger duels will find a real touchie in Ford, who can handle base runners as well as any pitcher in baseball.

FAVORS LEFTHANDERS

The prospect of hitting against lefthanders in a majority of the games is pleasing to Howard.

"The 34-year-old catcher always has hit lefthanders better than right-handers. Two of his five World Series home runs were hit off Warren Spahn and Jim O'Toole, two of the National League's better lefthanders.

The Dodgers may be without the services of their young third baseman, Ken McMullen for the series opener. The 21-year-old rookie pulled a hamstring in his left leg last Thursday. If McMullen cannot play, manager Walt Alston will move Jim Gilliam, his veteran all-purpose infielder, to third and play Dick Tracewski, another youngster, at second.

Latchford Tosses Two-Hitter

Kenmors Win Eastern OBA Title

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Belleville Kenmors return to form here Saturday—and they could not have picked a better time to do it.

Led by Bill Latchford's brilliant pitching performance, the Kennies blanked Brockville Beavers 6-0 to grab a berth in the OBA Senior finals against Galt or Campbellville.

Latchford faced only 29 batters and hurled perfect ball in every frame except the sixth to stop the Beavers in their tracks. The win gave Belleville the series four games to three and Latchford was the winning pitcher in all four Kenmor victories.

The entire Kenmor club came up with a strong effort, playing errorless ball afield and hitting well in the clutches, sparked in this department by third-baseman Moe Hunter.

Latchford came as close to hurling a perfect game as possible. He retired the first 16 batters in order before Dick Glass poked a single through the shortstop with one out in the sixth.

Pinch-hitter Purvis struck out but Keith Miller cracked a grounde-rule double sending Glass to third base. They were the only two base runners the Beavers managed all day. Latchford then set down the next ten batters in a row to climax his two-hitter. He struck out 15 in all.

BILLY LATCHFORD

Latchford topped his performance by fielding perfectly on five balls hit his way. He also helped his own cause with two solid base hits. His pitching control was perfect with neither a walk or hit batter charged to him.

In the scoring department, the winners plated two in the third, three in the fifth and another in the eighth.

A walk and a hit batter put two on with one out in the third. They advanced on a passed ball and after Asselstine popped out, losing pitcher Dave Smith refused to walk Moe Hunter. It was a bad decision. Hunter wasted a double to the centre field fence to snap the scoreless battle.

In the fifth, Carr's bunt caught the Beaver infield flat-footed. Hunter followed with a two-out single and Mavety made it a 4-0 game with his wrong-field triple down the line. Bralley singled in the fifth run. Failure to pull in foul pops that runners steal bases on the pitcher, not the catcher. If so, the Yankee-Dodger duels will find a real touchie in Ford, who can handle base runners as well as any pitcher in baseball.

Riders Rap Argos, Cats Gobble Larks

Winners Tied For Top

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

If any of the four Eastern Football Conference coaches have a cury for home-sickness, it could be worth the title.

The EFC clubs—with the exception, of course, of the Toronto Argonauts—are terrors at home, but tame on the road.

Ottawa Rough Riders, Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Montreal Alouettes have yet to lose a game at home. Ottawa, however, has won one on the road which could give the surprising Rough Riders an edge.

Toronto? The Argos' only two wins have been at home.

The Argos were rapped 30-12 Saturday afternoon at Ottawa and the Alouettes took a 24-16 beating Sunday afternoon at Hamilton. The result left Ottawa and Hamilton tied atop the standings with 10 points. Fort Ottawa, with a 5-3 record, has a game in hand.

The Als are two points off the pace with a 4-3 record and the hapless Argos are last with two wins and seven losses.

BOOTS SCORE GOALS

Dave Viti was a kicking star for the Ticats Sunday, booting three field goals—54, 33 and 34 yards—in the second quarter as Hamilton took a 19-0 halftime lead. Viti added two more converts and a single. Bernie Faloney hit Tommy Grant with a touchdown pass in the first quarter and the Tabbies' other touchdown was scored by rugged Bobby Kuntz.

The Als, who still remember the 307 punting they took in the season opener at Hamilton, needed a Tical fumble and a blocked kick to set up their two touchdowns, both scored by Marv Luster. Gino Beretta kicked the converts, both in the third quarter, and the margin was cut to 17-14.

Fullback Dave Thelen was the workhorse for the Rough Riders and barged for two of their four touchdowns. Quarterback Russ Jackson and halfback Ron Stewart got the others. Stewart ran 20-yard pass from Jackson. Moe Racine, leading scorer in the East with 46 points, kicked a field goal and three converts.

Toronto's Dick Shatto scored one touchdown and Jackie Parker, effective as a target for Sandy Stephens' passes, scored the other.

The Argos looked hungry in the first half at Ottawa and held a 6-3 halftime lead which was rapidly wiped out when the Rough Riders got hot in the final 30 minutes.

It was Parker's first touchdown of the season and his passcatching—16 for 123 yards—dashed the 18,023 fans.

Ottawa's Russ Jackson, after a slow start, performed well in the second half and again had a remarkable passing record as he completed 12 of 18 for 245 yards.

Tommy Davis, Yastrzemski Win Batting Championships

NEW YORK (AP) — Tommy Davis of Los Angeles Dodgers captured the National League batting championship for the second straight year and Carl Yastrzemski of Boston Red Sox won the American League crown for the first time.

Davis, a .346 hitter last year, finished the 1963 campaign Sunday with a .326 average. Yastrzemski wound up at .321. Davis is the first National Leaguer to put together consecutive batting titles since Stan Musial in 1951-52. Yastrzemski succeeds Pete Runnels as the AL champ. Runnels played for Houston in the National League this season.

Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh Pirates, the 1961 NL batting leader, was the runner-up to Davis this year with a .320 average. Hank Aaron of Milwaukee Braves and Dick Groat of St. Louis Cardinals tied for third at .319.

Aaron was the pacesetter in runs batted in with 130. His 44th homer in Sunday's game against Chicago Cubs enabled him to tie San Francisco Giants Willie McCovey for the home run title.

Al Kaline of Detroit Tigers wound up in second place in American League batting with .312. He was followed by Rich Rollins of Minnesota Twins, .307. Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota and Jackie Jensen of Boston, .305.

Tied with 25 homers in the American League, 45, were Boston's Dick Stuart, was the runs batted in leader with 118.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Grand Garcon, a 45-1 long shot, finally lived up to his early prospects Saturday, racing from behind to defeat favored Northern Dancer in the featured Cup and Saucer Stakes at Woodbine Race Track.

Grand Garcon, under jockey Dick Armstrong, celebrating his 23rd birthday, covered the 1 1-16 miles in one minute 45.8 seconds to defeat Northern Dancer and Jockey Ron Turcotte by three-quarters of a length.

The winning colt provided $34,025 of the $42,025 purse for owner Frank A. Sherman of Hamilton.

He paid $91.50, $22.80 and $7.80, and Northern Dancer paid $4.00 and $2.70. Jammed Lively, in show position, paid $3.70.

Galt Series Will Resume, Says Convenor

Belleville Woods-Horticks are back in the hunt for the OASA Juvenile "A" softball championship, according to OASA convener Don Lee.

Lee announced on the weekend that the Galt team had refused to accept the series by forfeit.

Galt won the series opener 10-1 on September 21 but the Belleville club could not field a team for the second game here Saturday and announced that the series would be forfeited.

"Galt wanted to win or lose the series on the diamond so we have arranged for the second game to be played at Willowdale (half-way) on Monday (tonight) at 8.30," Lee said late Saturday afternoon.

He said Woods-Horticks sponsor Elmer Woods told him he would have a team there for the game.

Chatham Squares Series

Chatham Knights of Colom bus overcame an early 2-0 deficit to down Belleville Jones Motors 6-2 in Chatham Sunday afternoon and thus bring their OBA Juvenile "A" baseball final at one game apiece.

Belleville scorer Frank Cris said this morning that the Jones team had protested the game because Chatham had used three midget players in Sunday's affair.

Third game of the series is scheduled for Chatham next Sunday afternoon.

Belleville jumped into a 2-0 lead in the second inning with Chatham getting one run back in the third. The winners followed up with three runs in the fifth and a final pair in the eighth.

Herb Wahabayashi pitched the Chatham triumph, slopping Belleville on seven hits. He issued one base-on-balls.

Dave Lewis was the starter and loser with control trouble leading to his downfall. Bill Barberstock took over in the fifth inning. They gave up nine hits in all. Lewis struck out five, but issued ten walks. Barberstock fanned four and walked one.

Jones scored two runs on long back-to-back doubles by Barberstock and L. Lewis, plus an infield error but Wahabayashi blanked them from then on.

Lewis walked the bases full and a fielder's choice play plated Chatham's initial run. In the fifth, singles by Twigg and Russell plus a walk filled the bases. An error on a pop fly to centre tied the score and a fielder's choice play made it 3-2. Another walk and a sacrifice fly made it 4-2 before the inning was over. Three hits and a fielder's choice scored the winners' pair in the eighth.

Wakabayashi sparked his own attack with a double and single. Eddie Wright, Bill Twigg and D. Russell each contributed a pair of singles, while Mike McKeown got the other one.

Larry Lewis hit a double and single for Belleville. Bill Barberstock, Bob Ethier and Dave Lewis each had a double, Gary McMillan and Bob Boyle a single apiece.

Stan Musial Ends Career With 2 Hits

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Stan Musial, who broke in with St. Louis Cardinals with two hits 22 years ago, ended his career in the same way Sunday in a 14-inning 3-2 Cardinal victory over Cincinnati Reds.

Dal Maxvill's game - winning double in the last of the 14th enabled Musial to retire on a triumphant note.

Musial delivered the first hit off Cincinnati pitcher Jim Maloney, a single, in the fourth. Then in the sixth, Musial singled after a double by Curt Flood, driving in the game's first run.

The two hits for Musial, who struck out his first time up, brought his career total to 3,630. He has played in 3,026 games and ended with a .331 lifetime batting average. This year he hit .251.

Before the game Musial received one standing ovation after another.

Nationals Smash All Fan Marks

NEW YORK (AP) — The National League smashed all baseball attendance records in 1963, surpassing the mark established last season when the circuit expoded to 10 clubs.

However, a drop of almost 1,000,000 in the American League resulted in an over-all major league decline of 4.2 per cent.

The National League attendance after Sunday's final games was 11,382,223 compared with 11,360,159 last year. The American League wound up with 9,065,232, or 919,824 under the 1962 total of 10,015,056.

The big league aggregate was 20,477,455. In 1962 it was 21,375,215.

Los Angeles Dodgers led both circuits with 2,538,602.

Kelso Wins Rich Stakes

NEW YORK (AP) — A crowd of 50,254 cheered mighty Kelso down the Aqueduct home stretch Saturday as the great thoroughbred champion surged past Never Bend for his third consecutive victory in the $108,800 Woodward Stakes.

Kelso, six-year-old champion owned by Mrs. Richard Du Pont and ridden by Ismael Valenzuela, virtually clinched his claim as an unprecedented fourth straight horse-of-the-year title as he flashed home a 3½ length winner.

Crimson King Farm's Crimson Satan, the top two-year-old of 1961, was third, 1½ lengths behind Never Bend but six lengths ahead of Kelso's twelfth foe, Catherine Price's Kentucky Derby winner of two years ago.

Kelso is the world's second leading moneyy inner with $1,483,917 and is closing in on the leader, Round Table, who retired with $1,749,896.

Bombers Whip Eskimos 38-30

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg Blue Bombers threw their biggest offensive punch of the season at the Eskimos at Edmonton Saturday night for a 38-30 Western Football Conference victory.

Sparked by the passing of veteran quarterback Kenny Ploen, Bombers drove for 512 total yards in a display reminiscent of the power that propelled them to four Grey Cup victories in the last five years.

The win boosted Blue Bombers into third place, one point ahead of Saskatchewan Roughriders.

They try to consolidate their position when they return home tonight to play Roughriders in one of two WFC games. Calgary Stampeders visit British Columbia Lions at Vancouver in the second contest.

A Winnipeg victory tonight coupled with a Calgary defeat would put the Manitoba club in second place with 14 points, one more than Stampeders.

Ploen completed 19 of 32 passes for 306 yards in leading Winnipeg to its 12th consecutive victory at Edmonton's Clarke Stadium. Bombers also rushed for 206 yards. Their total yardage was good for 23 first downs.

COLLECTS 20 POINTS

George Fleming, a kicking specialist cut adrift by Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Conference at the start of the season, picked up 20 points for the Bombers to boost his league-leading total to 86 in nine Games. Included in his scoring was a 94-yard touchdown run on the kickoff return, three field goals, two singles and three converts.

Ploen combined with end Farrel Funston for two touchdown passes and halfback Leo Lewis went over from the five for the other Bomber points.

Guard Bill Mitchell led Edmonton with three field goals and three converts. Halfback Jim Thomas ran for two touchdowns, one on a 29-yard run around right end and the other on a three-yard jump over centre.

The purchase of a home represents for many the most important single purchase of a lifetime.
It means an investment of many dollars saved; and it means also a mortgage repayable over many years to come. Yet with the purchase of a home comes a pride of ownership enhanced by the labor and toil that are put into it to make it just the way we want it, and gradually the house becomes a home and where houses may be alike, homes reflect the character of the owner.
If you have considered becoming a HOME-OWNER may we extend an invitation to discuss the homes we have available and the assistance we are able to provide.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

The Calgary Olympic Development Association postal branch is Box No. 1968, telephone number is Amherst 9-1968.

These numbers have a sentimental meaning to more than 300 fellows in Calgary. They are the people who have been plugging Banff as the site of the 1972 Winter Olympic Games in-which else?—1968.

All they can hope for now is that the address and phone number will become as well familiar in Canadian sports by Jan. 28, 1964. That's when the International Olympic Committee meets at Innsbruck, Austria, to decide venue of the 1968 Games.

"Our homework is completed," Bud Messinger of Calgary, manager of the CODA, said in Toronto the other day. "Everything is ready to go. All interested International sports federations—hockey, skiing and so on—have been advised of our plans. Now it's up to the IOC to decide whether Canada, specifically Banff, gets the Games. We think we have a good chance."

FANTASTIC PLANNING

The planning by CODA, President Ed Davis of Calgary, Messinger and scores of other interested officials has been fantastic. Messinger and a stenographer have been the only paid employees. The 300 members have donated their time and money towards getting Canada the Olympic Games for the first time.

The CODA was formed in 1958. The first pitch to the International Olympic Committee to get the Winter Games for Canada was made in 1959. That was

Giants Win, Cards Beaten

Unbeaten Bears Defeat Lions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago Bears, the scourge of the National Football League in the 1940s, continued showing signs Sunday of a return to those halcyon days.

With quarterback Billy Wade passing for three touchdowns and scoring a fourth himself, the Bears crushed Detroit Lions 37-21 in Detroit to extend their unbeaten string to three games and maintain their position atop the league's Western Conference standings.

Cleveland Browns, mean while, rode Frank Ryan's passing and Jim Brown's running to a 30-6 victory over Los Angeles Rams in Cleveland and went alone into first place in the Eastern Conference, also with a 3-0 record.

St. Louis Cardinals, who shared the Eastern Conference lead going into Sunday's games, were upset 23-10 by Pittsburgh Steelers and fell behind.

New York Giants, the defending National Conference champions who took a 31-0 thumping in Pittsburgh a week ago, had quarterback Y. A. Tittle back in the lineup Sunday and he led them to a 37-14 victory over Philadelphia Eagles before 66,671 in Philadelphia. The Giants now are 2-1.

PACKERS BEAT COLTS

League champion Green Bay Packers, who lost their opening game to the Chicago Bears, brought their record to 2-1 Sunday with a 31-20 victory at home over Baltimore Colts.

Washington Red Skins handed Dallas Texans a 21-17 defeat with a 79-yard touchdown run by Jim Steffen on a pass interception to leave the Texans winless in three starts.

Minnesota Vikings won their second game in three by defeating San Francisco's winless 49'ers 45-14.

In the American Football League, the determined San Diego Chargers rolled to their third straight victory with a 36-10 pounding of the defending league champions, Kansas City Chiefs.

Quarterback Tobin Rote threw three touchdown passes for the Western Division leaders, who haven't lost a game this year.

DENVER WINS FIRST

Meantime Denver Broncos chalked up their first victory of the season by edging out New York Jets 20-17.

Oakland Raiders, who had been beaten by Boston Patriots at Denver 14-13, Quarterback John McConnick, at the Bronco controls for the first time, steered his teammates to two second-half touchdowns and a come-from-behind victory.

Dick Gassman's 35-yard field goal in the third quarter, plus three pass interceptions and a fumble recovery by safety Dainard Paulson, helped New York Jets beat Oakland Raiders at New York 19-7 Saturday night.

In another Saturday night game, Houston Oilers scored second to none of the seasons against two teams as they downed Buffalo Bills 31 - 20. George Blanda's three touchdown passes to Charlie Hennigan did the trick for Houston.

Scored Three and Three

Gordie's Hot-and Howe!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gordie Howe seems to improve with age.

Ready to enter his 18th National Hockey League season, the 35 year-old veteran of Detroit Red Wings has been the outstanding player of the exhibition trail.

He continued his streak Sunday night, scoring three goals and adding three assists as the Wings defeated Boston Bruins for the American Hockey League 9-1.

He had another goal Saturday night as Detroit lost 4-3 to Pittsburgh Hornets, also of the AHL.

Each of the other five NHL teams also played a pair of exhibitions during the weekend.

Toronto Maple Leafs shut out the Western Hockey League All-Stars 3-0 Sunday after edging the WHL's Portland Buckaroos 3-1 Saturday. New York Rangers beat Los Angeles Blades of the WHL 5-1 Saturday and clubbed St. Paul Rangers, of the new Central Professional Hockey League, 13-3 Sunday.

SPLIT DECISIONS

Montreal Canadiens and Boston Bruins each won and tied a game in the AHL opposition, while Chicago Black Hawks split a pair with the AHL teams.

Montreal beat Quebec Aces 2-0 Sunday after a 3-3 tie with Buffalo Bisons. The Bruins tied Providence Reds 3-3 Saturday and then beat the Reds 6-2 Sunday. Chicago traded 3-2 decisions, beating Baltimore Clippers Sunday after losing to Hershey Bears Saturday.

Howe got scoring support Sunday night against Buffalo from Ronnie Ari Stanton, who had two goals, and Larry Jeffery, Alex Faulkner, Alex Faulkner and Norm Ullman, who each scored once. Billy Dea scored for Buffalo.

Eddie Mazzaburgo scored twice and Dave Keon once for Toronto against the WHL stars Sunday.

Against St. Paul, Ken Schinkel scored three goals to lead New York, and Rod Gilbert and Val Fonteyne each added a pair. Gord Labossiere, Ron Johns, Don McKenney, Karl Ingarfield and Don Marshall each scored once. Rich Brown counted both St. Paul goals.

Jacques Laperriere and Ralph Backstrom scored for Montreal against the Aces Sunday.

Wayne Maxner and Ron Ellis for the Bruins Sunday, with Tom Williams, Dean Prentice, Murray Oliver and Andy Bathgate the others. George Ranieri scored both Providence goals.

The Hawks won Sunday with two goals in the third period against Hershey, erasing a 1-1 tie after two periods. Reg Fleming scored for Chicago in the first period and Bryan Hextall for Baltimore in the second.

Judy Garland Show Proved 'Thoroughly Entertaining'

NEW YORK (AP) — The much-discussed Judy Garland Show arrived on CBS Sunday night and proved a thoroughly entertaining if extremely uneven variety hour.

The entertainment was largely due to the star's debut in weekly television. She seemed nervous, but is what the producer designated as informal conversation. She was never nervous when singing, but making television small talk is a specialty and Miss Garland isn't Jack Paar—yet.

Generally, the show was gay and good humored. Guest star Donald O'Connor provided first-rate support. Jerry Van Dyke helped out with the comedy, including an amazing but too-long monologue.

But the show was Miss Garland, slim and svelte. And even with the rough spots—and perhaps partly because of them—it was fascinating.

Earlier in the evening a delightful comedy series had its CBS premiere. Called My Favorite Martian, it is a sly and witty fairy story about a Martian scientist, studying "this primitive planet" who crashed lands his space ship in southern California.

The martian is a gentle creature possessed of a host of attractable antennae and ability to become invisible at will and to read minds. Ray Walston plays him in dry style.

Hollywood and the Stars, a new half-hour NBC series (9.30-10 p.m. EDT) is the only program which will have its first performance tonight. The series will document careers of Hollywood's great ones and starts with a show about the late Humphrey Bogart.

TALKING IT OVER, before the Belleville United Appeal Campaign parade Saturday, parade marshal Col. Angus Duffy explains the order of march to Patsy Reid, of the Brenda Branscombe dancing group.

AND THE BAND PLAYED ON the back of a truck, because there were no marching bands available. After two bands which had agreed to take part in the Belleville United Appeal Campaign parade Saturday withdrew at the last moment, the Belleville Men of Brass offered to take their place. But the Men of Brass don't march, so a truck was supplied to carry them in the parade.

CLOWNING AROUND as they make up for the parade Saturday morning are Margaret Sinclair, 13, Janice Holden, 15, and Sharon Duby, 18. The girls were recruited from B.C.I., by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, for the parade.

Community Planning Assoc. Urged to Help Get Things Going for 1967 Centenary

QUEBEC (CP) — Communities across the country have not yet submitted through their provinces a single project to the National Centennial Administration, Dr. Norman A. MacKenzie said today.

"This is just not good enough," he said, urging members of the Community Planning Association of Canada to help get things going for the 1967 centenary.

Dr. MacKenzie, president of the Canadian Centenary Council, a privately - organized body, gave the keynote speech as the association's annual conference got under way.

The federal government was prepared to pay up to $1 for each person in each province for such projects, provided the sponsoring body and provincial government would match the figure involved.

This meant that possibly $60,000,000 was waiting to be spent on centennial projects of a permanent nature—such as parks, buildings and concert halls.

SUGGESTS SPONSORS

The sponsoring body might be a municipality, provincial government or organization, such as a university, Dr. MacKenzie former president of the University of British Columbia, said.

It should submit its plans to the provincial government involved for approval.

On provincial approval, the plans could be submitted—by the province—to the centennial administration, which would advise the federal government on the project.

"This seems clear enough, but for the usual reasons, while most of the provinces have passed appropriate legislation and some have set up provincial centennial committees, no single project has been approved and submitted to the National Centennial Administration under this plan and not a dollar of the envisaged $60,000,000 has been spent."

Dr. MacKenzie said there are people interested in or responsible for the centennial program in each province, as well as towns and cities.

"One of our problems, a continual Canadian one, is to discover just who is responsible for what, and where," he said. "One of our most pressing needs is for a clarification of this situation. . . ."

Dr. MacKenzie noted that the Fathers of Confederation memorial Centre in Charlottetown, which will be completed next year, is a good model for centennial planners.

Garden Notes

Fall Planting of Roses Best

By FLORA M. SAVELLE

There are many advantages to fall planting of roses. A rose planted in the fall has a head start on those planted in the spring. It develops more naturally and with greater vigor. The soil is in better condition in the fall than in the spring and the gardener usually has more time to prepare the beds thoroughly.

A rose that is held over winter in storage under artificial refrigeration, no matter how carefully controlled makes the effort to start spring growth at the usual time. When planted, this rose tries to make up for lost time, sending out tender roots that are not tempered to low spring temperatures as are those that wintered over outdoors.

Roots go on growing for some time after top growth has stopped due to low temperatures. Thus fall planted roses have a chance to adjust to their new environment and make new feeder roots before the soil freezes.

OFTEN SUFFER

Spring planted roses often suffer from die back, especially the yellow and copper types. They put out new shoots but later these die back. The spurt of growth cannot be sustained due to the lack of new root development. The old roots cannot keep up with the demand for moisture needed to maintain the new top growth.

Great improvements have been made in storage and shipping facilities, but spring planted roses do not respond as quickly as those that have been in contact with the soil all winter.

Spring and fall planted roses should be mounded up at the time of planting. This keeps the canes from drying out until the roots can take over the job of supplying sufficient moisture for the whole plant. Spring planted roses should have this mound removed in about two weeks but the fall planted roses should be left mounded until spring has warmed up somewhat. This mounding saves the plants from winter heaving due to alternate freezing and thawing.

Mounding also protects the canes from field mice who eat the bark from tender canes.

Where there is a heavy blanket of snow that will stay on all winter gardeners trust to this to keep their roses safe but even this has proved wrong. Moles and mice burrow under the snow and eat the bark. Trampling the snow down hard around each plant helps here. Winters are unpredictable so it is better to mound up the roses in the late fall.

Do not cut out excess canes or trim them back. This is a job for the spring. Where the canes are excessively long and would be blown violently around by the wind they should be cut back, tied to a stake or a frame.

Use a dormant spray in the winter to kill off fungus and insects that over-winter on the canes. An hour spent spraying in the winter will save you hours of spraying in the summer.

Follow the directions on the container carefully. The temperature must not be too low when it is used and the temperature must remain up for some hours after the spray has been applied.
